Red-Hot Teepees Oust St. Michael's; Mercurys Tie Series With Indians

(By The Canadian Press

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors bowed out of Memorial Cup play Sunday by the width of a goalpost. From the shot that all but went in, they stumbled to an 8-5 loss to St. Catharines Teepees.

The victory, which gave Teepees the best-of-five Ontario Hockey Association junior A semi-final three games to two and lifted them into the finals against Guelph Biltmores, came after a St. Michael's rally — one of the most inspiring seen at Maple Leaf Gardens in years — fell short by a single goal.

Sadly outplayed and trailing 6-1 at the outset of the third period, St. Michael's began to show life, whittling away at St. Catharines' lead. Then taking advantage of penalties, they pulled to within one of the Teeps. With six minutes left to play, the collegians had nudged the visitors with a 5-goal total.

Pouring it on in an attempt to get that tying marker, the Toronto crew went all out, but the closest they got — and that was mighty close — was when Billy Lee hit the post. It was a shot little Marv Brewer—playing an outstanding game in the St. Catharines nets didn't even see.

Bubble Burst

Then Bob Sabourin of St. Mike's drew a tripping penalty. The bubble had burst. With the man advantage, St. Catharines bounced back with two goals of their own to save the day for the 8-5 final.

The Teepees move into Guelph tonight for the first game of their best-of-seven finals against the Biltmores. Second clash is scheduled Wednesday night in St. Catharines.

In O. H. A. senior play, Owen Sound Mercurys, the 1951 Allan Cup champions, Saturday won their second straight game from Stratford Indians to stave off elimination in the best-of-seven finals.

The seventh and deciding clash is scheduled tomorrow night at Stratford. The survivor meets the Northern Ontario champions in an all-Ontario final.

In their fight to capture the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A title. Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Saturday night took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven finals against Noranda Copper Kings with a 6-4 overtime victory. The sixth game is slated again at Noranda tonight.

The NOHA junior A finals took a turn toward Porcupine Combines Saturday when they drubbed Sudbury Wolves 7-2 at Timmins and picked up a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. Fifth game is scheduled at Timmins tonight.

City Keglers Defeat Trenton In Central Loop

Belleville teams were returned victors in the Saturday night sessions of the Central Ontario Bowling League with the "Dromes" defeating Trenton Guays 5-2 and Recreations turning back Trenton Bowl-O-Drome by a similar score. Recreations retained their leadership of the loop.

Walter Moore, veteran Belleville Dromes kegler, established a leagu seasonal record for triples with a 958. His game scores were 302, 271, 385. Joe Legault was singles high with 341.

The scores were Belleville Dromes (5) 3671, Trenton Guays (2) 3594, Belleville Recreations (5) 3734, Trenton Dromes (2) 3336.

High scores were besides Moore: D. Mason 733, B. Sager 676, R. Saylor 735 (293), H. Ryan 724, J. Kirkwood 649, F. Martin 701, J. Legault 727 (341), J. McKenzie 733, Cec Hardwick 773 (298), L. Furnia 818 (304), E. Moore 769 (297), C. Tyler 652.

STEADY IMPROVEMENT

Aided by wider immunization, annual deaths from diphtheria in Canada were reduced from 271 in 1945 to 49 in 1950.

Hornets Sting Hershey Bears; Bisons Ousted

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Hershey Bears 4-1 Saturday night to take their third straight game in the American Hockey League's semi-final playoff series.

The Hornets need only one more victory in the best-of-seven series to qualify for the final and a chance at the Calder Cup.

At Buffalo Saturday, Cincinnati Mohawks advanced to the semi-final round, defeating Buffalo Bisons 6-4 in overtime to sweep their series in three straight games.

At Providence Sunday, the Reds took a 5-1 decision from Cleveland Barons to give them a 2-1 edge in their series. Saturday, Cleveland swept over Providence 7-2.

King Rated Slight Favorite Over Pruden

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—Li'l Arthur King is rated a slight favorite for his 10-round bout tonight with Fritzie Pruden, in the headliner of a five-fight professional boxing show at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Toronto - born Negro who fights out of Philadelphia is favored not only because of his unanimous decision over Pruden the last time they met here in January, but also because many persons were not too impressed by the St. Catharines native's performance against Chico Vejar recently in New York.

Pruden, who will likely weigh in at 144½, lost that bout to Vejar on a split decision. He will have a good weight advantage on King who plans to come in at 137.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 24 — (AP)—Now that the hue and cry about the Oscars is over, it's time to figure out what the results mean. It looks like a triumph of upbeat pictures over the downbeat.

An upbeat picture is one more entertaining that dramatic—westerns, musicals, comedies and adventures.

A downbeat picture is one which treats human or social problems, sometimes finding no solution — concerning murder, greed, marital troubles. It is generally such things that win Academy awards.

This year "An American in Paris" took top honors to the tune of a Gershwin melody. The lighthearted musical snagged seven regular awards, including best-picture. It also helped get Gene Kelly a special Oscar for his work in musicals.

Want Gayety

This is a vindication for Kelly, who contends musicals should be recognized by the Academy in competition with dramas. It also indicates the trend of Hollywood thinking, and perhaps that of the nation's moviegoers. It would seem that the people want gayety from their movies, not problems.

The victory of Humphrey Bogart is another indication of this theme.

His four opponents were nominated for deadly serious roles.

Fredric March was strictly downbeat in "Death of a Salesman;" Marlon Brando was ill-mannered and unrelenting in "A Streetcar Named Desire;" Arthur Kennedy was a blind war veteran in "Bright Victory." And Montgomery Clift in "A Place in the Sun," was marching toward the electric chair at the finish.

Bogart, the easy-going boatman with a thirst in "The African Queen," was treated with little seriousness as a contender.

DIGGING DEEP

Pentlow, England (CP) — Residents of this Essex County village are hoping for a wet summer. The village pump now takes 40 turns of the hand to bring up a bucket of water, although it was once considered a pump of the most modern design.

AT THE CAPITOL — Beautiful blonde Miroslava makes her debut with Mel Ferrer in "The Brave Bulls", opening tonight at the Capitol for its first city showings. On the same program —in Technicolor "Al Jennings of Oklahoma".

AT THE CAPITOL — Dan Duryea stars with Gale Storm in Columbia's "Al Jennings of Oklahoma," filmed in color by Technicolor and now at the Capitol Theatre today and Tuesday only. On the same program "The Brave Bulls."

AT THE BELLE — Shelley Winters is starred with Gary Merrill, Bette Davis, Michael Rennie and Keenan Wynn in "Phone Call From a Stranger." 20th. Century-Fox's vastly enjoyable romantic melodrama, showing at the Belle Theatre tonight for the last times.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, March 25, 1952.

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—We suggest you take stock of outlook and what you feel you are capable of doing well before acting. Stars stress caution, carefully planning in all activities.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus) No time to go rushing into things; the right start is essential. Sane enthusiasm is fine; but guard against throwing caution to the winds.

May 21 to June 21 — (Gemini)—Friendly day for those who really think then act intelligently practically. Give your best, something you folks can generally do when true to chart.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Business deals, financial matters will need extra shrewd management. Competition is keen, some are pushing hard, some are lax. You should think twice in all matters.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Some conditions may necessitate a holding off of action for better openings. Interchange ideas with friends, family, someone may suggest a good course. Check well.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—In going after orders, bids or contracts, be reasonable, don't overdo. Build for safeguards, for pursuing a good will program that will react favorably.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—Open day for most endeavors. Be solid, stable, on the level with self as with others. Can get assistance, leads from unexpected sources; be ready!

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Not all encouragement or prospect of gains, but there's always the exception to the rule, so get in there and dig; maybe it will be your exceptional day.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Avoid strain, anxiety about conditions. Cheer, faith should be bolstered. Take things in practical manner; smile, keep trying.

December 23 to January 21 — ((Caplicorn—A little more concentration on exercise, hobbies, recreation where you can. Civic and community affairs, essential home and domestic problems need extra care.

January 22 to February 20 — Aquarius) — Influences stress accuracy in important issues, especially between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.; rays then are strongest. Balance of day more auspicious for minor problems, personal affairs.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) —Aspects on the stimulating, benefic side today. Well-planned efforts should show results but maybe not immediately. Be alert for opportunities.

YOU BORN TODAY: are alert, vivid talented. Inwardly restless; also can be trusted to do a smart job. A leader rather than one to go along with the crowd. Can succeed in profession, be skilled in industry. Talent for diplomatic post. Curb restlessness and aversion to taking orders. Properly educated and holding self in control; make excellent lawyer, doctor, speaker, artist, musician manager. Avoid being headstrong, impulsive and you can reach high goals. Birthdate: Byron Price, World War II U. S. official.

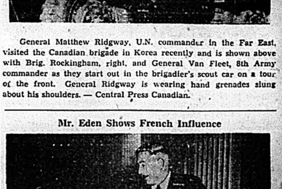
Ridgway Sees for Himself



General Matthew Ridgway, U.N. commander in the Far East, visited the Canadian brigade in Korea recently and is shown above with Brig. Rockingham, right, and General Van Fleet, 8th Army commander as they start out in the brigadier's scout car on a tour of the front. General Ridgway is wearing hand grenades slung about his shoulders. — Central Press Canadian.

Mr. Eden Shows French Influence

Usually undemonstrative, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gestures expressively as he talks to Belgium's Paul Zeeland, left, at the meeting of ministers of the Council of Europe in Paris. The subject under discussion was the political unity of Europe with which Britain was disagreeing. — Central Press Canadian.

These two naval photographs, taken three weeks apart, show the widely contrasting weather conditions and surroundings experienced recently by officers and men of the destroyer HMCS Nootka. On the left, a group of men from the Nootka watch the surf roll in on a palm-fringed beach on the island of Oahu during the ship's stay at Pearl Harbor while en route to the Far East. Those in khaki are, left to right, CPO Duncan Stevenson, Windsor, Ont.; PO Donald Howell, Peterborough, Ont.; Lieut. A. R. H. McClung, Saint John, N.B., and PO William Kenneth, Dartmouth, N.S. Three weeks later the Nootka was carrying out her first patrol in Korean waters in the cold grip of a Korean winter. In this latter setting CPO James Joyce, Montreal and Halifax, the chief boatswain's mate of the Nootka, is shown examining ice which has formed on the upper deck of the destroyer. — (National Defence Photo.)

Bloodhound Leads to Body of Boy

A bloodhound, brought from Michigan, led police, searching for two four-year-old boys of Chatham, Ont., to the edge of Indian Creek. Probing the stream, left, searchers found the body of Gerry Meyers, top. The other boy, G. Coleman, above, is believed to have been swept downstream. — Central Press Canadian.

Prisoners' Hopes Rise Again

Japanese Baseball Boss Foresees World Series Between Japan, USA

By GAYLE TALBOT

San Francisco, March 24 (AP) —T. P. (Cappy) Harada, manager of the Tokyo Giants, says that within not too many years there will be a world series "which —will mean something" —that is, a playoff between United States champions and the champions of Japan's two young professional leagues.

Harada, a baseball nut, is here both on business and to watch all the games he can get to.

"Our boys are getting bigger all the time," he says, "and as they do they are getting to pitch and hit closer to the American standard. Some of them are throwing just about as hard as your pitchers do now, and the larger ones—some of them are six feet and over—can hit the rel long ball.

Now Eating Meat

"The reason they are growing is that they are eating better since the occupation. Before the war we mostly were fish-and-rich-eaters. Now the young ones are eating more meat and vegetables and it is making a difference. I really believe that within another generation, or even less that that, our champions will be playing your teams on even terms. We always were fine fielders."

The first Japanese professional league of eight clubs was formed in 1935. The man given credit for its formation is Lefty O'Doul, who was always making trips over there in those days.

"Lefty is a great hero in our country," Harada says. "When we formed our second big league in 1950 and played our first world series between the Central and Pacific Leagues, Lefty was invited over to pitch the first ball."

Japan had their pro ball right through the war, just as the U.S. did.

"Our people love baseball and the game has a great future in our country," Harada says. "It's our national game...we've never had any other since your missionaries introduced it about 75 years ago.

"Your team of big-leaguers that was over last fall played to one crowd of 103,000 in Tokyo."

TWEED

St. Carthage's Players Present Comedy

Tweed — Packed houses greeted St. Carthagh's Dramatic Society last week with the presentation of their mystery comedy, "Laughing Irish Eyes."

The opening of the play showed domestic troubles in the home of the Dowager, Mrs. Della Oberon. Her maid and chauffeur having announced their leave taking, offered immediate substitutes in the persons of Molly Shannon, an aspiring singer, and a daughter of the housekeeper, Maggie, and Tom McFadden, who was Molly's fiance.

Molly took the surname of St. Clair, leaving Mrs. Oberon in the dark as to her identity.

Spying Detective

Tom McFadden was actually a detective, assisted by Molly, who was sent to the Oberon's home to spy on the boy friend of Mrs. Oberon's daughter. Said boy friend turned out to be the shady crook. The story Oberon diverged at times to the son of Myron Oberon who was composing music for an opera, which ultimately was staged with young Molly as the star. He became entangled with a fortune seeking prima donna. His love affair was to be disentangled by Tom McFadden, who agreed to take over the case.

Mrs. Olive Fobert, as the housekeeper; Mrs. Hope Begley, as her daughter, and Mrs. Mary Hill, as Mrs. Oberon, gave an exceptional performance. The supporting cast also deserved a lot of credit.

The Cast.

The cast is as follows:

Mrs. Della Oberon, Mrs. Mary Hill; her daughter Marguerite, Rose Marie Rivers; her son Myron, John Freeman; Mrs. Maggie Shannon, Mrs. Oliver Fobert; her daughter, Molly, Mrs. Hope Begley; Tom McFadden, the detective, Don Courneyea; Delores Dawn, the prima donna, Aileen Dion; Harry Ryan, the crook, Bert Thompson; Annie Rooney, the maid, Helen Rivers; Danny McGuire, the chauffeur, Fred Thompson.

Rev. W. J. Budsley, who directed the play, deserves a lot of credit for his efforts. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Margaret Marchen. Glen Fleming gave a harmonica-guitar number and solos with guitar accompaniment.

Mr. Anthony Craigen was master of ceremonies. A dance was held on the second night to conclude the St. Patrick's celebration.

MEDICAL PIONEER

The principle of vaccination against disease was discovered by the English physician, Edward Jenner, in 1796.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker

She had angered David by defending Tom. She read it in the tightening of his lips, the sudden darkening of his blue eyes, in his tone which was sharp and cutting, unlike his warm, vibrant tone when he told her that he loved her.

David said "you talk like a child, Jessica."

"I'm not a child." She felt an odd resentment. Tom did not consider her a child. Did she appear weak and dependent to David?

He gave her a quick smile and covered her cold hand with his own. "Look," he said coaxingly, "can't you see that all this dependence upon you is a trick? Can't you understand that you've allowed your sympathy for the man to run away away with you? Look at it this way. Suppose that something had arisen in my own family? Do you believe that I would make that an excuse to postpone our happiness together?

"No," she said, and truthfully, for she began to understand that nothing stood in the way of David's wishes or desires; and what she read in his face brought no reassurance. There was something ruthless in his expression as he tried to convince her that she owed nothing to Tom Blake and his family. Nothing whatever!

He spoke fluently and well, presented endless arguments. She had not been happy, had she? No. She had been miserable and lonely in the house where Tom Blake left her with no thought beyond the fact that she would find shelter with his people. He had shown no consideration for a girl he claimed to love.

"He's quite different now," she said, surprising herself by the statement and aware that, until this moment, she had not realized how different this grave man, who gently nursed his mother, was from the brash young man who had hung about the drug store in Kentucky hoping to catch a glimpse of her.

"They're all different," sad David unfeelingly "and why not? Are you going to allow your feelings to run wild because a man has fought overseas?"

"It isn't that." She felt bewildered, tired, suddenly. This was not what she had expected of this afternoon. She wanted to say: You are different David. You are not the man who spent the brief times we had together repeating how anxious you were to protect me, care for me. Is this your idea of protection? Persuading me to avoid all obligation, treating me like a child incapable of making a decision?

David said "this man is clever enough to play upon your sympathy for him. You met and married him in a moment of infatuation. What do you know about him?"

What do I know about you, David? she thought uneasily.

Soon she must make a decision. A decision she shrank more and more from making. She would not make it today, she determined. Somehow, first, she must get in touch with Lucy— give Tom someone to keep him company when she left him.

When she made no answer to David's question, he went on, "Blake must carry his own burden. Suppose that he had not married?"

"He would have had Lucy," she said slowly. Yes, if Tom had not married, he would have had Lucy. Her entrance into the Blake family was more or less responsible for Lucy's straying from the path and principles set by her mother. Jessica had tried again and again and again to persuade Lucy to be different. The girl had lived so long under her mother's dominating influence that, suppose when she tried to escape, she were unable to adjust herself to a different way of living? Suppose she were susceptible. . .

David said "your husband can hire a nurse to take care of his mother. He can insist that his sister return and take a job in Akron." His voice became impatient "Look, are we going to continue to quarrel over Tom Blake? Do you realize that the afternoon is half gone and we haven't talked about anything but your husband and his family? Is that what you looked forward to today, Jessica?"

She confessed that David was right. She had looked forward eagerly, not to this, but to hours spent as she and David had spent other times, happy, carefree. She forced herself to try to recapture the gay mood in which she had set out after leaving Betsy with Doris. She tried to concentrate upon David's bright plans for the future: the car he would give her as a wedding present, gifts, trips, no responsibility. But her thought constantly strayed away, and she thought uneasily of what might have happened in her absence. She must get back, quickly; she became more and more uneasy, and tried to find excuses why she must leave.

In spite of his pleading that he had made plans to take her out to dinner, she shook her head. She wouldn't tell him that she wanted to hurry home to prepare Tom's dinner. She denied, even to herself that the time spent at the dinner table, with Tom opposite and Betsy in her high chair, was more appealing than the gay evening David promised.

Why? she asked herself. Why?

"I must get back to Betsy," she told David.

Was his response impatient? Would he resent her love for Betsy and regard Betsy as another man's child?

Everything was wrong with this afternoon which had begun so happily.

They parted, David silent and hurt because she was leaving him, annoyed because she refused to let him accompany her to the bus stop, angry that she would not say when she would meet him again.

A dozen times before the bus reached the hospital Jessica lost her courage. A dozen times she berated herself for a fool even to imagine that the girl who lay in the hospital, disfigured and unwilling to disclose her identity, could be Lucy. Even when she left the bus and crossed the street, with the wind whipping her skirts about her and tearing at her hair she was uncertain. She was still uncertain when a little later she was ushered into a warm, brightly lighted office.

She guessed that she was not the only person who had visited the hospital with information. There had been others, the pretty nurse who conducted her, explained. So far nothing of value had been discovered. She sat and waited for 15 minutes by the round electric clock on the wall, growing every minute more tense.

Then a gray haired woman sat opposite her and Jessica's confidence returned under the superintendent's kindly questioning. She listened intently as Jessica told the story of the ring.

She nodded encouragingly from time to time as Jessica described it. The pattern in which the stones were set and the inscription inside the ring corresponded with the ring the injured girl wore, she admitted.

Jessica's eager eyes were bent upon the superintendent's face. She told the story of the ring's sale and the name of the jeweller who bought it. Then she hesitated. Now came the most important fact of all, the one which would give a clue to the girl's identity. There must be a definite link between the purchaser of the ring and the unidentified girl who lay in a room in this same hospital.

The woman opposite noticed her hesitation. "Go on," she urged.

Jessica's dark eyes deepened as she said "I know the man who wanted to buy the ring."

"You are positive that he did buy it?"

"No. But the jeweller could tell you," suggested Jessica eagerly.

Her tension rose as the superintendent dialed a number. She listened to the terse questioning. She watched the changing expression on her face as the superintendent returned the receiver to its cradle and didn't speak for a moment. Then she said "the jeweller denies that he sold such a ring. In fact he denies any knowledge of the transaction, Mrs. Blake."

"He denies that he bought the ring?"

She nodded. "He admits that a girl tried to sell such a ring. He said that he questioned whether she was the owner. I'm afraid—"

Jessica's cheeks blazed. "You believe him?"

"I don't know what to believe," she confessed. "You see," she went on slowly, "we have had so many false clues presented in the past two days. There is a reward offered—"

"By whom?" interrupted Jessica.

"By the newspaper which published the illustration of the ring." The superintendent tapped her pencil against her teeth. "You think you know this girl?"

Jessica said "oh, no." But something in the woman's eyes told her that she did not believe her. She sat staring thoughtfully at Jessica for a moment. Then she said "suppose that we forget the ring. Suppose we try a little experiment. I'm quite certain of your sincerity. I'll take you upstairs and let you see this girl then you can discover for yourself whether there is any possibility that you know her. After all, the ring is only a means of an end with us."

Here was the chance Jessica had wanted —to satisfy herself that the unidentified girl was not Lucy, to set at rest her doubts, and be able to accept Tom's belief that his sister had gone away to work and would write to them shortly.

But suppose the girl was Lucy?

She followed the woman from the office and down the long corridor to the elevator. A cold chill of apprehension swept over her as they left the elevator and her heels tapped down the long, echoing hospital corridor. They paused in front of a door. A nurse slipped out.

The superintendent explained that she planned to visit the patient for a moment or two.

The door opened. They stood inside a room with one shaded lamp beside the high bed. The girl who lay there never moved.

The superintendent motioned to Jessica to follow her as she moved forward Jessica could take in every detail: the slight figure concealed by the bedclothes, a bit of blond hair which showed beneath the bandage that covered practically her whole face, the closed eyes.

What would it mean to learn that this girl was Lucy? Trouble. Grief. Jessica took a step backward. The superintendent said firmly, "speak to her. If you have anyone in mind, speak her name." Jessica's lips were stiff and trembling. She came closer. She bent over the bed, and suddenly the tight lids flew open and just for an instant a pair of agonized gray-blue eyes looked deep into her own.

"Lucy!" She pushed past the superintendent's stout figure and stood so close that she could catch the hurried breath of the injured girl. "Lucy!" she cried despairingly.

The lids covered the betraying blue-gray eyes.

"Lucy!" She had her voice under control now. "Please—Tom's home, Lucy. He needs you."

There was a slight flicker of the eyelids. The superintendent said, "come with me." She led Jessica into the hall outside. "I can't let you stay any longer," she said, "but we'll try to do what we can to persuade her to see you again. Call me this evening. I may have news for you."

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

MORE ON SAME

I'm continuing to receive a large number of letter on the matter of a mental outlook in this modern world and again today I invite you to look over my shoulder.

As I noted yesterday the vast majority of these letters are of a religious nature and, having run several of them to indicate their message, let's turn to some other thoughts.

One reader is convinced that we all takes ourselves much too seriously and feels that "all our wild and preposterous theories of religion and philosophy" are merely an expression of our own enormous ego. Here is the last paragraph of his letter.

"Once the stumbling block is removed the answers are not very complicated. It is mostly a matter of admitting ignorance, when such is the case, and of being conscious of one's own insignificance as a tiny animal on the surface of a small satellite of a very minor star."

The Ottawa Citizen, which ran this particular column received several replies. One, from a man named Ken Hawkins, seemed to me particularly interesting and follows:

"John Masefield has part of the answer to the questions posed by Jack Scott in his article, "Wanted: A Sage."

" 'Best trust the happy moments. What they gave
" 'Makes man less fearful of the certain grave,
" 'And gives his work compassion and new eyes
" 'The days that make us happy make us wise.'

"There is nothing new in the search for serenity, and a sense of purpose. Throughout the ages men have sought these things and some have found them.

"To have a 'cabbage-like' mentality seems enviable in times of stress, but it is the people who are touched deeply by the beauty and horror of life who put most into it—and get most out."

"A reasonably hopeful attitude need not involve hypocrisy. As to the UN report, he cites, Scott has given his own answer. Probably no single thing he could do would be more useful than mentioning those 233,000 children who are born daily into this hungry and troubled world.

"The ordinary individual can't do much and is not expected to. We are not asked to carry the whole weight of the world's problem on our shoulders; we are expected to do out utmost in our own little corner, as opportunity arises.

"Shrug or fall into gloom? No. Pray? Yes, if it comes naturally to you. Sigh? No. Join an organization? Only if you think you could usefully influence, and further the ends of that organization. Forget it? No, but don't worry about it. Hope? Yes, always hope. Despair? No, it gets nothing done.

"Yes, there is thunder over the hill, but (if I may change the metaphor) let's cross that river when we come to it. Meanwhile Scott has his home, his children, and I hope, some time in the sun, and may he long and richly enjoy these things. I have neither home of my own nor family, but it is delightful to think of other people who have.

"One can't expect a constant mental state of serenity. In the sort of world we are living in a person who is always perfectly serene is a knave, a fool or a saint.

"I am a heathen, but I respect Christian standards of value. The prophet Micah said: 'He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?'

"In the thousands of years that have passed, perhaps few people have put, in a few words, a way of life to better this—to be just and merciful, and to walk in humility."

Another letter from Ottawa notes: "Many of your readers will say, here's a chap who has not a mind of his own, but for my part I feel that you are in the company of a vast multitude in the thoughts expressed in your article."

This reader believes, as many do, that the answer lies in a strong belief in religion, but finds no evidence that the church is filling the needs of the day.

"Leadership for peace from the top councils of the church, for example, does not seem to be forthcoming," the writer goes on. "The ordinary minister or priest cannot do very much, but I sometimes wonder what sort of electric effect it would have if the heads of the Christian churches suddenly made the pronouncement that war is wrong and that they will have no part of it. But they stay in the parade, trying to convince themselves and everybody else that every war is a holy war when we all know that there's nothing holy about it at all."

Finally, here's a paragraph from a letter by a Kelowna reader:

'We need to make love the law of our life. In the final analysis, fame, riches, bylines, trophies, acclaim are of no consequence. Little acts of kindness, motivated by love—these are vastly more important. Doing good—unbeknown to others—that is the great contribution. Despite hysterical news commentators, political mouthings, lustful living, disunity, we can know that these are merely part of the passing parade."

KING FAROUK

A British Embassy spokesman said the elections would not affect the negotiations, which were still in the "exploratory stage". Another authoritative British source said Britain "certainly hopes that the negotiations will be concluded before election day."

No Comment Available

Egyptian spokesmen were not immediately available for comment on the possible effect of the new political development on the talks. But political observers were quick to note that an agreement satisfying Egypt's "national aspirations—departure of the Britons—would give Hilaly a powerful vote appeal.

The Wafd two weeks ago decided to withhold support from Hilaly's government, after he suspended parliament for 30 days on March 2 and announced he would wage a vigorous campaign against corruption—allegedly widespread among Wafdist officials—in the government. . .

It was the Wafd government of Mustapha El Nahas Pasha which last October ordered Britain out of Egypt. This touched off a series of riots and British-Egyptian battles which culminated in the death of 67 persons and the destruction of millions of dollars worth of property in the Cairo fire outbreaks. J. MacLeod Boyer, the Canadian Trade Commissioner, died in the riots.

After that riot Farouk dismissed the Nahas Pasha government. His successor, Aly Mater Pasha, atttempted a policy of negotiations with Britain coupled with compromise with the Wafd. But growing Wafdist intransigence made the success of this appear unlikely and Hilaly took over the government on March 2.

Two of the Wfd's strongest leaders—the former Interior Minister, Fuad Serag El Din Pasha, and the former Social Affairs Minister, Abdel Fattah Pasha—were arrested last Thursday. No charges have been filed against them, but Serag El Din earlier had been charged by the government with "administrative responsibility" for the fire riots.

Canada Aims at 54 Ships for Atlantic Pact by 1954

About Same Number Will Be Built for Coast Duty

Toronto, March 24 (CP) —Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy indicated today Canada aims to have about 50 warships available for Atlantic pact service in the North Atlantic by 1954 if war should come. About the same number would be earmarked for protection of Canada's own coasts.

The chief of naval staff said Russia now has more than five times as many subs as Germany had in 1939 and that the modern sub is "a far more dangerous enemy" than the nazis' U-boats.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Toronto Board of Trade Admiral Mainguy said that under Canada's three-year defence program "we are building for an establishment of a fleet of about 100 ships."

"About half of these will be for anti-submarine work in the broad oceans, the remainder being coastal escorts and minesweepers."

His statement indicated a 50-50 split in the navy between coastal defence and anti-sub work in the Atlantic under Admiral L. D. McCormick, the Atlantic pact naval chief who visited Ottawa last week. The navy this year is so tied up by the Korean commitment and by the training of recruits and officers that it is unlikely to be able to spare much more than the aircraft Magnificent for an Atlantic pact exercise this September.

The admiral emphasized the "island" character of Canada economically in the sense that she must import from abroad many things without which she could not long conduct major war. If the navy could not guarantee the arrival of those goods, "our fighting strength would quickly fade into the shadows."

Nearly Strangled Allies

Germany, starting with 60 subs, nearly strangled the Allies in the last war but the Germans underestimated what they had. If they hadn't, they would have started off with more than 60 subs.

The Russians could hardly be expected to make the same mistake. They now had between 300 and 400 subs, were building 100 more of advanced type and envisaged construction of 1,000, according to Jane's fighting ships.

Further the modern sub was "a far more dangerous enemy" than the nazi U-boat.

"It is much faster and carries greatly improved weapons. It is harder to find and harder to destroy . . . it is a very dangerous development and one of profound concern."

No man could say just how big a task the Atlantic pact powers would have in protecting Atlantic shipping but "I believe it is safe to say it may easily become a lot bigger than it now is and I may add that it already is quite big enough."

Can Do Other Things

Further, subs could do other things besides sinking ships.

"They can land sabotage parties on unwatched coasts. They can lay mines in the approaches to harbors and the modern mine is extremely difficult to deal with. They can also bombard shore objectives. With the coming of guided missiles and the atomic age, increasing attention has to be given to all these possibilities."

Canada was converting her 11 destroyers into anti-sub ships, modernizing every available frigate for the same role and building 14 new-type escort vessels which "are the first warships designed specifically to deal with the fast modern submarine."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— Synopsis: The storm which passed through Ontario during the weekend is still making its presence felt Windshift line trailing south westward across the Soo moved eastward Tuesday morning bringing a fresh supply of cool air over our forecast regions. After passing over the open waters of Lake Huron this air develops wet low clouds which give light snowflurries as they pass over the land. Considerable heating by the sun in the morning is necessary to break up the clouds so that the sunshine may reach the ground.

Temperatures will remain near the seasonal normal with little or no precipitation expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

Elderly Couple Die of Pneumonia Police State

Caistorville, Ont., March 25.—(CP)—The apparently mysterious deaths of an elderly brother and sister were cleared up last night by provincial police, who said the two died of pneumonia.

Post-mortems cleared the uncertainty in the deaths of recluse William Clayton, 73, and his sister, Nina, 70. Foul play was feared when their bodies were discovered yesterday on their rundown, 70-acre farm, five miles south of this Niagara Peninsula hamlet.

"Both had pneumonia pretty bad," said Corporal W. Coles of the Smithville detachment of Ontario provincial police. "The brother had slight injuries around the right ear from where he lay down in the hay after going out to the barn. His sister apparently took the flashlight to look for him, fell over a picket fence and crawled on her hands and knees until she collapsed." He said her face was bruised.

It was the marks on the bodies that first led to reports they had been slain, before the post-mortems established the cause of death.

The couple left their property infrequently and neighbors told of reports that they kept large sums of money hidden around the farmhouse.

Six Persons Die In Hotel Fire

Los Angeles, Calif., March 25. (AP) — Fire roaring swiftly through the St. George Hotel in downtown Los Angeles today killed at least six persons, firemen reported, and injured many others.

The hotel was turned into a scene of horror within minutes. Screams of victims sounded through the early morning quiet.

None was identified immediately.

Hotel patrons stumbled through smoke out of the building. A number of them jumped from upper floors into firemen's nets. The hotel at 115 East Third Street is patronized largely by men transients.

Deputy Coroner Frank Johnson said the bodies of five men, suffocated rather than burned, were removed and piled in the lobby. Another man fell to his death in an alley after hanging from a fifth flour ledge.

Night clerk Leland Whitehouse, 57, ran through corridors awakening patrons.

The first was brought under control within an hour after its outbreak about 3 a.m.

'Whitaker's Folly', House That Fraud Built, Under Auctioneer's Hammer

Godalming, England (Reuters)—Everything that Whitaker Wright did was on a grand scale. A range of hills spoiled Whitaker's view from his bedroom window, so they had to be removed.

One day, he decided he would like an under - water ballroom. Soon, there it was, with a glass roof so the goldfish in his quarter-mile long artificial lake could watch the dancers below.

This was Whitaker's folly —one of the most extravagant homes ever built in England. It took 2,900 workers to put up the $2,352,000 house that could do credit to the under-water ballroom.

Even when he was found guilty of fraud in his stock exchange dealings and sentenced to seven years in jail, Whitaker was equal to the situation. He swallowed cyanide and died 15 minutes after sentence was pronounced.

That was in 1904.

Today the auctioneer's men are swarming over Whitaker's Folly, cataloguing the contents for this week's big auction. The present owner, Sir John Leigh, just can't afford to keep the 77 servants Whitaker planned on.

Wright was a big man in financial circles in the 1890s—all 250 pounds of him. He floated companies like little boys float paper boats. He fraternized with the Prince of Wales, who became King Edward VII.

But the authorities finally caught on.

If it weren't for Whitaker's Folly, his name would be all but forgotten by now.

But who could forget a man who built a 74-foot-long bridal bedroom with piano, harp, zither, Chinese gong and 40-odd windows? Or the 32 bedrooms? Or the deer park enclosed by a $100,000 stone wall?

But soon auction customers will hear:

"Who'll give me a bid on this fine, glass - walled, under - water billiard room and cocktail bar?"

SOUTH AFRICA'S RACE DIVISION IS CRITICIZED

Canada May Draft Own Bill of Rights

Ottawa, March 25. (CP)—South Africa's policy of race segregation was bitterly criticized yesterday as Canada's Commons debated the possibility of drafting a Bill of Rights for citizens of this country.

One Liberal and two C.C.F. members suggested Canada could not remain silent on Prime Minister Malan's policy of separation of blacks and whites within South Africa.

Condemnation came from M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) and Alistair Stewar, (C.C.F.—Winnipeg North).

As the Chamber devoted a day to private members' legislation, they spoke on a resolution by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre).

Mr. Diefenbaker proposed that a standing parliamentary committee be established to "act as a watchdog" on freedom and that the government submit a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada to determine which freedoms are matters of federal or provincial jurisdiction.

Renewing a perennial motion, he suggested that "freedom needs an anchor." Guarantees under a Bill of Rights would help to combat communism since the communists were holding out to colored peoples the idea of equality.

The debate ended after Citizenship Minister Harris moved that it be adjourned so Justice Minister Garson, anxious to debate the issue but absent from the Chamber through illness, could take part.

Contest Move

Progressive Conservative and CCF members contested the move, but Mr. Harris' motion carried on a recorded vote of 86 to 28.

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview the move means "closure or erasure" of his resolution. He said it now drops to the bottom of the list of private members' measures and is not likely to be revived at this session.

Raising the South African issue, Mr. Croll said that policy is "straining" Commonwealth relations. Canadians had "the right and the duty to examine our relationship with South Africa before the appropriate tribunal."

The Malan policy affected all "South African people of color as well as those of Indian and Pakistani stock."

"I find it difficult if not impossible," said Mr. Croll, "to understand how the Commonwealth can sustain friendly relations while that statute is in effect."

It was a "very serious question" how "democratic Nehru can find common ground with fascist Malan." It was splitting South Africa into "racial areas" and setting up a "ghettoland which we must deplore."

Mr. Coldwell said Canada should make it clear that "we will not be silent" on South Africa's move. He favored a national bill of rights and felt that if Commonwealth countries had made their views on this point clear a year or two ago Prime Minister Malan would have had much more difficulty in putting forward his "incongruous" policies.

Policy Termed Dreadful

Mr. Stewart termed the policy "dreadful and shocking."

On Lonely Isle in St. Lawrence Canada Conducting Secret Phase of Defence Program

Ottawa, March 25 (CP) —On an isolated island of bitter memories Canada is conducting some of the most important and dangerous research in biological or bacterial warfare—one of the most secret phases of the defence program.

The work is going on at Grosse Isle, some 30 miles down the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City. It is an integral part of the research Dr. O. M. Solandt says will enable Canada to defend herself or to strike back in the fields of bacterial and chemical warfare. The island is used for tests scientists hesitate to make on the mainland.

Dr. Solandt, chairman of the defence research board, said in an recent Ottawa speech that there is a "strong possibility" that this type of warfare will be used in another war. Canada is preparing both to defend herself and to retaliate if necessary.

He didn't mention Grosse Isle. Its role has been kept as quiet as the part it played in the war in a successful search for an answer to rinderpest, one of the world's most destructive germs and one which could have severely cut into Canada's food supply.

Grosse Isle is a lonely, forlorn spot where immigrants once were placed in quarantine on arrival in Canada. Under the soil are the mass graves of hundreds of Irish immigrants who died of typhus and were buried there at the time of the 19th century potato famine.

Canada's main base in the B. W. field is not Grosse Isle. It is the Suffield, Alta., experimental station where tests are made in both B.W. and chemical warfare. Suffield embraces a huge area of flat prairie.

Canada's work there is an important contribution to joint U.S.-British - Canadian preparedness. This is one of the fields where Canada is assigned a leading role.

Grosse Isle is not used all the time. Defence research keeps a small caretaking staff there and from time to time scientists arrive to make tests, not considered advisable anywhere but on the island.

Young Conservatives Endorse Lotteries to Finance Hospitals

Ottawa, Mar. 25 (CP) — Provincial lotteries to finance hospitals were endorsed yesterday by the Young Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

Delegates to the association's annual meeting adopted a resolution advocating a criminal-code amendment to permit provincial governments to operate lotteries. The proceeds would be for hospitals only.

The resolution originated with a delegation from Quebec, a province which has on the statute books a law permitting it to run lotteries. The law remains inoperative because of the criminal-code provision banning lotteries.

Leon Balcer, president of the association, said in an interview that the vote at the closed meeting was about 60-40 in favor of the lottery resolution. It won support from delegates outside of Quebec who felt that it would be better to have legalized lotteries than to have Canadians continue to buy illegally Irish sweepstake tickets.

The resolution, one of several adopted by the association, will be sent to George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and members of his party in the Commons for consideration at caucus.

The young supporters of the party met shortly after the opening of the three-day annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada. The senior association will do much of its work today.

George Nowlan, president of the senior association, said stress will be placed on getting party organizations ready for the next general federal election.

The Women's Association, meeting simultaneously with the young association, discussed ways in which they could help to strengthen the party. Sybil Bennett of Georgetown, Ont., was re-elected president of the Women's Association for another two-year term.

Danvers, Mass., March 25—AP—Three gunmen today stuck up the driver and helper of an armored truck and fled with about $600,000 in cash.

The truck, owned by the United States Trucking Corporation, was stopped in front of a drug store on Maple Street across from the Danvers National Bank when the gunmen appeared.

The armored-car driver, Lawrence Johansen, estimated the loot, explaining that he had been picking up money from various banks in several north shore communities.

Danvers is a town approximately 20 miles north of Boston on U. S. Route One.

The robbers fled in a big black sedan.

As the car hurtled through Danvers Square, about 200 feet distant, patrolman Edmund Noonan tried to flag it down but was forced to leap for his life. The car headed south towards nearby Peabody, a city on Massachusetts' north shore.

FIREMEN RUN CLASSES

Timmins, March 25 (CP) —Every boy's dream of becoming a fireman will come true for 100 Timmins lads. The Timmins fire department is sponsoring classes in which the boys will be taught first aid and the rudiments of fire fighting. They will receive junior firemen badges and first aid certificates.

MURRAY REFUSES TO MEET WILSON ON STEEL ISSUE

Calls Him Uninformed Big Business Man

Washington, March 25. (AP)—C.I.O. President Philip Murray today attacked defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson as "biased and uninformed" and refused to meet with him on the steel dispute.

Wilson, flying back from talks with President Truman at Key West, Fla., had charted new steel wage-price peace negotiations in apparent hopes of avoiding boosts which Wilson said might wreck the U.S. economic controls program.

Murray's tart refusal to meet with Wilson, even before the mobilization chief got around to sending out invitations, seemed to doom any such negotiations before they started.

Wilson told reporters who met him at the airport last night that proposals made last week by the wage stabilization board for settling the labor issues posed "a serious threat" to government efforts to stabilize the economy.

The steel industry says it will have to raise its prices up to $12 a ton to pay for wage increases recommended by the W.S.B. for the United Steelworkers of America, of which Murray is also president.

Wilson's comment that the W.S.B.'s recommendations for a 17 1-2 cent hourly pay boost and other benefits for steelworkers would threaten the economic stabilizattion program stung Murray into making a hot reply.

Will Attend No Meetings

"It is clear," Murray's statement said, "that no constructive purpose can be served by attendance at a meeting with Mr. Wilson at which —in accordance with his prior, biased and uninformed judgment of the issues—he will attempt to set aside the findings of the wage board in favor of an industry-dictated arrangement.

"Accordingly, the United Steelworkers will attend no such meeting with Mr. Wilson."

Murray, pointing out that he had postponed scheduled steel strikes four times at Truman's request and had followed the administration's suggestions in presenting the union's complicated demands to the W.S.B. for suggested solution, said Wilson was unfamiliar with the case.

"His only knowledge of the issues," Murray said, "comes from the steel corporation executives who summoned him to New York for a hasty briefing."

Murray said he planned to go ahead with scheduled bargaining sessions with steel companies starting Wednesday. The current strike postponement is to last only until April 8.

Former Mayor Dies

Toronto, March 25. (CP)—William D. Robbins, 77, mayor of Toronto, in 1936 and 1937, died today.

He came to Toronto from England in 1895. His first job here was a street-car conductor. Later he became secretary of the Street Railwaymen's Union.

While a member of the city's Board of Control, he succeeded Mayor Sam McBride who died in office in 1936. Mr. Robbins was re-elected in 1937. Altogether, he spent 19 years in municipal politics.

Doctor Says Drive-in Hospitals Can Meet Most Needs of Rural Areas

Atlantic City, N.J., March 25 — (AP)—A kind of drive-in "hospital equivalent"—where you're in and out the same day, even for childbirth—can meet virtually all the needs of a rural community, a country doctor said today.

Dr. D. G. Miller Jr., of Morgantown, Ky., said he converted two small country stores into such a set-up and was able to meet the requirements of all but about three percent of his patients.

One of only two physicians in a "low-income" Kentucky county of approximately 12,000 population, Dr. Miller said he, two nurses, a laboratory technician and a receptionist handled 10,672 "office" calls for everything except major surgery.

In addition, he made 566 visits to homes, riding in a jeep for round-trip distances of as much as 50 miles.

The office and home visits, he told the American Academy of General Practice, represented 2,389 individual patients.

And he said that such an arrangement could allow a single rural physician anywhere—with a few capable assistants and proper though sometimes improvised equipment—to meet all but a few of the needs of a community of several thousand people.

A doctor's office "hospital equivalent" he said, can be equipped for about $25,000 — provided the doctor uses such things as a $25 onetime dental chair as an eye-ear-nose-and-throat examining chair, and various army surplus supplies.

There are no board and room charges at Dr. Miller's "Hospital equivalent." If a patient stays long enough for meals, relatives go out and buy them.

The American Academy of General Practice, which is holding its annual meeting, is an organization of some 15,000 "family doctors."

Record Budgets Brought Down By Western Provinces

Total of $373,000 ,000 Needed for Big Programs

(By The Canadian Press)

Record budgets reflecting continued prosperity have been brought down by all four of Canada's western provinces. Manitoba completed the parade last night with the biggest budget in its history.

The four provincial budgets together total $373,000,000—approximating the size of the federal budget of 20 years ago.

British Columbia leads with estimated ordinary expenditures for the coming fiscal year of $142,000,000. Alberta follows with $116,000,000, Saskatchewan with $66,000,000 and Manitoba with $49,000,000.

B.C. will spend $44,000,000 on capital account, Alberta $43,000,000, Manitoba $22,000,000 and Saskatchewan $15,000,000.

Alberta Heads List

On a per capita basis, Alberta is the biggest spender. Its treasury swelled by revenues from oil, the province will spend $125 on ordinary account for every man, woman and child. B.C. follows closely with $121. Saskatchewan's per capital expenditure will be $79 and Manitoba $63.

The increases in this year's budget over last year's ranged from $6,000,000 in Manitoba to $24,000,000 in B.C. Alberta showed an increase of $22,000,000 and Saskatchewan of $8,000,000.

All provinces budgeted for surpluses. Manitoba, with the smallest budget, estimated the largest surplus—$500,000. Alberta expects a $279,000 surplus, B.C. $81,000 and Saskatchewan $49,000.

Most of Manitoba's $22,000,000 capital outlay will be on hydro-electric facilities. Alberta and Saskatchewan will go heavy on road construction, the former spending $24,000,000 for this purpose and Saskatchewan $15,000,000. B.C. will spend $13,000,000 for roads and more than $10,000,000 on buildings.

Will Conduct Inquiry

Peterborough, March 25 (CP) — Judge J. D. MacRae of Whitby has accepted an appointment by the Peterborough city council to conduct an inquiry into the circumstances resulting in the amputation of part of both feet of Fred Brant of Lindsay, it was announced at a meeting of the council last night.

Brant is still in hospital. R. D. Humphreys of Oshawa will act as counsel in the investigation.

The hearing will take place April 1-2 at a place to be decided. Brant's evidence may have to be taken at Civic Hospital.

TO PREPARE REPORT

Karachi, March 25 — (AP) — Dr. Frank P. Graham, U.N. mediator for disputed Kashmir, leaves for Geneva to prepare his latest report on the situation. Graham informed the U.N. last fall he was unable to find a solution for Kashmir's future suitable to both India and Pakistan. The Security Council asked him to make another try and he has been here and in New Delhi for the last four weeks working on it.

Bankers' Assoc. Purchases Annuity For Tong's Widow

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — L. G. Gillett, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, announced today the purchase of a life annuity for the widow of slain Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong and donations to the benovelent funds of the Toronto and Montreal police forces.

Payments for Mrs. Tong will total $7,600. Of this, $6,500 will be used to purchase a life annuity and $1,000 will be used to retire o mortgage on her home in Toronto.

Additionally the Canadian Bankers' Association will divide $5,000 between the benovolent funds of Toronto and Montreal police forces "in appreciation of extraordinary fine police work and close co-operation between the Toronto and Montreal police forces" in rounding up three suspected bank robbers, Steve Suchan, Leonard Jackson and Edwin Boyd.

Meanwhile, establishment of a fund for Tong's family was announced today by Mayor Allan Lamport. The fund of public contributions pouring in would be administered by Finance Commissioner Arthur Lascelles.

May be Necessary To Quarantine Toronto Islands

Toronto, March 25—(CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport said today it may be necessary to quarantine the islands in Toronto Bay.

He visited the islands today with Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, Medical Officer of Health, and other civic officials, to view damage caused by the weekend's storm.

He said the board will decide whether health is immediately menaced by a temporary breakdown of the sewage system on the island, where hundreds of persons live the year 'round. Water has filled the sewers and saturated the ground to the point where septic systems will no longer operate.

City and District News

"PIONEERS" WILL DISCUSS "BEEFS" AT ANNUAL DINNER

For 364 days of the year members of the Telephone Pioneers, Belleville Region, must nurse their "beefs" if any, but on the 365th they get the opportunity to air their "grievances" at a dinner session.

Tonight in Tabernacle United Church Sunday School rooms, the "Pioneers" after looking after the inner man, will have the opportunity to discuss "in public" their "beefs."

Everything is goodnatured. Nobody gets "sore." And it is surprising what ideas and clearing up of little problems emerge from this fraternal get-together.

Mr. Roscoe Varcoe, Northern Electric, will act as chairman.

POLICE TO ENFORCE BY-LAW ON DOGS

City dog owners who allow their pets to roam unleashed about the streets, will find themselves afoul of the law, it was reported today by city police.

Officers reported there had already been several complaints of dogs digging up lawns and generally making a nuisance of themselves and warned that the city by-law ruling that dogs be kept on leash will be enforced.

Mixed Commercial Bowling League

For the second week in a row, Short Circuits paced the Mixed Commercial Bowling League pack with high aggregate score. The Circuits racked up a count of 3724 to take a 7-0 win from Smasheroos. They now lead the loop with a seven-point margin.

In the other games Bombers took seven from High Liners with Symons, and Whiz Bangs being 5-2 victors over Jets and Hy Rollers. Four-of-seven winners were Sun Rays, Live Wires and Power Pins over Marketeers, KVA's and Egg Heads.

High score for men went to Vince Sagriff with 878 (337), followed by Fred Clark 836 (310), Jack Fitzgerald 712 (301), George Bell 710, Harold Thrasher 699, Ed Bowers 697 (343), Jim Doig 696, Tom Horton 670, Barney Sheffield 669, Carmen Dafoe 666, Dave Batchelor 658, Ken Duesberry 657, Art Stewart 650.

Marg Fairbairn led the ladies with 742, Barbara Young 684, Doris Mansfield 663, Hilda Lawrenson 632 and Marg Stewart 628.

Bernard Smith Named President Trades and Labor

Bernard Smith, Belleville Firefighters Local 497, was elected president of the Belleville Trades and Labor Council at the regular meeting held recently. Other officers for 1952 include vice president, Elmer Woods, Carpenters and Joiners Local 572; treasurer, Norman S. Barriage, Distillery Workers Local 96; recording and corresponding secretary, Art Firth, Plumbers Local 320.

During the business session the meeting was told that a delegation of members of Belleville and Trenton Trades and Labor Councils had interview Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., regarding the councils' disapproval should a forced arbitration law be considered by the provincial government.

Mr. Sandercock, the delegation reported, had requested that a brief be drafted and he would submit it to the government. This has been done, the meeting was told.

The council voiced its approval of the work being done by the Apprenticeship Board of the Belleville district. It requested any one that can assist the board in helping to create more apprentices, should do so immediately.

The Belleville Trades and Labor Council is affiliated with the Labor Congress of Canada A. F. of L.

Delegates in attendance at the meeting included those from the Firefighters, Belleville; Cement and Lime Workers, Point Anne; Distillery Workers, Corbyville; Plumbers and Steamfitters; Bricklayers and Plasterers; Carpenters and Joiners, and the Fuller Gravel Pitmen, Ivanhoe.

Waiting Rooms, Ticket Office To be Modernized

Passengers using the Canadian National Railways in and out of Belleville will enjoy the facilities of a completely modernized waiting room when the alterations now under way at the north station are completed.

Plans call for completely modernizing the lower floor of the building presently used as waiting rooms and ticket office. The general contractor is the Tatham Co. Limited, with work expected to be completed in about four months time. Cost of the alterations will be in the neighborhood of $3,000, according to railway officials here.

Instead of separate waiting rooms for men and women, the new setup will be one general waiting room which will be completely modern. The ceiling will be dropped two feet and will be covered with acoustic tile and the waiting room will be lighted with concealed fluorescent lighting.

The floor will be concrete slab covered with terrazzo, walls will be of plaster.

The present stairway leading to the engineer's office will be taken out to give more room. Both men's and women's washrooms will be provided in the building.

Already the interior of the building is being pulled out with a temporary waiting room being provided by enclosing the alleyway between the waiting room building and the despatchers' offices.

All of Us Inclined to Take Easy Way' Speaker Tells Rotarians

"We are all of us inclined to take the easy way," said Rene B. Perrault, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in addressing the Belleville Rotary Club following their luncheon on Monday. "Most of us go to considerable lengths to avoid trouble and are, for the most part, reluctant to make a fuss about things."

"We are far from satisfied," he elaborated, "about snow removal, the street car service, the price of cigarettes, the growing government bite in our pay cheques and a thousand-and-one other things. We grumble a little but it is much easier to leave the solution of the problem to somebody else. It is just a little too much trouble to take any effective action."

Purpose of Mankind

"The elimination of physical pain and mental distress," Mr. Perrault said, "has been the purpose of mankind since the earliest days. But, like so many things, it is the solution and not the attainment, which has resulted in the progress, which we have enjoyed to date. We now seem, for a brief period at least, to have entered upon an era on this continent which, to a great many people, appears to offer economic and physical painlessness. On a short term basis, we appear to be riding a crest of prosperity but the ultimate effects of our disinclination to face reality have yet to be realized."

In continuing, the speaker asked the listeners to look at two of the successful efforts, which have been made to avert economic pain; the painless extraction taxation system and the effort being made by many to have charity obligations discharged by the government.

"If by this means," he said, "we drive out of the human heart the spirit of compassion, the spark of virtue and charity, then we are moving backward into the dark ages of paganism."

"People are falling into the habit of dependence," the speaker said, "dependence upon someone else to take the initiative. "How is this working out in practice?" he asked. "What are we doing about it? If we admit that we are doing nothing, and there are many of us who must make this admission, then perhaps we come to a realization of how addicted we have become to the habit of dependency."

Mr. Perrault also dealt at length with "the big and immediate problem with regard to education, which calls for searching analysis. I think it can be safely said that many young people now enrolling in universities," he said, have not the aptitude for the kind of training provided by the universities. These young men and women will leave university feeling frustrate', realizing that they cannot compete with others in their field." He urged that everyone, while in their youth, be given some kind of training with their hands and that from this training it should be decided whether the youth is more fitted for craftsmanship or for higher academic education.

Freedom Not Bestowed

In conclusion Mr. Perrault said "Freedom cannot be bestowed on any people, and certainly it is not a gift to the world that can be purchased with dollars, or any other currency other than the efforts of those people who would earn freedom for themselves. Freedom must be won by the sacrifices of those who would enjoy its blessings."

"But a helping hand can be extended to those who struggle for freedom. And what is more, the bright light of freedom can be held up before those people, who have never known the meaning and content of freedom, and blessed those who must await a more favorable time to seek for themselves the blessings of freedom.

"Perhaps the brightest light, the light that will penetrate deepest into the hearts and minds of men, is the light of precept and example, both within our own domain and in our relationships with the rest of the world."

Many guests Present

The speaker was introduced by C. Arthur Bateman with the club's expression of appreciation being made by Harry Moorman.

Other guests and visiting Rotarians included Don Morrell of Montreal, Ralph Nicholl of Napanee, Herb Colliver of Picton, Jack Beynon of Kitchener, Walter Burns of Pembroke and Cleo Colling of Belleville. All were welcomed by song.

Birthday roses were presented to Harold Parker and Harry Moorman on behalf of the club by W. J. Morrison.

Correspondence was read by president Court Miller from Leo B. Riggs, who is vacationing in Florida in which he expressed his sincere appreciation to the Rotary Club for the 73 birthday cards, which he recently received.

Group singing was led by Jo'- Deacon with Harry Gourley accompanying at the piano.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon stock market dealings as only golds bucked a general decline.

Golds and western oils attracted speculative interest but turnovers were moderate. Industrial dealings spread slowly from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,989,000 shares.

Utilities, constructions, steels, banks, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials downward with a broad list of fractional declines. Liquors foods and miscellaneous issues also slipped but retail stores edged upward.

C of C President Predicts Canada To Be Scene of Amazing Developments in Near Future

Canada is going to be the scene of amazing developments in the near future, predicted Rene Perrault, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, during an address at the annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, at the Quinte Hotel, Monday night.

Mr. Perrault, who visited Belleville enroute to his home in Montreal following a tour of western Canada, declared that he had been "surprised" at the magnitude of the developments which are taking place all over the west.

Pleased with District

Earlier in the day, Mr. Perrault stated, he had made a tour of the Belleville area. He had been impressed he said, by the possibilities of this region. "With the facilities you have here," he said, "I think you are in an excellent position to participate in the huge expansion program which is taking place and is going to take place, all over our country."

The following is the text of Mr. Perrault's address:

"First of all, I wish to tell you how pleased I am to have this opportunity of speaking to you today.

"One of the great privileges, which accompanies the responsibilities assumed by the president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is that of meeting with the forward-looking citizens of communities in all parts of Canada. This is a unique privilege and a very real pleasure and, apart from anything else which may develop during my year in office, I know that I shall always be grateful for the opportunity to meet and discuss with my fellow-Canadians the problems which demand our attention at this exciting moment in world history.

Has Faith in Chamber

"I feel that I could not be a firm believer in democracy without having, at the same time, faith in the Chamber of Commerce movement. One of the great needs of our time is the acceptance of responsibility on the part of the individual. Indeed, I think it right to say that such acceptance is an essential part of democracy. The mere fact of membership in the Chamber of Commerce movement is to me evidence of a desire and willingness to accept the responsibilities of citizenship.

"Not long ago, I had the privilege of heading a delegation of national officers of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, waiting upon the Prime Minister and members of his cabinet. The purpose of our visit was to present the policies and resolutions which had been approved at the chamber's annual meeting last fall. After discussing various phases of the chamber's platform, the Prime Minister made a statement which made a deep impression on me.

Praised by P.M.

"He said: 'Voluntary organizations such as the Canadian Chamber of Commerce perform an essential function in the effective operation of our democratic system.' I am sure that this was not meant to be merely a flattering remark. To me, at least, it brought home the fact that business and community leaders have a very real and heavy responsibility.

"If, in the eyes of the Prime Minister of Canada, the work we are doing is essential, then we must see to it that the job is done to the very best of our ability. It is not a question of asking ourselves whether or not we have time to engage in chamber of commerce work — it is a question of making sure that we devote enough time to doing the work which is being done.

"Before I go any further, I think that perhaps I should start at the very beginning and define some of the terms which I expect to use. The first of these is "The Canadian Chamber of Commerce." I am always surprised when I find a lack of understanding as to the nature of this great national organization. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is the national federation of more than 700 boards of trade and chambers of commerce — the terms are synonymous — in all ten provinces of Canada.

Aims and Objectives

"The aims and objectives of the chamber can be roughly divided into two categories, the first being to serve member boards of trade and chambers of commerce — to help them in their own community work, to provide them with literature and to act as a clearing house for all the programs of all the boards and chambers everywhere in this country.

"The second objective is to express to the federal government at Ottawa the wishes and opinions of business and the community, as indicated to the Canadian Chamber by its member boards and chambers. In 1944, there were less than 150 boards of trade and chambers of commerce associated with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. As I mentioned previously, there are today more than 700 such community organizations. This has been a tremendous increase and a source of inspiration to all of us in the national organization. When we consider that there are now some 10,000 leading citizens of our communities working together in this great movement for the good of Canada, we know that a tremendous potential has been unleashed which cannot help but result in a better and more prosperous Canada.

Definition Given

"What then, is a board of trade or a chamber of commerce? Let me give you first the text book definition. It is this: 'a board or chamber is a voluntary organization of forward-looking citizens of the community created for the purpose of promoting civic, industrial, agricultural and commercial progress of the community.' And that is a good definition, but I believe that a chamber of commerce can and should be a great deal more than that. A chamber of commerce if it is to fulfill its proper function, must be the conscience and the will of the community; the conscience to appreciate the needs and wants of the community and the will to do something about them.

"There are, I think, three tasks which we must set for ourselves and accomplish if we are to achieve the goal prophesied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he said that the twentieth century would belong to Canada. They are, first, to understand and appreciate the tremendous revolution that has taken place in this Canada of ours in the last few years. Secondly, to come to a realization of the principles underlying the changes which have taken place and will take place, and thirdly, to do everything within our power to strengthen the foundation upon which these principles rest, not only by inducing others to accept their share of individual responsibility but by doing so ourselves.

Startling Revolution

"There is as yet too little general appreciation of the startling revolution which has taken place and is taking place in this country. As late as 1931, 30 per cent of the total Canadian civilian labor force was employed in agriculture. In 1950, less than 22 per cent of a greatly increased labor force was so employed. In 1931, 16 per cent of the labor force was employed in manufacturing, but by 1950 this had increased to more than 25 per cent. The significance of this startling change in a relatively short time cannot be overemphasized. Manufacturing industries are today Canada's chief source of employment and income, and are a major factor in a standard of living which approaches that of the U. S. and is unsurpassed by that of any other country.

"In 1950, consumers spent a total of $11,800,000,000, more than three times the total of 1939. Although part of the increase is attributable to higher selling prices, and to a lesser extent to the growth in population, the rise in the volume of consumption in Canada has been remarkable.

"The saga of Canada's industrial development has scarcely begun. Industrialization depends to a large extent upon electricity and during the six years since the war, construction expenditures by central electrical stations and gas works have amounted to $1,006 millions more than similar expenditures by all Canadian manufacturing industries combined. Canada's installed capacity of nearly 13 million h.p. represents a growth of 1-2 during the past 10 years, but utilizes little more than one third of the total potential capacity. A further increase of over 30 percent, or four million horsepower, is being planned for the next four or five years.

Only Scratched Surface

"Much has been said and written about the tremendous revolution which has taken place in Canada during the last few years. The emphasis has been on the great strides taken in the areas of industrialization and the development of natural resources. Glowing stories are being written stressing the fact that we have but scratched the surface of the potential wealth of our great country. We point with justifiable pride to the iron ore of Ungava, to the oil fields of Alberta and the other prairie provinces, to the aluminum developments in British Columbia.

"We marvel at such changes as the doubling in population of the little town of Fort Saskatchewan, where a new refinery is to be built to handle the nickel, which will be transported 860 miles from Lynn Lake. Such development, such material progress, has not been witnessed to such an extent in any other part of the world in the past decade.

"We should, of course, feel proud of the effort that is being made by a group of less than 14 million people in competition with countries of far greater size. But in surveying the material progress which is being made, we must ask ourselves this question: 'Are we giving due and sufficient consideration to our human resources?'

Must Use Resources

"It is wise and necessary for us to make full use of the natural resources of our country. But if, in using these, we neglect our human resources, if we fail to appreciate the full value and importance of the individual and the need for the development of that individual, then all will be lost. If history teaches us anything, it is this: — nothing counts so much as the individual.

"There is a danger, and it is one which must be recognized, that in carrying out projects of great size, we lose sight of the value of the individual. The state looms larger and larger in the public eye, and if a trend in this direction is allowed to continue unchecked, then the individual, for whom the state exists, will ultimately suffer. In the development of our country, let us see to it that incentive is provided to the individual and that the wealth of the individual be recognized.

Must Go Hand in Hand

"Let there be recognition, too, of the fact that individuals can flourish only in an atmosphere of freedom. In short, let us take care that the development of our natural and human resources go hand in hand.

"Only a few days ago, Dr. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University, pointed out that utilitarianism could be stopped only by shifting the emphasis back to the religious ethic and the building of character and by placing less on the importance of output of goods and solely economic power.

"The place of Canada among the nations of the world is not measured alone by its recent increase in stature brought about by its trading development, its industrial progress and the value of its natural resources. More important than any of these is the fact that Canada stands in a unique position between the old world and the new. Bound by ties of kinship and long association with Great Britain and France, it is bound too, by closely knit ties of friendship with the U.S. Winston Churchill, in his recent Ottawa address, summed up the situation very aptly when he said:

No More Spacious Domain

"Upon the whole surface of the globe there is no more spacious and splendid domain open to the activity and genius of free men, with one hand clasping in enduring friendship with the United States, and the other spread across the ocean to both Britain and France.

"There is too, another aspect of Canada's unique position which must not go unnoticed. It has been said, and I think rightly so, that the North American continent is now the last bastion of freedom in a troubled world. We in Canada share with the United States of America the awful and glorious responsibility of keeping alive the flame of freedom so that liberty will yet remain a beacon in a world darkened with the clouds of totalitarianism. Unless this beacon is kept burning brightly, all hope in the world will die.

"This is a responsibility which is yours and which is mine. It cannot be lightly set aside. Ours is the task to see to it that there will be a flame available against the day when other countries will re-light their fires of freedom.

Quotes From Booklet

"To sum up, I would like to quote from the conclusion of a booklet published by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, entitled, 'Canada, Land of Hope.'

"These are momentous days. The people of the world, tired, shocked and shaken by global war, are attempting, with all the amazing courage of the human race, to fight their way back to peace and normalcy. There are, however, forces, potent forces, making every effort to stifle this resurgence. There are those who recognize in the world situation a most propitious opportunity for tyranny. Disorder, confusion and godlessness are the conditions which make for enslavement of the people, and they are being fostered, not only in distant parts of the world, but here at home.

"The dimming fires of faith in God, faith in our country, faith in mankind, must be guarded and brought to an inextinguishable flame if we are to continue the forward march of civilization. Nowhere are those fires stronger and brighter than in our beloved Canada, and therefore nowhere are there greater responsibilities of guardianship."

Head Table Guests

Those who sat at the head table during the banquet which preceded Mr. Perrault's address were: James T. Davis, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce; James Walker, John Webber, Toronto Board of Trade; Malcolm Robb, Ken Burkett of Tweed, Don Stanton, Donald L. Morrell, general manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Acting Mayor C. L. Hyde, John E. Buchan, Mr. Perrault, J. J. Trudeau, Fred Parker, Trenton, Enos David, J. de B. Arnaud, Picton, F. E. Burrows, G. A. Freeman and C. M. Cawker.

Mr. Buchan, president of the Belleville chamber was chairman. Mr. David said grace. Bill Salter, accompanied by Bill Gander sang two songs. The head table guests were introduced by Mr. Burrows, Alderman Hyde, as acting mayor, brought the city's greetings to the gathering.

Miss Motley Sang

Sylvia Motley sang two songs, accompanied by Charlie Cawker. Mr. Buchan read a presidential message, after which he welcomed Mr. Perrault to Belleville. Secretary-manager Davis read the annual report of the Belleville chamber.

Lee Grills, warden of Hastings County, brought the greetings of the county council to the gathering. The treasurer's report, prepared by Treasurer J. A. Thornbury, was read by Mr. Cawker, after which Donald L. Morrell, general manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly

Mr. Perrault was introduced by Mr. Trudeau. Mr. Trudeau detailed the various offices held by Mr. Perrault and described briefly the services which Mr. Perrault has rendered this country and the city where he resides.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Perrault for his address was moved by Mr. Robb. "To undertake a tour like the one on which Mr. Perrault is engaged, a man must be actuated by a great deal of idealism," Mr. Robb said; after having described Mr. Perrault's address as "most inspiring."

The report of the secretary-manager James T. Davis will appear in Wednesday's edition.

MARMORA

Coroner's Jury Returns Open Verdict in Death of Almond Boyd

Marmora (Special) — An open verdict was returned at the inquest which was held in the court room, Madoc, on Monday inquiring into the circumstances surrounding the death of Almond Boyd, who was found dead outside his own home in Marmora township on March 7.

After a lengthy hearing of evidence, the jury turned in their verdict to Coroner Dr. S. R. Beatty late that afternoon as follows:—

"We, the jury, empanelled to inquire into the death of Almond Boyd of the village of Marmora in the County of Hastings, find that he died on or about March 2nd., 1952, in the township of Marmora at his former residence, from exposure and cold."

The jury was comprised of the following: G. West, foreman, C. Whytock, P. H. Nayler, K. Connor and A. Bird.

Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, Q.C., conducted the examination of the many witnesses, and also present were Inspector Ralph Taylor, C.I.D., and Regimental Sergeant Major K. W. Bishop from Camp Borden, attending officer for Private Keith Toms, important witness in the case.

Evidence Accepted

Evidence of George Lummiss, brother-in-law of the deceased identifying Boyd and given at the formal hearing, was accepted. Dr. H. Lucke, pathologist of Belleville, gave testimony concerning the autopsy performed at Duffin's Funeral Parlor, Madoc.

He mentioned there was evidence of deceased having been exposed to cold and of his nose being broken in two places as though injury had been inflicted by a blunt object. There had been bleeding from this and from small abrasions about the face. In the windpipe there was a small amount of blood mixed with mucus. He was inclined to the opinion that the greater part of the bleeding had occurred while Boyd was alive.

Under cross examination he stated he did not think the injuries normally had been sufficient to cause death, but rather the exposure, high amount of alcohol in the body and possible stunning effects of a fall. He also gave results of his analysis of the heart and bladder.

Constable R. J. Rackham of the O.P.P. produced and furnished particulars of photographs taken commencing March 7th under instructions of Corporal Jack Hatch of the O.P.P.

The latter, in giving evidence described the residence and its occupancy by the family. He described the position of Boyd's body as found by him on his arrival at the scene. At first, he had been unable to distinguish who the deceased was.

He then related how he had superintended the removal of snow for the purpose of photography. On his arrival at the scene, he met Harold Russell, Clarence Wallbridge and Arthur Peters, the last two named, having been the persons to discover the body.

Found Stain on Seat

Corporal Hatch next narrated how he proceeded to the home of Charles Head of Dummer township to ascertain if he owned a green car and had been in company of Boyd. Head had made a statement to that effect. Later he examined Head's car to find at the rear of the front seat a large stain about eight inches long, appearing to be that of blood. This was not suitable for analysis.

On March 13 with Inspector Taylor he proceeded to Camp Borden to interview Private Keith Toms. Previously he had interviewed Mrs. G. Ellis, sister of Toms, at her mother's home in Belmont twp. Mrs. Ellis made a statement as to her brother's activities when Boyd was with him. Toms was on leave from Camp Borden as he was on draft for Korea.

Corporal Hatch also described a visit to Watkin's General Store three miles east of Norwood on No. 7 highway where Mr. and Mrs. Charles Head had taken Toms after returning Boyd to his home following their visit to the Ellis home. Boyd's liquor permit and wallet were handed over to Corporal Hatch by Harry Boyd, brother of the deceased and Harold Russell.

Had Purchased Liquor

The permit showed that on March 1, Boyd had purchased three 12 ounce and three 26 ounce bottles of liquor at the Marmora liquor store. An examination of the wallet showed it contained $36.62. Having finished his account of his investigations the officer mentioned that he had encountered many rumors which could not be substantiated.

Dr. Ward Smith, analyst, asked to give his qualifications to the jury, mentioned having worked under Professor J. Rogers, Toronto. Samples received by him on March 13, were found to have the following alcoholic content: blood, 1.6 parts per 1,000; urine 3.0 parts pere 1,000; spinal fluid 2.8 parts pere 1,000.

The only knowledge he had before making his analysis was that the samples were taken from a frozen body and cause of death unknown. The circumstances he found consistent with death due to freezing. Exposure and alcohol were two factors to explain death without bringing anything else into the picture. At the conclusion of his evidence, adjournment was made for lunch.

Identified Purchase Slips

Major Percy Gray, assistant vendor of Marmora liquor store, identified purchase slips made out to Boyd whom he saw in the store about 11:45 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 5 p.m., that day. On the latter occasion Boyd was in company of a soldier, whom he identified as Toms. He did not pay much attention to and had no conversation with Boyd. Similar evidence was given by Stanley Kerr, vendor of the same store.

Harry Boyd, told of turning over his brother's effects to Corporal Hatch. He found the purse outside the gate and the liquor book inside. He said the home had been locked up for about 12 months during which time he had boarded with Mrs. Eddie McFall.

The home was not locked with a key. The padlock was fastened with a staple which had to be pulled to effect entrance. His brother for that same period had been staying with his aunt, Mrs. Bert Boyd. He and his brother had known Keith Toms a long while. As far as he knew Toms and his brother had had friendly relations. He had never heard either express ill will or malice towards the other. He had never seen them together much, but it could be otherwise.

Tells of Finding Body

Clarence Wallbridge testified to discovery of the body. On March 7 deceased's aunt, Mrs. Boyd, had asked him to go and see if the lock was on the door of Almond's home. He did so and saw it was all right. As he returned home, a neighbor, Art Peters, came and asked if he had looked all over. So they both returned and Peters intimated that relatives were looking for Boyd. They then saw the body and reported to the police.

Arthur Peters who was next witness testified to first seeing the crook of Boyd's elbow and later the wrist as crust had been knocked off with a mitt.

Jack Hickey, local contractor, gave evidence of Boyd having been in his employ for about a year as a carpenter and that he was paid every Saturday. He sometimes laid off for a while stating he had been to see Dr. H. G. Parkin of Marmora who had told him he had a heart condition.

Charles Head, next witness, related how he had been in company of Boyd on March 1 meeting him in the liquor store with Toms who had introduced him. Toms asked him to drive him to Havelock and he consented. With his wife, Toms and Boyd, they started but on the way Toms asked that they accompany him to his mother's place which was assented to.

Drinking Episode

He described drinking by the three men, and that to his knowledge Boyd and Toms each had a bottle of liquor. In the car was also a case of beer purchased by Mrs. Head. On arrival at his mother's he found she was not home, only his sister who did not share in the further drinking which ensued there.

They were taking Boyd home when he stated, "I forgot my whiskey," but on return, Mrs. Ellis, sister of Toms, said it was not left there. It was later seen to be in Boyd's pocket. He told Boyd that. Boyd pushed Toms to the back of the car and then Head noticed Boyd lying on the ground with Toms standing a short distance away. He (Head) however did not hear any argument. He did not notice any bleeding about Boyd. Toms eventually helped Boyd into the car and later they drove to Boyd's home where Toms said he could handle Boyd without any help.

Toms then returned to the car saying he had put Boyd to bed. The trio then proceeded to Watkin's Store where Mrs. Head had to call for groceries. Further drinking ensued in the kitchen there. He saw a little blood on Tom's hand but did not know what caused it. He did not hear of Boyd's death until Sunday night, the 9th. Mrs. Head's evidence was chiefly in corroboration of her husband's.

Arthur Watkins related the arrival of the three at his store. He noticed the scratch on Tom's hand. He did not do more than taste the drink consumed in his kitchen for he didn't like it.

Mrs. Watkins described Toms' tunic as clean and orderly but said she saw a little blood on his knuckles.

Gives Further Evidence

Mrs. Ellis had further evidence to add to that given in the visit to her mother's home. She said that she heard Toms say to Boyd, "Don't accuse us of trailing you up or of taking your bottle". She saw her brother hit Boyd while he was on the ground but where he was struck she did not know.

Her brother called again at the house the day his leave was up. Until then he had not known of Boyd being dead. He was undecided about returning to camp or reporting to the police at Madoc.

He went to the highway with the thought of hitchhiking to Madoc but rain came on and as after an hour no prospect of a ride was in sight, he changed his mind about returning to camp, feeling if he was wanted, he could be reached there.

Keith Toms told a similar story to that of Mr. and Mrs. Head but confessed to striking Boyd twice, the second time when the latter was on the ground. He claimed the blows were given in self defence as Boyd had first taken hold of him by the collar. He admitted telling the untruth to the Heads about putting Boyd to bed, his reason being that he thought Boyd would come around and shake off the effect of drink and want to attack him again. He thought as Boyd sobered up he would be able to get into his home himself.

The jury was not absent for long before rendering their verdict.

BLUE WATER FARMERS WEALTHIEST

Which is the most prosperous farming region in Ontario? The answer to that question may be found in the latest set of statistics issued by the Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research, published by the authority of the provincial treasurer, Hon. Leslie Frost.

Of the eighteen economic regions into which Ontario is divided, the Blue Water Region, which includes the counties of Bruce, Dufferin, Grey, Huron and Simcoe leads, with total farm income of $69,626,109, or 15.8 per cent of Ontario's total farm income.

In second place stands the Upper Thames Region, which includes the counties of Elgin, Middlesex and Oxford. This region's income is given as $52,305,741, or 11.8 per cent of the total.

In third place is the Upper Grand Region, which includes the counties of Perth, Waterloo and Wellington. This region's farm income is given as $42,587,312, or 9.7 per cent of the total for the province.

The Quinte Region, which includes the counties of Frontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward, stands tenth in the list, with farm income of $24,892,543, or 5.6 per cent of the total.

As might be expected, the agricultural production in the rocky region of northern and northwestern Ontario is much smaller than in the warmer and otherwise more favored southern and southwestern parts of the province. The figures given are for 1949, apparently the most recent year for which complete data is available.

Total agricultural production for Ontario in 1949 is given as $441,204,002.

THE TROUBLE HAS STARTED

When the government of Canada announced, through Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, its decision to appoint a Canadian-born governor-general in the person of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, there was a good deal of criticism.

This criticism was not directed at Mr. Massey. No one seems to have anything against him. The criticism was made of the government's establishing a precedent which might lead to all sorts of difficulties and embarrassments.

It was pointed out that it was going to be virtually impossible to find native Canadians who were suitable for appointment as governor-general and who had no background of political strifes and hostilities.

Well, the kind of trouble that was predicted has started already. In Montreal the other day, it was announced by the executive committee of the city council that a civic reception was going to be given Mr. Massey when he pays an official visit to Montreal on April 3. Mayor Camillien Houde thereupon announced that he was going to be away from Montreal on the day of Mr. Massey's visit.

It is possible that Mr. Houde's intended absence from Montreal on the day of Mr. Massey's official visit is unavoidable; it is also possible that Mr. Houde, whose attitude toward the Liberals is well known, sees Mr. Massey as a representative of the Liberal party, rather than as a representative of Queen Elizabeth.

If the mayor of Canada's largest city regards Mr. Massey primarily as a Liberal, and only secondarily as the representative of the reigning monarch, it is possible that other mayors and perhaps some of the provincial premiers will do likewise.

It is unfortunate that a situation of this kind should develop, but it has developed and now we are stuck with it.

MERCHANDISERS UNDERSTAND

Members of the British Association of Scientific Workers are protesting the high price of cosmetics. They complain that nail polish, made for less than $6 a gallon, sells in small bottles at the rate of $300 a gallon.

The scientists may not understand the reason for this, but it is apparent that those engaged in manufacturing and distributing cosmetics do.

If nail polish sold for five cents a bottle, the women would not buy it. The women of Great Britain, like the women of Canada, seem to enjoy paying high prices for luxuries just as much as they dislike paying reasonable prices for necessities.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND

A drum for him I'd like to thump
Who first made sugar in a lump
And gave to childhood such delight
At table morning, noon and night.

Though sugar by the spoon is sweet,
By lump it's handier to eat
And fingers mothers can't control
Can slyly slip it from the bowl.

The domineering parents state:
"No sugar 'til you've cleaned your plate!"
And to the child who pleads: "Just one?"
"No sugar 'til your milk is gone."

But still for him this verse is penned.
He must have been the children's friend
Who boxed lump sugar for the shelf,
I wish I'd thought of it myself.

DO WE NEED TO WORRY?

What is the sin against the Holy Spirit? This is the one sin concerning which Jesus said there was no forgiveness. Every other sin would be forgiven, He declared, but this sin would never be forgiven. As a result of this statement of Jesus, many people have suffered great anxiety lest they may have committed the unpardonable sin.

But of course no one has committed the unpardonable sin who is in the least worried about the possibility of his having done so. Just recall the scene. Jesus had been casting out demons, and the scribes and Pharisee, admitting that this young free-lance Teacher from Nazareth could cast out demons, insisted nevertheless that Jesus was able to cast out demons because He was linked up in some way with Satan.

These men looked upon good and called it evil. Anyone who has ever come to the place where he looks upon good and calls it evil, or looks upon evil and calls it good, has involved himself in the sin against the Holy Spirit. So long as we are so perverted morally that we call good evil and evil good, there is no possibility of our seeing our mistake and repenting of it.

If you have ever worried about the possibility of having committed the unpardonable sin, then be assured out of the Word of God that your very anxiety reveals clearly that you have not committed this sin.

Florida Holiday

By G. A. MORTON
(Managing Editor)

The most popular seafood in the south is shrimp and practically every dinner menu features the delicacy in one form or another. We preferred it as a seafood cocktail, although deep frying the shrimp and serving it as an entree for the meal is preferred by many people. Either way, shrimp is a grand treat to the northerner. It is too bad that it is so scarce and expensive in Canada, otherwise there would be a big market for this food here.

The shrimping industry has grown to huge proportions in recent years. Last year the Gulf states, Florida and Mexico harvested 90,000 tons which brought in a return of $100,000,000 and that's a lot of shrimp when you consider the size of them.

As the industry has increased so has the size of the boats used by the shrimpers. In the early days small boats were used and still are in some areas, but today the larger boats are from sixty to one hundred feet long and cost as much as $100,000. As a result they can accommodate from five to fifteen men and stay out two weeks at a time.

The life span of this shellfish is one year and the creature has much the same appearance as fresh water crawfish. The female will deposit as many as 800,000 eggs in deep water and these are carried by tides and currents into shallow areas along the coasts where the young shrimp start their development. They grow rapidly and as they do they work their way into deeper water by easy stages and the migration is spread over many months. If they are netted during any one of these periods they naturally are in different sizes ranging through the small, medium and jumbo grades.

The shrimp's body is enclosed in a shell, like the common crab, but as the fish grows it sheds the old shell and grows a new one, for the old shell neither expands nor grows. When it is in its unprotected state it is a tidbit for a host of enemies and it is a wonder that many survive. However, they manage to hide themselves so successfully that there are enough left to provide huge quantities of food as we have mentioned above.

Sometimes we have been served with shrimp which had an iodin-like flavor and wondered whether some chemical agent had been used to sterilize the meat. We need not have worried. The unfamiliar flavor we were told comes from the "acorn worm" or Balanoglossus, a little wormlike creature on which the shrimp feeds. Sometimes they get more of this than their ordinary food and as a result their flesh takes on the iodin flavor from the Balanoglossus. We never found it to be too strong to be objectionable.

The boats use what is called an otter trawl for picking the shrimp from the ocean floor and when a good catch is obtained it is thoroughly iced and brought to port. In cases where the boat itself does not leave the fishing grounds it transfers its load to another boat which picks up the catches from several shrimpers and conveys the whole lot to the cannery or for shipment as fresh shrimp to the markets.

We might add that only the tail is used for food while the head and thorax containing the viscera are ground up, dried and converted into feed for livestock and poultry. Formerly, this was thought to be useless and was buried in the ground, but now forms a valuable source of added revenue.

Burdines department store restaurant features a shrimp cocktail for their luncheons and whenever we were down town at the noon hour always made it a point to go in and enjoy a dozen of this seafood. They were the jumbo size, pink and white in color and served with a sauce that was delectable. One serving was almost a meal in itself.

As a matter of fact, this restaurant was one of the best we tried in Miami. Certainly the quality of the food, the prices and service were everything that could be desired and the restaurant did a terrific business as a result. One had to go early to avoid line-ups.

If any readers of this series go to this restaurant next winter we can recommend the fruit salads and French cream cheese cake. They almost make us drool as we think about them.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T CURTAIN YOUR MEMORIES

One reason why so many of us get into moods of unhappiness is because we curtain our memories. A dark day appears and we forget all about the beautiful day that preceded it! It's our happy memories that season our entire lives.

I now look out upon bare trees but it was not so long ago that each was a mass of shade, later in Autumn turning to a riot of color and beauty. And soon again the process will start all over. Even the memory of our loved and lost keeps our hearts in tune with the Infinite Mind.

We receive nothing but from what we have given. From the memory of our kindnesses and good deeds flows an ebb tide that is ever-re-occurring. As W. H. Hudson has no beautifully written: "When the rain clouds disperse and the sun shines out once more, heaven and earth are filled with a chastened light, sweet to behold and very wonderful, so because of our lost ones, because of the old grief at their loss, the visible world is touched with a new light, a tenderness and grace and beauty not its own."

Keep the shades before your memory forever open to the light! Lose nothing of their joy and remembered beauty. Words linger in the mind, and acts of goodness and mercy never die through the influence that they bear over the years. Many and many a voice later rings out to call such a creator blessed.

The late John Buchan (Lord Tweedsmuir) wrote his autobiography, and he called it "Memory Hold the Door." He wrote that his life story was "rebuilt out of memory." He also said that "the abiding things lie in the past." Yes, they lie in the past, but they keep creeping into the future, enriching it, and sparking it with lessons learned and well worth relearning!

Don't curtain your memories. Feed upon them for so long as you live. They are as immortal as truth.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In most city and town families, there is generally some memory of the farm. Grandfather or grandmother was likely born on the farm. Few city families are genuinely urban as far back as the third or four generation.

The recollections of farm life handed down within such families are usually fifty to seventy-five years old, and fantastic from much retailing. Even though city families drive through the country scores of times a year, their impression of life on the farm is founded upon the stories of old Grandpa Campbell or Aunt Nellie Bligh that have come down through the generations, rather than upon the facts that can be seen merely by looking out a car's windows.

Farming is just as advanced in its techniques as any city trade or calling. In some respects, it is more advanced. For instance, in cities, the milkman still makes his early morning rounds with his horse and wagon and his rack of bottles. But on the farm, where the milk originates, production is by machinery of the most modern sort; separation, refrigeration and transportation are all on a high level of mechanized efficiency. The hicks are in the cities, going their old fashioned way.

Farming has been revolutionized not merely by the distribution of electric power and the constant improvement of machinery and farm tools, but by the wide dissemination and general acceptance of technical agricultural education; daily crop and market reports are part of the household routine on farms. When a farmer plants a ten acre field of tomatoes, he has them sold before he plants them. He buys and sells livestock as lively as any player of the stock market buys shares. What our country grandpas remember of farming our city grandpas can recollect of horse cars and paddle-wheel steamboats.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

HEALTHY BABY HAS NO TEETHING TROUBLES

In the letter of the month (printed here Thursday, March 20, I hope), the young mother said her two-year-old daughter, raised according to the Brady Baby Book—for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope), has never had colic, teething troubles or a dose of physic.

What! Not even any castor oil? You ignorant ones will wonder how she managed to keep the fishwives out of the act in the first few weeks. But if you can spare two bits and s. a. e. even you may learn how to manage it. As I always say, the dumbest, most credulous creature is teachable. And it is hard to conceive of a creature so dumb and credulous about the care and feeding of infants as the average high school or college graduate.

Some years ago there was a brisk flurry of publicity for a public school somewhere in the middle west that was trying to establish a course in the care and feeding of infants. I haven't heard even a whisper about it lately. I wonder whatever happened to the idea? Did the dumb parents rise up in arms and stop the nonsense? Or did the powerful interests decide that such instruction of prospective parents might hurt their business?

In the nineteenth century it was a common custom to keep young infants doped with opium —camphorated tincture of opium otherwise called paregoric. Fifty or sixty years ago it was easier to "quiet" or "soothe" the baby with a shot of opium in the form of paregoric or the stronger tincture of opium otherwise called laudanum, than to bathe, powder, rub the back, change wet diaper, feed or attend to other simple wants to keep the baby happy.

From the queries received it appears that some parents of young infants even give them wine or liquor on the same pretext, and some parents of older children give the children aspirin as though this pain-killer were a remedy for anything.

As a matter of fact there is rarely or ever a good reason why a baby should ever have "colic," "teething trouble" or any kind of physic all the old grannies and busybody neighbors to the contrary notwithstanding.

The first dose of castor oil so often inflicted on the baby by these well meaning but ignorant folk—ignorant of the care and feeding of infants—is responsible for much of the trouble ascribed to "colic" and so seriously disturbs the natural automatic regulation of the stomach and bowel function that costiveness ensues. The unhappy baby is punished for this with more physics, or enemas, all of which are irritating and injurious to the delicate digestive tract.

The cutting of teeth in a baby is painless and should never be regarded as an explanation for any illness the baby may have.

As one author says (I said author, not authority):

It is best to pay no attention to the cutting of teeth until one day you discover a brand new one, and then you say "Hello, a new tooth, eh?" (The Brady Baby Book, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Peace Jacket for World Leaders

Prof. A. Santomauro, a tailor of Turin, Italy, decided recently that he would launch a one-man campaign and do something to convince the world leaders that "peace" was necessary at any cost. The professor approached the situation with the only "arms" in his possession — needle and thread. With these he set out to make something "in common" for President Harry Truman, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin of Russia. The best thing, he decided, for the world leaders would be a white jacket bearing the symbol of peace. Prof. Santomauro is shown putting finishing touches to one of the jackets, which will soon be sent to the three leaders. Under the left handkerchief pocket is a gold embroidered symbol of peace — olive leaves around a map of the world. — Central Press Canadian.

WEST HUNTINGDON
Community Presents Gifts to Young Couple

West Huntingdon—On Thursday evening about 150 neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morgan to honor Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Skinkle, nee Aileen Morgan, who were recently married.

Mr. Wallace McTaggart acted as chairman. The program consisted of community singing led by Mrs. Arthur Greenwood at the piano; two duets by Mr. Walter Chumbley and daughter, Betty; two selections by Mr. Woodcox and Mr. Woods with harmonica and guitar accompaniment and a poem, by Mrs. Harry Clarke, "The Mother-In-Law."

Miss Gladys Clarke read an address signed on behalf of the community friends by Ben Acker, Glen Elliott, Wallace McTaggart and Harold Elliott, in which the bride was most cordially welcomed to the community. Good wishes were extended to both Cecil and Aileen, wishing them much happiness in their new life together where pleasures and difficulties would be intermingled, but with perseverance, and proper consideration, the latter could be surmounted and that their fireside would be a symbol of security, peace and love.

Following the reading of the address a presentation was made of gifts, tokens of good will, for which Cecil and Aileen expressed their thanks and appreciation for the kindness shown on their behalf, and inviting the donors to visit them in their new home.

Refreshments were served and later, and the remainder of the evening spent in playing cards and dancing.

Among the many lovely gifts received, was that of a chest of silver and an electric table lamp from the community.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was presented with a shower of gifts at the Ontario School for the Deaf by her friends, while she was employed there.

DESTROYER OUTFITTED

Ottawa, March 24—(CP)—The Canadian destroyer Iroquois, refitted and modernized, will sail from Halifax April 15 to take up her first tour of duty in the Korean war theatre.

The Iroquois, under Cmdr. William M. Landymore of Brantford, Ont., will relieve the destroyer Cayuga late in May.

At present in Korean waters besides the Cayuga are the destroyers Athabaskan and Nootka, both on their second tour of duty.

One Hundred and Four Celebrate 31st Anniversary of Lydia Lodge

On Thursday evening, Lydia Lodge 350, celebrated its 31st anniversary by a party in the Orange Hall on Church Street, where guests were present from Halloway, Madoc, Sulphide and Trenton.

Euchre was enjoyed and winners were, ladies, Jean Marsh, Hazel Insley; consolation, Clara Deline; men, G. McLeod, A. Thompson and R. Smith.

After the euchre, the guests, approximately 104, assembled in the dining-room where the covers were laid. The banquet tables were effectively arranged in the decorative colors of the Order; the head table being centred with a birthday cake bearing the emblems of the Order, flanked by crystal candelabra with golden candles. Delicate food of many descriptions was most temptingly displayed, while roses in vases added a spring-like touch.

Tea was served by Dorothea Barr, Maren Keefe, Lou Lucas and Flowella Akey.

Worthy Mistress Violet Reid expressed her pleasure on having present three Charter members of Lydia Chapter P.W.M., Minnie Dougherty, Lena Akey and Mabel Kent.

Mrs. Florence Insley, of Point Anne, sang a solo "Danny Boy", with Mrs. Charles Farrers as pianist, which was most enjoyable.

Mr. Charles Farrers of Wallbridge, District Master, gave an interesting talk on the principles of the Order; Mr. Kenneth Westlake, commander of the Royal Scarlet Chapter, of Trenton, also expressed his pleasure at being present for this occasion.

Mr. Percy Akey, of Point Anne, Preceptor of the R.B.P., also advised the members to go to church, to attend the lodge regularly, and to live up to the principles of the Orange Order.

Thomas Farnsworth, W.M., of Benjamin 274, wished the ladies a prosperous new year. Brief addresses were also given by Lee Bradshaw, P.D.M., Don Foster, director of Juvenile Boys; J. E. Shortt, P.M. Royal Black Preceptor; Charles Mayers, W.M., of Sulphide; Frank Insley, W.M., of Point Anne, and three Charter members of the lodge, Minnie Dougherty, P.W.M.; Lena Akey, P.W.M.; Mabel Kent, P.W.M., and juvenile director.

Antoinette Caune Says Hat Should Suit Wearer's Face

Edmonton, (CP) — Antoinette Caune, designer of women's hats, says "it is terrible to put the wrong hat on the wrong face."

"A woman's hat should be suited to the shape of her face," says the milliner, in private life the wife of Rev. Elmars Caune, a Latvian minister.

Mrs. Caune, or "Madame Tony" as she calls herself professionally, recently moved to Edmonton. She began her career at 15 in Riga, Latvia, and her flair for design led her employer to take her to Paris to gather new ideas.

By the time she was 19 the blue-eyed Latvian girl had taken over management of a Riga hat shop employing 24 persons. Then, in 1941, she married the young minister.

"Although I am very happy in marriage," she said, "I couldn't reconcile myself to being merely a housewife. Because I felt I had to be doing something, I often designed hats for friends."

When she and her husband and their small child moved to Stockholm in 1944, she re-entered the millinery business. There, some of her creations caught the eye of Jacques Fath, Paris designer, who had some of them shown at a fashion show he was sponsoring in the Swedish capital.

Women's Institute

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The Tyendinaga East Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. W. Johnston, Selby, last Friday afternoon with a good attendance.

During the business part of the meeting, several letters of thanks were read and it was decided to send ten cents per member to the district to send representatives to the Guelph Conference, and also to send $5 to the Canadian Cancer Fund.

This was Historical Research meeting and Mrs. J. B. Rollins, District Historical Research convener, of Corbyville, who attended the Guelph Conference last year, gave an excellent talk on her trip there and told what is being done about this subject, all of which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. R. Stafford had prepared an excellent paper on "Light is the task when many share the toil".

Mrs. W. Bell was in charge of the program and papers were read by Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley, Mrs. G. Dupre, Mrs. W. Bell and Mrs. C. Akey.

Miss G. Mowers gave a report on the Folk School, which was held at Madoc in January and explained what they mean, and what they aim to do for a community.

Mrs. R. Stafford moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Johnston, after which the meeting was closed and refreshments were served.

CHAPMAN W.I.

The regular meeting of Chapman W.I., was held recently at the home of Mrs. Mitchell Rannie, with 28 members, and one visitor present.

An extremely interesting number on the program, prepared by Mrs. Hermon Elliott, was the talk given by the district president, Mrs. Harry Sills, of Roslin W.I., who urged all members to attend the district annual to be held in Belleville on May 27, and also to attend the co-operative program to be held in Roslin Hall on April first.

In her talk, Mrs. Sills said the W.I., is a community builder. There should be service and cooperation among the members; the W.I. should raise the standard of health. It was organized as an educational group, not a money making group. Money should not be sent out of the community to such an extent that home needs are neglected for lack of funds. The farm woman is often in need of inspirational food—this need is met by the W.I. "What we do for others, lives, what we do for self, dies."

Following her address, Mrs. Sills demonstrated how to make a smocked cushion, which proved exceedingly interesting to the members generally.

Mrs. Stanley Webb extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Sills for her fine talk and interesting demonstration.

Executive Report

Mrs. Howard Countryman, District Director, gave a report on the executive meeting held in Belleville, on March 15. Mrs. Hermon Elliott gave an interesting talk on Canadian Industries, telling of the oil fields at Leduc and showing on a map, the pipe line across the prairies to Superior, U.S.A., from where it is shipped to the oil refinery at Sarnia.

Under standing committees, Mrs. Charles Jeffrey told of the deplorable decrease in Canada's sheep population, the chief cause being predators and cost of fencing. Mrs. S. McCrea gave several interesting items on current events. Mrs. S. Webb read excerpts from the provincial convener's report on Home Economics and Health. Mrs. A. Martin and Mrs. R. Wheeler explained the new extension services. The flower committee reported sending cards to two sick members.

At the close of the meeting refreshments, prepared by Mrs. Harold Foster, Mrs. Stanley Bateman, Mrs. Dewey Kleinsteuber, Mrs. A. McTaggart and Mrs. Mitchell Rannie, were served.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Countryman. This will feature the annual election of officers.

PINE GROVE W.I.

Pine Grove Women's Institute met for its March meeting at Mrs. F. Campbell's home with a good attendance of members, and some visitors present. The 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Detlor, presided.

Mrs. F. Finkle, district director, reporter on a recent district executive meeting noting that the district annual for West Hastings is to be held on May 28 in Stirling United Church.

The members were in favor of again sending a CARE parcel to England.

Mrs. G. Bartendale, convener of Historical Research and Current Events, took charge of the program.

A quiz on "Canada" disclosed many interesting facts.

Mrs. L. Finkle and Mrs. R. Vanderwater contributed musical selections.

Mrs. F. Campbell, district convener of Historical Research and Current Events, reported on the Guelph conference which she attended as a delegate from West Hastings last year.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

TAX NOTICES LATE

Hamilton, March 25—(CP)— City Clerk James F. Berry said last night that 80,000 city tax notices will be sent out late this year. The delay resulted from revision of tax and assessment rolls and a delay in setting the 45-mill rate. Citizens will be given an extension of time to pay their first installments.

Scottish Policewoman

Margaret Pearson, who helped solve many cases as a member of the Glasgow police force, has arrived in Edmonton to join the force there. "There's no other job like it," Miss Pearson says of police work. She served in the women's naval service during the Second World War and joined the Glasgow force in 1949. She came to Canada along with 12 male members of the Glasgow force — all to join the Edmonton department. — (CP Photo.)

It's a Bargain!

Bargain hunters will envy Barbara Manausa, 13, as she admires a $25,000 chinchilla coat bought by her father for her for $550 at a Chicago auction sale of the famous Insull furs. The 78-year-old widow of utility magnate Samuel Insull declared that the garment had been rarely worn and had cost more than $10,000 in storage charges. — Central Press Canadian.

Women's Activities

ELDORADO W.M.S.

Mrs. Cecil Robinson opened her home for the March meeting of the Eldorado W.M.S., which was held recently in a combined meeting. In the absence of the president, the 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Earl Blakely, was in the chair and opened the meeting.

The various reports were read and accepted. The April meeting will be held at Mrs. Clayton Blackburn's. Mrs. Dan Robinson is to be the delegate and Mrs. Chidley as alternate for the presbytery held in Trenton on March 27. The society is invited to Hazzard's, April 1, when the guest speaker is to be Miss Luella O'Rourke, missionary.

Mrs. A. Robinson presided at the piano for the worship service conducted by Mrs. Cecil Blackburn.

Following the dismissal of the meeting, a social time was enjoyed.

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

The March meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Bridges, with fourteen members, and three visitors, and four children in attendance.

The president opened the meeting by reading a poem on "Prayer".

Devotional period was taken by Mrs. C. Fitchett, Mrs. C. Sills and Mrs. H. Chambers.

Mrs. Russell Sills gave a reading on the meaning and significance of special Lenten days, and another reading on the "Spiritual Aspects of Lent", was given by Mrs. Gordon Nelson.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy contributed a solo "Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus?"

Mrs. Bridges, W.A. president, reported that the Society realized $20.50 from serving refreshments at Mr. Wannamaker's sale on March 12th.

Mrs. Hugh McMullen offered her home for the April meeting and Mrs. Warren Harlow was appointed to prepare the program.

The hostess served refreshments.

WHITE'S W.A.

Mrs. Ernest Curtis was hostess to the ladies of White's Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon with sixteen members and one visitor present.

The 1st vice-president, Mrs. Curtis, presided.

Mrs. William Yateman took charge of the devotional service. Mrs. Walter Jones read the Scripture St. John 8:10-30 and Mrs. Yateman gave the highlights of the lesson under the heading, "The Lord is My Light".

Mrs. Nicolson and Mrs. Reid paid dues. Five made birthday donations namely, Mrs. Frank Sandercock, Mrs. W. Yateman, Mrs. Leonard Young, Mrs. Glen Meyers, and Master Larry Bilham. "A Happy Birthday" was sung to all.

Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson offered to sew the blocks together for a crazy quilt. Sugar bags were handed out for working. Two dollars was paid to the flower convener, Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

Mrs. Benson Bonisteel took charge of the program assisted by Mrs. George Bilham, who read "Ireland's St. Patrick". Mrs. Frank Sandercock who read "A Memory", and Mrs. Leonard Young, who gave a St. Patrick contest which was won by Mrs. C. Ketcheson, who received a pin-cushion hat made by Mrs. Bonisteel. Mrs. Bonisteel read "A Good Start in Living".

Mrs. Glen Meyers, who is leaving the community, was presented with a bedroom lamp on behalf of the ladies of White's Woman's Association by Mrs. Ernest Curtis.

The address was read by Mrs. Leonard Young. Mrs. Meyers made a suitable reply thanking the ladies for their kindness and inviting them to her new home.

After the meeting was closed refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

Science against pain
Science progresses: For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for the relief of pain. Today this familiar pain-killer is available in a new form without the disadvantage of insolubility, acidity and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN.
Why take DISPRIN?
Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.
DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) it permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.
DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Two words to avoid

Two of the most vicious words are "bored" and "nervous". Avoid them. . .avoid them. They aren't pleasant words to hear. They aren't pleasant words to get the habit of using. And, grimly they "grow by what they feed on"!

How to sign their Easter cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At Christmas-time we did not send out cards because my husband was very ill, and I was too worried and busy. But now we would like to make up for this by sending nice Easter cards to all our relatives and friends. How do I sign these, to include our names and the names of our 7-year-old son?—Esther.

The father's name comes first. Robert and Esther and Tommy. Or The Allens. . . Robert and Esther and Tommy.

Writing the thank-you notes for the baby's presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In writing thank-you notes for gifts which a new-born baby receives, does the mother write in her own name or in the child's name?—A. L. R.

Usually the baby's mother writes the notes in her own name. However, occasionally, when the sender of the present encloses with the present a note addressed to and written to the baby, the mother writes the thank-you note in the baby's name. And these notes can be very engaging!

The courtly host does the carving

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here comes another of those "recent brides"! We have just moved to our new home, and are planning to give some small, informal dinners. (I've learned to cook!) We're going to have only two courses, a roast course, with vegetables, and the dessert course. My husband is a good carver, and he will do the carving at table. He wants to have me ask you if he should ask each guest for his or her "preference".!—Doris T.

Yes. . . as a matter of fact, a host can make this question a very thoughtful "gesture". Florence, do you prefer the roast beef well-done, medium or rare? Just as you wish!" Or, "Bill, would you like dark meat or light?" Then, as he passes the plate, he says, "This is for Florence" . . . "This is for Bill", and so forth. Then all guests feel a very personal attention has been given them.

Theatre etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the right thing to say when you have to pass in front of people to take your seat in a theatre?—Bob.

Say "I'm sorry" or "I'm so sorry" . . . and say these words in a really convincing tone of voice. Speak up. . .don't mumble your apology. And if (as occasionally happens!) the person has the courtesy to rise to let you pass, do you thank for that courtesy. . .a gracious "Thank you".

Mannerisms mark a girl

Making faces represents lost energy.

Some of the most charming individuals,—and smart ones, too, —have little eccentricities of behavior that keep them from being poised, restful companions. If a member of the family calls attention to them, their feelings are hurt. Usually they are victims of high tension or a jittery nervous system. Often they don't realize what they are doing. They tap their toes. Or they wave their arms about. Or they fiddle with their fingers. These people are in need of relaxation. Some of them can't relax. They don't know how. They seem to be always under strain. Medical men frown upon this giving way to nervous movements; they regard them as warnings.

Every woman has a desire to make herself attractive and pleasing. The desire is as natural as breathing. It is a worthy ambition. A woman spends money on cosmetics, helps to keep thousands of beauty shops in business, chases after becoming clothes, diets and exercises to retain the youthful silhouette yet she may do little to guard against small habits of conduct that stamp her as one who has no gift for observation. She should regard every calm, poised woman as an example, make an effort to be like her, because, if she is jittery, she gets on the nerves of her family and friends.

There are women who can't seem to sit still with their hands gracefully folded in their laps. They run their fingers through their hair or twist a strand. Or they fuss with a necklace, bracelet or button. Their hands are always moving.

We all know the woman who does facial acrobatics, lifting eyebrows to express surprise, pulling down lip ends in disapproval. It doesn't seem to wear on them, though they'll be in for plenty of wrinkles as times passes, but it annoys others to watch them.

We don't expect teen-agers to be dignified, but mannerisms should be caught young. The pretty girl who sprawls in a chair, with feet far apart, sitting almost on her neck, should have her attention called to the graceless, ugly pose she assumes. Loud talking should be corrected. In former eras ,girls were told that they should be ladylike. Nobody hears that word today. Too bad.

All these lapses should be avoided. Nobody should resent constructive criticism. It often opens one's mind to matters of which one has been unaware, acquaints one with faults that the mirror never reveals.

Easy Hot Cross Buns

One way or another most of you have come to the conclusion that I am a good cook. I hope I am. If that is true it is also true that we are a family of good cooks, for when my sister puts her hand to making such specials as hot cross buns or those delectable butter buns, I stay close. For nothing can cross her up on hot cross buns. The recipe I am giving you is Peady's, made often by me too, but originally worked out by her. (Some day I'll give you her Baked Chicken Special.)

EASY HOT CROSS BUNS

Four tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1-2 cup scalded milk, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 yeast cake or 1 package of granular yeast, about 3 1-2 cups sifted bread flour, 1 egg, 1-2 cup either raisins or currants washed and dried, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind are optional but recommended, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg. In large mixing bowl measure the sugar, salt and shortening. Stir in the scalded and still hot milk, and when shortening is melted add the cold water and crumble the yeast cake into it, stirring. (If granular yeast is used dissolve it for 10 minutes with 1 teaspoon of the required sugar in the cold water before adding the water.) When yeast is blended in add 2 cups of the sifted flour, and the unbeaten egg, and beat well until batter is completely smooth. Add all of remaining flour, the fruit, rind and spice and beat very well. If to be used in the future, oil the top of the dough, cover and keep in cold part of the refrigerator, breaking off dough and letting it rise (as described below) as you need it.

If to be used at once do not chill but separate dough into three even pieces and roll these with the palms into rolls about 8 or 10 inches long and cut each into 8 pieces so that you have two dozen even-sized buns. Shape in buns by rolling between palms and place in rows without touching in two square pans which have been greased. Cover and let rise in warm place for about 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 hours or until doubled. With the sharp point of a knife cut deep cross in top and let rise a few minutes longer. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 12 or 15 minutes. If desired two minutes before baking time is up you may brush them with mixture of 2 tablespoons each sugar and milk. To finish when cool make another cross in your cut cross with outline of icing.

BUTTER CAKES

I have had requests for these little cakes. They are yeast butter cakes, baked on a griddle as you may have seen them done in downtown restaurant windows. They are out of this world.

Scald 2 cups milk and add to them 1 teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons each shortening and sugar. Cool this mixture to lukewarm and add 2 cakes yeast which have been crumbled. Stir until yeast is dissolved. Sift bread flour and measure 4 1-2 cups and sift it over the wet mixture and stir and beat in until perfectly smooth —this takes at least 3 minutes with a strong arm. Scrape out into a clean bowl, and stand bowl in pan of warm water at 70 deg. Fahr. and let rise until it is very light—much lighter than you would let bread rise. Drop from large spoon onto medium hot barely greased griddle—not as hot as for pancakes. Bake until bottom crust is brown but not burned. It takes from 10 to 15 minutes to acquire a good crunchy crust on both sides. Break apart while hot and dot with butter. Serve at once. If there should be any left over split and toast and spread with butter. These amounts make about 15 medium-sized cakes. Worthy of a party and nothing could cost less.

LOST FOUR FINGERS

Oakville, March 25 — (CP) — Howard Barker, 40, won't be able to help out his 10-pin bowling team now in the middle of a play-off series. Barker last night caught his right hand in a power press at work and lost four fingers.

FACED WITH QUESTION

Brampton, March 25 — (CP) — Town council last night was faced with the question: "Dog owners have to buy dog tags so why shouldn't cat owners buy tags?" Mrs. Lloyd Ewles asked the question while protesting a new by-law that requires dog owners to keep their pets on their own property.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her influence may help straighten out this situation

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My brother separated from his wife when he found her entertaining a widower friend of his. His wife has now become the widower's housekeeper and takes care of his small son.

I sent her a Christmas card and my relatives were shocked. They tell me that my own reputation will suffer if I seem to condone her recklessness. She and I were good friends all through her marriage to my brother and she was wonderful to me when I was very ill. She has no children of her own and adores mine.

Shall I cast this woman aside as everyone else has? My brother had faults also, and I am hoping that sometime they may resume their marriage.—L. C.

Dear L.C.:

I find your letter very touching. It is heartening to hear of someone who will stick by a person who is making a mistake, even though others turn their backs on the one they believe to be doing wrong. Your loyalty and friendship are far more likely to influence your sister-in-law than the criticism and condemnation of those who shun her.

In my opinion, it will be a fine thing if you continue to be friends with your brother's wife, and perhaps eventually you will be instrumental in bringing them together again. Don't let anyone persuade you to abandon her. Keep her aware of your friendship and interest in her and when the opportunity presents itself, let her know how much wiser you feel it would be if she and her husband were reconciled and could start over again.

DON'T FEEL HALF DEAD

Are you always tired?

HAVE YOU A HORIZONTAL HUSBAND?

If he's tired all the time and lacking pep; if he snoozes on the chesterfield every evening, too weary to go out or enjoy life, he may be suffering a vitamin and mineral deficiency. If he's irritable or nervous, dyspeptic or generally under par; if he experiences vague aches and pains (assuming the absence of specific disease), then examine his diet carefully. THE TROUBLE MAY BE RIGHT THERE. He probably needs a vitamin and mineral dietary supplement and should be introduced to Formula 7-11.

A DRUGGIST SPEAKS:--

"I have compared the formulae — 7-11 is the best product of its kind that's ever been on my shelves."

That is how one druggist expressed his opinion of 7-11, a new formula for better health.

SERIOUS AILMENTS RESULT FROM ERRORS IN DIET

It's necessary to strike at the source—not at the symptom. When an individual suffers serious ailments caused by a food factor deficiency, a one hundred percent improvement cannot be expected unless he is supplied with those elements which were lacking in his diet, the absence of which caused the degeneration in the first place.

To keep free from ailments, we must keep our tissues, blood, bone, and glands well supplied with the food elements they need. Our normal body chemistry must be maintained if our health is to be maintained. If we keep our body chemistry in normal balance, we can expect to possess normal health conditions.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"UP AND AT 'EM"!

Whipping the Barrie Flyers junior "B" squad did one thing to the junior Hawks while the forthcoming series with the Weston Dukes has possibly prevented another.

While their fighting qualities have never been in doubt, the Hawk youngsters proved to 2531 cheering customers last Friday night they can play the game the rugged way, without parading at least half their players to the penalty box. The Hawks have always been known as a hard-hitting team but some of the methods during the schedule were a trifle on the crude side and they suffered through loss of manpower.

Last Friday they hit everything in sight with all they had except the skates and did it legally with the exception of an occasional instance. They met the Barrie squad, a team reputed to delight in torso-tossing antics, and literally body-checked them into third-period submission.

But the up-and-coming series with the Weston Dukes did not permit Ole Man Cranium Inflation to get in his deadly work. Any team that has won fourteen out of fifteen starts is entitled perhaps to a little chest expansion or noggin enlargement but the tough assignment which faces the Hawk youngsters in the last barrier to the Ontario junior "B" finals, has resulted in "Red" Doran's young crew resolving itself into a deadly-earnest team of puckchasers.

Doran is drilling them hard and often. He, like his ice-lane proteges, realizes the Dukes will be a tough hard team to beat. They are big, perhaps one of the biggest junior "B" squads extant, and they have been drilled in a tough school. Any team that can eliminate the starry St. Michael's Buzzers is not, by any stretch of the imagination, a bevy of panty-waists.

But they're not invincible. They can be beaten. Reputations fall by the wayside after the first whistle shrills in any hockey match and from that point on the boys are on their own.

The Hawks are not the least perturbed about some rather "glowing" accounts that have trickled in from Toronto and its tuburbs anent the ability of the Dukes. And the fact that the Dukes defeated the leg-weary battered Barrie crew on Saturday night by an 11-2 score, did not carry much weight down thisaway.

One thing has been proved if only during the past ten days or so. And that is the Hawks can play it the tough rugged way and win, and if that is the style the Dukes like, then, mes amis, you are in for an evening packed with fun, fury and fireworks come Wednesday gloaming.

YOU PICK HIM!

Ab Wonnacott has generously donated a handsome Gruen watch ($72.50) which will be awarded to the most valuable player to the Hawks junior "B" squad during the games between Barrie (played Friday night) and the forthcoming tilt between the Hawks and Weston Dukes here Wednesday evening.

The player will be selected by popular fan vote and ballot slips have already been issued. They were in evidence on Friday night and will appear again Wednesday night. Fans are urged to secure one of the slips, place the name of the player they believe has been the most valuable to the Hawks in these two encounters, and deposit it in containers placed in the arena for the purpose.

SPEAKING OF BASEBALL

Kingston, Brockville, Smiths Falls, Peterborough and Belleville have filed application for entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League, which contrary to "Chef" Geo. H. Campbell's report in the Oshawa paper has not "folded up again". It is expected that entries from Clayton, N. Y. and two other border towns will file application. Election of officers and discussion of entries takes place at a meeting to be held in Kingston next Sunday.

Speaking of baseball the Belleville Baseball Association arranged for films of the world series between the Yanks and Giants, also the Dodgers-Giants "crooshul" series and a trio of educational films which had their first showing in the collegiate auditorium this afternoon. A second filming takes place tonight starting at 7.30 for youngsters and their dads. There is no admission fee. Baseball lovers should not miss these thrilling films.

OVERHEARD

We listened to a radio discussion the other night in which the principals were talking about the lower forms of animal life. In our opinion the lowest form of any life is the human louse who finds a wallet, extracts the money, then tosses the wallet and other contents into a nearby river, ditch or creek.

"NOW, WHOSE OX . . .!

Some time ago when the Belleville senior Hawks were in the throes of an extensive losing streak, Michael R. Rodden, scrivener of sports east o' here, dug deeply into his rich store of adjectives to describe the faltering seniors from the banks of the Moira.

Mr. Rodden must have depleted his store, or disdains repetition of such adjectival comment because with the flying Peterborough Petes taking the Kingston Sacs apart to see what makes them tick, re-assembling them and starting another chore of disintegration, nary an adjective has issued from the Rodden typewriter.

There was a touch of gloating in Mike's description of the slaughter of the Belleville squad. He had them "collapsed, floundering, wallowing, deflated," and whatnot. Now, so to speak, the shoe is on the other foot. And nary a toot from the Rodden Sacs-o-phone.

And fans up thisaway are wondering what has happened the "wonder-boy" goalie from the Maritimes. At least the Petes never administered such crushing defeats to the Hawks as they are handing out at the moment to the "floundering, collapsing" Sacs. And they're doing it with a flock of juniors, Mike. Helluva feeling, aint it?

Boston Bruins Meet Les Habs In Playoffs 1st Time, 6 Years; Will Wings Play Cosy, Rough?

Detroit, March 25—(AP)—On the eve of the opening series of the Stanley Cup playoffs with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit's National Hockey League fans were pondering just one question:

Will the Red Wings play the smashing, power game that has brought them four consecutive league championships or will they try to play scientific hockey in the playoffs?

Before backing their sentiments with wagers Detroiters generally wanted to have a look at tonight's opener and see "how they're going to play it this time."

"Drive Puck Down Throats"

One summed it up thus: "You can't beat those Toronto or Montreal clubs at cozy, scientific, defensive hockey, the Red Wings ought to know by now you got to drive the puck down their throats all the time."

Montreal Canadiens whipped the Red Wings in the opening Stanley Cup series a year ago, four games to two.

Detroit defeated Toronto, 4-3, in the 1949-50 finals and won possession of the Stanley Cup for the only time in its three successive league championship years before the current one.

In 1948-49 Toronto made short work of the Red Wings in the finals, winning in four games.

Before the successive championship years, Toronto ousted Detroit from the cup competition in 1947-48 (4-0), 1946-47 (4-1), and 1944-45 (4-3). The Red Wings kicked the Maple Leafs out in 1942-43 (4-2).

Back of this Toronto won four of the cup playoffs from Detroit and dropped two.

Most hockey writers insist that the Red Wing switch to "cosy" hockey in the playoffs has been their undoing. Manager Jack Adams doesn't agree.

There is agreement that Detroit probably plays the roughest power hockey in regular-season play. It is good enough to give them a runaway, 22-point bulge over the second-place Montreal Canadiens this year They were away out front that year before, too, and blew the playoff.

Montreal, March 25—(CP)—When Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens meet tonight in the opening game of their Stanley Cup semi-final, it will mark the first time the clubs have clashed in the post-season hockey classic in six years.

In 1946 Canadiens defeated Bruins four games to one in the final—the last time the Montrealers have captured the cup. Three years earlier the Bruins gobbled up Canadiens in the semi-final, also by a 4-1 margin, and lost to Detroit in the final. The Bruins last won the cup in 1941.

A more up-to-date sizing up of the teams shows the Bruins have the edge. In the 14 times Montreal and Boston met during the regular season just closed the Bruins won seven games, Canadiens five and two games ended in ties.

Arguments for Each

Just what this points up in a short series—best of seven—is debatable. There are plenty of arguments for each team.

Montreal's rookies have been breaking out in scoring rashes and Canadiens' ace sniper, Maurice Richard, has returned after a long lay-off due to a groin injury.

Canadiens finished in second place in the long National Hockey League grind. They had a 12-point margin over the fourth-place Bruins and rolled up 195 goals for the season against 162 for the Bruins.

At the same time, the Bruins finished with a splurge of victories—10 in their last 12 starts—to beat out New York Rangers for the last playoff spot. One important factor was the superb net-minding by goalie Jim Henry, although on the season's averages Gerry McNeil of Canadiens had a slight edge.

The Bruins left Boston last night for Montreal, where the first two games will be played—tonight and Thursday night.

Coach Dick Irvin was concerned over the loss of Johnny McCormack, ace defensive centre, who suffered a broken arm Saturday night.

Guelph Signs Eleven Players In Intercounty

Guelph, March 25 (CP) — The Guelph Intercounty Baseball League entry yesterday announced the signing of 11 players for the 1952 season.

Those from last year's club will be catcher Art O'Connor; pitchers Lew Fauth, Marty Philp and Matt Gumieniak; shortstop Marv Rich; outfielders Nick Ciano, George Carruth and Joe Consoli and utility player Nick Decarlo. Playing manager George D'Addario and will likely play first base.

Carl Pilarski, another pitcher with pro experience, also has been signed for the coming season.

Second baseman George Boniface is on the doubtful list. He played for Guelph last year, but the league ruled he belongs to Kitchener. A former Stratford player, he was picked up by Kitchener in a league draft when the Stratford team disbanded.

Guelph secretary Jim Kendrick blamed Kitchener manager Don Gallinger for the situation. He said the teams were getting "rather sick of Gallinger's interfering."

Phil Marchildon and Jack Bowes will be missing from the Guelph lineup. Marchildon is taking another fling at pro ball and Bowes is moving up in the Cleveland Indian farm system. The Indians have promised a replacement for Bowes.

Dodgers Set Pace In Cutting Squad

Miami, Fla., March 25 (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers are going to set the pace in cutting their squad — and with a good reason—President Walter O'Malley said today.

"We feel it is our duty to our fans in Montreal, Fort Worth, St. Paul and Mobile to get our farm clubs established as quickly as possible," he said. "The situation in the minor league from the fans' point of view has been bad. Usually, just when they get used to the players, some get traded."

Some cuts on the Brook roster probably will be made next weekend.

L'il Arthur King Defeats Pruden By Technical KO

Toronto, March 25 (CP) —Toronto's L'il Arthur King last night scored a technical knockout over Fitzie Pruden at 1:15 of the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round bout King weighed 138 1-4, Pruden 144 3-4.

Far ahead on points, King, British Empire lightweight champion crashed over two left hooks to the jaw and a right to the body that sent Pruden down for the count of eight. Groggy, Pruden got to his feet and was an easy mark for the tigerish King.

The Toronto battler, now fighting out of Philadelphia, propped up Pruden against the ropes with another left smash and then by actual count, hit him 42 times to the head and body before referee Billy Burke stepped in.

Pruden, defeated by King in their first match here last January couldn't get started against his lighter opponent. He was kept off balance by straight lefts and took at least four punches to one while trying to land his specialty — a right hook to the body.

Shot Bolt in 7th

Pruden, native of St. Catharines, showed his best in the seventh when he hurt the Negro with a right jab to the chin and a hard right to the stomach. But he shot his bolt here.

King scored with stinging left jabs in the eighth and then the roof fell in for Pruden early in the ninth. King, on top of the welterweight, suddenly uncorked two vicious left jabs and Pruden was down.

The crowd of 7,500 sensed the kill and King, who used his left most of the fight to chop down Pruden, poured in a vicious left hook that bounced Pruden against the ropes. He remained upright and King practically left him numb with his 42-punch barrage.

The loss practically nullified any chance Pruden had of getting a rematch with Chico Vejar who defeated him in a close bout at Madison Square Garden a couple of weeks ago.

In a preliminary six-rounder, Lyle Staff, 202 1-2, St. Catharines, won a unanimous decision over Stanley Smardz, 185, Poland.

Gene Poirier, 150, Niagara Falls, won a unanimous decision over Harry Poulton, 141 3-4, Halifax, over six rounds.

Petes Swamp Sacs By 14-5 Score

Peterborough, March 25—Peterborough Petes put themselves only one game away from winning their O. H. A. senior "B" group championship by beating Kingston Sacs, 14-5, before 1,700 spectators here last night.

The win gave Petes a 3-0 edge in the best-of-seven series, which resumes in Kingston Wednesday.

Petes led, 1-0, after the first period and 7-3 going into the third. The losers drew five of the eight penalties.

Curly Mason and Fred Garvey led the winners with three goals each while Arn Duggan and Jack Wade, Frank Jopling, George Steel, Don Floyd, Ted Collins and Junior West scored one. For the losers, Sammy Mulholland and Gabby White each fired a pair and Clint Tinkess got the other one.

This is the first in a series of three unusual incidents in the history of hockey's premier prize, the Stanley Cup.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

It was in the late nineties that the continent was fired by tales that in a far northern ice-bound region, known as the Klondike, gold was to be had for the plucking. It could be washed out of the streams in lumps like marbles, or picked up in chunks from caches where the waters of the centuries had eddied. So there started the greatest gold rush since California's 49-ers.

A few years later, the glamor had vanished. The once-wild Dawson City, capital of the frozen wastes, had become a matured city. Thoughts had turned to sport and then there evolved in 1905 the most daring and fantastic hockey venture ever undertaken — the Klondike challenge for the Stanley Cup, then held by Ottawa's powerful all-conquering Silver Seven.

Gold vs. Silver. That was it. Suddenly-rich miners tossed in their gold nuggets to finance this wild sporting hazard. From sources unknown, a team was assembled, and a hardy lot they were, these bold Klondikers, physically and mentally. Mostly there were daring young adventurers who had followed the Trail of '98, had survived the hardships that blocked the way to riches. On to Ottawa, they captured public imagination as they trekked through the mountain passes, a grim safari, made their way east, a 4,000 mile jaunt, carrying not only the hopes of the community far behind them, but the admiration of most of Canada's sporting folk.

Everybody realized these Klondikers had set themselves a hopeless goal. But their courage, the glamor of their background, won vast respect. Of their hockey backgrounds, not much was known. One player, Lorne Hanna, was of major calibre. He starred, along with Lester Patrick for the Brandon team that a year after gave Ottawa's mighty forces a real battle for the cup. The others were Forest, Johnston, Fairburn, Smith, Kennedy and Watt, players who were and are of unknown quality.

But the sheer drama of the venture gripped Canada, and even though the Klondikers lost 9-2 in the first of the two matches, hopes were entertained that they might rally in the next.

But they didn't rally. The second game was the greatest shambles in the long history of the Stanley Cup play. Centering the mighty Silver Seven was a stocky, hard-skating thick-set blonde, named Frank McGee. Veterans of hockey still assert he was the greatest man on ice that ever lived, even though he played with only one eye. And in the second game, McGee set a scoring record that never will be equalled in the annals of cup play. He scored 14 goals, as Ottawa won by the prodigious score of 23-2.

I have that faded box-score in front of me, as I write. Hockey was then played as a 7-man game, in two periods. McGee started the greatest scoring spree in Cup history seven minutes from the start. In 30 seconds, he scored again, and from then on, he pumped goals regularly past Forest in the Dawson City nets. He scored 30 seconds from the start of the second half, added another a few minutes later, then went completely wild, scoring at intervals of 30 seconds, one minute, 10 seconds, two minutes, 10 seconds again, 4 minutes, 30 seconds. He scored eight goals in a row in this mammoth splurge.

A sad ending for a gallant bid. The Stanley Cup has never known anything like this, before or since.

Next week the second in this series: An Illusion Vanishes.

National League's Final Figures Cluttered With Detroit Red Wings

Montreal, March 25 (CP) —It's official now, and the National Hockey League's final statistics for the regular 1951-52 season are all cluttered up with Detroit Red Wings.

The club won the league championship for the fourth consecutive season, finishing with an even 100 points, 22 more than the second place Montreal Canadiens.

The Wings' Gordie Howe romped off with the scoring honors: most goals, 47, and most scoring points, 86. Terry Sawchuk was low-average goalie.

Just Misses

Ted Lindsay lost out for the doubtful honor of being bad man of the league. His 123 minutes in the penalty box were four short of the 127 amassed by burly Gus Kyle of Boston Bruins.

But Lindsay finished with a rush to take second place behind Howe in point-scoring with 69 points. Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens was third with 65, but led on total assists, 50.

As leading point-getter, Howe is winner of Art Ross Trophy for the second year in a row and he collects $1,000 from the NHL for his performance. Lindsay gets $500.

Sawchuk also comes in for $1,000 along with the Vezina Trophy. In 70 games Sawchuk was scored on only 133 times for an average of 1.90 goals a game. He led the league in shutouts with 12.

Al Rollins of Toronto Maple Leafs, last year's Vezina winner, was closest to Sawchuk with a 2.20 average.

National League Attendance Down

New York, March 25 (AP) —Attendance in the National Hockey League's regular season declined some 50,000 in comparison with the 1950-51 figures.

Unofficial figures compiled yesterday showed the six clubs drew 2,310,316 fans during the regular campaign which ended Sunday night.

Although they failed to finish in the playoffs, New York Rangers showed the biggest increase, jumping from 349,251 to 376,645. Detroit had a 19,00 increase. Montreal also was over its 1950-51 figure while Boston, Chicago and Toronto were under last season's totals.

The figures:

	1951-52	1950-51
Boston	245,144	308,650
Chicago	297,316	330,341
Detroit	419,862	400,731
New York	376,645	349,251
Montreal	503,993	502,403
Toronto	467,356	471,516
Totals	2,310,316	2,362,892

Northern 'A's' Trim Sister Team In Y Basketball

The tw Northern Electric entries in the YMCA Girls' Basketball League met for the second time in the series. Northern A repeated their victory in almost identical fashion, this time by a score of 31-14. In the first game played Feb. 13, Northern A won by a 28-15 margin. As a result the Northern B's remain on the bottom of the heap with 7 defeats and no wins, while Northern A's two victories have been at the hands of their company rivals, having been unable to defeat any other team.

"Y" Business Girls remain on the top with eight victories and no defeats and Nurses and OSD follow with four and three victories respectively.

Nellie McKenna and Dorothy Taylor shared top scoring honors with nine points each and Barbara Young scored eight points. Helen Reeves scored four points and B. Allcorn who scored eight points the last time these teams met was only able to score one point.

Only three girls scored for the losing B team: Joan Ball, Betty McGowan and Jean York with six, five and three points respectively. If the B's could find a wider distribution of scoring punch and the girls not leave their team so shorthanded for players on many occasions they would be making a better showing in the league.

Top scorers in the YMCA Ladies Basketball League were announced today for all games played including March 19th. Business Girls who are in first place in the league standing with eight wins and no losses have six players in leading position, whereas Nurses who are in second place have only three girls with high scores. Northern A, who are in fourth position in the league have five high scorers.

Individual scorers follow:

Doris McLean, Bus. Girls	45
Marg Cousins, Bus. Girls	36
Barbara Young N. Electric A	26
Marie Marinoff, Bus. Girls	25
Jean York, N Electric B	24
Betty McGowan N. Electric B	22

Oakville, March 25 (CP) —Deputy Reeve Lachlan McCarthur said last night that town's sewage pumping station is in danger of being swept into Lake Ontario by storms which combined with high water levels to sweep away hundreds of feet of shoreline.

TO SPEND $9,000,000

Niagara Falls, March 25 (CP)— Alderman George R. Inglis said last night that the city plans capital expenditures amounting to $9,000,000 in the next five years. The five-year-plan has been sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Mosienko's Hat Trick Shatters N.H.L. Record

In pulling the hat trick against New York Rangers, Chicago's flashy rightwinger, Bill Mosienko, set the N.H.L. records on end. His feat of three goals in 21 seconds helped Black Hawks defeat Rangers 7-6 in final game of the season for the two clubs. The 30-year-old native of Winnipeg bettered the mark of three goals in one minute and 52 seconds set by Carl Liscombe of Detroit Red Wings in 1938. The high-flying forward, whose 31 goals for the season are almost one-fifth of his team's total output, 158, also broke a team record all by himself. Previously the Montreal Maroons held the team mark of three goals in 24 seconds, but by different players, in the 1932 season. — Central Press Canadian.

Goalie Sugar Jim Henry Big Reason Why Boston Bruins Made Playoffs

Boston, March 25 — (AP) —On the eve of the Stanley Cup playoffs, Coach Lynn Patrick of the fourth-place Boston Bruins wondered out loud today how the Bruins would have made it without goalie Sugar Jim Henry.

"He's at least the second best goalie in the league," Patrick said. "Second maybe to Detroit's Terry Sawchuk."

Lynn received the tacit support of his former boss, Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers.

"Henry has been the difference" Boucher said, "Weigh his value to the Bruins with that of any other player in the league. Henry would come out ahead. Without him, the Bruins never would have beaten us out of the playoffs."

Literally Caught Fire

Sugar Jim, rescued this season from a minor league existence by the Bruins, made a remarkable return to the National Hockey League.

Henry literally caught fire last summer at the fishing and hunting camp he operates in partnership with Chuck Rayner of the Rangers near Kenora, Ont.

"I was pouring gas from a big tank into a small container," he said, "when the darn thing exploded. I rolled on the grass to put out the burns. But one wall of the nearby building caught fire, too, so I went in to put it out. I caught the flames again. My arms and stomach got it bad. You can still see the marks on the rim of my T-shirt. I was in a hospital for 16 days."

The Bruins had purchased Henry from Detroit's Indianapolis farm. It seemed his major league days were over when the Black Hawks, who had acquired him from the Rangers, sent him down in 1949.

"I always liked Jim," Patrick said. "As a rookie before the war, he led the Rangers to the top. After the war, it was a toss-up whether he was better than Rayner; and Rayner was the best.

"The fact that he has spent a couple of years in the minors makes him younger at 31 than most goalies that age. Goal-tending is tough on the nerves . . . in the majors, that is. Jim still looks like a goalie without nerves. He is better today than he ever was before."

'Fillies' Derby' Has 63 Nominees

Louisville, Ky., March 25 (AP) —The historic Kentucky Oaks, often called "The Derby for Fillies" attracted 63 nominees today.

The Oaks, as old as the famed Kentucky Derby itself, will be run the 78th time on Friday, May 2, at Churchill Downs.

That's the day before the $100,000 Derby, for which 167 three-year-old colts, geldings and fillies have been nominated. The Oaks, at a mile and 1/16, is for three-year-old fillies.

Among outstanding Oaks eligibles, announced by the Downs management today, are Rose Jet and Princess Lygia.

Most three-year-old fillies are pointed for the Oaks, mainly leaving the Derby for colts and geldings.

Only one filly, Regret, ever won a derby, in 1915.

Halifax, Ottawa Tie Junior Series

Ottawa, March 25 (CP) —Halifax St. Mary's, Maritime junior hockey champions, squared their best-of-five Memorial Cup quarter final series with Eastview St. Charles at a game apiece last night when they earned a 4-3 victory.

Pacing the St. Mary's team was speedy, dark-haired Doug McPhee who notched a hat-trick to even the series. Eastview won the opener 6-1 and tied the second 4-4.

The fourth game of the series will be played here Wednesday night with the fifth Saturday night.

The winner of this series will meet either Montreal junior Canadiens or Quebec Citadels in the next round of the Memorial Cup playdowns. The first game of that series will open here April 1.

Teepees Rally To Beat Guelph In Finals Opener

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines Teepees appear to be enjoying their role of underdog in the Ontario Hockey Association.

The Teeps confounded the hockey world by wading through Kitchener Greenshirts and Toronto St. Michael's in the opening rounds. Then last night they staged a four-goal rally to edge Guelph Biltmores 4-3 in the first game of their best-of-seven finals.

The victory came after Guelph appeared to have the game salted away with a 3-0 lead half-way through the second period. From there on in it was all St. Catharines. Four unanswered goals spelled victory for the club that finished sixth in the 10-team standings.

The two clubs move into St. Catharines tomorrow night for the second game. The series survivors will meet South Porcupine Combines who last night won the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A championship with a 7-2 victory over Sudbury Wolves.

The win gave the Porkies the best-of-seven final, four games to one. Their series with the O. H. A. champs will be a Memorial Cup quarter-final.

In Sault Ste. Marie last night, the Greyhounds downed Noranda Copper Kings 8-2 before 6,375 fans to capture the N. O. H. A. Senior A title. In winning the best-of-seven finals four games to two, Sault Ste. Marie advances to meet the survivors of the O.H. A. Senior A playoffs in an all-Ontario Allan Cup final.

Stratford Indians and Owen Sound Mercurys, deadlocked 3-3 in their O. H. A. Senior A finals, play the seventh and deciding game at Stratford tonight.

L. to R.: Schurr, Martin, Edwards and Boone

Top drivers for the victorious St. Catharines' team were Bobby Schurr and Buddy Boone, who scored two goals apiece. Frank Martin broke up many an Irish rush, while little Marvin Edwards proved a stellar netminder. The Teepees came from 10 place to reach their first O.H.A. final in ten years. — Central Press Canadian.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Jacqueline du Bier, world figure skating queen, announced yesterday in Paris that she will leave next Monday for the United States and her debut as a professional ice skater.

She insisted that she has not yet signed any contract as a professional, but agreed that she is in full accord with John Harris, producer of the Ice Capades, on terms. Officials of the ice show announced Sunday in Moncton, N.B., that they had signed the 19-year-old girl.

Sunday night Jacqueline won her sixth French championship in her final appearance as an amateur.

In Manchester, yesterday, England's league soccer teams recommended an increase in the minimum general admission charge from one shilling and six pence (21 cents) to one shilling and nine pence (24 1:3 cents) The new price would become effective next year when the government tax on soccer tickets will be increased.

A charity match between Babe Zaharias, queen of the golf links, and Billy Maxwell, United States men's amateur champion, was virtually assured yesterday in Miami, Fla., with a prospect of 10,000 persons in the gallery. Fred Corcoran, Ladies Professional Golfers' Association tournament director, said Mrs. Zaharias and Maxwell had agreed to the match. It probably will be played in Denton, Tex., where Maxwell attends North Texas State College, next fall.

The New York and Illinois State Athletic Commissions in Chicago yesterday signed a reciprocal agreement aimed at driving the hoodlum element out of boxing. The agreement provides for mutual recognition of suspension and contracts between managers, boxers, or promoters. The Illinois commission also cited Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of former lightweight Ike Williams, for appearance April 7 to show cause why his Illinois manager's and second's licence should not be revoked.

The eastern Canada Junior A basketball finals will be held in Windsor, Ont., April 3 to 5, Stan Mockford, eastern zone secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, announced last night in Toronto.

In Auckland last night, New Zealand picked 12 men and women for its Olympic team, including broad jumper Yvette Williams and hurdler H. M. Holland. The team will arrive in London June 21 to compete in various meets before heading for Helsinki and the summer games.

Favorites won the first five races at Lincoln, England, yesterday as the flat racing season resumed in Britain after the winter layoff. Gordon Richards, Britain's leading jockey since before most of the other riders were born, had two winners in four mounts to bring his world record lifetime total to 4,396. The 47-year-old Richards rode his first winner in 1921.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Choppers (powerful hands) look spectacular. But they are not necessarily difficult to bid. In fact, modern players have learned very efficient ways of reaching safe slams.

No, it is not the slam hands that are bothersome to bid. Not any more. It takes more science to decide on the best lower-than-game contract. It takes much more science.

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 C	Db.
Pass	1 D	Dbl.	1 S
Pass	2 D	Dbl	3 D
Pass	Pass	Dbl	Pass
3 H	Pass	Pass	Dbl
All Pass

North did a lot of doubling. But all three of them were for takeout because (1) South had not yet bid, and (2) the doubled bid was not more than three in a suit.

As long as east intervened with a bid, south was not forced to bid in answer to the doubles. But after the third double by north, south was forced to bid when east did not intervene with a bid.

With south in three hearts, west led a spade and east got three spade tricks. A diamond went to dummy ace. South got in with a club. A diamond was ruffed in dummy. South got in again with a club.

Now came the key play. South led trump ten. If west covered, the rest was easy. When west played low, the ten rode through the dummy. East may take this with trump ace or wait and take the next trump round. The rest was a matter of routine.

Some contracts are a tight fit.

HIGHEST IN HISTORY

St. Catharines, March 25—(CP)—City council last night struck a tax rate of 62½ mills—highest in the city's history. The rate was an increase of 12 mills over the 1951 levy.

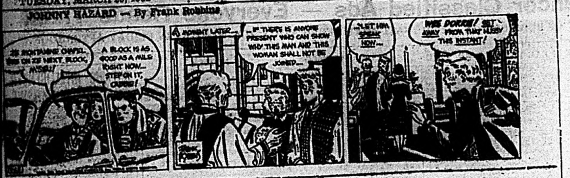
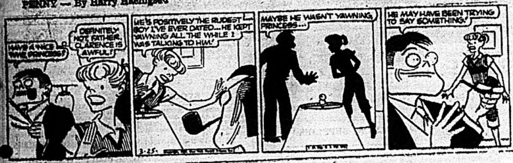
JOHNNY HAZARD — By Frank Robbins



ZE MONTAINE CHAPEL IS ON ZE NEXT BLOCK, M'SIEU!
A BLOCK IS AS GOOD AS A MILE RIGHT NOW... STEP ON IT, CABBIE!
A MOMENT LATER...
...IF THERE IS ANYONE PRESENT WHO CAN SHOW WHY THIS MAN AND THIS WOMAN SHALL NOT BE JOINED...
...LET HIM SPEAK NOW...
WEE DORRIE! GET AWAY FROM THAT HUSSY THIS INSTANT!

PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



HAVE A NICE TIME, PRINCESS?
DEFINITELY NOT, FATHER. CLARENCE IS AWFUL!
HE'S POSITIVELY THE RUDEST BOY I'VE EVER DATED...HE KEPT YAWNING ALL THE WHILE I WAS TALKING TO HIM!
MAYBE HE WASN'T YAWNING, PRINCESS...
HE MAY HAVE BEEN TRYING TO SAY SOMETHING!

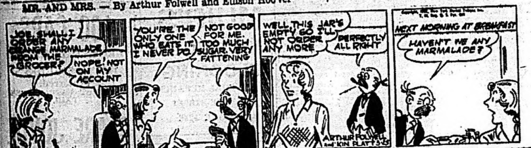
MR. AND MRS. — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover



JOE, SHALL I ORDER ANY ORANGE MARMALADE FROM THE GROCER?
NOPE! NOT ON MY ACCOUNT
YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE WHO EATS IT. I NEVER DO.
NOT GOOD FOR ME. TOO MUCH SUGAR. VERY FATTENING
WELL THIS JAR'S EMPTY SO I'LL NOT ORDER ANY MORE PERFECTLY ALL RIGHT
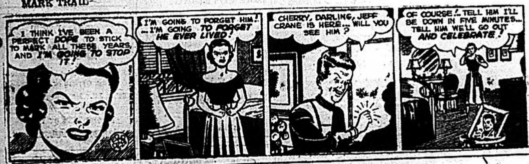
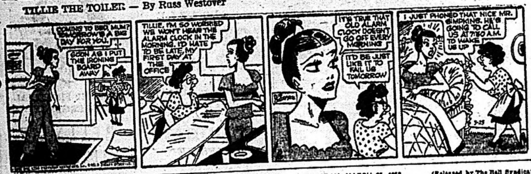
NEXT MORNING AT BREAKFAST
HAVEN'T WE ANY MARMALADE?
ARTHUR FOLWELL and KIN PLATT 3-25

MARK TRAIL



I THINK I'VE BEEN A PERFECT DOPE TO STICK TO MARK ALL THESE YEARS, AND I'M GOING TO STOP IT!
I'M GOING TO FORGET HIM! ...I'M GOING TO FORGET HE EVER LIVED!
CHERRY, DARLING, JEFF CRANE IS HERE... WILL YOU SEE HIM?
OF COURSE!..TELL HIM I'LL BE DOWN IN FIVE MINUTES... TELL HIM WE'LL GO OUT AND CELEBRATE!

TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



COMING TO BED, MUM? TOMORROW'S A BIG DAY FOR YOU.
SOON AS I PUT THE IRONING BOARD AWAY
TILLIE, I'M SO WORRIED WE WON'T HEAR THE ALARM CLOCK IN THE MORNING. I'D HATE TO BE LATE MY FIRST DAY AT THE OFFICE
IT'S TRUE THAT OLD ALARM CLOCK DOESN'T GO OFF EVERY MORNING
IT'D BE JUST LIKE IT TO FAIL US TOMORROW
I JUST PHONED THAT NICE MR. SIMPKINS. HE'S GOING TO CALL US AT 7:30 A.M. TO WAKE US UP

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

FOR WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Splendid influences for achievement in all worthy work. But Sun and Saturn rays warn against carelessness, especially in hazardous tasks, handling machinery, etc.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Can be progressive day for you. Just follow sensible rules about health and safety generally and you can advance, have fresh benefits, perhaps added assets.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Fine Mercury and other aspects to encourage authors, journalists, playwrights, advertisers, etc. Extra care is stressed in handling tools.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Moon, Venus and other planets in excellent array hold promise for you; trade, profession, daily labor highly rated. Recklessness tabu.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Sun, Saturn stress need for extra caution, mostly in handling dangerous implements, machinery, in travel. Day on whole is favorable, stimulating for gains.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Happy going under today's healthy indications, all things being normal. You can gain in many ways now. Don't overwork, nor worry, but be ambitious, cheerful.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Same indications as Taurus and Cancer today. Prospects fine for every line of sturdy endeavor; especially encouraging for study, research.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—You should be enthusiastic, happy at your tasks. Benefic influences encourage sound efforts, study and execution of duties. All in the armed forces honored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Should be responsive period for all good work, labor, trades, merchandising, manufacturing, essential building, transportation, banking, dealing in sound stocks, etc.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Sensible caution urged with vehicles, handling chemicals, anything that could endanger health, family interests, country. A fruitful, pleasant day.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—No need to go to extremes to get most things done. Steady application and proper interest should net profits. Trades, industry generally, banking freshly favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Achievement in a big way not unlikely; try with your best for what you seek. Don't waste time on unimportant matters; keep to your schedule and your aims.

YOU BORN TODAY: Action your keyword, and this should often be a most happy day. You are energetic, enterprising, have leadership qualities. However, tendency to domineer should be curbed. Be fair, give to others their just due and you will be repaid by co-operation from them. You can manage groups of people, large concerns. Keep studying, and pray. Fresh advantages ahead. Birthdate: Edward Bellamy, American author.

Britain Claims World's Fastest Plane

Cleared for publication by British security officials, this hitherto unpublished picture shows the new Royal Air Force fighter, the Hawker "Hunter," in flight over the English countryside. Declared "the fastest in the world," this plane is considered so vital that Prime Minister Winston Churchill has given its rapid production super-priority classification. The craft was designed by Sidney Camm. — Central Press Canadian.

Adenauer, Schumann in Private Talks

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer (left) and French Foreign Minister Robert Schumann show no sign of French-German dislike at the Quai d'Orsay, in Paris, where they met for an hour-long private conversation on two urgent matters. The first was the Saar dispute which is under discussion by the committee of ministers of the Council of Europe. The other matter was the reply that will be sent by the United States, British and French governments to the recent Soviet not calling for a four-power conference on Germany. — Central Press Canadian.

Great Lakes Water Levels Occupy Attention Ont. House

Torono, March 25—(CP)—The problem of high water levels on the Great Lakes may be studied by a select committee of the Ontario legislature.

Premier Frost told the legislature yesterday that the committee could meet during spring and summer to prepare for submission to the proper authority. He stressed that water levels on the lakes constitute an international rather than a provincial problem.

The present situation apparently was due to a cycle of high water levels which comes every few years. It was believed lake levels would be more effectively controlled when the St. Lawrence seaway was built. He saw no value in rushing in with protective works without, having the proper information.

"It's like King Canute, who stood on the shore and ordered the waves back," said the premier. "There's just nothing we can do."

He spoke after the question was raised by William Murdoch (PC—Essex South) and Arthur Child (PC—Wentworth), who told of damage in their lake-bordering ridings from the weekend storm that hit much of southern Ontario.

Provincial Secretary Welsh told the legislature that a special telephone warning system to the provincial civil defence headquarters and all potential target areas is being installed.

Speaking during consideration of his department's $1,404,000 estimates, Col. Welsh outlined Ontario's civil defence program. Much of the preliminary organization has been completed, he said. "We are now embarking on the second, or training, phase."

Co-operate With RCAF

The province's system would cooperate with the RCAF ground observer corps to send warnings of approaching enemy aircraft from stations "located strategically along a belt across the northern section of Ontario."

Other plans and achievements Col. Welsh listed in the civil defence program: A 30-percent increase in municipal fire-fighting equipment since 1949; a fire-equipment standardization program which would be completed by the end of next year; special training courses in "radiological defence" for fire department instructors and other municipal officials.

Civil defence organization was completed and training started in all of thep rovince's 29 cities, in 101 towns and 22 villages.

Co-operation Developed

Co-operation had been developed with fire departments in New York and Michigan to deal with emergencies along the border and the fire marshal's office had mobile radios on the same wave-length used by some U.S. fire departments.

Health Minister Phillips introduced a bill that would widen the scope of post-graduate medical students in the hospitals where they intern to include authority to sign birth and death certificates and to authorize use of narcotic drugs.

A bill designed to cut costs of rural telephone companies by permitting them to string lines on hydro poles for a fee was introduced by Hon: G. H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontahrio Hydro Electric Power Commission.

Two other bills introduced will implement announcements made in the budget speech last week.

Estimates Passed

One will require the hydro commission to give municipalities annual payments in lieu of municipal taxation on hydro property and offices. The other will amend the Corporation Tax Act to permit companies the same depreciation provisions as in the federal tax law.

The House passed the provincial secretary's estimates after criticism from J. B. Salsberg (Lab-Prog-Toronto St. Andrew).

Mr. Salsberg said the government was setting a "horrible example" to industry by keeping 6,000 civil servants, listed as casual employees, who are not entitled to the protection given permanent employees. Some civil servants had been listed as "casuals" for from five to 25 years.

HISTORIC FIRE

The great Chicago fire in 1871 caused an estimated 250 deaths and property damages of nearly $200,000,000.

Test Sunday Laws in Ontario Town

A test of Canada's Sunday entertainment laws may be made in Dixie, Ont., where the Dixie arena management has announced it will be open for business on Sunday. Rev. A. S. McGrath, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada, says the Alliance will prosecute the arena board of directors if they persist in commercializing skating on Sunday. — Central Press Canadian.

President of the board of directors of the Dixie arena, L. H. Pallett, says: "Others go to Florida or play golf." The Alliance would allow the arena to open on Sunday but is protesting the fact that admissions are paid. —Central Press Canadian.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker

Jessica was cold, nervous and unstrung as she left the hospital and hurried toward a bus. When she stopped at Doris' cottage to pick up Betsy, Doris informed her that Tom had come to fetch Betsy home.

Had anything happened? Doris did not know. Just that Tom seemed perturbed and said that he thought it time for Betsy to have her supper and go to bed.

In concern over just how to explain her prolonged absence, Jessica almost forgot the disturbing events of the afternoon. As she entered the house she heard Betsy's voice in the kitchen and, tossing aside her hat and without removing her coat, she hurried down the hall.

The kitchen door stood open. She saw Betsy seated in her high chair finishing a bowl of cereal while Tom sat by and encouraged her to eat her supper. They were quite unaware of her presence, the blond haired baby and the big man she resembled so closely, the same stubborn chin and the same gray-blue eyes.

Like Lucy's thought Jessica and suddenly her thoughts flew back to that moment when she had looked into eyes so similar and wondered if the girl whose face was disguised with bandages could be Lucy.

How could she tell Tom? He was burdened now with the care of a helpless mother.

She could not tell him now, thought Jessica, and hurried forward to be met indifferently by Betsy, who lavished all her attention upon her father.

Tom asked no questions. If he wondered where she had been or what had caused her delay, he gave no indication. He encouraged Betsy to drink her milk and then lifted her down from the table. "Have you had your dinner?" he asked Jessica.

She slid out of her coat and started toward the door. "No."

"Neither have I."

Food—that was a topic she and Tom could discuss safely, she thought with scorn. What they would eat, and Betsy—two subjects that caused no breaking down of the barrier between them which grew higher every day she remained here. Irritably she flung the coat across a chair in the hall and returned to the kitchen. She tied on an apron, opened the refrigerator and studied its contents. Guiltily she remembered that she had rushed off intending to pick up something downtown, a steak or chops. She turned to Tom who was on his way toward the door carrying Betsy.

"Eggs?" she suggested.

"Anything will do," he said indifferently.

His manner hinted that he thought her incapable of skillful planning. Maybe he remembered Genevieve's skill in cooking, she thought as she went about collecting material for a salad. When Tom offered to put Betsy to bed and stated that he could look in on his mother meanwhile, she said crossly "very well."

She heard Betsy's low chuckle as they mounted the stairs. The bedroom door closed above them. She was tired and disturbed as she set the table with two places. Always before Betsy had been present to share the meal. Often Tom ate after she and the baby had finished. This would be the first time she and Tom had sat together like any ordinary married couple to share a meal.

This was her opportunity to talk to Tom about Lucy.

She considered ways to approach the subject as she bustled about frying potatoes, carefully browning them as she had seen Tom's mother do, anxiously heating the frying pan for the eggs and measuring coffee.

Should she say directly, Tom, I visited the hospital this afternoon and saw your sister Lucy?

How could she make that bald statement?

He would hate her.

She didn't want Tom to hate her. She didn't want to become involved in any emotional situation with him right now. She was too unnerved tonight after her interview with David.

She thought of David.. David would demand that she leave this house—soon.

How could she?

Tom came down the stairs and entered the kitchen carrying the evening paper. He sat down and began to read the headlines.

Jessica brought the plate of hot food and put it down before him. He dropped the paper and smiled.

"This looks good. I didn't know you could cook."

"I can't," confessed Jessica. "Just eggs and coffee. Simple things."

"I like simple things."

She didn't shet hought. She liked elegance with her meals, silver and fine linen and soft-footed service. No eating in the kitchen. Not forgeting to remove her apron. This was reducing eating to mere existence. This was the Blake pattern, she remembered—that and saving. She would have none of it in the future. Her life would be different.

Tom ate heartily. His movements were neat, she liked that about him. For a big man he was graceful. He walked with his head well up. He was proud. His hands were big, gentle, she remembered; and thrust the thought from her.

She drank her coffee and played with the food on her plate.

If she lacked courage to discuss Lucy, she must seize the opportunity to talk to Tom about David. She was a coward. The words stuck in her throat. How did you tell a man that you no longer loved him?

She looked up and met Tom's grave, blue eyes. "What is it?" he asked quietly. "Something you want to tell me, Jess?"

She nodded. Now was the moment. Get it over with, she told herself; the rest will be easy. She could not meet Tom's eyes. She fumbled with her napkin.

She said "you probably know—"

"Where you were this afternoon? No; I don't know I suppose you met someone. I don't intend to pry into your affairs, Jess, but I'm not exactly stupid. We've had so little opportunity to discuss our our future since I came back. I've hoped—" His voice faltered.

"I know. I'm sorry."

He pushed back his chair. "Look Jess I know a lot more about life than I did when I left you more than two years ago. I came home thinking things would be different." He smiled wryly. "Instead I found them worse. Mom ill, Lucy gone, you different."

That was putting it mildly, she thought.

She said "I tried."

He shook his head. There was no softness in his eyes now. "You didn't try enough."

Her cheeks flamed. Her dark eyes were brilliant with anger. "What do you mean?"

"This." Tom stood up. He towered above her. "You wanted me," he said bluntly, "like I wanted you. If I hadn't believed that, I wouldn't have begged you to marry me. You and I shared something, we loved each other. We didn't have much time then to sort out reasons. We had only a few hours to spend together."

"I was young. I didn't know—"

His eyes hardened. "You didn't know that I was poor, or was it that you didn't understand poverty? I thought love would fix all that. I wasn't without blame. I was narrow-minded and stubborn My folks meant the whole world to me. I thought Mom and Lucy perfect. I thought they'd take care of you, keep you safe while I was gone. I didn't understand women. I never knew many girls— just Lucy."

She felt a little shiver of dread. Suppose Tom knew? How could she ever tell him? "I love Lucy," she said. "She was kind and generous."

"She would be. When Lucy comes home, everything will be all right."

No, she thought miserably, not everything.

She said "Tom you can't understand. I never had to work. I didn't understand pinching and saving. I hated it. I wanted to be independent and take a job and be free to do as I pleased."

"No one can do as he pleases. Did I want to go away and fight? Lose three years out of my life? Did I look forward to a homecoming like this?"

There was no answer to this and Jessica attempted none. She got up and began collecting the dishes. Why continue a discussion that brought only heartache?

After Tom left the table, Jessica realized that they had reached no definite conclusion about their future. Was it consideration for Tom that made her hesitate to tell him outright that she loved David Gregory and planned to marry him? Was there another reason which she refused to face? Doubt? Of herself—David?

She went about her work, washing dishes, turning out lights, then going upstairs to say good night to Betsy. The door to her room stood open. The lights were out in the bedroom; only the hall lamp shone across the rug, showing Tom seated beside the baby's crib, holding her chubby hand, his blond head bent, too absorbed to notice Jessica's presence.

Every day she remained here made the parting more difficult, thought Jessica wretchedly. Now was the time to tell Tom that she no longer loved him and planned to marry another man. Fairness to David demanded that she speak. Only her own weak, cowardly heart held her back again, made her turn and run downstairs, unwilling to remain another instant watching Tom and the baby, knowing that pity could destroy all that she and David had planned together.

Right now she must tell Tom, Jessica decided, as she sat in the living room listening for his step in the upper hall.

Why did life have to be so complicated, she thought sadly, and dropped her head in her hands.

When she looked up Tom stood in the room.

He said "what is it, Jess? I think I know. You can leave whenever you wish to leave."

She was confused. She could think of only one thing. "What about Lucy?" she asked.

He said "what about Lucy?"

She found herself telling him her fears. The words stumbling, her tongue hesitating to utter her suspicion that the girl who lay in the hospital might be Tom's sister. She told him about the sale of her ring and her belief that Hugh Linton had bought the ring and had given it to Lucy.

Tom's face whiteened. His blue eyes were hard and cold. "Why didn't you tell me this before?" he demanded.

"I didn't want to hurt you."

Tom turned on his heel and was in the hall. He dialed a number. His voice was curt. "City Hospital?"

Jessica ran into the hall and stood beside him. Tom asked a few questions. Could he come at once? See this girl? Important information . . . the words rang through her aching head. Tom planned to go.

He put back the receiver. "Stay with mother while I'm gone," he said. "I'm going to prove to myself that you are wrong. If you are, I'll never forgive you this insult to my sister."

The front door slammed behind him.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop went around to the drugstore to get some more cigars, and I started to yawn, thinking, Heck, I'm sleepy, I wish pop would hurry up and come back and send me to bed.

Being the ferst thing he did when he came back, and I said, Jimminies, pop the way I feel now, Puds Simpkins will win.

Win what? pop said, and I said. The bet. We bet we'd each be the ferst one up tomorrow morning, and we have to prove it by tying a peece of string on the other one's door nob, I said. Then the loser will be the lucky one, because he'll have his sleep and a peece of string too, pop said, and I said, Well hay, pop?

What now? pop said, and I said, Would it be cheeting if I snuck out before I went to bed and tied a peece of string on Pud's door nob? I meen if I tell Puds about it later, some time when we're both a little older? I said.

It would be cheeting under any circumstances, and I'm serprised your own conscience didn't tell you so, pop said, and I said, Well G, it did, pop. I just asked you to find out for sure if my conscience told me rite, I said.

If you keep checking on your own conscience, it's libel to stop playing with you, pop said. Say, by gollies, I think I noticed a string on our own door nob when I came back from the drugstore, he said, and I said, Well what do you know about that darn guy Puds? I bet he wont sleep all nite from the pane in his conscience, I said.

I wouldn't be a bit serprised, pop said.. But you'll sleep the sleep of the just and virtuous and wake up with a cleer mind and a pure heart and an unaffected appetite, he said.

Which I did.

P-C Association Blames High Taxes For Unemployment

Reform of Senate Called For in Resolution Adopted

Ottawa, March 26 — (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Association of Canada today urged the federal government to reduce taxes so as to lower the cost of living and remove causes of unemployment.

At a concluding session of a three-day annual meeting, the association adopted a series of resolutions, one of them dealing with the question of taxes.

Others called for reform of the Senate, changes in the Election Act, a Commonwealth conference on trade and decentralization of industry.

Officers Re-elected

Besides adopting the resolutions, the association re-elected last year's slate of officers for another one-year term. George Nowlan of Wolfville, N.S., member of the Commons for the Nova Scotia constituency of Annapolis-King's, was re-elected president.

The resolution on taxes said the price of automobiles, electric and domestic appliances, and other essential articles is much higher in Canada than in the United States and is largely due to excessive and unnecessary high sales and excise taxes.

It asked that the government be urged to reduce "materially such taxes in order to reduce the cost of living and to eliminate one of the contributing causes of substantially increasing unemployment."

On trade, the association said the maintenance of employment and income in Canada is dependent upon export markets.

It asked that a Commonwealth trade conference be called "forthwith to restore our lost sterling-area markets and to open Canada to sterling-area investment."

The meeting re-affirmed the party's support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Another resolution asked Mr. Drew to establish a committee to study the question of Senate form.

Says Senate Ineffective

"The Senate as now constituted is an ineffective instrument of government and no longer performs the duties for which it was established by the British North America Act," said the resolution.

The Progressive Conservatives now hold eight of the 102 seats in the Senate where appointments are made for life. The Liberals hold 77 seats and there are 17 vacancies.

Committee Looks To Sen. Bridges For Some Answers

Washington, March 26 —(CP)— Congressional investigators today looked to Senator Styles Bridges for some of the answers to the unexplained behind-the-scenes manoeuvring in a $7,000,000 tax case involving Canadian whisky.

Chairman Cecil King of the committee probing the scandal-ridden internal revenue bureau said Senator Bridges, Senate Republican leader from New Hampshire would be invited to explain his rôle in the unfolding story of Hyman Harvey Klein's tax problems.

Klein, a Baltimore liquor importer, is the central figure in a tax dispute in which Senator Bridges and Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, mysterious man - about - Washington, were found to have taken an active interest.

Core of the dispute with the tax collectors is Klein's profit of more than $5,000,000 on a $1,000 investment in imported whisky during the years of 1944 to 1946.

Declared Capital Gain

Klein declared the profit a "capital gain" for which the tax would be 25 per cent compared with the 90-per-cent levy which would apply if it were ordinary income. He made the money from sale of a group of tax - exempt foreign corporations. The corporations were listed as importers of Canadian whisky, which went directly to the U. S. market.

Other shareholders in the business were Klein's brother, I. J. Klein, and A. L. McLennan and George Norgan, all of Vancouver. McLellan is president of United Distillers Ltd., and Norgan is owner and president of Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast Baseball League.

Klein testified he paid $1,200,000 in taxes on his returns only to find that he faced jeopardy tax assessments totalling more than $7,000,000. He is fighting the assessments.

King told reporters that Senator Bridges would be asked informally to tell the committee why he interceded with tax officials on Klein's behalf over a two - year period extending to July, 1951.

Royal Winter Fair Date Set

Toronto, March 26. (CP)—The 1952 Royal Agricultural Winter Fair will be held Nov. 14 to Nov. 22, P. L. Whytock, president, announced at today's annual meeting. For the first time the fair will be held at two weekends instead of one.

Mr. Whytock said it is hoped the two weekends schedules will increase attendance, thus offsetting rising operating costs.

Prizes offered at the 1951 fair totalled $135,000. Increased operating costs caused the fair to end the financial year with costs exceeding revenue by $13,445.

MILD EPIDEMIC

Guelph, March 26—(CP)—A mild epidemic of chickenpox and mumps has hit this city. The medical officer of health reported 80 cases of chickenpox and 38 of mumps in the city for February but said there were probably more cases unreported.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 26 (CP) —Synopsis: A light fall of snow occurred throughout southern counties as a minor disturbance moved eastward along the southern shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. However, little accumulation is anticipated since most of the snow will melt with rising temperatures this morning and the snow will end in most localities by noon.

The north country, fortunately beyond the reach of this storm can expect a liberal amount of sunshine today. Temperatures, a trifle low for this time of year, will range from 40 in the south to 30 or 35 in the north and little change is foreseen in these ranges for Thursday.

APPOINT BOARD

Aurora, March 26 — (CP) — Town council yesterday appointed a 12-member parks board to look after beautification of Aurora parks. The 12 members represent the council and various organizations.

ATLANTIC PACT BATTLE REACHES SHOWDOWN STAGE

C. C. F. Asks House To Censure Govt.

Ottawa, March 26. (CP)—The running battle between the government and the C.C.F. concerning the North Atlantic pact's military preparedness program has reached the showdown stage in the Commons.

The C.C.F. carried it to that point yesterday by injecting into a foreign-policy debate a non-confidence motion. It asked the chamber to censure the government for "failure to take effecvite steps" to implement the North Atlantic treaty provisions for economic collaboration among the pact partners.

The motion, introduced by Percy Wright (C.C.F.—Melfort) and to be voted on at a later stage in the debate, came in the wake of recent sharp criticism by the C.C.F. over the military targets set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Specifically, the C.C.F. contends the military program will wreck the economies of western Europe.

In turn, External Affairs Minister Pearson, who also is chairman of N.A.T.O., has accused the C.C.F. of moving towards the Soviet propaganda line.

Mr. Wright suggested military defence under N.A.T.O. is not enough and that economic aid must be an important part of the defence of free society. But Canada, he complained, has made only a "miserable contribution" in that field.

Cash Policy Followed

This country, for example, had shown a disinclination to give raw materials to its N.A.T.O. partners. Canada had followed a "cash-on-the-barrelhead" policy while France and the United Kingdom had lowered their living standards by contributing their raw materials to the fight against aggression.

The C.C.F. motion took the spotlight from a review by Jean Lesage, parliamentary assistant to Mr. Pearson, of Canada's part in the United Nations Assembly at Paris last fall.

Mr. Lesage, a delegate to the Assembly, said the Paris meeting left "many of us with a sense of depression." However, the U.N. still offered opportunities for east-west negotiation and brought together "in loose association" all of those countries which opposed Soviet aggression.

BUTCHER ARRESTED

Houston, March 26 — (AP)—A Houston butcher was arrested today and charged with trying to sell his two-year-old daughter into adoption for $500 and an automobile. Steve Ribnikar, 27, was jailed at Pasadena, Tex., after two probation officers posed as wanting to adopt the child, Sharon.

Glands Transplanted into Humans In Potential Medical Revolution

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New Haven, Conn., March 26 — (AP)—One of the great potential revolutions in medical science was disclosed today.

Three sick men and women have been given glands transplanted from very premature babies to turn out hormones for new health.

It is an amazing and promising experiment in giving humans new spare parts. It may lead to many new methods of treating a variety of diseases.

Little pieces of glands were taken from unborn babies and put into stomach muscles of two men and a woman. The men got adrenal glands because their own adrenals had stopped making hormones, including cortisone. The woman got a thyroid gland, after her own sick thyroid was removed.

"Animal tests indicate the new gland bits will stay alive, grow, and make hormones. It is still too early to tell about the humans.

If it works for them, humans some day may get new glands to control diabetes without insulin, a gland hormone; to replace sex glands, to control thyroid diseases, even perhaps control some kinds of cancer. New glands might come from animals as well as humans. Humans might be able to replace worn-out or lost sex glands.

Human or animal bodies might supply successful transplants of nerves or blood vessels or other spare parts that would take root and stay alive or grow.

The big secret is using embryonic tissue—glands or other parts from very young, unborn humans. Only embryonic tissue and some cancer tissue can be transplanted and stay alive in another body.

The facts to date, and the future potentials, were disclosed in reports of research at Yale University Medical School.

Dr. Harry S. N. Greene, Yale pathologist, showed that embryonic glands of animals could be transplanted successfully from one kind of animal to another.

Dr. Eugene E. Cliffton, a surgeon, transplanted the bits of human embryonic glands into the men and woman. The glands were taken from unborn babies lost in miscarriages or in an operation necessary to save the mother's life.

Slices were put into the stomach muscles of the adults, where they could produce hormones and turn them into the bloodstream.

Dr. Greene said animal results are "most encouraging." He cleared up diabetes in animals, offset the effects of loss of an animal's sex glands, and other troubles from gland failures. The animal gland transplants do not always work, he said.

Trades and Labor Congress Asks Govt. for Complete Revision Immigration Policy

Ottawa, March 26 (CP) —The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today asked the federal government for a "complete revision" of immigration policy, an immediate substantial program of public works and the restriction of some imports to cut down unemployment in Canada.

In its annual legislative submission to the cabinet, the 500,000-member congress also urged the reimposition of price control, declaring the government's anti-inflationary credit restrictions had resulted in curtailing business and thereby increasing unemployment.

The 8,000-word brief read by Percy R. Bengough, T.L.C. president, was the first of the annual series to be placed before the cabinet this week by the Central labor bodies. The T.L.C. brief placed most stress on unemployment saying it is "increasing at an alarming rate." The T.L.C. estimated 40,000 Canadians now are out of work; the March 1 figure of the Labor Department was 371,000.

To combat unemployment, the Congress recommended:

1. Restriction of immigration among trades in which there is Canadian unemployment and cessation of all immigration during the winter and off-season employment months, along with the placing of immigration under the Labor Department.

Winter Immigration Continues

(Last week, Immigration Minister Harris and Labor Minister Gregg told a textile-union delegation textile workers would be kept out so long as there is unemployment in that industry. However, Mr. Harris indicated winter immigration would have to be continued to bring in the number of newcomers required annually.)

2. Immediate use of a backlog of public works which the government announced about two years ago as a "rainy-day" measure against unemployment.

3. Tighter restrictions on the "dumping" of cheap articles from abroad blamed by unions for causing unemployment in the textile and needle trades.

The congress underlined its recurring demand for a wide social-security program, taking in a country-wide health - insurance plan. It deplored the fact that the government was not setting up a health-insurance committee at this session of parliament, as cabinet spokesmen had indicated earlier would be done.

The Congress asked that benefit payments to jobless be increased by at least 50 percent and that there be a reduction in the waiting period before unemployment insurance payments are made. It also sought that coverage be broadened to include several categories not now eligible for insurance.

Wants Period Cut

(The government is understood to be planning at this session of parliament to have the waiting period cut to five days from the present nine days.)

Encouragement of the construction of low-rental housing and of slum clearance was another request. It was urged that down payments on new homes be reduced under the National Housing Act and that the repayment period of mortgages be extended.

Other recommendations of the congress, which largely followed those adopted at its annual convention last September, included:

1. Higher income-tax exemptions and reductions in the taxes on cigarets, tobacco and cigars.

Widening of the scope of the federal labor code—including all government employees—and inclusion in the code of the check-off of union dues.

3. The 40-hour, five-day week for government employees.

4. Enactment of a federal bill of rights as part of the British North America Act, as well as a fair employment practices act to outlaw discrimination in employment.

5. Amendment of the Canada Shipping Act to protect the employment of Canadian citizens in ships, and restriction of the Canadian coastal shipping trade to vessels of Canadian registry.

6. Stepping up of civil defence measures.

7. Federal financial aid to primary and secondary schools, such as parliament voted last year for universities.

8. Establishment of a Canadian coast guard service.

Allies Show Sterner Policy Toward Russia on Germany

Washington, March 26 (AP) — The western powers gave evidence today of pushing ahead with plans to cement as much of Germany as possible to the western world regardless of Russia's tactics.

The toughened policy of Britain, the United States and France for dealing with German questions where Russia is concerned was spelled out in a note sent to Moscow yesterday and made public by the three nations last night.

This 600-word declaration, responding to a new Soviet proposal of March 10 to start work on a German peace treaty, did two things;

1. It served notice on the Kremlin that western countries, in close co-operation with the anti-communist government of west Germany, are firmly committed to tying Germany in whole or in part to a "purely defensive European community."

(Officials who helped the draft the note said this meant the European defence community being formed to enable west Germany to put military forces into General Eisenhower's western defence army."

2. It challenged the Russians to prove the sincerity of their declared interest in unifying Germany by permitting a United Nations commission to go into the Soviet zone and find out what opportunity exists there for holding free elections.

Will Not Be Diverted

The three powers thus made clear their decision not to be diverted from the path of rearmament.

Officials here predicted the new notes would be followed by a long series of exchanges such as has taken place regularly in the last five years.

The Russians had proposed that a united Germany be permitted to revive its army, navy and air force. That was the newest element in their note and was apparently forced by the impending defensive rearmament of western Germany.

But in identical notes, the United States, Britain and France declared that such a national military force "would be a step backwards and might jeopardize the emergence in Europe of a new era in which international relations in Europe would be based on co-operation and not on rivalry and distrust."

"Being convinced of the need of a policy of European unity," the three-power reply said, "the United States government is giving its full support to plans designed to secure the participation of Germany in a purely defensive European community which will preserve freedom, prevent aggression and preclude the revival of militarism."

Supreme Court Says Blow Only Friendly Tap

Nassau, Bahamas, March 26 — (AP)—The "vicious blow" movie actor Errol Flynn said Duncan McMartin struck him was only a friendly tap on the cheek, the Bahamas Supreme Court was told yesterday.

McMartin, Canadian millionaire whom Flynn is suing for £80,000, testified he considered Flynn a friend and gave him a goodbye slap in the bar of the Windsor Hotel here on March 4, 1951.

McMartin said he knew Flynn was leaving for California, so he went over to say goodbye and told him he'd see him in California.

McMartin denied he was drunk or attempted a settlement with Flynn. The actor testified last week that the "vicious blow" caused injury and loss of revenue because he could not appear in pictures.

The actor wasc recovering from a back injury at the time. He said he did not have a brace on his back and that the blow paralyzed him.

McMartin, in earlier testimony claimed he and Flynn were on familiar terms and accustomed to greet each other in a hearty manner.

Flynn replied in evidence that he scarcely knew McMartin. Flynn's medical witnesses said the actor was suffering a dislocated intervertebral disc and was in "intense pain" when the alleged attack was made.

EISENHOWER MAY SEE ARMY OKAYED BEFORE RETURNING

Believe He Will Accept Republican Nomination

Paris, March 26 — (AP)— Gen. Eisenhower stands a good chance of seeing the Six-nation European Army Treaty signed and ready for ratification before the May-time departure he is generally expected to take from his job as Supreme Allied Commander.

Experts predicted today the voluminous treaty creating the international force will be complete by mid-April. Shortly after, the foreign and defence ministers of France, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg are expected to sign it.

That would just about complete the top priorities of Eisenhower's second "Crusade in Europe." Most of the general's associates believe he will go home in the last two weeks of May to the political role awaiting him as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

These associates speculate Eisenhower may send his request next week to President Truman for relief from his mission as top Atlantic Pact military commander. The president already has said the general can come home whenever he wants.

Must be Approved

After the treaty is signed, it must be approved by all six national parliaments before German troops can be recruited. In two of those legislatures at least — France's and West Germany's—it faces heavy sledding. Treaty backers are optimistic, however, that it will be ratified before the end of the year.

Eisenhower has assigned two of his officers to help iron out the technical difficulties still standing in the way of agreement.

Assigned to this ticklish job are Brig-Gen. John H. (Mike) Michaelis, Korea war hero, and Col. Robert Richardson. They have been meeting with experts of the European nations for some months.

This group has solved, to their satisfaction anyway, all major problems of merging the military power of the six countries into an international land-sea-air force of some 2,000,000 men and 5,000 planes within the next three years. What remains are such administrative problems as uniform disciplinary regulations, a common uniform and pay scales.

"These are just little nit-picking jobs," said one officer involved in the negotiations. "The real work has been done."

20,000 British Doctors Will Get Higher Pay, Plus Retroactive Sums

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 26 — (CP) — Twenty thousand British family doctors are to receive a total of £10,000,000 extra a year, plus about £30,000,000 back pay.

The award, announced yesterday, comes as the climax to a six-year argument between the doctors and the government, launched before the National Health Service came into being in 1948.

A high court judge, Mr. Justice Danckwerts, decided that doctors should receive an increase of £10 a week, plus retroactive sums of between £1,000 and £1,500 each.

Announcement of the award came as a shock to members of parliament. The Conservative government was trying to keep the cost of the health service to a ceiling of £400,000,000.

Doctors now are paid about 18 shillings a year for each patient, up to a maximum of 4,000 patients.

Their most common complaint is that they now are overworked by importunate patients and have lost their old independence, since being curt with a patient may result in having the patient apply to be placed on another doctor's list.

The dispute started in 1946 and was prolonged after the introduction of the health service as Aneurin Bevan, then health minister, deferred action on the claim.

Tunisian Premier, Three Cabinet Members Arrested

France Orders Martial Law And Press Censorship

Tunis, Tunisia, March 26 (AP)— France cracked down on Tunisia's independence-seeking nationalists today, arresting Premier Mohammed Chenik and three members of his cabinet. Martial law and press censorship also were ordered.

The drastic steps were taken after the Tunisian government and the French protectorate's nominal ruler, the 70-year-old Bey of Tunis had balked at what was described as a French ultimatum that Chenik must be fired.

The French action climaxed three months of nationalist rioting and sabotage during which nearly 100 lives were lost. Hundreds have been arrested and put behind barbed wire.

Moslems in Tunis went on strike today in protest against the French action, which included a curfew from 9 p.m. to 5.30 a.m. and transfer of all police powers to the military.

Wants More Self-Rule

Tunisia wants more self-rule and has asked the United Nations for help. Asian, Arab and some African members of the U.N. are planning to push the nationalist appeal before the Security Council, much to the annoyance of France.

The protectorate's real ruling authority Jean de Hauteclocque, in a broadcast to the Tunisian people today charged that the premier "encouraged, if he wasn't an accomplice to," the nationalist demonstrations, attacks and sabotage.

The French resident-general said France was ready to institute reforms that would satisfy the "legitimate aspirations of Tunisians" and "would lead Tunisia to internal autonomy" but that before these could be made, the present Tunisian cabinet would have to go.

Arrested with Chenik were the minister of state, Mohamoud Materi, health minister Mohamed Ben Salem and trade minister Mohammed Salah Mzali. They were flown to Kebilli in southern Tunisia.

The police also arrested other nationalists and, at the same time, moved three nationalist leaders who had been under house arrest at Tabarka to another secret detention place.

Cleveland May Move into NHL Hockey Picture

Cleveland, March 26. (AP)— Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League are on "the verge" of moving into th e National Hockey League, the Cleveland News reports today.

Geoffrey Fisher, the paper's hockey writer, says five of the N.H.L.'s six clubs have given approval to adding the Barons. The club supposed to be holding out was not named.

Jim Hendy, Baron's general manager, had no comment except to say that the club's owners would like to be in the N.H.L.

Clubs in the major circuit now are Montreal, Toronto, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, and New York.

Reported U.S. Money Coming Into Simpsons

Toronto, March 26. (CP) — Is United States money coming into Simpson, Ltd., a large Canadian department store with operations across Canada?

Though Simpsons themselves will make no comment ,Toronto financial circles regard as fact the report that negotiations of some kind are in progress.

An announcement was expected more than a week ago, but at present no announcement is expected immediately. This is taken to indicate that no deal has yet been concluded.

Most reports have named Sears, Roebuck and Company, biggest United States department store, as the party interested in Simpsons; although other American firms may also be interested.

While first rumors were to the effect that Sears, Roebuck would "buy" Simpsons, present reports are that "control" of the firm is not likely to change.

It is assumed that any new money coming into Simpsons would be, in large part, for expansion purposes.

Simpsons issues made strong gains on the Toronto Stock Exchange when the reports were first circulated, but have since retreated somewhat from their high ground.

TO RECEIVE DISCHARGE

Goeppingen, Germany, March 26. (AP)—Sgt. Curt Simmons, southpaw pitching star of Philadelphia Phillies 1950 pennant victory, will receive his army discharge early next month, the army said today.

Simmons, 22, who received a $65,000 bonus for signing with the Phils, won 17 games and lost eight in 1950. He was inducted into the army on Sept. 5, 1950.

DURHAM FARMERS HEAVY WINNERS AT SEED FAIR

Durham county farmers were heavy winners in the open classes of the seed grain section of the Central Ontario Spring Seed Fair being held in Peterborough this week.

The only Hastings county winner in the open classes was Gaynor Rendell, of Deseronto, who won fourth in early oats, Harold Hough, Napanee, won second in winter wheat.

The Hastings county grain club special was won by Robert Mallory, of Trenton, with John McComb, Belleville, taking second.

POLICE COURT

Two motorists charged with drunk driving appeared in city magistrate's court yesterday. One of the men was convicted by Magistrate T. Y. Wills and will spend seven days in the county jail. The charge against the other motorist was laid over to a future court.

A Frankford district resident, Hubert Lawrence, appeared on a charge of common assault and has his case enlarged until next week.

Several cases under the L.C.A., as well as traffic cases involving violation of stop signs, speeding and parking regulations were dealt with.

Informal Talk On Insurance Given Kiwanians

"The Humorous Side of the Insurance Business" was the subject of an informal talk to the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday by George Ryrie, M.B.E., assistant-manager of the North American Life Insurance Company.

Throughout his talk Mr. Ryrie inserted humorous anecdotes and colorful happenings in the history of the insurance business from the time of the first recorded policy in 1536 to the present day. A reference was made to an applicant, in approximately 1706, who was refused on the grounds that he had such a ruddy appearance and appeared to be so full of good health that he would probably die of apoplexy.

The speaker gave the highlights of the history of various life insurance companies, their developments, changes of status and many of the problems which they had to contend with, mentioning some of the unusual and humorous tests which were at one time in force.

Mr. Ryrie was introduced by president Harold Carruthers with the club's expression of appreciation being made by Ralph Clapp.

Other guests and visiting Kiwanians included William Ross, Charles Lundy and Jack Martin of Belleville, and John Lees of Toronto. They were introduced by Ray Grant and welcomed by Arthur Smith.

The attendance prize, donated by George Forhan, was won by Herbert W. Fox.

Rev. Everett Smith Honored By Fellow Employees

Thirty-four employees of the staff of the Utilities Commission gathered at Lattimer's Town Room on Friday evening, to enjoy a delicious turkey dinner and to say farewell to the Reverend Everett Smith who is retiring on March 31st to take up his duties as assistant rector at Christ Church.

During the dinner the staff joined in the singing of a few new and old songs led by James Scriven, while his father, A. Scriven accompanied at the piano.

W. Hales was master of ceremonies and R. R. Stiver expressed the regret of commission and employees that Mr. Smith had decided to leave after twenty-two years of service and wished him every success in his new vocation.

Mr. Smith was presented with a beautiful pen and pencil set for which he expressed his sincere appreciation. He spoke of the many pleasant associations he has had with his fellow employees, spicing his remarks with several humorous stories. Mr. Smith expressed his sincere regret in leaving the staff and the work he has enjoyed for so many years.

The singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

British Speaker Addresses Regent Lessees, Dealers

Operations of his company's service stations in the United Kingdom formed the theme of an informative address given by G. Hope-Johnstone, chief sales director of the Regent Oil Company of England, here last night.

Mr. Hope-Johnstone spoke to over 100 Regent lessees and dealers in the company's Belleville division at a meeting held in Tobe's County Gardens.

The speaker climaxed his address with the showing of a motion picture film "Partners in Service" which gave Canadian dealers an informative insight into service stations problems in the United Kingdom, also co-operation between company and dealer.

Mr. Frank Meloshe, divisional superintendent of Trinidad Leaseholds (Canada) Ltd. presided, and expressed the meeting's appreciation of Mr. Hope-Johnstone's address.

H. C. Warburton, general sales manager and Larry H. Hopkins, assistant sales manager, both of Toronto, gave talks on ways and means of giving more and better service to customers. Ideas gathered from the Regent system were passed on to the meeting.

A film depicting the installation of oil pipe lines in Alberta was shown. Luncheon rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Cherrywood Cradle, 114 Years Old Work of Pioneer Craftsman's Art

The sheer beauty and craftsmanship of a solid cherrywood cradle resurrected from the dim dusty corners of a rural attic a short time, is irrefutable evidence of the artistry of those who lived in the pioneer age.

The cradle in question, gleaming in its natural color, is undoubtedly one of the best pieces of wood workmanship ever seen in this city.

It was made by a member of the Bedell family resident at Woodrow's Corners near Picton in 1838 or 114 years ago.

For years untold, it rested in a farmer's attic. Came the day when a sale was held and the dusty, dirt-stained cradle was purchased for $2.50.

Presented by Friend

It was presented by the purchaser to a friend in this city who on close examination realized the beauty hidden beneath the grimy dusty surface. He sent it to a cabinet maker who, an expert himself, brought out the vivid coloring and expert workmanship that is a feature of this handsome antique.

In those days, cabinet - making artisans had plenty of patience as well as pride in their art. The sides and ends of the cradle are dovetailed in such a manner that none but an expert eye can detect the joining. The "foot-end" of the cradle is slanted at a 20-degree angle. A hood of cherrywood which slants upwards at the same angle, dovetailed at the joints with the same expert workmanship, projects a quarter over the cradle proper.

It is placed on old-fashioned rockers finished as smoothly as a mirror. Two "hand-holes" are placed on the sides to facilitate rocking. It is truly a beautiful example of the craftsmanship of those who lived in the early nineteenth century.

The cradle was placed on display in a window of a lower Front Street shop where it attracted a lot of attention especially from the distaff side. Within a short time it will become the treasured possession of a daughter of the owner who, her proud father said, will soon use it for the purpose for which it is intended.

CAMPBELLFORD

Shot Fired Through Front Street Window

Campbellford—Local police are looking for the person who fired a shot through the plate glass window of Loucks' Pharmacy on Front St. last Friday afternoon.

Arthur K. Loucks, optometrist, and owner of the drug store was examining eyes at the time the shot was fired. No one in the store knew just what had happened for a few moments. The bullet could not be found inside the store, and did not appear to strike anything in the building.

Only evidence of a shot being fired is a small hole in the plate glass, clean on the outside but splintered for an area the size of a silver dollar on the inside. The side of the hole suggests an air rifle was used and police are of the belief that it must have been a high powered air rifle, as a pellet from an ordinary air rifle would bounce off the thick plate glass, unless fired at close range.

Chief Constable George Hardy has been working on the case for two days, trying to locate the rifle, or anyone who saw a person with a rifle on Front Street.

Large Crowds View Fine, New Jewellery Store

If the number of persons visiting a store is an indication of the success of the opening, then the new jewellery store of Ronald Keel at 296 Front St. can easily qualify. Last Friday and Saturday, more than 6,000 persons visited the new store during its official opening.

And during their visit they saw the very last word in jewellery merchandising.

The entrance to Mr. Keel's new store has a "double decked" display window that sets off display goods on two different levels. It is the last word in window advertising, displaying goods to the best possible advantage.

Modern Interior

The same modern trend is carried through inside the store. Store fitting and show cases are of blonde birch. Wall and floor cases run the full length of the store. Floors are of mottled blue inlaid tiles, walls are of a lighter hue of blue. At the rear of the store is the repair department.

A feature of the store is the private diamond room where prospective customers can examine diamonds in private, away from other store customers.

After four and one half years of business on Victoria Ave., Mr. Keel is no stranger in the local jewellery business. Bulova and Gruen watches are carried, while silverware lines include Rogers and Morton-Parker Ltd.

Obituary

JOHN P. ARTHUR

Picton—A former prisoner-of-war in Japan, John P. Arthur died in Kingston General Hospital yesterday. He had been in and out of hospital since his return to Canada in October 1945, after three years in a Japanese prison camp, and as a forced laborer in the mines there. He served as a member of the Royal Quebec Rifles and was taken prisoner when Hong Kong fell on Christmas day, 1941.

Born in Picton 46 years ago, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Arthur. Before the war he was associated with his brother-in-law, the late A. M. Devine, in the barbering business.

Survivors are his wife, a daughter, Shirley; three sisters, Mrs. A. M. Devine, Mrs. B. Jones, Mrs. Ross Cronkright, and a brother, Gilbert Arthur in Toronto.

The funeral is being held Thursday afternoon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. Wallace McClean officiating, and interment in Glenwood cemetery.

LATE JACK BROOKS

The funeral of Jack Brooks, killed in an accident on Sunday was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. Archdeacon Arthur Smith conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were all classmates of the deceased and were Gerry Musclow, Arthur Gough, George Beer, Thomas Whittle, John Weese and Roy Nobes.

WYATT W. LENT

Former resident of Prince Edward County where in early life he operated his mother's farm, Wyatt W. Lent of Chicago died in that city, relatives here have been informed. He died March 11th as result of a heart condition.

He was born at Massassaga and after the sale of the family farm went to Chicago where with his brother, Milton, he operated a grocery and butcher business. Later, he entered insurance, a business with which he was still associated at the time of his death.

He was active in all church work and filled many offices in the church, being Sunday School superintendent for a number of years. Five Methodist ministers assisted at the funeral service.

Mr. Lent is survived by a son and daughter, both married and living in Chicago. His wife died several years ago. Also surviving is a brother, Frank Lent of Belleville, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Lent Roberts of Chicago.

Cannifton Child Injured, Darts Into Car's Path

Darting out from behind a car in which he and his mother and smaller brother had been given a ride from the village store, Johnny Tweedy, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Tweedy, Cannifton, was seriously injured Tuesday evening, when struck by another car in front of his home.

The lad was taken to Belleville General Hospital in Bush's Ambulance. He suffered a deep gash in his forehead but X-rays revealed no bones had been broken.

Mrs. Tweedy with her two small sons had been given a ride from the store by Bob McPherson of Cannifton. The motorist stopped at the shoulder of the road and across the highway from the Tweedy home. Carrying a loaf of bread the lad darted out from behind the car and was struck by an auto driven by Ed. Brenton of Corbyville.

The force of the impact either threw or carried the lad 25 feet down the highway.

Provincial Constable E. L. C. Smith of Belleville investigated.

9th Anti Tank Regiment, 'Hasty Pees' Join Other Units in Fire Display

The 9th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (SP) ALI and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will join with other reserve units of the district at Cobourg on Sunday in a demonstration of fire power.

The army units will operate in conjunction with aircraft of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, in a combined operations scheme during the afternoon.

The 34th Battery under command of Major Joseph Black will represent the 9th Anti Regiment. The unit will move to Cobourg in vehicular convoy included in which is an M.10 and a towed seventeen-pounder gun. About forty all ranks of the battery will be on parade and these will be augmented by members of the 32nd Battery, RCA. Lieut.-Col. MacGregor, M.C., commanding officer of the regiment, will accompany the convoy.

The battery and convoy will fall in at the Bridge Street Armouries at 8:45 Sunday morning.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under the command of Lieut.-Col. Max Porritt, M.C., will parade 150 strong with companies from Bancroft, Trenton, Madoc, Picton, Frankford and Belleville represented. The units will proceed individually to Trenton where they will form convoy.

The regiment will demonstrate fire from two and three-inch mortars, bren guns, piats and six-pounder guns. It will also provide wireless facilities for various phases of the demonstration.

Both units will be fed at noon by their respective quartermasters and staffs.

The demonstration will be open to the public and is being staged primarily to create public interest in the reserve army and its training.

Moses R. Doyle Dies at Home In 86th Year

Moses Redmond Doyle, President of the John Lewis Company Ltd., and resident in this city for many years, died at the family residence 19 Grove Street, early this Wednesday morning after a lengthy illness. In the death of Mr. Doyle, the city has lost an outstanding citizen and one of its oldest merchants, a faithful member of St. Michael's Church and a kind personal friend to many.

The firm known as the John Lewis Company was started in the city in 1849 and when plumbing and heating was added to the hardware store, Mr. Doyle was engaged to take charge of that branch of the work. At that time Mr. Doyle was working in the city with C. F. Smith and he accepted the partnership in the firm. A few months after Mr. Doyle entered the firm, the original founder died and the two Lewis sons carried on until 1898, when Mr. Doyle and Mr. J. B. Reeves purchased their interest. Upon the death of Mr. Reeves the entire business was taken over by M. R. Doyle and his son, W. J. Doyle and the business was incorporated under the trade name of the John Lewis Company Ltd. in 1947.

Mr. Doyle was a native of Wellington, Ontario, and was born 85 years ago, being the son of the late John Doyle and Anne Cavanagh. He came to the city in 1886 and has since that time been a continuous resident. He was an expert on heating materials for over a half-century and his business during the years spread to all parts of the county and district. Although he was confined to his home for some time, he still took an active interest in a business he had conducted for many years.

Surviving are two sons, William J., vice-president of the firm and Daniel V. of this city, and three daughters, Mrs. H. (Anne) Houlihan of Outremont, Quebec, Mrs. S. C. (Babe) Warren of Toronto and Miss Alice at home.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Will Issue Permits For Dwellings Only

Only permits for the erection of dwellings will be issued for the Parkwood Heights and Bayview Heights districts without approval from city council, it has been recommended by the property, printing and stationery committee of council.

The above action has been recommended by the committee in view of the fact that building restrictions for the above two areas have not yet been approved. Until building restrictions are approved the building inspector will be instructed to issue only residential permits for the area without council approval of the application.

The committee agreed that repairs should be made to the war memorial at Graham Park but felt the cost of the work should be borne by the Parks Board. The Parks Board recommended that the city bear the cost of repairs, but at the last council meeting members referred the matter to the property committee.

A special committee of Alderman McNevin and Hyde was named to meet with the Parks Board regarding the purchase of a new hot water furnace. Framed pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip for the council chambers will be purchased through the Canadian Legion at a cost of $14 each.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — Prices declined steadily today in early afternoon stock market dealings as support faded.

Western oil and penny golds attracted most speculative interest but a few lower-priced metals also showed large turnovers. Industrial dealings maintained a slow spread from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,634,000 shares.

Papers, utilities, liquors and retail stores led industrials lower with a broad list of declines. Constructions, steels and refining oils weakened but banks and manufacturing companies edged upward.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Central Explorers, Federated Petroleum, North Canadian and Western Leaseholds were among issues lower.

Base metal leaders eased as Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Steep Rock and New Calumet traded lower.

Senior golds were mixed. Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and McIntyre added fractions but Bralorne, Lake Shore and Lamaque eased. Junior producers posted a majority of penny losses.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 26. (CP)—Cattle prices were steady in fairly active trading at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 670; calves 60; hogs 520; no sheep or lambs. The left over from Tuesday was 400 cattle.

Common to medium steers sold at $20 to $25.50 with good steers at $24 to $25.25 and a few choice steers at $26. Good heifers made $24 with a few at $24 to $25 while common heifers were downward to $19. Good cows brought $19 to $21 with heifery cows at $22. A few good bulls sold at $18.50 to $20.50 with good to choice fed yearlings at $25 to $27.25.

Calves were steady at $26 to $29 for good to choice vealers with medium from $20 to $25.

Hogs were at $26 for Grade A with sows $16 dressed.

No sheep or lamb sales reported.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were quoted here today at 66-70 for churning cream and 66½-67 for butter prints.

The egg market opened steady here today with prices unchanged.

Graded eggs, cases free, delivered Toronto; grade A large 37-37½, A medium 36-36½, A small 33, grade B 31, grade C 28-29.

Wholesale to retail: grade A large 40-42, A medium 39-40, A small 36-38, grade B 35-36, grade C 33-35.

Butter solids: first grade 65¼; no price established on second or western grades.

Dogs in Pound

Tagless dogs found running loose about the streets are in for a tough time of it these days. They travel only one road and leads right to the city pound.

No less than six dogs without tags were picked up yesterday on city streets by dog catcher Charles Thorn. They include a male part collie and hound; a male brown part Chesapeake and spaniel; a female black hound; a female collie pup; a female wire-haired white terrier, and a female dark brown spaniel.

Owners can pick up their pets at the city pound—after purchasing the required dog tag.

Year of Great Activity Reported By Belleville Chamber of Commerce

Following is the report of James T. Davis, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, which he gave at the annual dinner on Monday evening. (The names of the committee chairmen are given in the section headings).

"It is my pleasure to report the activities of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for the year 1951. It was a year in which much progress was made, as well as several changes, such as location and personnel. The visible progress is the new office, erected on the second floor of the city hall — a credit to the Chamber of Commerce and the ability of Freeman Burrows, former secretary - manager. The invisible, is the meetings held, business discussed and decisions reached, to carry out, in an active way, work which will be of benefit to all. The membership has a total of 262, which represents a cross-section of all businesses in our community. Membership in the Chamber of Commerce is an investment and the members who make use of it receive dividends in the form of information and service in many ways.

"The Board of Directors who carry out the Chamber activities, had 32 meetings, each mindful of the welfare of all members, both individually and collectively. Most business discussed concerned local activity and events. However, inquiries have been received from Oregon to Sweden, from Germany to Ceylon and from Brazil to India, inquiries which varied from "Where did my grandfather Stevens live, and who were his relations?" to a request for us to act as an agency to sell the merchandise of a firm in Pakistan.

"We have been honored by having one of our members appointed a director of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, in the person of Mayor A. McLean Haig.

"The Chamber of Commerce is at the service of every member, supplying telephone numbers in distant cities, the street address of Mr. Jones in another Ontario city, securing information from reference books, answering letters from outside sources requesting information on our fair city and its business enterprises, as well as the usual inquiries we are receiving regularly from the school children throughout the province. It has been truly said, it is a great privilege to be a Canadian in times like these and may I say to you, it is a privilege to be a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and a part of this great Canada of ours.

Retail Merchants' Section — J. Walker

This is a busy organization which has new problems every week. Its activities were great and varied. They have completed the parking lot by the river. They had the Sportsmen's Show and Dollar Day — which proved to be very successful and naturally of financial benefit to all businesses. As protection for the public, they relayed many complaints to the office and, in many cases, carried out investigations themselves, as a service to the public. There has been much discussion on the subject of store hours and you can be well assured that the final decision will bear in mind that the customer must be served at the customer's convenience. The children's party on December 8th was the outstanding event of the year. Over 4,200 children from far and wide came to see Santa Claus.

Manufacturers' Section—Chairman F. F. Fulton and latterly G. T. Lanning

Manufacturers are keen to realize that co-operation amongst all industries must be carried on at all times and interesting meetings bear this out. They discuss such subjects as: maintaining employment, holiday observance and many other mutual problems.

Tourist and Publicity—J. Yanover.

The satisfactory results of careful planning and publicity are provided by the large number of tourists who come to Belleville on their way to the Highlands of Hastings or the lakes and bays of Prince Edward County. The Tourists' Information Bureau operates twelve months of the year, sending booklets to inquiries received at Ottawa and Toronto, which information is passed on in regular booklets.

In the summertime, personal interviews are many and considerable detailed information is given. In the winter, the inquiries are from our local residents who wish to go to Florida. In many cases the tourist operators are advised of the inquiries and names and addresses are given.

Civic Committee—C. A. Bateman

Here again, activities are for the welfare of our fair city, even starting with the "Clean-up" campaign in the spring. A register for coming events is kept to keep all organizations happy and avoid conflicting dates of church bazaars and other similar affairs. Then there is the election meeting, in November, at which the candidates for civic office are in the spotlight before the electors at large.

Solicitation and Control Committee—C. M. Cawker

This is the "watch-dog" committee to check ever present door to door salesmen from out of town. Most of them are co-operative, but there are a few who do get by. The one who did not, is the salesman who told only part of his story on the sale of coupon books, but did not return when told to call the next day, after his proposition had been investigated.

There are also the warnings in the newspaper and over the radio, cautioning the public about this scheme or that racket and no doubt, the Belleville housewife still has the five or ten dollars, which so easily could have been take from her by the salesman with the glib tongue and the hollow promise.

National Affairs Committee — Malcolm Robb

Here is the part of our activity, which although national in character, has its effect locally. Let us consider the brief on taxation which was forwarded to the Ontario Chamber of Commerce. Then again, there is the continued prodding of the government, through the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, regarding the new four-lane highway, which may actually be started this year, even if not completed. Most of you will remember the radio broadcast—"The Way I See It," giving those interesting facts about the Chamber of Commerce free enterprise, etc.

Industrial Activities

The procedure of businesses selecting a location for a new or branch industry, has changed greatly in the last few years and much activity is carried on by the Industrial Commission, giving statistical details about our fair city and showing prospects various sites or existing buildings.

As your secretary also acts for the Belleville Industrial Commission, it is surprising to me, to see the amount of time required in preparing surveys and acting as host to men who do not even state the firm they work for or the location of its head office. However, the work has been well planned and results are in sight. Considerable time was spent at the Industrial Trade Fair in Toronto and satisfactory results obtained. In addition, the Chamber co-operates with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board by providing secretarial services and carrying out administrative duties.

The Belleville and District Builders' Exchange

The exchange receives administrative services and supervision of its Plan Room, which has been very active in the last few months, due to the fact that firms are going after business these days, rather than waiting for it to come to them.

Agricultural Committee—C. N. Heath

While the activities of this committee have not been large they have been important. It is the contact with the farm groups which must be maintained. Meetings were held in co-operation with Carling Breweries on conservation on the farm and in sport.

Building Activity

The Royal Bank is to be complimented on its new building on Front Street, a very imposing structure, one of the finest to be seen anywhere. The new Cheese Storage Warehouse was opened last fall, with full formalities and showmanship. It is "big business"—it holds up to 60,000 cheese. The Coca Cola Company is putting the finishing touches on its new building. The Northern Electric Co., has added 50,000 square feet of floor space. Canada Cement Company is working hard to complete its new kiln. Loblaw's second store is now in full operation on Pinnacle Street.

The Monthly Bulletins

Bulletins have been forwarded to the members fairly regularly. Most of the items of news concern a record of events which have happened. It would be appreciated if we could get some news of events which are to take place in the future. Each member can help here, will you? If you just phone in one little item of news, it makes the issue more interesting then, because you have helped.

As you know, the Chamber of Commerce has new quarters in the city hall. Some have not seen those quarters yet. May I extend an invitation to all to come and see them. They are modern in appearance, bright and serve to carry out the activities of a business office. with space for the casual inquirer, as well as space for a board room and other committee meetings; also the plan room for the Builders' Exchange. It is a credit to any organization, particularly our own. We have the space, but I would like to see more members, which means more income, which means more service, which in turn, means greater accomplishment.

NICKEL RANGE PAYS BEST

In which of the eighteen economic regions into which Ontario is divided do industrial workers do best in wage rates? Anyone interested can find the answer in the latest edition of the publication of the Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research.

The following figures are for January, 1952. They are provided, says the bureau, by the leading manufacturers in each region themselves, and are weekly averages.

The Nickel Range Region, which includes the districts of Sudbury and Manitoulin, is in top place, with a weekly average of $69.74. In second place is the St. Clair Region, which is the county of Lambton, with a weekly average of $67.18. In third place is the Clay Belt Region, which includes the districts of Cochrane and Timiskaming, with a weekly average of $65. In fourth place is the Lakehead Region, or the districts of Kenora, Rainy River and Thunder Bay, with a weekly average of $64.67.

Starting at the bottom of the list, we find that the lowest paid industrial workers of Ontario are in the Blue Water Region, which includes the counties of Bruce, Dufferin, Grey, Simcoe and Huron. The average weekly wage in these counties is $40.41. Next in line from the tail end of the procession is the Lake Erie Region, which includes the counties of Haldimand and Norfolk, with a weekly average of $41.69.

Others in this category are the Upper Grand Region, (counties of Perth, Waterloo and Wellington), with a weekly average of $45.75; Ottawa Valley Region, (counties of Carleton, Lanark and Russell), $48.42; Highlands Region, (Haliburton County, districts of Muskoka, Nipissing and Parry Sound), $48.41.

The Quinte Region, which includes the counties of Frontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward, stands in eleventh place from the top, with a weekly average of $49.43. Thus the Quinte Region industrial worker gets about $9 a week more than the lowest paid in Ontario, and about $20 a week less than the best paid.

PEARKES IN CRITICAL MOOD

If anyone in Canada should know something about military affairs, that individual is Major General Pearkes. General Pearkes is a veteran of both world wars, as well as the winner of the Victoria Cross, the Distinguished Service Order and of other decorations.

Not long ago, Major General Pearkes was in Europe, on some business connected, we believe, with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. On his return, he publicly expressed disapproval of Canada sending troops to Europe. Canada, he said, was short of manpower, while all or nearly all of the countries of western Europe had a surplus of manpower.

In the House of Commons last Friday night, (General Pearkes represents a British Columbia constituency), he said Canada should guard against a policy which would surrender the strategic freedom of the R.C.A.F. by basing too many planes in Europe. The loss of this strategic freedom, he said, would be "a high price to pay for the maintenance of European morale."

He added: "The policy of sending Canadian jet fighters to Europe with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization force should be reviewed frequently to ensure flexibility in the service was preserved and that enough machines were kept at home to give an effective defence."

The opinions of General Pearkes, it would seem, are in conflict with those of such government spokesmen as Hon. Brooke Claxton, the minister of national defence, and Hon. Lester Pearson, the minister of external affairs. Both Mr. Claxton and Mr. Pearson are fond of making speeches about spending hundreds of millions of dollars in Europe and sending large numbers of Canadian troops there to defend western Europeans from the aggressive designs of eastern Europeans.

Perhaps Mr. Claxton and Mr. Pearson know best, but it is also possible that General Pearkes knows something about military strategy and allied subjects, too. With his record, he should. Certainly no one can accuse a man who has won the two highest decorations for gallantry which a British monarch can bestow of being overly cautious or lacking in resolution.

SOME EXPENSIVE DOORS

The Ottawa Journal comes up with the interesting bit of information that Canada is spending $50,000 on seven doors for the United Nations headquarters building in New York City.

That works out to more than $7,000 per door, according to our mathematical expert. When asked of what material he thought these doors were made, our mathematical expert refused to commit himself, stating that any such explanation could be made only by a government expert. Probably our mathematical expert was right in referring us to the government experts. It is certain that no layman could provide a satisfactory explanation.

Spiritual Rebirth and Growth

The third chapter of the Gospel of John deals with the experience of spiritual rebirth. Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

This matter of spiritual rebirth —although we do not hear a great deal of it today — is an essential teaching in the Christian religion. This basic change of the moral and spiritual life is usually preceded by a long period of either conscious or unconscious preparation, but the spiritual birth itself, like physical birth, takes place in a comparatively short time. Sometimes it appears to occur instantaneously.

Spiritual rebirth is one thing; the new life which follows is something else again. People are born into newness of life quickly, but it takes decade after decade to cultivate and perfect the Christian life. Spiritual rebirth is known as conversion; growth in the Christian life is known as sanctification. Conversion is an act; sanctification is a process. We see the light in an estatic instant, but it takes a whole lifetime to learn how to follow the light with satisfaction.

Anyone who believes that he may hop aboard an elevator and be raised at lightning speed to heights of sublime moral character, is in for disappointment. The start, conversion, may take place quickly as birth often does, but growth takes time.

Florida Holiday

By G. A. MORTON
(Managing Editor.)

One of the regular visitors at the Biscayne Key Villas was a small raccoon. It prowled around the buildings at night looking for handouts from the guests. These animals are common in Florida and a number of them were seen on the roadside where they had been hit and killed by cars.

This particular animal was always cautious and if anyone approached, it climbed the nearest palm tree and would not come down until everyone walked away some distance. It was fond of most food especially bones with some meat on them. Guests would leave these out at night and always in the morning everything had disappeared.

As most people know, coons like to wash their food in water, so it would take the bones to the swimming pool, and rinse them off well. All this was infuriating to the pool attendant. The grease would spread on the surface of the water and leave a smear which had to be removed. The threats he muttered as to what he would do if he could catch that coon sounded very sinister, but actually we think he was putting on an act. He probably was as attached to the little visitor as the rest of us were.

The manager of the Villas told an amusing incident involving a coon. . .One evening a bride and groom arrived seeking accommodation. From the remarks which were passed it appeared the bride was not too anxious to stay. The seeming isolation of the accommodation, exaggerated at night, made her feel the place was built in a jungle and she was all set for heading back to the city.

The husband thought they should see what was offered so the manager showed them a nice room. After much discussion they agreed to take it and started back to the office. At that moment a coon ran right in front of the party. The bride shrieked with fright and no amount of persuasion or explanation could change her mind. She insisted on hurrying away to Miami and getting away from "that place."

If she had waited until morning before deciding to leave, we think she would have liked it. However, that coon probably looked as big as a bear to her.

Speaking about animals. . .last year we commented on the extraordinary number of dogs we had observed killed by cars when driving through Georgia. This year we decided to keep count and the total reached eighteen before we arrived at Jacksonville. On the return trip there were only a couple. Some friends who had gone to Florida after reading the articles said they saw only one or two and so we came in for some good-natured joshing after they came back saying they would like to know the brand we used.

A couple of times when reading over menus in restaurants we had noted "resin baked potatoes" and had been considerably puzzled by what was meant. Finally we had an opportunity to learn what they were when we had dinner one night at the Hurricane Lounge which is located not far from where we stayed. This was a particularly nice place if steak, chicken or pompano fish were desired. With an order of one of these was served an Idaho potato baked in resin. The chef worked in full view of the diners so the mystery was solved.

In an alcove beside the broiling pit were two good-sized drums of boiling black substance. One was for regular potatoes and the other for sweet potatoes. These were dropped into the receptacles where they sank to the bottom. When baked they rose to the surface and were served in a covering of aluminum foil, the potatoes having been opened previously and generous amounts of butter inserted. Were they ever good!

We learned that resin, the exudate from the pine tree, is used. It comes in huge cakes, amber in color. When the pots need replenishing, chunks are chopped off then added as required. The resin is kept at a 435-degree temperature. The advantage over the oven method may be that there is no overbaking and a closer watch can be kept over the requirements so that they reach the table at the peak of baking perfection. It certainly worked.

The meat was broiled over a charcoal fire on grates that were about four feet square. Nothing was pre-cooked and the steak or chicken was cooked after the order was taken. As this system was somewhat slower than usual the patron could order shrimp cocktail and was served French bread, sliced, then dipped in garlic-flavored butter and lightly toasted over the fire. These plus a chef's salad served as a pleasant interlude before the meat was ready.

We were told two thousand steaks alone were served there weekly and were especially ordered from New York. All had to be exactly the same in weight and thickness. The potatoes were all the same size as well. The restaurant was not large and was open in the afternoon and evening only. One chef was able to look after the meat and prepare the plates with the potatoes, but he did not have much spare time for looking around during the busy periods. No desserts were served and coffee completed the meal which was about as satisfying as any that could be had. The chicken (a half was served) was especially flavorful when broiled over the charcoal and one thing we liked about it was that no batter was used. It came to the table, with the skin nicely brown and the tender meat filled with its own natural juice—nothing added, nothing taken away—just perfection. Are you getting hungry, again?

CIGARETTE SMOKING AND CANCER OF LUNG

Lest any one think I'm prejudiced let me say here that I'm a pipe smoker.

Let me say, too, that I'm a moderate smoker. Except twenty or thirty days in the year when the bowling greens are wet I neither smoke nor want a smoke until after lunch. If there's no bowling in the afternoon then there's no smoking in my playroom that day. I have my first smoke of the day after dinner in the evening, sometimes immediately and sometimes an hour or two after dinner. Through the evening I smoke perhaps three pipefuls.

Finally, although a woman smoking on the street or while driving her car seems as unlovely as one who casually drops into a bar, everything we can say about the effects of smoking upon health applies to both sexes.

In recent years there have been more frequent references in medical literature to cancer of the lung in heavy smokers. Dr. A reports a series of such cases encountered in his practice in ten or twenty years. Dr. B, perhaps with time between patients heavy on his hands, makes a "survey" of recent medical literature and tabulates the salient features of a dozen or more cases of lung cancer in heavy smokers. Dr. C, examines the valuable data and publishes in Thorax his views of the problem. All of this tends to give one the impression that (a) we know the nature and cause of cancer and (b) that something in tobacco smoke may cause cancer to develop in the bronchial passages or lungs.

We know nothing of the kind.

It is fair to assume that cancer of the lung is more frequently recognized or diagnozed today than it was fifty years ago, but that is all. It remains to be determined whether heavy smokers, and particularly cigarette smokers, are any more liable to have cancer of the lung than light smokers, pipe or cigar smokers or non-smokers.

Meanwhile, it can do no harm to consider these facts:

1. Whether the nicotine, carbon monoxide, one or more aldehydes, such as furfural, mthyl (wood) alcohol, arsenic, pyridine, hydrocyanic acid or tar—all of which have been found in the smoke—is the injurious factor is still a question of opinion.
2. In any case the effects of smoking will depend on the area of mucous membrane the smoke reaches. In an ordinary puff the surface of palate, tongue, lining of cheeks and floor of mouth—perhaps 7 or 8 square inches—is exposed to the smoke. If the smoker inhales the smoke reaches the lining of the entire nose-throat structure and perhaps even penetrates the larynx (voice box) into trachea (windpipe) and bronchial passages almost if not quite into the air cells of the lungs. Thus inhaling means that an enormously increased absorbing surface is exposed to the smoke.
3. For this reason, the first precaution for a smoker to take, no matter whether his or her trouble be cough, duodenal ulcer complex, cold feet, thrombo-angiitis obliterans (Buerger's disease), cardiovascular disturbance or whatnot, is: Don't inhale.

Answer—There is no such medicine that can't be given as effectively in the ordinary way — but the trick specialist has to live, high, hey? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no reply if you use clipping) for pamphlet on Acne — Blackheads and Pimples.

Shaking Palsy

Husband 62, has Parkinson's disease. Works in traffic dept. at job that is very exacting and nerve racking. Is such work harmful to him? (Mrs. T. H.)

Answer — No. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Shaking Palsy (Paralysis agitans, Parkinson's disease). Any job, game, recreation or pastime which keeps the individual with such tremor occupied is good for what ails him or her. Remember, the individual is not illl nor in any danger, but just—well, say the neuro-muscular machinery is not functioning as smoothly as it should. And don't infer from the mask-like expression that there's anything wrong in the attic — if you approach the individual from that point of view he or she is likely to make a monkey of you.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Until you have been in a house where they have one of those picture windows plus some very small children and a dog, you can have no idea of the true function of picture windows.

They should not be called picture windows. They are children windows, or dog windows. A child has to be nearly three years old before he can look out the window of an ordinary house. Unless, of course, he resorts to the very humiliating device of dragging a chair over to the window and climbing on it. And as for small dogs, unless they are sissy dogs that are allowed to jump up on chairs and chesterfields, they never know what windows are for, other than to let a dog know when daylight comes or night falls.

But pictur windowe are a tremendous stride forward in the social emancipation of babies and small dogs.

From the moment a baby can stand up and take his first staggers, he becomes a citizen of the larger world than his home. In old fashioned houses, a baby is carried about and allowed to look out windows at cars, horses, wagons and, most ravishing of all, other children. But the minute he learns to walk, he is taught the first lesson in human underprivilege. He is walled in. He can't see out the window, except through the grace of being lifted up by a higher being.

In one of these modern bungalows with the picture window, the baby goes straight to the window; and there is the universe spread before him.

For small dogs, it must be a more fantastic experience. I would not be surprised to see dogs walking on their hind feet in a couple of generations, the way they stand now, howr after hour, at the picture window, barking out at the beautiful world.

It is true, of course, that the lower areas of the picture window panes do get a little smeary.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KEEP DOING SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Most of the unhappy and disgruntled people of this world can be put into two classes: First, those who either have nothing to do, and don't want anything to do, or second, those who have something to do but who don't like what they do.

Nothing is so stimulating as work which you love, and also work in which you engage at odd times about which you knew nothing. Doing different things, just for the joy of doing them, keeps adding inches to your intellectual stature. Time spent in thinking and learning something new amounts to a speculation that never fails to pay dividends.

Have you ever met a person who was uninteresting who was forever experimenting or devoting his mind and energies to something new and different?

We all like the companionship of those who have much to tell us that we know nothing about. We always come out ahead by listening to that person who has read much, travelled much, and experienced much. By forming the habit of doing many things, and learning from them, we are stimulated to do best whatever we have chosen to make our main work in life.

Christopher Morley once said: "Read every day something no one else in reading. Think something no one else is thinking. It is bad for the mind to be always a part of unanimity." By following out that suggestion we may become a better companion to ourselves and a most valuable one to others.

Keep doing something different. You will never then find yourself in a bad rut. You will be rather a trail blazer! The spirit of the pioneer will burn within you. Merely doing the thing you are told to do, or that you find easiest to do, lights no spark within you, and does not stir the imagination. Attempt things you think you can't do, and soon you will learn what you can do.

We owe more than we can ever repay to those who have persisted in doing something different. They have been our pioneers, inventors, scientists and discoverers.

Discrepancies in Books Discovered by Auditors

Deseronto—In an interim report to the local town council Monday, a Toronto auditing firm disclosed that shortages totalling more than $7,000 have been found in the books of the municipality. Bulk of the amount was tax collections that had been made and not credited.

At the regular monthly meeting of the council, D. A. MacDonald, an employee of the auditing firm, who has been conducting an investigation here into the alleged bookkeeping discrepancies, said that, so far, his investigation has uncovered tax collection shortages totalling at least $3,182.11, and possibly as much as $5,288.44, and a total shortage in all accounts of $7,006.47.

The results of the investigation, ordered after suspicions were aroused over the bookkeeping methods of town clerk and treasurer, Miss Mary G. Maher, who has since resigned, were contained in a report submitted by the finance committee.

Reading the report, the committee chairman, Reeve Ross E. Neal, said that the auditors had found that alleged tax arrears totalling $3,182.11 had been actually collected and not listed and taxpayers had shown receipts to prove their payments. Another $2,106.33 in alleged arrears also appears to have been paid according to verbal statements made by taxpayers.

Shortages in Other Revenues

In addition, the report said there were shortages in other revenues, including $677.67, which should have been received from Hastings County court fines, which could not be traced in the books, and $114.31, which had been paid by the provincial government in relief subsidies and was not recorded.

Although the audit is not complete, it has already shown additional shortages of $77.09 in amounts paid by property owners for work done for them by the town, and shortages in bank deposits in 1951 and 1952 of $848.96.

The report read by Reeve Neal, also signed by the other members of the finance committee, Councillors T. S. Scott and Gordon Walker, and Mayor R. K. Jackson, traced the discovery of the discrepancies, stemming from the council's move to collect some long-overdue tax payments. Early in 1950, the report pointed out, the finance committee had brought to the council's attention what appeared to be great arrears and asked that some action be taken to collect. The council resolved to follow this recommendation but "little was done about it by the treasurer."

Dissatisfaction Expressed

Early this year, the report continued, the town's auditor, G. D. C. Morton of Tweed, was asked to attend a meeting of the council to discuss these matters but was unable to do so and some "dissatisfaction was expressed by council" in this regard. The first reliable list of arrears was obtained in February from the auditor, the report stated, and "this list differed from any other previously submitted." A 100 per cent check test was made, that is check notices were sent to everyone listed in arrears, and many of those checked reported that their taxes had been paid.

On Feb. 29, Mayor Jackson secured the resignation of the town clerk, plus a list of payments which she had received but had listed as arrears, the report concluded.

Mayor Jackson and Reeve Neal both urged on the large crowd which gathered in the town hall to hear the report, the importance of coming forward and declaring whether or not the figures on the tax roll beside their names are correct. To date arrears totalling $10,780.30 have been admitted by citizens.

ATLANTIC PACT

"To ignore or belittle the U.N.," he suggested, "would be an act of irresponsibility which would gravely weaken the moral basis of our democratic cause.

"We cannot pretend that the machinery is perfect but there is no substitute for it anywhere."

Several members introduced the Spanish question into the debate and urged closer relations with that country.

Joseph Bradette (L—Cochrane) pointed to Spain's "tremendous" military potential and suggested she had done as much as any other country to fight communism. Franco should not be criticized for fighting for his country.

Might Prove Fatal Claim

P. E. Gagnon (Ind—Chicoutimi) said Mr. Pearson should try to convince members of the Atlantic Pact of the need for good relations with Spain, whose omission from the United States and N. A. T. O. could prove fatal.

W. J. Browne (PC—St. John's West) wondered why Spain should be an "outcast" among the nations of N. A. T. O. and the U. N.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) renewed a plea that Canada join a Pacific pact and suggested it is "folly" to leave the Pacific "wide open" to possible communist aggression. Canada should join the United States, Australia and New Zealand in their Pacific alliance.

What happened in the Pacific could be a matter of "life and death" to west-coast Canadians. The communists were set in Asia to drive in "several directions" and there was cause for real concern.

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia), while not indicating support for the C. C. F. non-confidence motion, asked what steps the government plans to take to help European nations cushion their economies against the effects of their defence programs. Canada could help them by encouraging food production and contribute vast quantities of foodstuffs to Europe.

Need Spain is Claim

Mr. Bradette noted that Spain has 'tremendous' military potential. If Spain had not fought in her Civil War of the 1930s, she would have fallen to the communists. Thousands of her priests had been slain and her churches devastated.

The west should be more friendly to the government and her people because "we need them at the present time."

Supplementary estimates totalling $246,563,813 were tabled by Finance Minister Abbott. The figure brought the total estimated expenditure for the current fiscal year to $3,977,151,650. The year ends March 31. Preliminary estimates, tabled last week, set 1952-53 expenditures at $4,345,796,809.

The supplementaries, covering expenditures unforeseen when the main estimates were made more than a year ago, included $1,500,000 in assistance for Canadian apple growers. Bulk of the amount—$1,200,000 — will go to apple growers of British Columbia. The remaining $300,000 will go to Nova Scotia.

A total of $665,000 was marked to provide compensation to farmers for animals slaughtered as a result of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Southern Saskatchewan.

The largest items listed covered government contributions to the civil service superannuation fund. The amounts, totalling $102,943,977 were to put the fund on a sound accounting basis.

C.N.R. Had Deficit

The Canadian National Railways had a 1951 deficit of $15,031,996 in 1951, it was shown in the estimates. The revenue and expenditure totals were not given.

A new attack on parliament's rapid-fire granting of divorces was launched by the C.C.F.

Members of the party held up passage of the first sessional batch of divorces from Quebec and Newfoundland serving notice they are going to continue a campaign begun a year ago to get divorces from these provinces transferred to the Exchequer Court of Canada.

In the preliminary manoeuvring last night, the C.C.F. had the support of the Social Credit group, of the scattering of Progressive Conservatives in the House, along with two Liberals and two Independents.

These supported the C. C. F. on a vote which that party lost by a count of 71 to 28 on the issue of continuing debate immediately on the first of the divorce bills up for second reading. Eventually, the bill was "talked out" during the hour devoted to private legislation.

Earlier, Trade Minister Howe said it is too early to estimate the effect on Canadian trade of the recent dollar-conserving import restrictions put into effect by Australia and New Zealand.

Mr. Jack Scott 6th Sidney, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Ruth Linn, of Rawdon, attended the recent Youth Cavalcade held in this city.

Marion L. Stacey, Reg. N., of Whitby, spent a few days at the home of her mother, Mrs. S. Turner, 65 Grier Street, before leaving for a three-months' holiday in Scotland, sailing Friday on the Empress of Scotland.

Last evening the members of the Twenty-Second Club met at the home of Mr. John Deacon. Mr. J. G. Demeza, assistant superintendent of the O.S.D., gave an informal talk on the educational system in Britain, Sweden, Belgium, Holland, France and the United States. His remarks were based on a tour he made last year and his observations proved most interesting to his audience.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. F. Sweet Marmora, Mrs. E. C. Prentice presided. Mrs. Tupper conducted the devotional period. Mrs. T. J. Bateman read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Grace Pack gave the treasurer's report. Roll Call was answered by ten members with two visitors present.

Mrs. F. Sweet took the record of books and Missionary Monthlies read. Five hospital, 28 sick and four stranger calls were reported.

An invitation from the Explorers' Group has been tendered to the W.M.S. to attend their meeting next Monday night.

Mrs. Grace Pack was in charge of the study period and dealt with Home Missions in a particularly interesting way, with Mesdames Sweet, Wells, Young, Tupper, Hannah, Bateman, Sopha and Barlow assisting.

The April meeting which will by the thank-offering service will be held in St. Andrew's Church.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Children's Aid Society Holds Board Meeting

The March Board meeting of the Children's Aid Society was recently held in the Sunday School room of Bridge Street United Church with Mr. Fred S. Wilson presiding over a good attendance.

Mrs. W. J. Taylor gave the clothing report. The financial statement for the month of February amounted to $6,633.78.

Plans were made for the annual dinner to be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in April, when there will be a guest speaker. Mrs. H. McCabe was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

Mr. W. C. Lockyer, superintendent of the Society, in presenting his report told of 12 new protective cases; one adoption completed; 173 active cases completed and 213 visits made during the month.

Miss Byrd Corbett, assistant superintendent of C.A.S., in her report dealt with four specific cases, discussing the many problems involved in rehabilitating families.

Mr. G. H. Trill, Mrs. D. Fleming and Mrs. J. Cordes were appointed a nominating committee to present the slate of officers at the next regular meeting.

Good Companions Hold Bowling Party

Dorothy Moorman and Dawson MacLean proved their skill at the Bowl-O-Drome, Saturday evening, when bowlers and would-be bowlers of the Good Companions' Club held their semi-annual Bowling Party.

Although some of the scores were not exceptionally high, a lot of fun was had by all as approximately 30 members of the club took their turn at sending the balls down the alleys in the hope of chalking up a few strikes to their credit.

After the bowling, the group retired to Tabernacle Church where the refreshment committee served piping hot coffee and delicious honey-dipped doughnuts.

Indian Centenarian Recalls Early West

Leask, Sask., (CP)—Mrs. Suzette Bird, a pipe-smoking Indian woman on the Mistawasis Reserve near here, is reputed to be 106 years old.

Living alone with a granddaughter, growing deaf and speaking very little English, she is one of the last links with Saskatchewan's past. Neighbors say she recalls the Riel Rebellion and other historic incidents.

In the summer, Mrs. Bird still walks two miles each Sunday to the Presbyterian Mission and back. In winter, she rides in the bottom of a horse-drawn, sleigh box.

A granddaughter recently verified Mrs. Bird's age by examining records when treaty money was paid last year. It was found then she was 105.

Born Suzette Longneck at Saddle Lake, Sask., she later married Peter Muchahoo whose Indian name translated means Bad Owl. Later, her name was modernized to Bird and in recent years she has been called Widow Bird or more often Nucoom, Cree for grannie.

Belleville Couple Wedded 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Savage Receive Message of Congratulation From Prime Minister St. Laurent

A letter from the office of Prime Minister St. Laurent personally signed by the first citizen of Canada and offering congratulations on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary has been received by Mr. and Mrs. W. "Jim" Savage, 156 Moira Street East.

Mr. and Mrs. Savage will observe their golden anniversary on Thursday and a family gathering, at which all five children are expected to be present, will mark the event.

Married in London, England, back in 1902, Mr. and Mrs. Savage came to Canada and to Belleville in 1906. With the exception of five years spent in the Oshawa district, they have since lived in this city.

The first money earned by Mr. Savage in Canada was for assisting in the construction of the former children's shelter on Dundas Street. He also assisted with the stonework at the present Bank of Montreal, and also on the building now occupied by Tip Top Tailors.

"There have been a lot of changes in Belleville in the past 50 years," he recalls.

A veteran of World War I, Mr. Savage served with the 155th Battalion. Since 1919 he has worked "off and on" at Walker's Hardware, a job which an arthritic condition forced him to give up in 1937. His arthritis now forces him to use two canes when walking.

A lover of poetry and verse, Mr. Savage is a composer in his own right. He has a record in verse of activities with his old 155th Battalion from the time it went overseas until it returned. Since then he has made it a habit to record happening of interest in verse. Many of his verses have been published in the Ontario Intelligencer.

Life has not been too easy for the Savages, but they would be the last to complaint of their lot. Both are now 73.

Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Savage. There are three daughters, Mrs. Joseph (Elsie) Rapino, Belleville; Mrs. Clifford (Annie) Smith, Thurlow township, and Mrs. (Jean) Chumbley, Wellman's Corners, and two sons, Arthur Savage, of this city, and Walter Savage, of Frankford, R.R. 3.

There are fourteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Theatre Guild Gets Messages Of Congratulation

In opening a recent meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild last Wednesday, Mrs. Doyle announced that, in addition to the letter from Mayor Haig which had been read out at the last meeting, two other letters had been received, all three tendering congratulations on the Guild's recent success in the Peterborough Drama Festival. One of these was from the Trenton Drama Club, and the other from Percy Marcus, who had acted as the Guild's first treasurer before he left Belleville for Saskatchewan.

Members were particularly interested in a report from business manager John Ryan on the progress of ticket sales for the presentation of one-act plays scheduled for the first two days of April. Mr. Ryan announced that, in spite of the fact that there were twice as many tickets this time, they were selling very well and he hoped before long to be able to display the "sold out" sign.

Talk on Breathing Given

Murray Irwin gave a short talk on the correct method of breathing as an aid to good voice production, after which an attempt was made to record the voices of certain members for playback and constructive criticism from Mrs. Jardine. Unfortunately, for various reasons, the recording was found to be impractical and the project was postponed until a later meeting.

A talk entitled "Lighting for Actors" was given by Robert Tanner, who is in charge of the construction of lighting equipment for the Guild's forthcoming production. Mr. Tanner said that he felt there was a certain basic minimum of knowledge on this subject which every actor or actress should possess and went on to explain the normal arrangement of stage lighting, consisting of general illumination from footlights and top borders, augmented by "spots" and "floods" from both sides of the proscenium arch.

The speaker dealt with the use of color in stage work, and explained that by mixing three basic colors in varying amounts, almost any desired effect could be obtained. In conclusion, Mr. Tanner described briefly the equipment which was being built, including a sixteen-circuit switchboard and portable footlights and battens.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Jardine and Miss Keeler spoke briefly about two short plays which they were directing and which were to be cast immediately afterwards. Mrs. Jardine's play was entitled "If Men Played Bridge as Women Do" to be presented at a Rotary Club meeting, while "Shakespeare's Ladies," directed by Miss Keeler is intended for the Women's Canadian Club. In this way, the Belleville Theatre Guild is endeavoring to fulfil its function as a community enterprise.

Women's Institute

MADOC W.I.

The March meeting of Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. S. R. Beatty, with a good attendance of members and visitors. The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the president presiding.

The communications were read. The executive was appointed to act as a committee to make arrangements for catering for the Junior Farmers and Jr. Institute on April 24. It was decided to send the president and secretary as delegates to the provincial conference at Guelph in May.

The secretary reported that the net proceeds from the Monarch Cooking School were $152.70 and a letter of thanks will be sent to Miss N. Tridskey, who conducted the school.

Future Accomplishments

Mr. Mel Caverly, president of Madoc Community Centre Committee, addressed the meeting at this time, giving brief resume of what has been done so far and what they hope to accomplish in the future. He stressed the need for community wide interest in this project in order to make it a success. Mrs. G. S. White thanked Mr. Caverly.

Current events were in charge of Mrs. W. Stewart, who gave out newspaper clippings to several members who read them, followed by several humorous readings. Mrs. S. R. Beatty, district president, spoke of a request from the provincial president, requesting members to wear a purple ribbon one inch long under their Institute pin in mourning for King George VI.

She also announced that the district annual will be held at Marmora on May 29, also a district executive meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. G. C. Moon, Madoc, on April 1. Miss Vankleek, Mrs. Aylsworth, Mrs. Forestell, and Mrs. E. T. Nayler were appointed as a nominating committee to present the slate of officers for the coming year at the next meeting. On motion of Mrs. G. Hill and Mrs. K. T. Nicol it was decided to purchase silverware to serve 100 people.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. G. Love had charge of the program which opened with everyone singing, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling". She then introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Carl Howse, principal of Madoc High School, who gave a very thought-provoking address on "Public Relations". He stressed the two phases of public relations, namely; the desire to do well, and the desire to get credit for it. He also mentioned the benefits that can be derived through the radio and the local newspaper.

Institute appreciation was extended to Mr. Howse by Mrs. J. McGowan.

During the serving of dainty refreshments, several of the members formed a chorus and gave their interpretation of some familiar Irish songs.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A severe case of frustration.

Why is it, I wonder, so difficult for a young girl or man to understand that when they are at odds on all the basic things, it would be the most foolish thing in the world to marry each other?

I have a letter from a 20-year-old girl who says she is a college graduate, "with an exceptionally good record," and now holding a very responsible position where "mistakes may mean life or death." These two facts certainly suggest that the girl has both intelligence and judgment. What she does with those qualities when it comes to romance, however, I cannot imagine.

At the beginning of her letter, she states that she is "very discontented and unhappy"; that "My boy friend and I have planned on marriage. We have been going together over two years. But I am so irritating to him, and vice versa, that we are beginning to doubt the advisability of it." She then goes on to tell why.

Reason one: She wants a home of her own and children. He does not. He wants to continue living, after marriage, with his mother and sister: "Because of this," she says, "I am very hostile toward his relatives and at times feel actual hatred for them, since they seem to come ahead of me in his affections."

Different Faiths

Reason two: She and the young man are of different faiths and disagree violently on how to adjust their differences. "He wants me to change my faith to his to please his family," she writes. "This is out of the question. I have never asked him to do this for me."

Reason three: Her young man "wants to handle our money, but I don't want him to because I am afraid he would squander it. He 'threw away' a large sum once, and so, since I have saved considerable amount to spend on the home I hope to have some day, I don't want him to get his hands on it. Besides, he doesn't make much himself, and I would have to continue working after marriage."

Reason four: "What I need is someone who will back me up," she says, "not disagree with everything I say, do or think. I am constantly being picked apart, yet he doesn't want to discuss our problems or things that he does, because he feels I should never question him."

And, finally, these two differ radically in their ideas of how to spend their leisure time. "I love to dance, swim and skate," she points out, "but I have no time for these things during the week since I work days, and go to night school, and he doesn't want to do anything on weekends but sit at home with his family. All this has made me very lonely and nervous, particularly since my own parents are not socially-minded. Outside of them, I have no one but my boy friend. I want so badly to get married and live, not as a career girl, but as a wife and mother. What can I do?"

Has Become a Habit

Now here is a girl who is confusing her longing to get married and her feeling toward an individual. Since she has been going with him for two years, and he is all she has outside her own parents, he has become a habit with her, but she is not in love with him. Besides this, being obviously completely unsuited to each other, a marriage would almost certainly be a shambles in short order.

What this girl really needs is to change the whole pattern of her life. Tied down as she is during the week by her daily work and her nighttime studying, and on weekends by her habit of devoting herself to the boy friend, she gives herself no chance at all to make the new friends and have the new experiences that are the only answer to her problem.

Unless there is some urgent reason why she should continue to live with her parents, I strongly urge that she take a place by herself and begin to live an independent life. This would satisfy, to some degree at least, her deep desire for a home of her own. Then I think it would be wise for her to consider giving up night school, for awhile at least, and devote her evenings to going places where other young people are having good times.

Since she lives near the largest city in the country, where there are innumerable opportunities for young people to meet each other, this should not be difficult to do. The young woman is in a bad way with a severe case of frustration but she can definitely recover from it if she has the commonsense, the initiative and the will power to take it in hand at once.

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

(Helen P.—this is for you.)
Chicken Maryland
(Simplified Version)
Cauliflower
Green Peas
(new or frozen if possible)
Beaten Biscuit
Vanilla Ice Cream with Glad's
Apricot and Cherry Sauce
Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

Helen P. asked for the recipe for beaten biscuit and almost in the same breath declared that she had to reduce to get into her city clothes for her perennial trip to town. She's on her own: That cream gravy on the chicken Maryland, beaten biscuit drowned in butter and that calorieful dessert will take some resisting.

SIMPLIFIED CHICKEN MARYLAND

This is geared for serving eight and requires two young chickens. Cut the chickens in quarters for serving after they are dressed and cleaned. Dip in salted and peppered flour, then in beaten egg which has been diluted with 2 tablespoons cold water. Now coat with fine sifted stale crumbs. Have ready a baking dish or small roaster with about 3 tablespoons melted butter in it. Bake uncovered at 400 deg. Fahr., turning after 15 minutes, and basting with butter in pan and more if needed. After 30 minutes, cover and reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for another 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Be sure to cover, and if chicken seems in the least dry add 2 or 3 tablespoons boiling water to pan. Serve with

CREAM GRAVY

After the chicken is baked, pour off all but 3 tablespoons of the fat and add 3 tablespoons flour and stir. Stir in 2 cups milk or 1 cup cream and 1 cup milk, and cook until thick, stirring. Add salt and pepper to taste. Arrange chicken on hot platter and pour cream gravy over. It takes more will power than I have to reduce with that kind of food around!

BEATEN BISCUIT

(Remember—you asked for it!)

Two cups unsifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup good quality shortening, about 1-3 cup water. Mix flour and salt together and work in shortening with fingers or pastry blender. Then use just enough water to make a very stiff dough. There is a machine for beating (kneading) these—and some Southern cooks use an old fashioned clothes wringer. But if neither machine nor wringer is available or practicable put dough on a very solid wooden block which has been floured, and beat as hard as possible with a smooth wooden stick. A heavy wooden potato masher is a good substitute and is often used. The foundation must be firm. An ordinary kitchen table will be injured by the beating. A 1 1-2-inch thick wooden board on the concrete basement floor I have seen used. Give the dough 1000 strokes—it requires about 20 minutes continuous beating. When beaten roll out on floured board to 1-2-inch thickness, cut with floured 2-inch cutter and prick each biscuit all over with a fork. Place on greased baking sheet and bake 375 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes or until baked through. These are best hot but still delicious cold. Do not make a double batch as it makes the beating awkward. It is worth all of the trouble.

GLAD'S APRICOT AND CHERRY SAUCE

Drain apricots from 1 20-oz. tin and to the juice add 1-2 cup sugar and if on hand 1-2 teaspoon rum flavoring. Simmer until sugar is dissolved. Add the liquid from 1 small bottle maraschino cherries, and the cherries sliced, and the apricots chopped. Chill. Other flavorings such as almond or cherry essence are good. Keep cold and covered in the refrigerator, for this amount will be enough for two or three meals.

MARMORA I.O.D.E.

The monthly meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., was held on Thursday evening with the regent, Mrs. W. Regan, presiding over a good attendance of members.

In the absence through illness, of Mrs. A. F. Fraser, secretarial duties were discharged by Mrs. W. Shannon.

The meeting opened with prayer and the bringing forward of the flag by the standard bearer, Mrs. H. Easton.

An invitation from the Stirling Chapter to participate with them in the observance of the 11th anniversary in St. John's Parish Hall, Stirling, on March 27, was accepted. A communication was received from the "March of Dimes", intimating that additional contributions to that cause would be greatly welcomed.

Conveners

A slate of conveners of the various committees was submitted as follows, Membership, Mrs. B. G. McKenzie; Publicity, Mrs. D. P. Marett; Ex-Service Personnel, Mrs. F. R. Wells, assisted by the following leaders of sub-division: Welfare, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds; Sewing, Mrs. H. Easton, and Wool, Mrs. J. McCrodan; Flowers and Gifts, Mrs. H. Brady; Program, Mrs. G. H. Rennie; Empire Study, Miss Cecelia Towns.

A new member was received into the Chapter. Ways and means of making money in the ensuing year were discussed. It was decided that a needy family in the district should be assisted.

Empire Study for the evening took the form of a contest relating to the royal family. First prize went to Mrs. Charles Whittemore, with Miss Hilda Henderson coming second.

The flag again having been brought forward, the National Anthem was used to close the meeting, and refreshments were served by the lunch committee in charge for the evening.

GOOD MANNERS

Good news. . .these courteous brides write thank-you notes after the shower

There's good news in my mail today. . . a most refreshing and reassuring letter. I was thrilled to receive it, and indeed most grateful to receive it. . . for it reveals that there are some girls, bless their hearts, who have such a good-and-active sense of appreciation that they are willing to go all-out with words of thank-you. To a friend who has been kind and thoughtful and generous, they not only say thank-you at the shower. . .they graciously write thank-you after the shower. How we cherish these endearing gestures of Grace and Courtesy!

Here's a girl who, I think, needs just a bit of persuasion to urge her to "follow the star" of expressing-appreciation:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm expecting to have a bridal shower given for me soon. I'd like to ask you a question about this: If I thank a friend personally for a gift she gives me at the shower, must I also send her a thank-you note for the gift? Lately at showers the girls have been doing this; that is, thanking personally and writing thank-you notes. But I've noticed and I've been told they've done this only lately. Please tell me which is right.—L. R.

Here's your chance to endear yourself to your friends as charmingly as these girls have endeared themselves to their friends. Naturally you will say thank-you to each friend as she hands her shower present to you. But then make that extra-added-attraction gesture that shows the fine quality of your manners. . .a day or so after the shower, write each friend a graceful note of thanks for the shower present. Don't begrudge taking the time and effort to write these notes that are of solid-gold value in Good Manners and Friendship. Two or three sentences are ample, chatting about the present:

Dear Dorothy,

I just must tell you again how thrilled I am with your beautiful shower present, and how happy you made me. The earring case is a beauty. . . how like you to remember my passion for earrings, and to give me something to hold them so handsomely. I've already begun to use it in my dresser, and it will be a joy to have it for my travelling-case. Thank you, thank you, my dear friend!

Lovingly,

Bride's sister should be honor attendant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is married, and she wishes to have her best girl friend as maid of honor. She has only one sister, and she would like to include her in the wedding party. How can this be done?—F. E. P.

The customary procedure would be for the bride to have her sister, particularly her only sister, as her maid of honor, and to have her dearest friend as a bridesmaid.

McFEE'S BIGGEST DIAMOND EVENT IN THEIR HISTORY!
DIAMONDS FROM ¼ CARAT TO 1¼ CARATS
Offered at These Prices! Because of Slight Imperfections!

For those who prefer a larger diamond but still do not wish to spend more, McFee's have found the answer... Recently we purchased for cash, direct from the diamond cutters, several stones with very slight imperfections. If they were first quality they would sell for 2 to 3 times their present selling price. Here are stones of brilliant and dazzling beauty, despite their natural imperfections. Come in — compare these stones with diamonds of comparable size — then compare the prices. You'll agree with us when we say this is the most exciting diamond event in McFee's history. Illustrated are just a few of the many rings in the collection.

MARMORA

Free Methodist Church Installs First Piano

Marmora—Last Sunday the worshippers at Marmora Free Methodist Church had a new experience. For the first time in the history of the local congregation a piano was used in the regular service.

Ninety-one years ago when the Free Methodist Church was organized, the church leaders thought it best not to use instrumental music in the regular services of the church. This regulation was removed by general conference in 1947 and the matter of the use of music in the church was left up to the wishes of each local congregation.

At a recent meeting of the members of the church it was decided to install a piano in the Marmora church.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1952

Opposition Financial Critic Says 'Tax Rental' Offer Made By Ottawa 'Advantageous'

Toronto, March 26 (CP) — The question of whether Ontario should join other provinces in turning over certain taxation fields to Ottawa in return for subsidies was raised yesterday in the legislature.

Harry Nixon, former Liberal premier and now the opposition financial critic, said the latest federal "tax rental" offer would be "very advantageous." It would give Ontario $137,000,000 in the first year of the five-year agreement period starting April 1.

He moved a Liberal motion of non-confidence saying the House "regrets" the government has not iniated discussions on the latest federal offer. The motion will come to a vote at the end of the budget debate but stands no chance of passing the dominant government majority.

The House today will deal with estimates of the attorney-general's department. Yesterday it passed $10,500,000 in supplementary estimates for capital grants to hospitals and universities, for the teachers' superannuation fund and for home building. The money will be paid before the end of the month.

Mr. Nixon said Premier Frost's actions ran counter to his recent statements which sounded favorable to a tax agreement with Ottawa.

Ottawa was facing heavy defence expenditures, and it would be "infinitely better" for Ontario to join other provinces in an agreement to help shoulder the burden.

T. D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario) said the housing shortage had been made worse by the government's policy of relying mainly on private builders of homes.

The private builder "cannot build for those whose need is greatest, but only for those who have the most money," he said. The solution was "large-scale direct building" by the government.

Wants More Payments

He also asked for additional payments for old-age pensioners, and said that only half of the $5,000,000 saved by Ontario under the new pension plan, with the federal government carrying more of the load, would pay for $10 monthly bonuses to pensioners to help meet the cost of living.

Mr. Nixon said the province was "doing very well" in income from liquor, and urged the government not to allow further expansion of liquor advertising.

The Liquor Control Board had built up some $42,000,000 in reserves as a fund to stabilize revenue, he said, but the legislature had been given no accounting of it.

He also criticized the payment of nearly $95,000,000 of the $99,000,000 estimates of the highways department through statutes, allowing the legislature to vote only $4,500,000 of the department's total estimates.

Net Debt Increases

The government should not pass any more statutes involving annual expenditures without telling members they were "robbing themselves of the right to vote the money in the future."

The province's net debt, which had to be paid from direct taxes, totalled $569,000,000. It had increased $47,707,000 in the last year, a fact which "should be brought very emphatically to the attention of the province."

The debt position was worse than in 1943, the last year of Liberal government, when net debt was reduced by $3,853,000 and there was an over-all surplus of $20,700,000.

The province in the last year had taken $18,500,000 more in corporation taxes than it budgeted for a year ago, and was "profitting and fattening on the expenditures for defence purposes made by Ottawa."

In its corporations tax, the government "seems to feel that this is manna from heaven—that corporations have no souls."

Mr. Nixon also criticized the government's borrowing on the New York bond market. Similar borrowing before had brought "sad experiences" when the loan had to be paid in a period when U.S. dollars were at a premium.

He also urged the government to expand its new policy of giving grants in lieu of municipal taxation on government property to include taxes on power transmission lines.

Praised Speech

He also praised a speech by Education Minister Dunlop criticizing "useless spending" in schools. One school in Toronto had spent $53,000 on equipment for a stage.

Premier Frost said the province's net debt had been kept from rising too quickly because of "buoyant revenues" which allowed payment each year for some of the capital costs incurred that year.

He told the House, that province's indirect debt—loans which it has guaranteed — will likely be doubled in the next few years to $1,000,000,000 due to borrowing by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for its Niagara and St. Lawrence River projects.

Finds Brother's Body, Dies Within Minutes

Nina Clayton

William Clayton

Finding of the bodies of William Clayton, 74, and his sister, Nina, 70, on their farm at Caistorville, Ont., led at first to the belief they had been murdered for the money they were suspected of having in the house. Police later determined that the bruises found on Miss Clayton were suffered when she found the body of her brother, dead of pneumonia, and she ran, probably panic stricken, into a picket fence. She died where she fell, between the barn and the house. —Central Press Canadian Photos.

Secondary Details For Supervising Talks Completed

Munsan, Korea, March 26 (AP) —Staff officers agreed formally today on the secondary details for supervising a Korean armistice, stripping their disagreement down to who will do the supervising.

The last of the minor problems was cleaned up, a U.N. command communique said, when the staff committee reached "complete agreement on the port-of-entry question."

The Allies then tried to solve the key issue by proposing again that Russia and Norway be dropped from the list of six "neutral nations" who will police the armistice. But the communists insisted on including Russia.

Two other deadlocks stand in the way of a truce: (1) Whether the reds will be allowed to repair their bomb-shattered airfields and (2) Whether prisoners of war will have a choice of going home.

The prisoner problem was discussed freely by staff officers for the second day in off-the-record talks. They met in secret for two hours and 17 minutes but results were inconclusive, an Allied spokesman said. However, U.N. officers got a clearer idea of what the reds were driving at.

The communists refused to relay Trygve Lie's offer to help to the North Korean government.

The message from the U.N. secretary-general offered the technical assistance of the World Health Organization in combatting epidemics in North Korea which the reds say were started by germ warfare.

North Korean Col. Chang Chun San returned the message undelivered. He said it has "nothing to do with the armistice agreement. Therefore I hereby return it to you."

SUIT FILED

Tulsa, Oka., March 26 — (AP) — A $500,000 damage suite has been filed against Jack Lait and Lee Mortimer, authors of "U. S. A. Confidential," by Sheriff Geo. H. Blaine. Blaine's petition charges the book has "severely injured" his reputation in sections of the United States and Canada where he has spoken to religious and youth groups.

Historic Population Strides Made In Last Ten Years Census Reveals

Ottawa, March 26 (CP) —More and more Canadians are clinging to the major cities where some big, historic population strides have been made in the last 10 years, the census-takers disclosed yesterday.

In a final tabulation of 1951 census figures for cities proper, towns and villages, the bureau of statistics estimated:

1. Population in Montreal—Canada's biggest city, jumped 13 percent in the 1941-51 period, passing the 1,000,000 mark for the first time.

2. Biggest percentage gains in population among top - bracket cities were made by two oil-rich Alberta centres —Edmonton (159,631) and Calgary (129,060)—both of which climbed a notch to become Canada's eighth and ninth biggest cities respectively.

3. Toronto, Canada's second biggest city, made the tiniest percentage gain—1.2 percent—among the grown-ups.

4. The number of cities with populations of more than 30,000 jumped to 34 from 27 in 1941.

The figures do not include suburban areas which will be covered in metropolitan figures to be compiled in about two weeks.

Montreal's population jumped 118,513 to 1,021,520 from 903,007; Toronto's crept up by a mere 8,297 to 675,754 from 667,457.

Altogether, Canada's population in the 10-year-period jumped to 14,009,429 from 11,506,655.

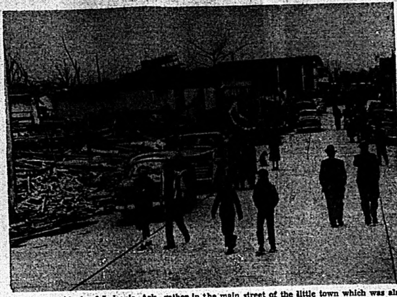
Edmonton and Calgary shoved Windsor, Ont., down two places among the top ten. The automotive centre wound up in 10th place though its population climbed 14 percent to 120,049 from 195,311.

Ten years of population growth left the seven top cities in the same order: Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Hamilton, Ottawa and Quebec.

Widespread growth in urban populations boosted these seven to cities of more than 30,000: Oshawa, Peterborough, Port Arthur, Sarnia and Sault Ste. Marie, in Ontario; Sydney in Nova Scotia; and St. John's, in Newfoundland, included in the decennial census for the first time.

Significant gains showed up in the medium and smaller cities as well. In Ontario, Sarnia's numbers increased more than 85 percent to 34,697 from 18,734.

Residents of Tornado Area Dazed by Disaster



Stunned residents of Judsonia, Ark., gather in the main street of the little town which was almost completely demolished by tornadoes that swept through the southeast. At least 237 persons are believed dead and thousands reported injured and homeless in six storm-struck states. A federal survey of the tornado zone has been ordered with a view toward providing federal funds for relief.—Central Press Canadian.

Britain's Textile Industry in Slump, Thousands of Workers Are Laid Off

London, March 26 (CP)—For the first time in nearly two decades the term "slump" is being freely used to describe conditions in a section of British industry.

The shadow of short time and unemployment has fallen across the drab mill towns in the north of England, whose H-shaped television aerials and smoking chimney pots suggested a prosperity uninterrupted since pre-war days.

Sixty thousand workers in the textile industry, centred in Lancashire, have been temporarily laid off or are on the job only three days a week. Drying up of demand at home and abroad is blamed for decline.

Exports of British textiles last year were valued at £535,000,000 compared with £415,000,000 in 1950. But the rot had already set in. Inventories were piling up in November and in the early months of 1952 the trend was sharply downhill.

Many complex factors may be at work. Perhaps the chief is that the pent-up post-war demand finally has been satisfied. Consumer resistance to the increasing cost of living may also, as one newspaper puts it, have thrown a spanner in the spindles.

Textiles used to be Canada's biggest single import from Britain. In recent years Canadian customers have been more choosy and trade has diminished. Last year Canada bought 1,185,000 square yards of cotton piece goods compared with 1,845,000 square yards the previous year, and 219,000 square yards of rayon piece goods against 318,000.

Now, with import restrictions in the sterling area forcing British manufacturers to look elsewhere, the North American market will be increasingly important. Canadian officials in London are not hopeful that anything substantial can be done in textiles. The slump here coincides with a vigorous campaign by Canadian textile industries for increased protection.

Employment in Canadian mills has dropped by 10 percent, while the Canadian share of the domestic market fell from 63 percent in 1950 to 53 percent in 1951.

Thus for Britain the outlook appears gloomy. Already newspapers are publishing stories on the plight of European volunteer workers, many of whom have no savings to cushion them against prolonged unemployment.

One hope appears to be that the growing rearmament program may absorb some of those no longer needed in the mills.

Defence Minister Repeats Appeal To Citizens

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton yesterday repeated an appeal to citizens to surrender any wartime ammunition brought home as souvenirs as it may be live and dangerous.

He made the appeal as he gave the house further details on the finding of live mortar bombs in the vicinity of Petawawa military camp, 125 miles north of the capital. An investigation of the Petawawa discoveries is still going on, he said.

Due to a mixup of two reports, he said he had erroneously told the house Monday that a live mortar bomb found by a boy, Jimmy Rae, had been picked up on the Petawawa ranges. Actually it had been found at a garbage dump near Pembroke.

Prepare for Great Crusade, George Drew Tells Followers At Ottawa Dinner Meeting

Ottawa, March 26 (CP) —The Progressive Conservatives today nailed down some of the planks of their platform for the next federal election, a contest their leader, George Drew, urged them to undertake as a "great crusade."

Mr. Drew addressed the annual dinner of the Progressive Conservative Association last night after the association, the women's branch and the Young Progressive Conservatives pooled their resolutions for voting today.

George Nowlan, president of the association, struck the main note for the convention when it opened Monday. He said the association will put emphasis on organization at the "grass-roots level" in preparation for a general election.

Both Mr. Nowlan and Mr. Drew said at one time or another during the convention that the Progressive Conservative party is gaining popularity and can win the next election. The life of the present parliament expires August, 1954.

Mr. Drew said the people will turn from the Liberal party which in the "long exercise of power now has forgotten that it is the servant and not the master of the people."

One controversial issue that came out of the closed meetings was a resolution by the Young Progressive Conservative Association. It suggested a criminal code amendment to permit provincial lotteries for the financing of hospitals.

The Young Progressive Conservatives also wanted the government to revise its immigration policies and provide exemptions from unemployment insurance for students.

The lotteries resolution drew criticism from the CCF Youth Movement, which said the recommendation "shows utter disregard . . . towards responsible public policy with regard to national health needs.

"No public institution as important as our hospitals should have to depend on lotteries for their maintenance and construction."

The past president of the Young Progressive Conservatives, Jack McNie of Hamilton, Ont., also had a word of criticism in Hamilton. He said government-sponsored lotteries have no place in a free society and are not a principle to be adopted by a party dedicated to free enterprise.

He said he would sooner adopt the "ill-conceived" hospital plan of Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, than introduce government-approved lotteries.

Judge is Playwright

Judge Eric Cross of Woodstock, Ont., is the author of a three-act play, "This Shall Endure," presented this week by the Woodstock Little Theatre. Judge Cross, who uses the pseudonym, Eric Blake, wrote a number of short stories 25 years ago but published none of them. He long has had an interest in dramatics and in 1946 was elected first president of the Woodstock Little Theatre Group. He has been a judge in Oxford County since 1944. — (CP Photo)

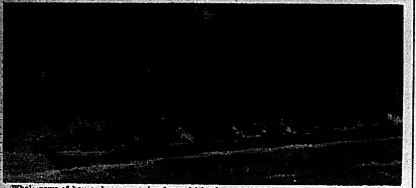
Waves Devour Homes on Lake Ontario and Erie

Homes along 300 miles of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario shorelines took a severe beating from 60-mile-an-hour winds which whipped waves ashore often over the tops of houses. When the waves subsided at Long Branch, Ont., the shoreline was a mass of wreckage of homes and boathouses. Many lost all their possessions and an appeal has been made to the provincial government. — Central Press Canadian.



Whole rows of houses became peninsulas and islands on Lake Ontario's north shore. It was the worst storm in 10 years, and destruction was magnified by the high water level of the lakes. — Central Press Canadian.

Not Only Cats Have Nine Lives

U. S. Marine Lieut. Eugene R. Brady smiles in relief and mops his dampened brow as he surveys his battered wingtip tank after safely landing his Panther jet fighter-bomber at his base in Korea. The tank was blasted by communist anti-aircraft shellfire while Lt. Brady was on a strike against red rail lines. He managed to get his plane back to base without further mishap. — Central Press Canadian.

Gale Wrecks House

George Cairns of Toronto's suburban Long Branch looks sorrowfully at the raging waters of Lake Ontario which have torn away the living room and two bedrooms and flooded the remainder of his home. In Long Branch 44 families were left homeless and 21 houses were condemned as unfit for human habitation in on-the-spot checks by village councillors. The storm extended all along the Great Lakes area from Oshawa to Windsor and damage was heavy. — (CP Photo.)

Candidates for NATO Leadership

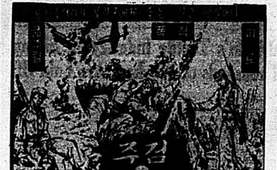
Alphones Juin, French hero, is also a candidate. — Central Press Canadian.

War Chief And "Tragic Victim"

General James A. Van Fleet, U.N. commander in Korea, took time out from the grim business of running a war and went to play with the youngsters at Columba Orphanage in Seoul. The general has described these orphans as among "the most tragic victims of the Korean conflict." He is experienced at playing with children, as he is a seven-time granddad. — Central Press Canadian.

Invite Communist Troops to Surrender



In efforts to terminate the Korean war quickly and bloodlessly, the psychological warfare branch of the U.N. military headquarters is busily engaged in creating and dropping leaflets in enemy territory on the Korean battlefield. The theme of the leaflets is to urge the Chinese and Koreans to surrender. Instructions in English and Korean are from General Ridgway to U.N. troops, guaranteeing good treatment to all enemy soldiers coming into the U.N. lines to surrender in good faith. This leaflet depicts, starvation, shellfire and exhaustion. The reverse side (not shown) portrays communist soldiers surrendering to U.N. troops. — Central Press Canadian.

Triplets' Names Came Naturally

Meteor, Monarch and Mercury are the names given to these three triplet calves born on the farm of Joseph Wickson, reeve of Trafalgar township, Ont. Storm Hits Lakefront

Wind and rain went on a rampage during the weekend along southern Ontario's Great Lakes' shoreline. Hundreds of residents were driven from their homes as winds that reached gusts of 60 miles an hour lashed the water. Huge waves pounded the shore. In Toronto's suburban Mimico a cottage occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Warrington, James Boyd and Frank Beardmore, all recently arrived from England, was pounded by the waves which already had crumbled the verandah. The storm was the tail-end of a disturbance that earlier had stirred up tornadoes in the southern United States.—(CP Photo.)

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

A MAN'S MUSING

Well, here it comes. Right on schedule. My wife calls it by many names: Influenza, La Grippe, Spring Fever.

The symptoms are always the same. The heavy weights stapled to the eye-lids. The torpor seeping through the bones trailing a dull ache. A feeling of irritability born of the knowledge that I will be a clod for a week at least.

It's happened to me annually as far back as my memory takes me. My mother used to attack it with sulphur and molasses. My wife puts her faith in an incredible assortment of pills and tonics. Only I knew that patience and suffering are the cures.

And why does it happen in Spring, always in Spring? Why, when I feel like gamboling among the daffodils, am I struck prone by this obstinate, nasty germ, this perverse virus? I could bear it in early January, might welcome the time in bed. But, no! The invisible bug hangs around waiting until that very day when a man feels like leaping and knocking his heels together. Then it strikes. This is my fate.

Whenever I get a minor ailment like this and become impossible to live with, my thoughts turn to the people I know who are really sick and one in particular who has been in great pain for many a long year. All of these people seem to find a hidden well of courage and good cheer that are shining examples of the human spirit at its best.

The friend in particular has been in Shaughnessy Military Hospital since the end of the war and it will be some time before he is able to leave there. Even then he'll never be a well man again. Yet whenever I visit him I'm uplifted by his attitude.

I mentioned this one day to a nurse at the hospital and she told me there are many, many like him, people who might turn sour on life—and with good reason—but who chose to take their troubles with a smile. I suppose it is a trite thing to say, but good health is the most priceless possession of all. I do believe I'll try to be a little less cranky this time.

I suppose it's a little late to say "I told you so," but I've a very delayed footnote for those lads who abused so much last summer when I suggested that the game of baseball has become a dreary bore. If they'll look this week in Life they'll see Ty Cobb, the greatest of them all saying exactly the same thing. . . .

How lonely can you get? Well you can be mighty lonely at a party where everybody but you has read "The Caine Mutiny" and "The Cruel Sea." Happened to me earlier this week. . . .

Speaking of books, let me recommend John Collier's "Fancies and Goodnights," a collection of his grisly little short yarns at the same time. . . .

Best investment I ever made was to give myself a subscription to the Manchester Guardian Weekly. Its editorial comments on the news make the American syndicated pundits seem like small, boys. . . .

Is Clyde Gilmour lowering his critical sights? Or was he just in a weak mood when he recommended "Quo Vadis"? . . .

What a sense of calm descends when the tots are finally abed and gone to sleep!

People who write letters to the paper never learn. I get a dozen or more a week from people whose letters have been rejected by the editor and who send them on to me complaining that their opinion is being "suppressed." Ain't so. Almost always they're too long or occasionally libellous. Keep them short and snappy and remember that the newspapers get hundreds of letters every day. It's the best reading in the paper for my dough. . . . Next to the "Personal" ads, that is. . . .

A two-dollar set of poster paints is the best thing I know to get a youngster interested in self-expression. . . . Several Scout leaders mad at me because I used their title in a flippant way. I meant no offense, of course, and was using it to suggest merely the care of children. I'm an ex-Scout myself with a vast respect for the men who take the time and trouble to help boys along. One Frank Millerd writes: "I've yet to meet better men" and I agree. I offend so many people naturally I hate to do it by accident. . . .

Why - Don't - They - Do - It - Here note: The bus system in Burton - on - Trent lost $20,000 last year, so they've set out to get new business with penny tickets. . . . Have you done your bit yet for the Red Cross? I always feel it's money well-spent, having seen Red Cross workers in action during the Winnipeg floods.

Plenty of interesting reading in a little mimeographed booklet called "Transition" published by the men of the B.C. Penitentiary. There's a verse in the current issue called "On the Prospect of Tomorrow's Release" that expresses the way one inmate feels about his freedom: "'Twas thorns and boulders all the way: And yet (this may sound queer), the going-out is almost worth the price of being here." . . . Incidentally, "outsiders" may subscribe to the magazine at $1.50 a year, the proceeds going to the Prisoners' Recreation Fund. Write: The Warden, Box "M," New Westminster. . . .

Several readers say that their daughters, like mine, have objected to the line in the goodnight prayer that goes "If I should die before I wake." A Mrs. McAteer writes that her children say the prayer this way: "His love, will keep me through the night, and wake me with the morning light."

I don't know why anybody would be interested, but there's an outfit in Scotland canning haggis for world export. There's optimism for you!

FRANKFORD

Angus Cranston Gives Talk On 'South Africa'

Frankford — The Frankford Lions Club held their bi-monthly meeting in the Community Hall Wednesday evening. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion provided their usual fine banquet for the meeting.

Delegates were appointed to attend the Dominion Convention in London in June. The rink report showed a fair year, in spite of a late start due to pump failure, and an unfortunate year for the hockey team.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Angus Cranston of Batawa, late of the Union of South Africa: Mr. Cranston was introduced by a fellow Batawa neighbor, Lion Harry Pearce.

Mr. Cranston brought a vivid and enlightening talk on Africa illustrating his talk with pictures. He stressed the fact that many political organizations, to further their own ends, had done their best to smear the Union of South Africa with false reports on racial difficulties. That fine country is rapidly becoming a top nation, and other countries are beginning to realize that South Africa is taking a prominent part in the world.

Mr. Cranston was warmly applauded by Lions present. Lion Ralph Bell thanked him on behalf of the club.

Play Presented

The play "Aunt Bessie Beats the Band," was presented in Rose-Lowery Hall Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the United Church Women's Association. This three-act comedy, featuring talent from Zion Young People's Union of the Seymour Charge, was well attended, and all report an excellent performance. Some will remember that the Frankford Young People's Union presented the same play some years ago, but this did not prevent a large audience turning out for a splendid evening of entertainment.

BANCROFT

Local Officials Refuse Comment On Tax Changes

Bancroft — Veteran officials of local municipal affairs would not make any direct comments on Premier Frost's announcement of the expansion of the municipal taxation field to include business offices and certain other properties of the provincial government but there certainly was a feeling of optimism or elation in the air.

All cannily refused to make statements until they received specific instructions from the department of municipal affairs.

As Bancroft is a divisional headquarters for the Ontario Department of Highways, a sub-headquarters for the Department of Lands and Forests and the location of a four-man provincial police detachment some of the largest buildings in the village have been previously exempt from municipal taxation. RAWDON

Many Enjoy Colorful Switzerland Films

Rawdon—A large number of Rawdon folk attended a special film story of Switzerland in St. Paul's United Church on Tuesday evening in aid of the senior choir.

Mr. Atnon R. Tendi, the celebrated Swiss traveller and commentator delighted the audience with his address and films of the world's oldest democracy. The films and sound effects were in charge of Mr. Churchill and his son of Foxboro.

The commentator was born and educated in Switzerland and he has lived in many countries. He is a dual citizen of Canada and Switzerland and served as an intelligence officer in the Canadian army during World War II.

Live at Peace

Mr. Tendi in his address pictured Switzerland as a country where four different lingual groups live at peace with each other. This country has been able to maintain a democratic way of life for 660 years and it is a great example of inter-racial tolerance and co-operation.

The various films depicted the beauty and glory of the Alpine wonderland, its picturesque green valleys, medieval towns and the modern cities with large industries especially that of clocks and watches. Over 90 per cent of the watches of the world are manufactured in that land.

There were many vivid scenes of skiing in the high Alps, founding of the Red Cross and its flag the St. Bernard monks and their faithful dogs and the League of Nations assembly.

This commonwealth has realized long eras of peace and has been founded on Christian faith. Switzerland is devoid of raw materials but every inch of arable land is utilized.

Lovely Gardens

Luscious grapes, beautiful flowers, fruit trees and lovely gardens were shown and these industrious people have attained one of the highest living standards in the world.

A large area is covered by giant mountains, glaciers and snowfields and these were presented in all their majesty and color and were beautiful beyond description.

This good-will program shows what can be done to promote peace and happiness and it was a message of hope and encouragement to all those who were in attendance.

When life is in your hands

If someone's breathing stops from gas, drowning, electric shock—could you save his life?

April Reader's Digest tells about a new, surer method of artificial respiration the Red Cross and U.S. Army now use — with pictures to show you how.

The new technique takes so little strength a child can save a grown man. And because it forces air into the lungs as well as out, it's more effective than the widely used Schafer method.

GOOD NEIGHBOUR POLICY

Hanging out my laundry I noticed that Mrs. Layton's, next door, was whiter. I couldn't help asking her why. 'Reckitt's Blue keeps out that yellow tinge', she said. 'Just swish it through the final rinse. You can only obtain pure white with blue, and you don't take chances with anything that may damage fabric.' That's what I call good neighbourliness and good advice. It's Reckitt's Blue for me from now on, particularly as it costs so little.

Detroit Red Wings, Canadiens Draw First Blood In Stanley Cup Playoffs

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"A HOT TIME . . ."

Tonight's the night. This evening the powerful Weston Dukes match strides and checks with the hot Hawks of this city in the first of their home-and-home series for the right to enter the provincial junior "B" semi-finals. Round-robin entries in the western Ontario bracket are Hamilton, London and Waterloo.

Coach "Red" Doran sent his charges through a strenuous workout last night perfecting defensive plays as well as power sweeps which he will send against the visiting Dukes. Chicago Black Hawk officialdom, or at least some of it will be on hand to view the struggle including chief eastern scout Bob Wilson, Coach "Red" Hamill Galt junior "A" Hawks, and Johnny Mitchell also of the Hawk staff. It is a possibility that Bill Tobin, president of the Chicago National League organization will be on hand.

Interest in the game is at fever pitch and latest reports have it a capacity crowd if not an all-time record, will see the struggle.

1952 STANLEY CUP PLAYOFF NOTES

Toronto Maple Leafs, the defending Stanley Cup holders, are not lacking in playoff experience . . . Sixteen members of the Leafs have played on at least one Stanley Cup winner. Six of the Leafs, Ted Kennedy, Jim Thomson, Gus Mortson, Harry Watson, Howie Meeker and Joe Klukay have played on four Stanley Cup teams . . . Kennedy, captain of the Leafs, has played on five Cup champions. No other player in modern hockey has played on as many Cup winners . . . Conn Smythe, Toronto manager, shares with Tommy Gorman the distinction of managing the most Stanley Cup teams. Smythe has managed every Toronto Maple Leafs team to annex the Cup and the Leafs have won it seven times... The Leafs were Cup winners in 1932, 1942, 1945, 1947, 1948, 1949 and 1951. Toronto became the first team since the National Hockey League was formed in 1917 to capture Lord Stanley's powter three successive years . . . Leafs have missed the playoff once in the last 21 years and that was in 1946.

Winners of the National Hockey League championship for the fourth straight year, Detroit Red Wings are attempting to win their fifth Stanley Cup . . . Detroit were winners in 1936, 1937, 1943 and 1950 . . . Jack Adams managed all four clubs . . . Detroit has been defeated in the Cup finals on six occasions and four of the six were by Toronto . . . This is the 13th straight appearance of Detroit in the playoffs. No other club can match this record for the past 13 years . . . Tommy Ivan, Detroit coach, has appeared in five Cup playoffs in as many years. The Wins won the Cup once and were finalists twice during Ivan's regime.

Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup finalists of 1951, are making their 22nd appearance in the playoffs . . . Canadiens copped the Cup in 1930, 1931, 1944 and 1946. They also won the Stanley Cup in 1924 prior to the expansion of the NHL . . . This is the 22nd Stanley Cup playoffs as a coach for Dick Irvin of Canadiens. The 59-year-old Montreal mentor has piloted three clubs to the Stanley Cup. Toronto in 1932 and Canadiens in 1944 and 1946 . . . Frank Selke has managed Canadiens to the playoffs five times in the six years he's been at the team's helm.

Boston Bruins have participated in the Cup playoffs in 23 years of the 28 they've been a member of the National Hockey League . . . Art Ross has managed every one of those teams. Ross managed the Bruins to the Stanley Cup in 1929, 1939 and 1941. He coached the '29 and '39 winners . . . This is the third playoff series in a row for Lynn Patrick, Boston coach.

Maurice Richard scored the winning goal for Canadiens in three Cup games last spring. Two of these were in a row against Detroit in the semi-finals . . . Fastest goal in a playoff game was scored by Sid Smith of Toronto against Canadiens on April 11, 1951. He scored 15 seconds after game started . . . Most penalties in one series are 61 and were set in 1951 in first five games of Boston-Toronto semi-finals . . . 50 minors, eight majors and three misconducts were handed out by the referee 21 penalties in Toronto-Boston game in Toronto on March 31, 1951, are the most penalties in one playoff game . . . 16 minors, four majors and one misconduct were meted out by Referee Red Storey . . . Most penalties in one period are 15 and this took place in Boston on April 1, 1951, in same Boston-Toronto series. Referee Bill Chadwick imposed 12 minors, two majors and one misconduct.

Quakers, Rockets Win First Games Pacific Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

Saskatoon Quakers shut-out Edmonton Flyers 2-0 and Tacoma Rockets defeated Seattle Ironmen 6-4 last night as the Pacific Coast Hockey League playoffs opened in Saskatoon and Tacoma.

Quakers, playing before 5,000 home-town fans, saved their payoffs punch for the third period and then scored twice to take a one-game lead in their best-of-five quarter-final.

Johnny Chad and George Senick were the scorers.

Wingy Johnston, Bart Bradley, Moe Young, Doug Adam, Mark Marquess and Ted O'Connor scored for Tacoma while Joe Conn, George Homenuke, Rudy Filion and Jim Fairburn were sniping for Seattle.

Edmonton faces Quakers in Saskatoon in the second game of their series tomorrow night. Second game of the Tacoma-Seattle series will be in Seattle Friday.

Wings Hand Leafs 3-0 Shutout In Rough Brawling Battle; Bruins Bow to Les Habs 5-1

Detroit, March 26 — (CP) — Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, whose ice antics have at times resembled pier six brawls, are on the rampage. Wings took the opener of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals 3-0 last night but the scoring was incidental to the fist-swinging, wood-chopping, clipping and other penalty-drawing shenanigans.

The Wings, when they concentrated on hockey, showed the 14,316 frenzied home-town fans why they are 2-1 favorites to take the Stanley Cup champions in this round. But the boys on both clubs forgot for the most part that it's still impossible to score goals from the penalty box. As it was, they broke one penalty playoff record and equalled another.

Referee Bill Chadwick and linesmen George Hayes and Bill Morrison skated miles trying to separate the brawling, wrestling and sweater-tugging athletes. Twenty-nine penalties were called, including four majors and four misconducts—eight more than the previous high of 21 set in the second game of the Boston-Toronto semi-finals last spring.

Fifteen were called in the second period and this parade to the penalty box matched the total for one 20-minute session, also set in the third game of the Boston-Toronto what-was-it last year.

May Break Sin Records

If this rough stuff continues, and there's every reason to believe it will o nthe general ill-feeling last night, these two feuding rivals probably will crack any existing records for time spent in the box next to the timekeepers.

The Wings, who have won the National Hockey League the last four seasons and who have taken the cup only once in that period, were sent flying midway through the final session when Red Kelly's close-in drive beat goalkeeper Al Rollins.

The Sid Abel-Gordie Howe-Ted Lindsay line—the highest-scoring trio in the N. H. L. this season—combined to put the Wings two up at 2.59 of the third period with Abel poking the puck into payoff territory on the rebound of Howe's long shot. Rookie John Wilson salted it away with the third goal at 14.21 on a breakaway that caught Rollins out of position.

The notion that playoff games are played close to the vest—an old-fashioned idea that has been knocked silly the last few years—took its beating early last night. Toronto defenceman Gus Mortson went off at 2.02 of the first period for riding Wilson into the boards and from that point on there was somebody resting—or fighting—in the penalty box every five minutes until almost halfway into the third.

Leaf defenceman Fern Flaman set the stage for the second-period banishments when he was thumbed off four times within seven minutes—the last two going as a double penalty for holding and roughing Glen Skov at 14.20.

Toronto took 16 of the 29 penalties with eight players getting the gate. Seven Red Wings split the other 13.

The teams will be given two days to cool out. Second game of the series will be played here Thursday night with the third and fourth going to Toronto on Saturday and next Tuesday.

If necessary, and the clubs aren't chopped up, the fifth game will be played here April 3, the sixth at Toronto April 5 and the seventh here April 8.

Montreal, March 26 (CP) —That big first game, a potent wedge in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final, rested with Montreal Canadiens today.

Unless Boston Bruins can do something quickly about the 5-1 shellacking they absorbed last night, the gap will be widened to the point where the series may start falling apart right in the Bruins' back yard.

Canadiens took the opener through steady, methodical and all round play. The big thrill for the 14,357 home-town fans was supplied by Maurice (Rocket) Richard with a Florida sun tan and minus his tummyache, who whistled in two goals, enough in themselves to win.

Rookie Dickie Moore, Billy Reay and Floyd Curry tossed in the other goals that added up to a night of disaster for the Bruins. Pentti Lund was the only Bruin who could get the jump on little Gerry McNeil, Montreal goalie.

No Complaints

It may have been an off night for the Bruins. Coach Lynn Patrick said he had no complaints to make and that his team is far from being counted out.

Coach Dick Irvin beamed happily but had no predictions about second game here, Thursday night. The teams then move to Boston for two games.

The game lacked fireworks or anything of the spectacular except for Richard's rollicking forays in old-time style. The Rocket got into the last five games of the regular season after a lay-off of 22 games because of persistent groin pains.

Richard's opening goal early in the first period came when defenceman Murray Henderson moved up to meet Elmer Lach at the blue line and got left on the rest of the play. Lach was partly tripped and shoved the puck forward. Milt Schmidt, Boston centre, trapped it but before he could move, Richard had swept in, knocked Schmidt's stick from his hands and grabbed the puck himself to move in on goalie Jim Henry and score with a lift shot.

Defenceman Bill Quackenbush was an unwitting victim of Moore's goal in the second period. Taking a pass from Richard, Moore let loose a 30-foot drive. The puck struck Quackenbush, who was protecting Henry, and fell to the ice. Before he could clear it, Moore raced in and scored.

Lund's goal in the same period raised Boston's hopes. The Bruins were putting on the pressure at the time and Ed Sandford, digging for the corner in the Montreal end, intercepted Canadiens' attempt to clear the puck from a scramble of players. He passed sharply to Lund, 15 feet from the goal, and Lund rifled a fast shot past McNeil.

Quackenbush was caught alone on the defence on Richard's second goal. The Rocket picked up a loose puck near centre ice, passed forward to Moore and followed him in. Just as he reached Quackenbush, Moore left a drop pass for Richard, who swung to the left and sent a low shot into the far corner of the net.

Johnny Peirson, Bruin right-winger, was the goat on Reay's goal in the third period. When Peirson lost the puck just outside the Boston goal crease Reay pounced on it and scored with a backhander before Henry could move.

Defenceman Gus Kyle was outguessed on Canadiens' final goal, with less than a minute of play left. Curry got loose from the pack on Doug Harvey's pass. With Kyle the only man between him and Henry, Curry tricked his way around the defenceman and went on in to score.

Reds Tie Series With Cleveland; Bears Click 3-1

(By The Canadian Press)

The Providence Reds are on the brink of pulling the biggest upset of the 1851-52 American Hockey League Calder Cup playoffs.

Cleveland's powerful defending champion Barons were installed as favorites to crush the Reds in their best-of-five series. The Barons lived up to their ratings by taking the first two games but the underdog Reds have come back to tie the series.

The Reds stunned the Barons last night 4-0 to square accounts at two games apiece. The deciding game will be played in Cleveland Thursday night.

The Reds came up with their best performance of the season in completely outplaying the defending champions.

Providence struck for two goals while the Barons were short-handed in the first period and scored two more in the finale. Ray Powell the league's leading scorer, paced their attack with two markers.

Goalie Harvey Bennett of the Reds made 35 stops.

Meanwhile Pittsburgh Pirates dropped a 3-1 decision to Hershey Bears. But the Pirates still lead the best-of-seven playoff series three games to one.

Norm Corcoran and Ray Garlepy scored two quick goals in the third period to give Hershey the victory.

Corcoran scored the deciding goal at 9:51 of the final period when he rifled a 30-foot shot past goalie Gil Mayer after taking a pass from Ray Barry. Garlepy added the insurance marker unassisted on a fluke shot three minutes later.

The Bears took an early lead in the first period when Barry fired a shot into the net while goalie Mayer was flat on his back.

Ray Hannigan tied the game up for Pittsburgh shortly after the third period opened as he scored all alone from 25 feet.

Stratford Wins OHA Senior Title With 4-1 Victory Over Owen Sound

(By The Canadian Press)

Until this season, Stratford had not had a team in Ontario Hockey Association senior A play since 1949, and that year the club finished far out of the playoffs. The three-year layoff however, doesn't seem to have hurt.

Last night, Stratford Indians won the 1952 OHA senior A championship by coming up with four straight goals—three of them in overtime—to eliminate the 1951 Allan Cup champion Owen Sound Mercurys in the seventh and deciding game of their finals.

The victory gave Stratford the John Ross Robertson Trophy, emblematic of the big six title, for the second time—they last won the OHA senior crown in 1907— and moved the club into Allan Cup play against Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A champions, in an all-Ontario final.

The series is tentatively scheduled to open in Stratford Friday night.

Tight Hockey

Both clubs played tight, scoreless hockey before 3,700 Stratford fans until 6:03 of the third period when Doug Gillespie drew first blood on a three-man attack with Andy Grant and Mike Bukacheski.

Bruce Burdett tied it up on passes from Don Heinbuch and Ron Aitken five minutes later, sending the game into a 10-minute overtime session.

The Mickey Roth-Billy Flick-Denny Flanagan line wasted little time in making the extra period count. Flick connected at 4:56 and Flanagan came through at 8:03. The other two of the trio collected assists on each goal.

When Mercurys yanked goalie Bob Gillson in favor of an extra forward in the closing seconds, Ron Aitken clinched the issue with a shot into the empty net.

Although the OHA senior A title hunt was decided last night, the juniors still are battling for the right to represent their league in Memorial Cup play.

Guelph Biltmores move into St. Catharines tonight for the second game of their best-of-seven finals with the Teepees. St. Catharines leads the series 1-0 on the strength of a 4-3 victory at Guelph Monday night.

Yankees Will Miss Joe DiMaggio More Than They Think, Says Vitt

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, Ariz., March 26 (AP)—The voice of experience in the form of Oscar Vitt is prepared to warn New York Yankees that they are going to miss Joe DiMaggio more than they have any idea.

Old Oss, himself, is taking it easy these days. The one time Detroit star quit the game shortly after the "cry baby" episode at Cleveland in 1940, when his players revolted at what they considered cruel and inhuman treatment and forced his resignation.

"I don't care who the Yanks put out there in centre field—Mantle, Jensen, Woodling, Cerv or whoever—he's not going to be another DiMaggio," Oss declared. "In the course of a season, the difference between having Joe and some other player out there can easily come to six or eight victories, and Stengel will find it out. I'm only talking about his fielding, too.

He Knows, Says Vitt

"Believe me, I know. He murdered me in the three years I was at Cleveland. I can remember at least a half-dozen games we lost to those guys that we would have won but for some catch or throw Joe made at a crucial point. I never saw one to equal him in that respect, no matter what my old teammate Ty Cobb says about the moderns.

"I'll never forget one important game we lost to the Yanks 3 to 2. The first time Hal Trosky came up with two out and men on base he hit one a country mile out by the flagpole at the stadium. I didn't think Joe had a chance at it, but he went back on those long legs of his and hauled it down. I stayed in the coaches box until he came in, and I won't tell you what I said to him.

"Next time Hal came up I waved to Joe to go way back, muttering to myself, and he took me up on it. He trotted out several more steps, and I could see him grinning at me. This time Trosky banged as pretty a Texas leaguer as you ever saw out over second, and as it cleared the infield I cupped my hands and yelled "Get that one, you so and so!"

"Well, I'll be damned if he didn't. He came in and made one of the prettiest shoestring catches you ever saw. I didn't have anything more to say that day.

"And don't think that just because he slowed up in the last few years that he wasn't still making them. His sense of anticipation became more wonderful with the years."

St. Kitts Rally to 4-3 Win Over Guelph

Guelph Biltmores, nicknamed the "Mad Hatters," weren't quite mad enough as they blew a three-goal lead to drop a 4-3 verdict to the amazing St. Catharines Teepees in first game of the best-of-seven OHA junior final series. Decided underdogs at the outset, the St. Kitts' kids checked the Bilts' high-scoring forwards — Laufman, Murphy and Bathgate — to a frazzle, then sank four goals in succession. Here Hass, 7, of St. Catharines battles for puck with Guelph's Henderson, with Bilts' goalie, Marvin Brewer, an interested onlooker. — Central Press Canadian.

'Disgraceful Hockey' Roars Adams; 'Planned Strategy' Retorts Smythe

Detroit, March 26 (CP)—"Dirty play" charges were traded by Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings after last nuight's Stanley Cup semi-final opener which saw hockey take a back seat to a record-breaking penalty parade.

"It was disgraceful hockey and blame rests with Leafs' top management," said Detroit Manager Jack Adams after his club had beaten Toronto -0 in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

"It was planned strategy to upset our offense," Adams added. "That's the way the Leafs always play and it doesn't make any difference who the opponent is. Our boys had orders not to fight back—just head for the penalty box if they were sent there."

Flaman "Flamin"

Manager Conny Smythe of the Leafs countered by accusing the Red Wings of going after one of the Toronto defencemen.

"The Wings were trying to get (Fern) Flaman out of the game," he said. "Apparently Chadwick (referee Bill Chadwick) didn't know Flaman had a fractured jaw."

Flaman drew five penalties — three of them in the second period when 15 were handed out, tying the record for a period.

Smythe naturally wasn't counting the Leafs out of the running. "There wasn't much chance to play hockey," he said. "But we'll be back in there Thursday.

In all, 29 penalties—totalling 88 minutes—were called during last night's game. The old record of 24 was set in 1949 by the Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens during the regular season. Previous playoff record was 21 set by Toronto and Boston Bruins last season.

During the second period the penalty box was occupied for 15 minutes and 15 seconds of the 20 minutes.

Seven roughing penalties led the march to the cooler. Six were for interference, four were majors for fighting; four were misconducts; two for high-sticking; two for holding; two hooking; one tripping and one cross-checking.

Oddly enough, Ted Lindsay of the Red Wings who has a reputation as a rough house player, didn't have a penalty called against him.

Pembroke Drubs St. F. Xavier 8-1 In Cup Playoff

Ottawa, March 26 (CP) —Pembroke Lumber Kings last night ran St. Francis Xavier University ragged to take a two-game lead in the eastern quarter finals of the Allan Cup playdowns.

Kings, who outscored the game Maritimers in all previous games, ran the score up to 8-0 before St. Francis spoiled the shutout and ended the game 8-1.

Kings tagged the Maritimers 4-3 in the first game of the best-of-five series. They chalked up the same score after two overtime periods in the second but the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association disallowed the fourth goal and declared it a 3-3 draw.

A hat trick by veteran forward Hub Anslow was the feature of Kings eight-goal splurge. He tallied once in each period. The three Giesebrecht brothers gave a good account of themselves, Roy with a pair of goals, Bruce with a singleton and an assist and Fred with an assist.

Jack Carthy and Johnny Inglis were the other Pembroke scorers.

A prolonged scramble in front of the Pembroke nets paid off for St. Francis in the final frame. Johnny Markle's low screened shot drifted through a maze of legs while netminder Fred Murphy was out of position.

The score indicated the wide margin of play Kings held throughout the game. But efficient work by Hughie McMullen saved the Maritimers from a worse beating.

Marmora, Flyers In Valley Final; Havelock Ousted

Marmora Millionaires and Trenton RCAF Flyers will meet for the championship of the Trent Valley League with the first game scheduled for Memorial Arena Friday night.

Marmora swept in to the finals by defeating the Havelock team, champions of the northern section, by an 8-7 score in Peterborough last night to win the odd game of the best-of-five series.

It was a close battle all through with Marmora having sufficient edge to pull out the victory. A report from Peterborough said 1,800 fans saw the game.

Newspaper Drops Racing News

New Orleans, March 26 — (AP) — The Times-Picayune announced today it will omit racing news at the request of Police Superintendent Joseph Scheuering who said the lack of information would mean "a knockout blow" to bettors.

In a front-page story, accompanied by Scheuering's letter of request, the Times-Picayune said it disagreed with the police official but would drop racing results, entries and selections "for a reasonable period to permit his theory a trial."

The paper also printed the names and addresses of more than 100 local purchasers of federal gambling stamps and said it believed "a real 'knock-out blow' to illegal gambling could be dealt by Superintendent Scheuering's department if it would close the handbooks."

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

An estimated 250,000 persons who do not pay a penny will watch next Saturday's boat race between crack eights of Oxford and Cambridge Universities.

Boat race day is London's big outdoor carnival as the rival crews pull the gruelling 4 1-4 mile stretch along the Thames from Putney to Mortlake in London's southwest suburbs.

This year's race will be the 98th in the series that began in 1829. Cambridge has won 52 times, Oxford 44. The 1877 race was a dead-heat. Next Saturday Cambridge will bid for its sixth straight win.

Apparently Joe Louis is as popular as ever around the world. The portly Brown Bomber said yesterday in New York he plans to make an exhibition tour of eastern Canada late in June. The itinerary hasn't been completed but Joe said: "I'll probably appear in 18 or 20 places, spaced over a month.

Fans in the Far East want him back for another trip, too. Joe toured army camps and hospitals in Japan and Korea last year. Promoters in the Orient want him to appear in Hong Kong, Japan and Singapore among other places.

Bob Dillinger, sold to Philadelphia Athletics by St. Louis Browns two years ago for $125,000, headed for the minors yesterday. In Tucson, Ariz., Chicago White Sox, who obtained the 33-year-old third baseman last season from Pittsburgh for the waiver price of $10,000, sold him to Sacramento of the Pacific Coast league for $10,000 and a player yet to be named.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association will be held in Montreal March 29, the C.O.A. March bulletin said yesterday. It likely will be the last session of the association before the summer Olympic games in Helsinki. It also announced that the association has approved June 14 for rowing and sculling Olympic trials in St. Catharines.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., fired a six-under-par 65 yesterday in Aiken, S.C., to win the Palmetto Golf Club's 8th annual pro-amateur golf tournament. Showing little effects of the 72 holes of pressure golf that won him $1,400 second-place money in the Jacksonville Open Monday, Snead was never over par-71 on the the 6,676 yard Aiken course. Yesterday's victory earned him $450.

Yoland Pompee, undefeated light heavyweight contender from Trinidad knocked out Erik Jensen of Denmark in 2:32 of the third round of a scheduled 10-round fight last night in London. The Trinidad fighter, eighth-ranked in the 175-pound division caught Jensen with a solid right to the head and then brought a left hook against the Dane's chin.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, Chicago Cub's second-best pitcher last season, yesterday celebrated his 42nd birthday far from a rocking chair, "I've said it before, and I say it now," said the righthander who broke into professional ball 22 years ago, "they'll have to peel this uniform off me before I quit." Leonard is currently one of Cubs' most energetic players in spring training in Phoenix, Ariz.

Dr. N. A. M. Mackenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, said yesterday in Vancouver "we simply have not the available space" on the university grounds for the 40,000 seat stadium proposed by the British Empire Games committee for the 1954 games. He said the university would agree only to a temporary structure and not the $600,000 stadium proposed.

George Agar of Calgary Stampeders won the Pacific Coast Hockey League scoring championships in a breeze, statistics released by the league office in Seattle showed yesterday. Agar compiled 38 goals and 55 assists for 93 points, eight moret han Eddie Dorohy of Victoria Cougars and Gord Fashoway of New Westminster Royals, who tied for second place.

FREED OF CHARGES

New York, March 26 (AP)—A retired 50-year-old school teacher, Miss Elizabeth Moesch, was freed yesterday on charges that she violated sanitary laws in keeping some 40 cats and dogs in her musty cluttered brownstone house. Representatives of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals told the court that Miss Moesch had made progress in cleaning up her three-storey home and that dogs no longer lived there.

Li'l Arthur King's famous left was at its sharpest as the ex-Toronto lightweight T.K.O.'D St. Catharines' Fitzie Pruden in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-rounder at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. As in their first meeting, last January, when King took a unanimous decision, Pruden forced the fight until, early in the ninth round, he was smothered on the ropes with a furious assault of 42 punches. — Central Press Canadian.

Bright Rookie

Hy Buller, 26-year-old Montreal-born rookie with New York Rangers, is one of the leading candidates for the National Hockey League rookie-of-the-year award. Before his injury March 16 he hadn't missed a game all season. He piled up 35 points, to equal the club scoring record for a defenceman. A fractured bone in his left foot in a game with Toronto Maple Leafs put him out of the last three league games. — (CP Photo.)

ADOPTS MEXICAN BOY

Mexico City, March 25. (AP)—Josephine Baker has adopted a month-old Mexican boy. The American vaudeville and night club star said the as-yet-unnamed child will be flown in about ten days to Paris where she maintains her permanent home. Miss Baker said the child is the son of an unmarried secretary.

Wrestling Fans Are Warned To Calm Down

Niagara Falls, March 26. (CP)—Wrestling fans here were warned to calm down yesterday.

Magistrate Harley Hallet said if disturbances continue at the arena during wrestling matches, police should arrest all the spectators.

Two men appeared before him charged with causing a disturbance in the arena, Monday night.

William P. Staats, 57, Niagara Falls, N.Y., was fined $54 and Mike Domik, 46, of Port Colborne, $55.

Staats said that two weeks ago some one tossed his hat in the ring and a wrestler tore it up. Monday night he was at ringside and "took one pass at the wrestler to get even for the hat."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The bridge of Ronnie Rath is something like a bath. Its pleasure you anticipate a lot. As many others do. But just as soon as you get used to it, you find it's not so hot.

Your bridge is not so hot until you are able to handle the many situations involving doubles. You must be able to distinguish between a takeout double and a penalty double.

A takeout double is a signal that asks partner to bid something. If the intervening player does not bid, the double orders partner to bid something. It matters not how weak his hand.

A penalty double says it can defeat the bid and asks partner to pass. The penalty doubler advises partner that he already has enough information to assure him the opponent bid can be beaten.

When partner has already bid, any double is intended for penalty. There are no exceptions to this. Therefore, a player who has already bid knows it is for penalty when his partner doubles.

So, when would you have any doubt as to the meaning of a double? Only when you have not yet bid and your partner has doubled. Only then could you have any doubt as to the meaning of the double.

When you have not yet bid, how do you know when the double by your partner is for penalty? As a quick reminder, use this list:

1. When the double was not made at the first opportunity;
2. When opponent bid is more than three in a suit;
3. When opponent bid is more than one in no-trump;
4. When the doubler was an opening bidder of more than one.

South opens with a heart. Partner in west bids a spade. North says one no-trump. You pass this hand in east:

♥K J 7 2
♦9 4 3
♣J 8 6

South passes. Your partner in west now doubles. Is it for penalty? Yes. It was not a double at the first opportunity. Consider the source.

MEMBERSHIP DROPS

Washington, March 26 (AP)—F.B.I. director J. Edgar Hoover says membership in the U.S. communist party has dropped off by one-fourth in the last year and the remaining 1,608 have begun going underground. A year ago there were 43,217 communists in this country, he told the house appropriations committee in testimony made public last night.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The bridge of Ronnie Rath is something like a bath. Its pleasure you anticipate a lot. As many others do, But just as soon as you get used to it, you find it's not so hot.

Your bridge is not so hot until you are able to handle the many situations involving doubles. You must be able to distinguish between a takeout double and a penalty double.

A takeout double is a signal that asks partner to bid something. If the intervening player does not bid, the double orders partner to bid something. It matters not how weak his hand.

A penalty double says it can defeat the bid and asks partner to pass. The penalty doubler advises partner that he already has enough information to assure him the opponent bid can be beaten.

When partner has already bid, any double is intended for penalty. There are no exceptions to this. Therefore, a player who has already bid knows it is for penalty when his partner doubles.

So, when would you have any doubt as to the meaning of a double? Only when you have not yet bid and your partner has doubled. Only then could you have any doubt as to the meaning of the double.

When you have not yet bid, how do you know when the double by your partner is for penalty? As a quick reminder, use this list:

1. When the double was not made at the first opportunity;
2. When opponent bid is more than three in a suit;
3. When opponent bid is more than one in no-trump;
4. When the doubler was an opening bidder of more than one.

South opens with a heart. Partner in west bids a spade. North says one no-trump. You pass this hand in east:

♥K J 7 2
♦9 4 3
♣J 8 6

South passes. Your partner in west now doubles. Is it for penalty? Yes. It was not a double at the first opportunity. Consider the source.

AT THE CAPITOL — A junior miss with senior ideas about love. Margaret O'Brien stars in Columbia Pictures' "Her First Romance," at the Capitol Theatre tonight. Allen Martin, Jr., is the young "dreamboat" with eyes only for Margaret, who plays her first "grown-up" role in the new comedy. On the same program in color by Technicolor, "Man in the Saddle," with Randolph Scott, Joan Leslie, Alexander Knox and Ellen Drew. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — Cary Grant and Betsy Drake, husband and wife in real life, become involved with several mischievous youngsters in "Room for One More," Warner Bros. romantic comedy-drama which bows into the Odeon McCarthy Theatre today. Norman Taurog directed the film.

MEMBERSHIP DROPS

Washington, March 26 (AP)—F.B.I. director J. Edgar Hoover says membership in the U.S. communist party has dropped off by one-fourth in the last year and the remaining 1,608 have begun going underground. A year ago there were 43,217 communists in this country, he told the house appropriations committee in testimony made public last night.

ISLAND PROVINCE

Prince Edward Island has been a separate province since it was separated from Nova Scotia in 1769.

BAKERIES CHARGED

Hong Kong, March 26 (Reuters)—A communist newspaper received here says 52 bakeries in Hankow have been charged with using inferior ingredients in making cookies for Chinese troops in Korea. Several of these bakeries were specifically accused of causing the illness of 80 "volunteers."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Think well before taking any money risks. Some uncertain spots today. Keep your speculative activities under control. Hold temper, too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Likely to be considerable contention in personal affairs; be prepared, practical. Bury all pessimism. Success eventually will be yours.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Trend is upward and better. Do what you can to help it. When others are well and happy enjoy things better. Co-operate!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Don't be an alarmist but be ready for the unexpected, the necessary quick changes. Changeable conditions can serve many good purposes.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—One of best planetary days this month. So study and act on plan of operation. Avoid useless moves, especially in finances, business or domestic matters.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Level off carefully in most activities that entail money, any values. Prospects not all encouraging. But there are always opportunities to improve them.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Mostly favorable all round. Start early and heed advantages. Forget personalities, concentrate on putting over essentials. Heart interests can promote happiness.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Today's aspects do not urge striving for quick money or business gains in large amounts. Speedy turnovers often are not best. Be grateful for moderate gains.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—A few tantalizing instances perhaps, but afternoon should be profitable for proper efforts. Have eye on what makes surest progress, keep ear to ground for new leads.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Most indications on favorable side. Lean towards better up-to-date methods. Improve knowledge and connections; really relax when day is done.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — A steady upward trend in many fields. Get started early and returns will reward. Heart interests favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Matters of property, labor and employer are encouraging. Brotherhood practiced rightly would give life a healthy and happy lift. Act on that idea!

YOU BORN TODAY like doing. Impulsive at times, but progressive. Have ambition to try unusual and hard things that others often sidestep. Tone down headstrong tendencies and you can accomplish much. You may dislike details, little chores; would rather direct, plan the big things. Balance all sensibly with reason and good will. Be patient, tolerant.

Birthdate: Fred'k Converse Beach, inventor.

Kinsmen's Club Presented With 'Voyageur's Gong'

Campbellford — A special event took place at the Kinsmen Club meeting on Monday evening, when nine members of the Picton club, headed by President Aubrey Mosley, brought with them the voyageur's (or travelling) gong, symbol of inter-club goodwill. The Picton president presented the gong to the acting president, Forrest Dennis, of Campbellford, making a brief presentation speech. The Campbellford prexy replied, stating that his club will in turn take the gong to Trenton on April 1, when a similar presentation will take place.

Additional special guests present at the meeting, held at Kay's dining room to accommodate the larger gathering, were: President Franklin S. Linton of the Campbellford Rotary Club; Rotarians Vern Lockwood, (formerly of Picton), and Austin Putnam. Jack Lewis headed a small delegation from Peterborough.

Following the banquet and in keeping with St. Patrick's Day, Irish songs were sung with the capable Bruce Barnum at the piano.

The evening concluded with several moving pictures shown by Bruce Grills.

Hospital Board

The regular meeting of the local Hospital Board was held last week with a good attendance. A fairly good month was reported with 121 nursing days, 16 babies and nine X-rays. A total of $1,515.14 was collected, with expenses amounting to $1,065.06. X-ray fees brought in $66 and expenses for the X-ray equipment was $26.20, leaving a favorable cash balance of $39.80.

Attend Pop Concert

Twenty-eight members of the Campbellford High School Glee Club, accompanied by their leader, Miss Irene Stephen, motored to Toronto on Friday last and attended the regular Pop Concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in Massey Hall. The guest artist was the Canadian baritone, Bernard Johnson.

MADOC JUNCTION

Madoc Junction — Mr. and Mrs. N. Wannamaker and Mr. James Wannamaker moved to their home in Stirling this week.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers and Miss Linda Summers spent Wednesday at Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley's. It was Miss Beverley Stapley's 5th birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMullen, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy attended the Stirling Lodge No. 239 I.O.O.F. "At Home" in the Stirling Community Hall last Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hollinger have moved into the neighborhood.

Several ladies visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley on Wednesday afternoon.

Two Buildings Burn at Guelph, Loss $100,000

Guelph, March 25 — (CP) — Fire, breaking out shortly after midnight last night, destroyed the Reward Shoe Store and Anderson's bakery and coffee bar on upper Windham Street with damage estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000.

The building is located between Loblaw's groceteria and Barber's butcher shop. Firewalls on both sides prevented the fire from spreading along the whole business block.

Firemen had to battle the flames from Windham Street and Park Lane with all available equipment in use. The fire was brought under control after an hour's battle.

The damaged property is owned by Mrs. Bert Smith. The Reward Shoe store was established in the building only three weeks ago. Smoke from the fire could be seen three miles away.

H. Rupert Bain Dies in Mexico

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — H. Rupert Bain, 54, president of the National Life Assurance Company of Canada and millionaire Toronto financier, died today in Mexico.

Mr. Bain had been in poor health since a brain haemorrhage last October.

The well-known mining broker, who became a millionaire before he was 38, married Mrs. Margaret Josephine Foster Watkins last July after his divorce from Eileen Bain. Mrs. Bain married Mr. Watkins two weeks earlier.

The Bains were prominent in Toronto society circles and he was an ardent horseman.

His horse, Rock Lad, was Canada's hope in the Grand National steeplechase of 1938. The horse, however, never made the grade.

Born at Prince Albert, Sask., Mr. Bain served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First World War. He returned to Winnipeg to take charge of the bond department of Carruthers, Martin and Torrance. His father was a former Winnipeg physician and his uncle one of the first lawyers to practise in Winnipeg.

Later, he moved east to join a Toronto firm and in 1923 formed his own company, specializing in municipal bonds. Then, he plunged into Canadian mining stocks and by 1937 headed an organization of more than 200 persons.

HALLOWAY
FILMS SHOWN

Halloway — There was a large attendance at the regular evening film showing at Turner's School, recently. Every fourth Monday the films used in the school in the afternoon, as well as films especially suited for adults, are shown in the evening. Interest has been steadily increasing and everyone finds these films well worth seeing, interesting and very educational.

At a recent Sunday afternoon church service, certificates were presented by Rev. Mr. Giffin to Mrs. Gordon Roth, Mrs. Earl Snider and Mrs. Ed. Emerson on the successful completion of a Christian leadership education, "Evangelism in the Church School."

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Townsend spent last week with Mrs. J. I. Snell of Bowmanville.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster and family of Ivanhoe were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen on Sunday evening.

The Kum-Double Club of Holloway United Church met at the home of Ralph and Stella Smith last week with a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Coulter spent Thursday of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and boys spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Volney Finkle of Trenton. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Townsend accompanied them home.

A number of the men folk attended the farm sale of Mr. Floyd Thrasher on Thursday last.

Those attending the Masonic banquet in Stirling recently were Mr. and Mrs. E. Emerson; Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen.

DESERONTO
Dr. McVicker, M. O. H. Speaks on 'Infectious, Communicable Diseases'

The Deseronto Home and School Association held their regular monthly meeting in the principal's room with an attendance of 18 and Mrs. W. Crabbe presiding.

The meeting opened with a short business period. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, April 24th as the regular night falls in Easter week.

The attendance prize for the evening was won by Miss Hellem's room.

Prize Winners

The prize winners of the recent essay contest, sponsored by the Deseronto Branch of the Canadian Legion were present to receive their awards. Rev. Mr. Townsend made the presentations to the following: Miss Evelyn Loft from the Western Reserve School; Harry Pratt and Jimmy Savary from the public school, and the Misses Florence Gonyou, Phyllis Burley and Marilyn Harvey from the high school.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion extended congratulations and best wishes to the winners whose essays are now entered in the zone contest, the winners of which will compete for provincial awards.

Dr. McVicker M.O.H. for Deseronto, addressed the meeting on "Infectious and Communicable Diseases" outlining the precautions and regulations governing them.

Two films "Champions in the Making" and "Who Will Teach Your Child" were shown by Mr. E. E. Maybee and Dick Crabbe.

Mrs. W. Wood expressed the appreciation of the association.

Refreshments were served by the social committee and a social hour enjoyed.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poison from the kidneys and relieves backache, bladder irritations and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES!

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES out rheumatic and neuritic pains, puts a stop to boils, pimples and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong, healthy nerves. It will free your system of its oversupply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach — fill you with gas — sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others — whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week — remains to be seen, but in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

BANCROFT
Cecil Bronson Heads N. Hastings Musical Festival Committee

Bancroft — Cecil Bronson of Bird's Creek Public School, was elected president of the North Hastings Musical Festival Committee at the organization meeting for the current year, held in North Hastings High School on Thursday night. Other officials elected were: vice president, Ralph McDonald of Coe Hill; secretary treasurer, Norma Haas of Bancroft; program committee, Mrs. Leah Goodkey and Miss Grace Duquette, itinerant music supervisors for the North Hastings elementary schools; Mrs. L. Freiburger of Bancroft Public School Home and School Association; Charles Montreuil of North Hastings High School; John Bleecker of Bancroft Public School, and the president and vice president of the association.

One-Day Affair

According to present plans the festival will be a one-day affair in N.H.H.S. on June 10th, with G. Roy Fenwick, Director of Music, Ontario Department of Education, as adjudicator. Plans to include an oratorical competition with the festival were shelved as the meeting felt that it would be preferable to have a separate date for the public speaking events. A committee, headed by Laurier Hook, will make a separate announcement on this subject in the near future.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker

Even the night when she had watched beside Mrs. Blake had not been more terrifying than this night as she waited for Tom's return from the hospital. Would they allow him to see the girl, and would she speak?

Jessica went upstairs to the darkened room where Mrs. Blake lay in a stupor, neither asleep nor waking; whether unconscious or aware of anything which went on around her, no one knew.

The house was deathly still and cold. Jessica went into her own room and put a robe over her print dress. She tucked the blanket closer about Betsy's sleeping figure. She was restless, unnerved as she roved from her own room to the sickroom and back again, then stood listening at the head of the stairs for a step on the porch outside. A knock on the outer door brought her down the staircase in a rush.

"Who is it?" she demanded.

"Doris." Doris pushed inside, bringing a dash of cold air and sleety snow with her. She pulled off the scarf which covered her auburn head and loosened her coat. "Lord, what a night!"

Doris followed Jessica into the living room and they sat down on the davenport together. "I wanted to talk to you about Lucy," Doris said.

"I've seen her."

Suddenly there was no doubt in her mind. Had there ever been any doubt that the girl downtown was Lucy? Like Tom, she didn't want to acknowledge the identity of that girl who lay disgraced and disfigured, and ready to deny her identity to those who loved her.

She told Doris what she had done. Her meeting with David, her decision to visit the hospital —her belief that the girl was Lucy.

"Probably David Gregory knows," said Doris slowly.

"David? How could he know?"

"He and Hugh Linton are just like that." She twined two fingers. "Men don't look at affairs like women do and I imagine Linton needed someone to help him out of a bad mess, although he did pretty well at that. He started a fund at the plant for the victims of the fire. He said he would finance personally, whatever plastic surgery might be needed. Lucy again. I've heard of no one else as badly injured."

"And you believe that David knew the identity of the girl?"

"Why not? He's in Linton's confidence in everything else. Lucy worked in the same office. It would be strange if he didn't know, wouldn't it?"

"Is that what you wanted to tell me?"

Doris hesitated. "I feel sorry for Tom," she said. "I don't see how he will manage if he has two helpless women to take care of. Do you?"

"Why should I be responsible for Lucy's mistakes?" demanded Jessica.

"You aren't exactly blameless, are you?" said Doris bluntly. "You helped to give Lucy ideas. Probably Hugh Linton worked on her all the time. Then—" she hesitated—"then you showed her that a marriage vow meant little."

"Lucy never paid any attention to what I did," denied Jessica.

"How do you know? How can you be sure you didn't influence her? She influenced you."

"How?"

Doris smiled broadly. "Who else? Was it your mother-in-law who taught you to be unselfish and considerate? You were a little beast when Tom brought you here. I felt sorry for you because you were so lonesome and bewildered, but you had an idea that life was one long honeymoon, didn't you?"

"Tom urged me to marry him. I didn't have time to think what I might be getting into. He took me out of a lovely home and left me with a woman who hated me," said Jessica sharply. "If it hadn't been for Lucy—" The name brought her back to the present. "Tom's gone to the hospital," she said.

Doris was silent, her hazel eyes dark with sympathy. She said, "Who'll help him take care of Lucy?"

"Take care of Lucy?"

"It will be weeks before she'll be able to do anything. Then where will she go to find a job? Tom will have to support Lucy and his mother. He'll have to hire help to take care of them."

Jessica had thought of that herself. She didn't want to think of it. When Doris left, she tried to read, but watched the clock with growing alarm, wondering where Tom could be. She ran upstairs to the sickroom but there was no change. She stood to listen, uncertain whether there was any life in that silent figure on the bed. She went back downstairs and found herself reviewing the months spent in the house where she sat alone tonight except for her baby and the sick woman.

Then she heard footsteps outside, the crunch of shoes on snow, feet stamping on the mat beside the door, the outside door opening.

Tom came in. He didn't look once in her direction but strode directly toward the stairs. Jessica spoke his name and half rose from her chair, nervous and afraid as she saw his white, tense face, his eyes blank and staring as he turned toward her.

She moved her lips to ask the question but could make no sound, shocked by the agony in Tom's eyes as they met her own.

"Tom!" Her voice died as she spoke his name.

He paused and came back and stood in the living room doorway. He said in a harsh bitter tone, "You were right. The girl is Lucy."

Before she could speak he turned and went slowly upstairs, his step heavy, his blond head bent. A moment later Jessica heard the door of his room close behind him.

Lucy could not be brought home immediately. Possibly not for a week or two. Then there would be a period of time which must elapse before plastic surgery could be done to help make less shocking the disfiguring scars left by the burns.

"When Lucy comes, I can manage," Tom told Jessica several mornings after his announcement that his sister had recognized him. He had immediately gone out and reclaimed his old job at the rubber pits. Now he was working steadily.

Jessica heard from David. Telephone calls. Finally David himself appeared one day, impatient and irritable, and unable to accept her excuse that when Tom was away on a job someone had to remain with Mrs. Blake.

"Let him hire a nurse," said David, looking oddly out of place in the Blake living room, his critical glance travelling over the old portraits on the walls and fastening upon Tom's picture upon the table. "This the soldier?" he asked carelessly.

"That's Tom."

David gave the picture only careless attention.

"When are you going to Kentucky, Jessica?" he asked.

"When Lucy is strong enough to take care of her mother and keep house for Tom. He has to work, you know. He'll have heavy expenses."

"Linton plans to finance the plastic surgery job. Pretty decent of him."

"Decent?"

David shrugged. "He didn't owe the girl a thing. She made a fool of herself, which wasn't his fault."

"You mean—?" Her shocked dark eyes never left David's handsome face. So David had known all along!

He offered no explanation but eyed her curiously. "Look here, you don't condemn the man because he was human?"

"He has a wife."

"A cold proposition," said David indifferently. "The daughter's quite different." He smiled engagingly. "I'm not trying to make you jealous, but Hugh Linton's daughter is a very attractive girl."

He rose then and took her in his arms. His lips sought hers, demanding a response she found it hard to give.

Why? Because it shocked her to have David make love to her in Tom's home?

Jessica tried to draw away but he held her fast. He said positively "once and for all you must set a date when you will leave this house. Set your own date, but don't expect to change it because Tom Blake meets some new difficulty. Exactly when does this sister expect to come home?"

"Thursday."

"Very well. We'll say that you will stay until after New Year's. That will give you more than a month. That will reconcile you to this new, crazy sense of duty to a man you plan to leave. I'm having our company lawyer check the Kentucky divorce laws. Better to be prepared, although I don't think Blake will make any trouble."

"No, Blake will not make any trouble,"

They sprang apart. Jessica felt shame; David looked confused.

Tom stood in the doorway. He came forward. "Are you David Gregory?"

"I am."

David had regained his self-control. He even managed to smile, while Tom regarded him with a cool contempt and said, "you are the man Jessica plans to marry?"

"Yes, I am. But there's no reason we should jump at each other's throats because we happen to be involved in this kind of situation."

"Such as a man stealing another man's wife?"

David shrugged. "If you want to be melodramtic about it, yes. Jessica has a mind of her own. I didn't force her into any situation. She was quite willing to exchange what you have to offer for a very different type of living, one that she has been accustomed to and deserves. Jessica has been generous enough to refuse to leave immediately. I understand that you have had trouble here."

"Leave my affairs out of this," Tom said.

The door into the kitchen opened and Betsy came in. Jessica had completely forgotten her daughter, busy with her toys in the sunshiny kitchen. The child's round eyes travelled past David and brightened as they saw her father.

"Daddy!" she shouted and rushed forward and held him tight around the knees.

"This is my cue to exit," said David.

He was still at ease, smiling at Jessica as she followed him to the hall door. "I'll call you tomorrow" he said in parting, ignoring Tom completely. "Good thing this whole affair has been brought out in the open," he added as he said goodbye.

He doesn't have to go back and face Tom, thought Jessica, as she watched him climb into his roadster, his hat tipped at a jaunty angle.

Tom looked up as she came back to the living room. "I'm bringing Lucy home this week," he said. "If she is not able to do much for a while, I'll get a housekeeper to help her. I can afford one now that I'm working again." He went on trotting Betsy on his knee and made no reference to David's visit He seemed to accept David's announcements calmly and as a matter of course planned for the day when his wife would leave him.

Jessica wanted to strike out and hurt him cruelly.

"You'll miss Betsy," she said.

After a moment, Tom said, "that's not all I'll miss," and looked straight into her troubled eyes.

A sob rose in her throat and choked her. Jessica turned and went quickly upstairs to her own room. She flung herself face down across the bed and muffled her sobs in the pillow.

Assailant Kills 3, Wounds Two In Ranch Home

Slayings Believed Committed By Someone Bearing Grudge

Merriman, Neb., March 27—CP—An unknown assailant today opened fire with a shotgun on a ranch home near here, killing three persos and wounding two others.

The blasts killed a young married couple and a neighbor who answered a telephone call. Wounded was the couple's 10-month-old baby and another neighbor.

First speculation by authorities was that the slaying was done by someone carrying a grudge, or by someone gone berserk.

Killed were George Mensinger, 28; his 23-year-old, wife and a neighbor, Leo Gardner, about 50.

Wounded were the Mensingers' baby and another neighbor, Cliff McDonald, about 35.

Police said the assailant apparently had not entered the Mensinger ranch home, but shot through doors and windows.

Mrs. Mensinger apparently was felled as she stood by the telephone, trying to summon help.

McDonald, who lives about a mile away, heard Mrs. Mensinger's general call (a series of short rings on a party line, designed to call all subscribers to their phones).

As McDonald approached the farm, he apparently encountered the slayer in his car. The assailant shot him in the neck.

Gardner, another rancher living two miles away, also heard the telephone call call and headed for the Mensinger ranch with his son and a hired man, Frank Ellis. They spotted a car and stopped to inquire about the trouble. The assailant shot Gardner and fled. The son and hired man were not hurt.

Hansen said Gardner appeared to have been killed with a pistol although all the others were shot with a shotgun.

There was nothing to indicate that robbery might have been a motive.

The Mensingers operated a ranch of about 3,000 acres, raising purebred Hereford cattle.

Five Million Profit on $1,000 Investment

Hyman Harvey Klein, Baltimore businessman, told tax investigators how he, with two unidentified Canadians as partners, made a five million dollar profit on a $1,000 investment. He said that he, his brother and the two Canadians invested $4,000 in setting up corporations in Cuba and Panama, buying and selling whiskey from a Canadian concern. These Cuban and Panamanian companies made a net profit of some $20,000,000 from April, 1944, to September, 1946. Klein sold his interest for $5,000,000 in 1947. — Central Press Canadian.

STUDENTS INDICTED

Chatham, Va., March 27 (AP)—Rumors of a grave-robbing to provide a skeleton for a seance took on substance today with the indictment of six college students by a special grand jury. Two girls and four boys were charged with opening a grave in the old Pigg-family burying ground near here and removing bones. Grave-robbing carries a penalty of from five to 10 years imprisonment.

ARREST AUTHOR

Paris, March 27 (AP)—Police have arrested the author of a prize winning book of supposedly true adventures and charged he was actually a nazi collaborator sentenced to death by a French court seven years ago. They said fingerprints proved that Martin de Hautclaire, author of "The Whole World is Ours" the collaborator Christian Couderc were the same person.

FAMINE IN MADRAS

Madras, India, March 27 — (Reuters) — Famine is spreading throughout the western districts of this state because there was no annual monsoon this year to bring much-needed rain. Grain crops and trees have withered and died, wells and irrigation ditches have dried up.

Says Ont. Faces Price War In Tourist Business

Toronto, March 27 (CP) —Ontario faces a price war in the tourist business with other areas and is in a poor condition to compete, Tom McCall, deputy minister of travel and publicity, today told the Ontario legislature's travel and publicity committee.

Although another boom year in tourist travel is expected this year, Mr. McCall said "danger signals are up." Rates for motels, which had become a major factor in the industry, are about $2 higher than in the United States.

The department planned to advise motor court owners that they must compete or lose business.

Mr. McCall also outlined the new system of grading tourist accommodation and hotels which will come into effect this year.

Three Stars for Best

Although each place has had to meet government standards to operate, a grading system will be used to give the best places a three-star rating. Standard accommodation would be graded as one-star, and intermediate as two-star.

Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.-Kenora) suggested liquor licences be granted only to the top-graded camps. Beer was being sold in camps which had no sanitary conveniences.

J. F. Edwards (PC-Perth) urged co-operative advertising by communities along travel routes. W. G. Noden (PC-Rainy River) asked that more advertising money be spent in the central United States where 40,000,000 people could reach northwestern Ontario through Rainy River.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 27 (CP) —Synopsis: Skies cleared over night following passage of a weak storm which left a light covering of snow across southern Ontario Wednesday, but they began clouding over again this morning. However weather charts appear more encouraging than they have for a few days and indicate considerably more sunshine in southern sections for Friday. A few light snowflurries will persist today particularly in those regions adjacent to Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, but these will end by evening and temperatures which are slightly below normal for this time of year, will begin to moderate tomorrow.

CANADIANS MAY GET BETTER BREAK ON MEDICAL BILLS

Income-Tax Deductions May be Increased

Ottawa, March 27. (CP)—Canadians with big medical bills may find that when Finance Minister Abbott brings down his budget April 8 they will get a better break in their income-tax deductions.

This is indicated yesterday when the Commons, in a rare and surprising move, accepted a C.C.F. proposal that the federal government consider abolishing the present four-per-cent floor on the amount of medical bills allowed as a tax deduction.

The proposal came from Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) as a private resolution. It was approved unanimously after a two-hour debate. Approval of the idea came from all sides of the Chamber.

James Sinclair (L—Coast-Capilano), parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, raised some mild objections to the proposal, but said Mr. Abbott, now in the midst of preparing his budget, accepted it so far as giving it consideration went.

The Chamber's approval of the motion was taken as a possible hint that Mr. Abbott plans to make such a change in his budget. Normally, the government would promise to consider an opposition proposal, but ask that it be withdrawn.

Mr. Sinclair also said—with perhaps another hint—that "perhaps the time has come to raise" the existing ceilings on the amount of medical expenses that may be deducted from net income for tax purposes. At present, they are $750 for single persons, $1,000 for married and $250 for each dependent.

Mr. Knowles did not ask that the ceilings be abolished because that would benefit the rich rather than the poor—a point on which he and Mr. Sinclair agreed—but he did suggest they might be reviewed.

The CCF member did feel, as did other speakers that such things as drugs and eye-glasses might be considered as deductions, but Mr. Sinclair ruled out that possibility.

On his main point, Mr. Knowles said people with heavy medical bills should have the same break as those who make contributions to accepted charities. There is no floor on the amount which may be deducted for charitable contributions.

NAVIGATION OPENS

Goderich, March 27 (CP) —Navigation was opened here yesterday when the Imperial Oil Company's tanker, Imperial Cobourg, skippered by Capt. Clifford Sloane, of Mimico, arrived at four p.m. after leaving Sarnia at seven a.m.

The ship's cargo was 2,500 barrels of gasoline. Cap.t Sloane said the vessel came through a snowfall all the way up.

Fifteen miles out of Sarnia a heavy field of ice was encountered. Last year, Imperial Cobourg with Capt. Sloane, opened the season here 10 days earlier, and the earliest since 1932.

The presentation of the traditional silk hat was made by councillor W. Wood, chairman of the harbor committee.

Main Question in Miramichi Area Of N.B. What Has Become of Smelt

Newcastle, N. B. — (CP) What has become of the smelt?

That's the main question in New Brunswick's Miramichi area, which normally produces halt of Canada's total smelt catch. Fisheries officials aren't sure of the answer.

In the 1951-52 season the Miramichi catch was 8,428 hundredweight as compared with 21,780 hundredweight during the previous winter. A one-week extension this year took the season into March but storms prevented fishermen from taking much advantage of the extra time.

Prices have been high, with the catch unable to meet demand.

Dr. A. W. H. Needler, supervisor of the Atlantic biological station at St. Andrews, N. B., said there was some indication the tasty fish were later than usual in arriving. There was nothing to show an actual depletion. The station has been investigating the smelt fishery in this area for years.

Dr. Needler disagreed with the theory of some fishermen that the water might be colder this year. Temperatures remained about constant under the ice, he said. However, due to a heavy fall runoff, the water was fresher than usual.

"Because of this, it might seem to the fish that they were just as far in as in previous years."

Dr. Needler said his department hoped to have a better idea of the situation when it studied the early spawning run, due to begin about mid-April.

Labor Congress Requests Govt. To Abolish or Ease Credit Curbs, Replace With Controls

Ottawa, March 27 (CP) —Credit restriction shave had the chief effect of increasing unemployment, the Canadian Congress of Labor said to the government today.

The 360,000-member congress, in its annual legislative brief to the cabinet, asked for the abolition or the easing of the credit curbs and replacement by direct price-rent controls.

The Congress also was critical of the government's anti-price-fixing measure of the 1951 fall parliamentary session, saying there is "not the slightest evidence" that it has had any effect in holding down prices.

Instead of these measures, the congress asked the cabinet immediately to reimpose price controls, subsidizing essential goods; roll back prices to the "lowest possible levels" and impose an excess-profits tax to discourage profiteering.

The steps it proposed were aimed at cutting down the cost of living. Up to now, the Congress said, the removal of the wartime price-rent controls has cost Canadians "billions of dollars" in living costs.

Series of Measures

Like the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, before the cabinet yesterday, the C.C.L. recommended a series of measures for dealing with current unemployment. These included:

1. Steering of defence production to areas where unemployment is most prevalent.
2. Development of new industries or public works projects in unemployment areas or, failing that, transfer of workers to other areas.
3. Admission to Canada only of immigrants who can find work.
4. A public assistance program to help those not covered by unemployment insurance benefits and those who benefit payments have been exhausted.
5. A sharp increase in the rate of unemployment insurance benefit payments.

The C.C.L. recommendations on unemployment were contained in a supplement to the main 5,000-word memorandum of the congress, which called for government action over a wide range, most of it recommended at the C.C.L.'s annual convention last September at Vancouver.

The C.C.L. was the second big central labor body to lay its submissions before the cabinet this week. Tomorrow it will be followed by the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor and the Dominion joint legislative committee of the railway brotherhoods.

The Trades and Labor Congress recommendations, in many respects, paralleled those of the Canadian Congress of Labor. Meeting with 15 members of the government, the T.L.C. got no specific commitments from Prime Minister St. Laurent when he made a general reply for the cabinet.

The C.C.L. urged the adoption of a national labor code—broader than the present federal legislation—which would take in more industries and provide uniform labor legislation across the country.

Against Company Unions

Amendments to the act as sought by the C.C.L., would include the outlawing of "company unions"—those dominated by employers — and inclusion of statutory check-off of union dues when sought by employees.

Proposals of the C.C.L. on unemployment insurance included increased benefit payments to jobless; reduction now and eventual elimination of the waiting period for the start of payments, and extension of coverage to worker categories not now under the act.

It already is understood that the waiting period is to be cut to five from nine days.

Discussing health insurance, the congress expressed "protest" at the fact the government has not set up a committee to deal with the question at this session of parliament. Absence of health insurance was the "biggest gap in our social security system."

Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested to the T.L.C. yesterday Canada cannot go ahead with a national health-insurance plan until hospital facilities and medical staffs have been enlarged.

Other points in the brief included:

1. Canadian construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, as proposed by the federal government, would lead to large industrial development in the central provinces. It should be accompanied by other projects that would help the Atlantic provinces.
2. A bill amending the Annuities Act—brought in by the government last fall and then withdrawn — should be reintroduced. It provides chiefly for boosting the maximum amount of an annuity that can be bought to $2,400 from $1,200.
3. A protest against the increase in the federal sales tax to 10 percent from eight percent and against 1951 increases in excise taxes.

Iran Dropping Request for Loan From the U.S.

Tehran, March 27 (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh said today Iran is dropping its request for a United States loan to help meet financial difficulties caused by a loss of oil revenue.

The U.S. State Department said a week ago a loan could not be justified as long as Iran refuses to reach a settlement with Britain for reviving the dormant oil industry.

The vast operations of the Anglo - Iranian Oil Company ground to a halt after Iran nationalized her oil resources a year ago. Efforts to reach a settlement with Britain have failed.

Mossadegh said that with the state department announcement of Nov. 20 "we have come to realize that the U.S. government does not have a favorable attitude with regard to his question, and the Iranian government will not pursue it."

Mossadegh had accused the U.S. of trying to force Iran to accept British proposals for getting the oil industry started again.

Mossadegh had proposed the loan in a letter to President Truman last November. He gave no figure, but persons close to the premier said $120,000,000 was needed.

The statement from Mossadegh today said Iran is still willing to work out a plan with the International bank.

SECOND COURSE OPENS

Kingston, March 27—(CP)—The second course at Canada's Penitentiary Staff College is under way.

A six-week course for 18 guards started yesterday at Calderwood, 10-acre former estate of Senator W. Rupert Davies, almost across the street from the penitentiary.

Earlier this month, a 10-day course was given for a group of deputy wardens.

Russia is Poor Second In Steel Production

London, March 27 (Reuters) — The United States kept its lead in world steel production last year with Russia coming a poor second, a report by the British Iron and Steel Federation disclosed today.

The U.S. produced 93,870,000 tons —an eight percent increase over 1950—against Russia's 30,800,000 tons.

Countries of the Atlantic pact boasted a total output of 134,000,000 tons compared with the 40,000,000 tons of the communist bloc.

But while Russia's production looks low, her rate of expansion equalled that of the United States. Canada, West Germany, France, Belgium and Japan leaped ahead of the U.S. in terms of expansion.

The British industry, in its first year of nationalization and hit by the world shortage, dropped output by 650,000 tons to 15,640,000 tons, but remained the world's third largest producer.

World production topped the 200,000,000-ton mark for the first time, reaching a figure of 206,650,000 — 54 percent above the 1937 output.

Rocks Blown into Air

Manila, March 27. (AP)—The Philippines' underwater volcano is blowing rocks 3,000 to 4,000 feet into the air, a Manila Evening News survey party reported today.

The party's boat stayed a mile away from the rumbling volcano—30 miles from the northeastern tip of Luzon—because the ocean in the immediate vicinity "fairly sizzled." Huge boulders tumbled about the rim of a volcano cone, the News said, and smaller rocks shot high into the smoke cloud.

Photographs indicated the cone still rose 250 feet above the water but covered a larger area than when viewed from the air March 19.

PREMIER SAYS CRIME PROBE WILL NO BE RESUMED

Claims Nothing Found To Warrant Action

Toronto, March 27 (CP) — A crime probe in Ontario will not be undertaken again.

Premier Frost told a stormy session of the legislature yesterday that the crime committee, dissolved before last November's election, will not be constituted because nothing was produced to warrant such action during the committee's sittings last year.

"We are not going to be a party to constituting this committee and creating in the public mind a feeling that something is wrong with the administration of justice," he said.

The question was raised during consideration of the attorney-general department's estimates.

All estimates were not passed and the balance will be brought before the House today, together with estimates for the departments of health and education. A night sitting is likely.

Other developments in the House included:

Introduction of several government bills including the previously announced measure to pay pensions of up to $40 a month to totally and permanently disabled persons between the ages of 18 and 64. The payments will be based on a means test. Another bill would provide for increases in the cost of hunting licences.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy introduced a bill which would prohibit any ice cream made from vegetable oils or other substitutes for dairy products being called "ice cream."

J. B. Salzberg (Lab-Prog-Toronto-St. Andrew) urged that the crime committee be called again to settle any doubts left by its sudden dissolution.

Tale of Tragedy Told in Court

Fayid, Egypt, Mar. 27 (Reuters) — Jealous of his captain dancing with the girl he loved after the captain had told him to leave the girl alone, British Cpl. Tom Houghton pumped 13 tommy gun bullets into him, a court martial was told today.

Iro Hadjifoti, 20, attractive Greek stenographer known as "the girl in blue," yesterday testified she had refused two marriage proposals from Houghton, who has been charged with murder.

Pte. R. Cook, on guard duty at the time of the shooting, Feb. 9, said he heard Houghton call out to Capt. Herbert Mason: "If I can't have her you can't have her."

Pte. F. W. Otway, one of several soldiers who received minor wounds when the corporal ran amok, said he heard Houghton shout: "I'll get you, Iro, even if I swing for it."

FIRE LOSS $35,000

Peterborough, March 27 —(CP) — Fire destroyed a combined service station and lunch counter, just outside the westerly city limits, early today. Damage was estimated at $35,000.

White House Defeated in Struggle To Get Tulips in Bloom for Juliana

Washington, March 27 — (AP) — The White House admitted today it has lost "the battle of the tulips."

There just won't be any tulips in bloom when Queen Juliana of The Netherlands arrives April 2 for a three-day visit with the president and Mrs. Truman.

The president succeeded in hurrying up carpenters, painters and movers in getting the White House ready, but the thousands of tulips, planted in the grounds especially for the occasion, are taking their own bloomin' time.

In fact, these tulips are causing a lot of worry to the White House, The Netherlands Embassy and in high official greenhouse circles.

The tulips are Dutch immigrants. They are a new variety in a special shade of orange — Juliana is a member of the House of Orange — and they have never been exported from The Netherlands before.

R. J. Benkenkamp, agricultural attache at The Netherlands Embassy, and the associated bulb growers of Holland, decided it would be a nice gesture if bulbs of this new variety were sent here to plant in the White House grounds and at the Embassy.

It was hoped they would be blooming during Juliana's visit.

But the bulbs had landing trouble. They reached New York last fall during a longshoreman's strike and couldn't be unloaded. They were returned to Holland, shipped back a month later.

Gardeners at the Embassy planted their bulbs immediately and they will be in bloom by the time of the royal visit. But White House gardeners were further delayed by the remodelling going on there.

They planted about 5,000 around the fountain on the Pennsylvania Avenue side and an equal number in the south garden. They will be flowering around Easter.

The gardeners potted about 2,000 bulbs and speeded up their growth in greenhouses. These will be ready for decorating the White House interior.

Plucky Mother Rescues Children From Blazing Home

Crippled Girl, Aged Woman Saved by Toronto Firemen

Toronto, March 27 —(CP) —A plucky Toronto mother today rescued her three children from a blazing west-end apartment house and was praised by firemen for her courage.

Firemen saved a crippled girl and an 82-year-old woman as flames forced six other persons from the two-apartment building.

Mrs. Walter Reynolds, carrying her baby, rushed her son, 20, and daughter 8, through a sheet of flame and down through dense smoke from the third storey.

Damage was estimated at $1,650.

Bullet Proof Windows In White House

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Bullet proof windows have been installed in the refurnished White House, the Washington Post says today. The President moves back to the 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. address today on his arrival from Key West, Fla., after more than three years in Blair House.

Eight Burned to Death

Somerset, Pa., Mar. 27 (AP)—Eight persons — six of them children — were burned to death today in a farmhouse blaze at nearby Rockwood.

Only Franklin Whipkey, 10, one of the seven children at home at the time, escaped unhurt. He jumped from a window.

Neighbors said the blaze apparently broke out about 7 a.m. in the three-storey frame home of John Whipkey, father of 14.

Police Recover $18,000

Hamilton, March 27. (CP)—Police yesterday recovered $18,000 stolen from the lining of a $50 fur coat less than four hours after the theft occurred.

The woman who owned the coat arrived here a few months ago with $32,000 sewn in the lining. But after buying a house and a car for her daughter, and then a second car after the first was smashed, the roll had dwindled to $18,000.

The coat's owner would not lay charges against the thief because they are related.

WIFE SHARES ESTATE

Cleveland, March 27 (AP) — Charles E. Roseman, Jr., drug chain executive fatally injured yesterday in a traffic accident, left half of an estate of nearly $3,000,000 to the wife who had sued him for divorce. This was discovered today by lawyers for Roseman, 39, and his wife Ann, 21. The balance of the estate is to be shared by Roseman's parents and his daughter Marie, four months.

CLEANED UP MESS BEFORE GOING HOME

The driver of a soft drink distributor working out of Belleville was late in getting home last night. The delay was that it takes a long time to pick up loose bottles and broken glass.

Returning to the city after completing his route in Prince Edward county, the driver was rounding a curve on No. 14 highway at Rossmore when a number of cases on his load slid off onto the highway and shoulder of the road.

Bottles and broken glass were strewn about and the driver cleaned up the mess before proceeding home.

PRACTICE EVERY NIGHT FOR BLACK HAWKS

Practices for the junior Black Hawks hockey team have been called for tonight, Friday and Saturday from seven to eight o'clock, it was announced today.

BLOOMFIELD AGENT 42 YEARS IN SERVICE

C. B. Simmons, C.N.R. station agent at Bloomfield, recently celebrated his 42nd year with the company. Mr. Simmons who has been the Bloomfield agent for the past 15 years has seen service at Millbridge, Gilmour, Bannockburn, Grafton and Strathcona.

LICENCE REQUIRED AFTER MARCH 31ST.

Department of Lands and Forests officials remind sportsmen who have deer, moose meat or game birds in cold storage that a licence is required after March 31st. The licence, obtainable from conservation officers without charge, permits keeping meat or game birds until August 31st next.

SOME MOTORISTS RUN AFOUL OF LAW

Motorists who neglected to get their 1952 windshield stickers in time are beginning to run afoul of the law.

City police today stated that several motorists have been charged for operating their vehicles without the required windshield stickers which this year replace new 1952 licence plates. The deadline for 1951 licences was last Thursday.

CHIEF W. PROBERT ATTENDS FUNERAL

30,237 Phone Directories Placed in Mail

Indicative of the continuing growth of Belleville and other communities in this area is the large increase in the number of telephone directories which began arriving through the mails to subscribers.

Approximately 30,237 new directories were required for homes and business establishments in the entire area as compared with 29,272 when the last directory was issued, according to G. W. Proctor, Bell Telephone manager. And in Belleville alone, there were 600 more copies required this year than last.

Containing 11,234 new and changed listings, the new book is easily distinguishable from the old buff-colored directory by its green cover. Enough of the new directories have been printed to supply all present telephone subscribers and an estimated number of persons expected to start receiving service during the next 12 months.

In addition to Belleville, the new directory also contains listings for subscribers in Gilmour, Madoc, Marmora, Picton, Stirling, Tweed, Wellington, Trenton and several other nearby centres.

Because of the many new and changed listings, Mr. Proctor urges subscribers to check any personal lists of telephone numbers against the numbers listed in the new book and to make any changes that are necessary.

STARLING FRANCIS (STAR) McDONALD
(Deseronto)

Funeral services for Starling Francis (Star) McDonald were held on Wednesday, March 26th, from the Gardiner and White Funeral Home, Deseronto, at 3.30 p.m. with Rev. T. F. Townsend officiating.

Mr. McDonald was born in Belleville, the son of the late William McDonald and the former Mary Champain, and lived all of his life there until 12 years ago when he moved to Deseronto. He died at home on Monday, March 24th, following a short illness, being survived by his wife, the former Bertha Sager. He was in his 57th year.

The deceased was a member of the Belleville Fire Department for 21 years. He was also a member of the Moose Lodge.

Other survivors, besides his wife, include one sister, Mrs. Lena Burke of Toronto, two brothers, Frank of Miami Beach, Florida, and Harry McDonald of Cleveland, Ohio. Also surviving are a step-daughter, Mrs. Harry Ridley and step-son, Sidney William Freeman, both of Belleville.

Bearers included fellow members of the Fire Department, Captains Stan Pomeroy, Stan Waddell and G. L. O'Brien, and Lieutenants F. Poste, C. Greatrix and J. Poste.

Interment was in Deseronto Cemetery.

LATE MRS. LENA MAY CARTER

The funeral of Mrs. Lena May Carter was held Wednesday afternoon at Christ Church where service was conducted by Canon J. B. Creeggan. Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

Tuesday evening a service was conducted by officers of the Minerva chapter 138 Order of the Eastern Star.

The bearers were Thomas Jordan, John Nevery, Gilbert Zebedee, Arthur Irish, Bill Philp and Ray Bush.

LATE MRS. EMMA JANE FARGEY

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Jane Fargey was held Wednesday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home where service was conducted by Rev. Robt. Gardam of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin. Interment was in St. Paul's Cemetery, Roslin.

The bearers were Blake Collins, Clarence Platt, Fred Gray, Sherman Parks, James Hamilton and Harry McCreary.

GAIL ELIZABETH LITTLE

The funeral of Gail Elizabeth Little was held Wednesday from the home of her grandparents at 85 South George Street where service was conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH McALPINE
(Marysville)

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Lil) McAlpine were held on Wednesday, March 26th, from her residence to Holy Name of Mary Church with Requiem Mass being said by Rev. I. S. Donoghue.

A resident of Marysville all of her life, she was the daughter of George Anderson and the former Lucy Kelmurray, and died at her home on Sunday, March 23rd., of a sudden illness. She was in her 70th year.

She was a member of Holy Name of Mary Church, the Catholic Women's League, the Altar Society and the League of the Sacred Heart.

Surviving are three daughters, Nora and Ann of Marysville, Lucille (Mrs. Thomas Kelity) of Tweed, and four sons, Gerald of St. Michael's College, Toronto, Bernard of Toronto, Ambrose and Charles of Marysville. Six grandchildren also survive.

Bearers included Jerry Wringe, Jack McCauley, Bernard McGuiness, James Fahey, William O'Sullivan and Dick Kennedy.

Entombment was in Holy Name of Mary vault.

MISS MAE BATES
(Contributed)

Stricken with a heart attack at her home, 569 Grierson Avenue, Oshawa, Miss Mae Bates passed away in Oshawa General Hospital, March 14th. Service was conducted from the Luke-McIntosh funeral home Sunday evening 8 p.m. by Rev. Moffat of Simcoe Street United Church of which she was an active member.

On Monday, March 17th services were conducted in Stockdale United Church by Rev. R. Newman of Copetown, assisted by Rev. R. McEachern. Burial was in Stockdale cemetery.

Miss Bates was born in Stockdale 68 years ago, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christy Bates. A sister Mrs. (Ida) Williams predeceased her several years ago.

Early in her twenties she trained for deaconess. She served in Metropolitan Church, Toronto for one year, and four years in Gower Street Church in St. Johns, Newfoundland. Later she received her Reg. N. degree in Hazelton, B.C.

She was matron of Burns Home Sanatorium, Detroit, for several years, also was on the staff at De Graff Memorial Hospital, Buffalo until her retirement, or the last few years she has resided with an aunt Mrs. Blair, Oshawa. She had a cheerful loving disposition and will be greatly missed.

The bearers were Harold Bryant, Lee Floud, Leslie Frost, Arthur Walt, Delbert Badgley, Arthur Wilson.

DANIEL HENRY MARACLE
(Tyendinaga)

Funeral services for Daniel Henry Maracle, Tyendinaga Reserve, were held yesterday, March 26th., from the Gardner and White Funeral Home, Deseronto, to All Saints Anglican Church with service conducted by Rev. R. N. Savary.

Bearers included Jack and Patrick Brant, Tommy and Amos Maracle, Francis John and Borden Elliott.

Born at the reserve, 88 years ago, the son of Henry Maracle and the former Charlotte Bardy, Mr. Maracle had lived all of his life in this district. He is survived by his wife, the former Annie Brant.

A farmer, he was educated at Tyendinaga and was a member of All Saints Anglican Church.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Leah Bartram, of Tyendinaga, and two sons, Freeman at home and Theodore of Shannonville.

Interment was in All Saints Anglican Cemetery.

MRS. FLORENCE BRANT

A resident of the Tyendinaga Reserve all of her life, Mrs. Isaac (Florence) Brant died at her home on Thursday, March 20th, following a short illness. She was in her 74th year.

The daughter of John Scero and Sarah Brant, she was born and educated at the reserve. She was a member of All Saints Anglican Church.

Three daughters and two sons survive including Mrs. Joseph (Effie) Doreen, Mrs. Hilton Leween, Mrs. Sheridan Maracle, Amzy, of the reserve and Renford of Buffalo N.Y.

Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Herbert Brant of Tyendinaga, Mrs. Wellington Green of Tyendinaga, Gussie Brant of Tyendinaga, Mrs. Charles Court of Kingston, two brothers, Fred and Lewis Scero of Tyendinaga, 28 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Sunday, March 23rd., from the residence to All Saints Church with Rev. R. N. Savary officiating.

Bearers included Andrew, Jacob and Mike Scero, John C. and Solomon Brant and Francis Leween.

Interment was in All Saints Cemetery.

LATE HORACE J. NEATH

Marmora—The funeral of the late Horace J. Neath took place on Wednesday afternoon, leaving his late residence the Royal Hotel for service in St. Paul's Anglican Church. The service was conducted by the rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie. The funeral was attended by many friends of the deceased and was under auspices of Marmora A.F. and A.M. 222 acting for Mr. Neath's mother lodge.

The pall bearers were V. Glover, S. Kerr, L. Blue, C. Leach, F. Tracey and W. Gill. Entombment took place in Marmora Protestant cemetery where last rites of the Masonic Order were conducted by P.D.D.G.M. C. H. Buskard, Wor. Bro. Canon, J. M. Brownlie and Bro. Rev. G. D. Young.

There were many beautiful floral emblems.

Bearers included Leo, Stuart, Melville and Maxwell Hill, Leslie Claus and Russell Maracle.

A life-long resident of the district, Mr. Maracle was born at the Tyendinaga Reserve, the son of Cornelius Maracle and the former Nancy Hill. He was a member of Christ Anglican Church.

He died at home on Sunday, March 23rd., in his 85th year.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Loretta Longholt of Brantford, and Mrs. Jacob Miller; one brother, Ira Maracle of Tyendinaga; three nephews and three nieces.

Interment was in Christ Anglican Cemetery.

Farm Forum Notes

Only two forums reported on the series "What Causes Wars?", Foxboro and Brookdale. Both forums agreed that lust for power on the part of a dictator was the actual cause. This was augmented by poverty, hunger and low standard of living. With these people in poorer circumstances it was an easy matter to gain a following, who were looking forward to anything that might perhaps better their condition. Every promise was worth striving for.

The Remedy

The remedy would be to better these conditions and raise standards of living in all backward countries. We should strive for better distribution of our agricultural products on a world scale. One group suggested that our missionary effort should be increased to Christianize the whole world. There were 35 members out at the two forums.

Brookdale Farm Forum

Forty people enjoyed an oyster supper at the home of the chairman, Morley Sine, to wind up the current season of farm forum activities.

A pleasing event of the banquet was the birthday cake decorated in pink and white and having 11 candles on it. The present secretary, George Brown, lit the candles and the first chairman and secretary, Ken Faul and Sam Nicolson blew them out.

Films were enjoyed in the latter part of the evening, one in particular being worthy of note. This was life on the Gatineau River during the four seasons of the year and had been specially requested.

Eloise Sine gave a report of the folk school which was held at Madoc last January, as her trip had been sponsored by Brookdale farm forum.

A goodly number plan to attend the Hastings County farm forum rally to be held in Foxboro on Saturday night, March 29.

Cheese Makers To Hold Annual Spring Session

Members of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association will hold their annual spring conference at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday, April 8th.

Included on agenda are talks from provincial, federal dairy officials and discussion on remedies suggested to remove defects in 1952 cheese.

Scheduled to speak are C. E. Lackner, director of dairying; W. H. Sproule, professor of dairying, O.A.C., Guelph; W. C. Cameron, associate director of marketing services; Jack M. Bain, chief cheese instructor for western and central Ontario; J. F. Robinson, chief instructor for Eastern Ontario and Robt. Gillan, dairy produce grader at Belleville.

All cheese makers and factory patrons in the Bay of Quinte district are urged to attend the afternoon and evening sessions.

Charge of Theft Brings Sentence Of Three Months

Convicted on a charge of stealing a press felt from the Glen Miller paper mill, Allan Roy Gibson, 21 of Glen Miller, was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Gibson appeared this morning in county magistrate's court.

Police said the value of the article taken was over $200.

There was a lengthy court docket made up principally of highway traffic cases. There were six speeding charges, several of which were settled out of court, with fines and costs ranging from $8 to $13 being paid.

Included on the list were a number of careless driving charges.

'Sailor' Malan Wants Parley With Premier

Capetown, South Africa, Mar. 27 (Reuters) — Group Captain "Sailor" Malan, relentless campaigner against Premier Daniel Malan's race-segregation policy, Wednesday led a squad of his "torch commandos" into Capetown to ask for a parley with Malan.

The second world war ace and chief lieutenants of his veterans' organization arrived by plane from Durban despite Malan's refusal Tuesday to see him.

He has since ignored their second request for an interview to discuss his decision to override a Supreme Court ruling last week declaring a key piece of racial legislation to be invalid.

"Sailor" Malan said his delegation wants to tell the premier that if he continues his present policy, the responsibility — "should anything happen" — would be on his head.

While members of the United Party Opposition in Parliament coninue to demand Malan's resignation, all eyes are turned to a pending by-election in the mountain town of Walkerstrom where elections have often proved a sure political barometer.

The by-election is expected to give a strong indication of voter reaction to Malan's devision to by-pass the Supreme Court ruling.

Water Bombing Of Forest Fires Proves Effective

Montreal, March 27—(CP)—Water bombing of forest fires has proven effective in retarding or stopping the spread of fires, Q. F. Hess, district forester, Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, said today.

"Experiments have shown "that if properly employed, this technique is very successful in combatting fires, which, with insects and disease, consume more of Canada's forest wealth each year than does the billion-dollar pulp and paper industry."

Mr. Hess, who comes from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said his department is conducting tests in which specially-made paper bags, holding 3½ gallons of water, are dropped on fires from aircraft at a height of 300 feet. On hitting the ground, they not only wet the area, but add water vapor to the air, thus retarding the advance of the fire.

He spoke at a session of the 34th annual meeting of the woodlands section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Francois Matte of Quebec, chief forester of Donnacona Paper Company Ltd., outlined selective cutting used in a pulpwood forest tract of 757 square miles in Quebec's Laurentide Park.

"To achieve sustained yield, a forest must be managed so that pulpwood can be cut perpetually in equal quantities and the annual harvest is replaced each year by the annual growth," he said.

A forestry extension service to assist farmers and others in the proper management of their woodlots, was described by M. R. Wilson, resident manager of Canadian International Paper Company's tree farm at Grenville, Que.

DEATH TOLL NOW TWO

Barrie, March 27. (CP)— The death toll in a traffic accident Sunday at Stayner rose to two last night.

Mrs. John Walsh, 57, of Owen Sound, died in hospital from injuries suffered in the accident which earlier took the life of Mrs. G. W. McNabb of R.R. 3, Owen Sound.

The automobile in which the women were riding skidded out of control and struck a telephone pole.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Mar. 27 (CP)—Stock market prices turned slowly upward today in early afternoon stock dealings.

Western oils and penny golds drew most speculative interest while a few metals also showed activity. Industrial dealings remained mainly in leading issues Volume for the first three hours was 1,789,000 shares.

Miscellaneous issues led industrials with a wide list of fractional advances. Banks, constructions and manufacturing companies drew firm support but utilities, foods and textiles remained weak.

Western oils posted a slim majority of gains. Anglo-Canadian, Central-Leduc, Dome Explorations, Federated Petroleum, Model Oil and Pacific Petroleum edged upward.

Base Metals were mixed as Eureka, Castle, Hudson Bay, Mindamar, Ontario Pyrites and Steep Rock strengthened while East Sullivan, Labrador, Quebec Copper and Quemont weakened.

Senior golds sagged. Bralorne, Hollinger, Lake Shore and Malartic drifted lower. Secondary issues made little headway. Selected leading junior producers were strong.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

Strong Fighter Force Needed To Cope With Hostile Bombers Says Staff Director at Banquet

Trenton—(Special)—Air Commodore C. L. Annis, director of the joint chiefs of staff in Canada addressed a Chamber of Commerce banquet at the Queensway Hotel last night. He advocated a strong fighter force to defend Canada against bomber attack. He maintained well equipped and well trained fighter squadrons could cope with hostile bombers.

"Germany," he said, "failed in the last war because they did not know how to use their aircraft. They tried to knock out bombers with their fighters instead of concentrating on fighters that accompanied them. To first conquer a nation you must first kill off its fighter fleet."

He explained that although Germany fell trying to defend themselves it was not impossible to stop an enemy attack. He warned however, that an aircraft carrying an atomic bomb over the target was just as effective as 30,000 planes carrying normal bombs.

Although new type aircraft are costly the time that it takes to build them is what the allies are worried about. It will take Canada until 1954 to supply N.A.T.O. with the 12 fighter squadrons promised them.

Want Combat Knowledge

Touching on the Korean war, he pointed out that Russia was willing to sacrifice men and machines to gain combat knowledge from our pilots. Russian aircraft were just as good as ours he revealed and their designers and mechanics are just as clever. Their standard of training men nevertheless does not stack up with the allies.

He figures that if Russia can see that we are really ready they would readily call off the whole business.

FO. E. L. Renebohn introduced the speaker and Ramsay Park tendered the vote of thanks.

SUFFERS CONCUSSION

Lionel Wannamaker, 24, a mechanic at Ed. Rupert's garage on Front and Middle Streets suffered a concussion when he fell over backwards yesterday and struck his head on the cement floor. He slipped when he jumped up on the office desk and reached to put a new light bulb in a socket hanging from the ceiling. He is in bed resting comfortably at his home under the care of Dr. D. E. Campbell.

BRING DOWN ESTIMATES

The board of management of the Board of Education hope to bring down estimates at a general meeting on Tuesday night. At a committee meeting the other night it was decided to approach teachers asking for a raise in pay with a proposition worked on seniority and qualifications.

School board head Roland Whitley said he expected something definite on Tuesday.

Until the estimates are in from the board of education council is held up with their yearly budget.

Land at Malton

An air evacuation Dakota of the RCAF captained by F/L A. D. Herbert, 29, of Belleville with a number of repatriated Korean veterans landed at Malton today and continued to Montreal. The aircraft flying from Tacoma Washington touched down at points all across Canada dropping off returning personnel.

Hockey Trophy Given Captain Of Winning Team

Trenton. (Special.)—The Aziz hockey trophy was presented to Leonard Ashton, captain of the Dufferin Public School team, that defeated College Street school in the inter-school winter series. The presentation took place last night at the monthly meeting of the Dufferin Home and School Club. F. J. "Pete" Aziz handed over the cup which was put up for competition this year.

Coach of the team Ira MacDonald star of the team last year was forced to direct his teammates from the sidelines after a skating accident in Belleville at the start of the season. He broke his leg in a fall at the Belleville arena.

Teacher Harold Campbell introduced each team member to the club praising their performance during the series.

FACES PROSECUTION

Mainz, Germany March 27 (AP) — A German newspaper editor faces prosecution for suggesting Chancellor Konrad Adenauder should be called "Chancellor of the Allies." Editor Guenther Markscheffel's immunity as a member of the Rhineland-Pfalz provincial parliament was lifted yesterday to permit prosecution. His socialist Freiheit bitterly opposed the Adenauer-backed plan for German rearmament as part of a European army.

MAY ELIMINATE DIPHTHERIA

London, March 27 (Reuters) — Diphtheria may be eliminated from Britain within the next few years, the health ministry predicts. A statement reporting an all-time low for the disease was issued yesterday. It listed 32 deaths from diphtheria last year compared with 49 in 1950. Credit was given to the immunization program started in 1940.

TURTLE HAVEN

Ascension Island, a small volcanic isle in the Atlantic off the African coast, is noted for its sea turtles.

Continue Air Search

Halifax, Mar. 27 (CP) — The R.C.A.F. continued its air search for a missing transport plane today while waiting a report from a fishing vessel sent to check a single clue sighted by a search plane yesterday.

A report was expectd soon from the vessel, investigating lumber floating three miles south of Bonaventure Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The missing Maritime Central Airways twin-engined Dakota, which carried three passengers and a crew of two, had a cargo of lumber when it vanished Saturday on a chartered flight from Saint John, N.B., to Goose Bay, Labrador.

Poor visibility, which has hampered the air search during the last four days, kept most of the force grounded again today.

However, at least 11 planes took off from Greenwood, N.S., and others were expected from United States bases in Newfoundland. They were concentrating on the Bay of Chaleur, Gaspe, and the St. Lawrence mouth.

APARTHEID MEANS TROUBLE

The results of this apartheid business in South Africa are becoming serious. Not only that, there are indications that it has implications for a good many people who live a long way from South Africa.

It all began when Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan of South Africa decided that the various black, brown and yellowish people in South Africa had acquired too much freedom and that he and his government were going to deprive them of some of it.

Mr. Malan first undertook to restrict the colored groups as to where they could live and what occupations they might follow. He also established, or attempted to make more drastic, various Jim Crow regulations concerning where the colored people might congregate, eat, and so on. His most recent attempt at suppressing the coloreds (as they call them) was to try to deprive them of most of their voting rights.

In making these changes, there were several factors which Mr. Malan did not ponder sufficiently; at least, he did not ponder them sufficiently if he entertained any desire to avoid trouble. One of these factors was that the so-called coloreds outnumber the whites in South Africa by four or five to one. (We haven't the exact figures at hand.) Another was that the coloreds for decades had been acquiring and assimilating western ideas (as distinguished from South African ideas) about freedom, equality and human dignity. Or perhaps the darker-skinned people in South Africa, like the darker-skinned peoples almost everywhere else in the world, were merely getting tired of being exploited and kicked around by the white man.

In any event, South Africa's coloreds did not take these restrictive measures without protest. Several times within the last year or two, there have been fierce riots. Since the South Africa Supreme Court declared Mr. Malan's latest repressive measures unconstitutional, as it did a few days ago, there has been more rioting.

The coloreds of South Africa are not alone in their opposition to Mr. Malan and his apartheid policies. They have been supported by many enlightened white men, including the parliamentary opposition to Mr. Malan's government and by certain Anglican clergymen.

Like Canada, South Africa is still a part of the British Empire, or British Commonwealth, as some prefer to call it. Like Canada also, South Africa is a member of the United Nations. If the United Nations can do anything to tame Mr. Malan, it should do so, before he does any more mischief. Action on the part of the United Nations against Mr. Malan was advocated in the Canadian House of Commons on Monday last by David Croll, (Liberal, Toronto Spadina).

Troubles such as the British are experiencing in Iran and Egypt are likely to continue and even grow worse as long as such people as Mr. Malan are allowed to operate unchecked. Similarly, France's troubles in Indo-China, Tunisia and Algeria will not lessen as long as white men are attempting to oppress colored men.

WILDLIFE WEEK NEARS

Hon. H. R. Scott, Ontario minister of lands and forests, has urged the people of the province to support the observance of National Wildlife Week, which is to be held throughout Canada from April 6 to April 12, inclusive. The week has been set aside by dominion act of parliament and is dedicated to the memory of the late Jack Miner, whose work in the interests of wildlife, particularly wildfowl, has been widely acclaimed. Mr. Miner operated a bird sanctuary in Essex County.

As Mr. Scott pointed out, conservation of wildlife is necessarily a permanent part of all management plans for maintaining an adequate supply to meet the needs of present and future generations. Departmental plans to attain these ends can only be successful if they receive a complete measure of public support.

National Wildlife Week provides a great opportunity for concentrated effort by all conservation organizations and educational bodies to emphasize the need for an appreciation of wildlife values, not merely for a stated period, but throughout the year. Fish and game protective associations and other such groups are urged to make special efforts during the week to enlist public support for the principles of conservation as applied to our wildlife resources.

GARDEN MIRACLES

I marvel at the miracles a garden small discloses.
I plant a few dry stems of wood, and from them
I'll get roses.
Some will be white and some be red. For that I trust the label.
But how that miracle is worked, to learn I'm never able.

I sow the seeds of marigold and zinnia from a packet.
But every flower has curious foes that every year attack it.
And this still stays a mystery:
why flower and foe
together?
Or how the zinnias come to bloom in spite of foe and weather?

I know in middle April right on schedule, to the minute,
The purple martins reach their house and start to settle in it.
I know they find their way back home, but how they do, I don't know;
And that is something I am sure that while I live I won't know.

I see the first brave snowdrop white, but never can explain it.
It brings its blossom through the soil without a spot to stain it.
In every thing that lives and breathes, in every leaf that's stirring
Who walks about a garden small sees miracles occurring.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AVOID TENSION

A radio news commentator recently told about a student who, because he was so relaxed of mind and body, passed an exceedingly difficult examination and stood first among several hundred of his classmates. Almost at the same time, a noted athlete attributed his prowess to the fact that he never "tensed up." He declared that if a person could just be relaxed, his efficiency would be increased many fold. This athlete is a runner. He starts every race as if he didn't care whether he was going to win or not, but that spurt on the finish has been the despair of many who have competed with him.

Have you ever noticed that men who are doing the biggest things in the world never appear to be busy? They are by no means neglecting their work; they are just relaxed, and confident in their approach to their work. One of my friends who is compelled by the nature of his work to carry several dozen projects on his mind all the time never seems to have anything at all on his mind. Yet when asked about any of these projects he replies with detailed information which is astounding to hear.

Getting tensed-up is the deadly enemy of all higher achievement. This holds not only for physical achievement but for mental and spiritual also. "Be not anxious," said our Lord.

U.S. Lifts Restrictions On White-Walled Tires

Washington, March 27. (AP)—The United States government Wednesday lifted its ban on white-sidewalled tires and increased the amount of natural rubber that may be used in passenger car tires.

The national production authority also announced that tire and rubber companies may use 110,000 long tons of natural rubber in each quarter after April 1, instead of 105,000 tons.

The announcement was coupled with a promise of further easing of rubber controls "in the near future."

TV Owner Complains Of Local Interference

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The number of television sets in the city have been increasing rapidly of late and a great number of people are deriving pleasure from them.

This pleasure is spoiled by interference set up by several sources. To those living on the city bus lines, especially near bus stops, this is especially evident.

Some cars, particularly two or three makes, are the cause of great interference because of their ignition systems. It is a very simple matter for the owners of these vehicles to help cut out this interference by procuring the necessary suppressors and having them installed in their cars.

Another bad source of interference is the radio phones installed in taxi cabs. This could, perhaps, be avoided by using other frequencies than are now being used.

Undoubtedly, it will only be a short time until television interference is regulated as it is in radio at the present time. So why not try to do something about it now and make many television owners happy.

Florida Holiday

By G. A. MORTON
(Managing Editor.)

Although Miami is a large city, it is comparatively easy to find one's way to almost any part without undue trouble—if a map is used. Most of the streets run at right angles to one another while in the business district one-way traffic only is permitted. Well-marked laneways on the pavements enable the stranger to drive even in heavy traffic with comparative ease.

The one-way traffic in downtown areas is becoming more common in many American cities and we believe it is the answer to a problem which is common to all large centres of population. It has proven successful in Baltimore, Maryland, as we know from experience in driving there. When traffic lights are synchronized it is astonishing how swiftly the motorist can cover fairly long distances in a short time.

Flagler Street, which is comparable to Yonge Street in Toronto, is a splendid example of the efficiency of this method. Four lanes of cars are handled with ease and as a result the street is rarely crowded with impatient drivers striving to beat the other fellow in their hurry to get some place.

Two blocks from this street are huge parking lots where you can leave your car for the whole day for twenty-five cents. At no time were they ever completely full during our stay in the city. Such convenient arrangements must mean a lot to the business firms as well as customers, and to the visitor also. Certainly, we found it a pleasure to drive into the city knowing in advance that parking would be no trouble.

In order to make the drive to southern Florida more attractive to the tourists the state is considering the construction of a toll highway from Jacksonville to Miami, a distance of about 385 miles and a cost of about $300,000,000. The best known toll highway at present in the eastern states is the one from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh where a charge of approximately one cent a mile for a car is charged. This has proven to be a profitable project and it is likely more highways of the same will be constructed in the future by the Americans.

As might be expected, most of the smaller centres are opposing the move for fear of losing business and are putting up an extensive lobby against it. What makes present conditions rather objectionable are the large number of towns located on the highway, and as they are strung out for considerable distances, traffic is slowed considerably and aggravated further by the low speed limits these places impose. However, it will be interesting to see how the promoters of the highway will make out. If they win it will not be an easy battle.

It was with considerable reluctance that we prepared for the trip home. The thought of leaving such pleasant surroundings and ideal weather was not easy to contemplate, although we knew we were fortunate to have had the privilege of going south in the first place.

The first night was spent at Delray Beach where we stayed with the same friends who were so hospitable to us last year. They had written and insisted we do this and again we were treated royally. We were taken to The Breakers, a famous luxury hotel for a tea dance and later went to Worth Avenue in Palm Beach where the specialty stores have no equal probably anywhere in America. The opulence and select merchandise displayed here is breath-taking in its richness and design. We feel quite incompetent to say anything further about it—it must be seen to be appreciated. We also had dinner at La Petite Marmite, a restaurant noted for its fine French cuisine and which was described in a recent number of Holiday magazine. Altogether it was an evening to be remembered, and we were indeed grateful to have had the opportunity of visiting Worth Avenue under such nice circumstances.

During the drive north, we stopped at Columbia in South Carolina for lunch at the Caldwell cafeteria and we would like particularly to recommend this establishment to anyone travelling south. The food is above average and the prices extraordinarily low while the interior surroundings are much superior to the ordinary cafeterias.

It was interesting to note the migration of birds as we moved north. Last year numerous flocks of robins were to be seen all the way up to Virginia whereas this season we recall having seen two flocks only. Also fewer blue birds, brown thrushes and blackbirds were observed. The weather was colder and that could have caused the difference.

First evidences of snow were seen southeast of Washington and these became more numerous until around Binghamton, N.Y., the ground was completely covered, in fact more than in Ontario. It would have been pleasant to have been going south instead of north.

Just the same it was nice to return and find everything had gone along well during our absence. Our trip was most pleasant, made more so by nothing happening to mar our enjoyment. Everywhere, we met with courtesy that could not be surpassed.

Travelling is always more pleasant when one can do it in the company of friends and this year we were fortunate in being accompanied to the south and while there by Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Mrs. Wills. They drove down in their own car and stayed next to us at the Villas on Biscayne Key. There is always a feeling of strangeness when going to new places alone, and this can be avoided if another couple goes along. Then, too, it is always interesting to discuss the many things which have been seen and to plan the activities for the next day. We hope the same arrangements can be made if we should be able to get away again on a similar trip next year.

Now that we are home we find ourselves thinking of another trip next winter. They have a saying in Florida that "if you get sand in your shoes you will always want to return." Well, we got a load in ours!

(The End)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SYMPATHY AND UNDERSTANDING

Two of the greatest curatives for the sick heart that I know anything about are sympathy and understanding. Mere medicines have no place when this heart of our ails!

That man in the Bible story—the good Samaritan—who noted a man in trouble by the wayside, had no idea as to who he was, but he knew he needed sympathy and understanding, and so put him on his own beast and had him cared for, while any number of others passed him by as being of no concern to them.

Fortunate is the doctor who has a good nurse for his patient—one who can dispense sympathy and understanding to the one under her charge, for in so many cases it is the mind and heart that are in greater need than the body.

It is easy enough for any of us to have sympathy for those who need it but understanding is not so easy. We understand so little about ourselves so that we cannot always be taken to task for not understanding someone else, not even those nearest and dearest to us. But just a little understanding goes so far! And does so much.

We have a glaring example of lack of sympathy and understanding in the world today, among the nations of the earth. Genuine sympathy and understanding would do away with all war, do away with all fear, and change the world! But perhaps that would be too simple a solution. It would kill all selfish power. But should this idea be put to work it would create a burst of happiness that would echo around the world as no A or H bomb possibly could!

Many of the refugees from foreign lands to this western world have had their eyes opened as to how a democratic people live and work. Here they have found genuine freedom and sympathy and understanding that has amazed them. War is no solution—and never will be—for those who only ask for sympathy and understanding, and the opportunity to live their own lives as God meant that they should.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

SOME TELL 'EM TOO MUCH

Years ago, when I believed and assured readers that radical operation was the only cure for hernia, I became interested in what seemed to me a new and probably dangerous method which, numerous correspondents assured me, gave a cure without hospitalization.

Although I regarded the doctor they mentioned as an arrant quack, I repressed my qualms and visited the doctor to observe his technique. I watched him treat eight or ten patients, each treatment requiring only a few minutes, giving the patient little or no discomfort.

I learned three things that day:

(1) The ambulant (office, injection) treatment of hernia (rupture, breach) had merit
(2) The doctor's skill was comparable with that of the finest surgeon
(3) The method is applicable in some cases, not in all cases.

On written request, accompanied with stamped, self-addressed envelope, I'll send the pamphlet on hernia. Please do not ask me how much this treatment costs or whether it will cure your case. Both questions are for your own physician to answer. In general the ambulant treatment is not more expensive than operation and hospitalization, and it does not interrupt ordinary work or daily activity.

I was impressed by the way the doctor handled his patients. His replies, if any, when they asked any questions were short. On completing the treatment he dismissed the patient with specific instruction, more like a command, to report at precisely such and such time for the next treatment, and the patient did not linger. At first I wondered if they were all charity cases—but there was only one non-pay patient among them, and the doctor seemed more indulgent toward this one than he was toward the others. Months later I talked with a few of the patients. They were all apparently cured, and they all expressed their faith in the skill of the doctor.

There may be a moral here for some practitioners. Offhand I'd say this doctor, notwithstanding his skill, was too reticent. Yet it was obvious that his patients held him in high esteem.

I know another doctor who is highly skilled in another special field. He is as painstaking, gentle and kind as one could wish, but he tells patients too much. Far too much, I'm sure. And this propensity of his spoils many patients—I mean, they begin to think they know as much about the treatment as the doctor does, and when patients get that way they become difficult and presently drift away.

Some readers complain because a doctor has charged a fee when they merely took up his time to ask questions about something or other. Would they expect to consult an attorney about a question of law and not pay a fee?

Somewhere between telling 'em nothing and telling them what only the doctor should know is the way of success. I never found the way when I was an honest doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Over a Hundred

A good many letters go unanswered here or by mail, many of them unnecessarily, because writers assume they can take all of my time they wish. 'Taint so. In order to keep up with the clock, give everybody as fair treatment as possible and still reach the bowling green in condition to beat the pants off O. N. B. I have to drop unread into the chucker most letters that go on and on for pages and even some that are only a little more than 100 words long. Don't waste words asking that I give more than your share of time to your case. And for heaven's sake don't tell me I have helped others, maybe I can help you. As dear old Pat Kelly was wont to say, when Chapel Street kids dawdled too long at the candy counter, "Come, come, say what ye want, spind your penny and get out."

An Acid Condition, Eh?

I have what my dentist calls an acid condition. . . (Mrs. L. G. B.)

Answer—Your dentist and your physician should co-operate in correcting your diet and metabolism. If either seems disinclined to do so, have no further truck with him or her.

Dog Came Back

Your cal with D has done wonders in our family. Even the dog, on two legs from arthritis, came back well in two weeks.—(Mrs. A. W.)

Answer—Intelligent folk should use more calcium (of course always with vitamin D) and less aspirin—they might get more comfort and live longer.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In conversation, women must face each other. Men get along very comfortably in profile.

You see this best in a bus or train. Except for movement of their heads, and an occasional side glance at each other to drive home a point in their discussion, two men can sit side by side for hours in continuous discourse and you would never know they were talking.

But two women side by side must twist around and face each other if possible; or at the very least, turn their heads to converse nose to nose and eye to eye. Very often, in the case of men, one is a talker and the other a listener. Very seldom do you find this to be so with the ladies. Both are talkers; perhaps one more than the other. But a conversation between ladies is a conversation. And it could not be carried out unless they are eye to eye, each watching intently the expression on the other's face. There seems to be a fascination in it. They are either unable to make their meaning plain or else are unable to perceive the meaning, unless staring intently, not lip-readers, but eye-readers, into each other's gaze.

Two men, on the other hand, can carry on a spirited conversation while one sags back gazing absently out the train window and the other allows his glance to travel idly over his fellow-passengers.

It could be women are instinctively honest; men are instinctively evasive. It could be, however, that women are instinctively interested, in each other, and men are instinctively bored with each other.

If a man and woman are sitting chatting side by side, the man's face is turned to her, if she is pretty. If she isn't pretty, the woman's face is turned to the man. That, of course, is no puzzle.

Officials See Ray of Hope For Dairy Industry Exports In Action of U.S. Committee

Ottawa, March 27 — (CP) — Trade officials said today that a bill approved by the United States Senate Banking Committee would have the effect of freezing cheese and skimmed milk products from U. S. import controls if it became law.

But they added that until the restrictions actually are removed Canada will continue to press the U. S. to eliminate curbs which have curtailed Canada's exports of cheese and other dairy products.

They were commenting on a Washington despatch yesterday reporting that the committee had decided to substitute a new amendment to the U. S. Defence Production Act.

The report said that instead of the present import restrictions, the committee approved a provision, used during the Second World War, permitting a ban on imports but only after hearings and findings.

Canadian trade officials said the wartime provision referred to was the U. S. war food orders which cover a wide range of fats and, oils, but not cheese and skimmed milk products.

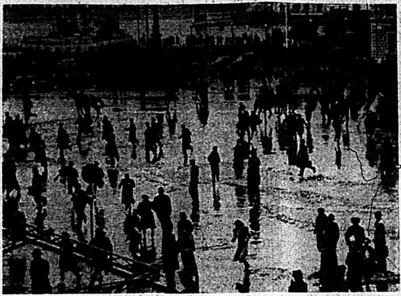
"That would mean the bill would have the effect of excluding cheese and skimmed milk products from the controls," an expert said. "That is good news for Canada. But the bill has a long way to go before it becomes law."

It must pass through the Senate and House of Representatives and be signed by the president. Until that is done, Canada will continue to press the U. S. to remove the curbs, the officials said.

The curbs restrict Canada's exports of cheese and skimmed milk products to a quota established on basis of annual average shipments in the three-year period, 1947-49 inclusive.

Canada has maintained these restrictions contravene the terms of the multi-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade of which both Canada and the U. S. are member countries.

Italians Demonstrate for Return of Trieste



Allied military police scatter pro-Italian demonstrators rioting against Allied institutions in Trieste, the "free" city claimed by Italy and Yugoslavia. Almost all the attacks against the Allies were aimed at the British command of the American-British Allied military government. More than 60 people were injured in the fracas, much Allied property was damaged by stone-throwing riots and 40 demonstrators were taken to jail. A general strike closed all schools and shops and paralyzed transportation for 13 hours in protest against the way in which the Allied military government police dealt with pro-Italian demonstrators on the fourth anniversary of the yet unrealized U.S.-French-British proposal that Trieste be given back to Italy. — Central Press Canadian.

Friendly Little Birds, These Goonies

Survives But Playmates Die

Three-year-old Mary Ann Church was found alive after nearly two days in the dense Wisconsin woods near Oconto Falls. Mary Ann, her sister, Cathy, and cousin, Steven Kennedy, both five, were lost in the woods after they playfully chased a porcupine from near their home during a snowstorm. The other two children were found dead, lying face down, after they apparently fell asleep and froze to death. — Central Press Canadian.

Calvary Temple Raises $21,563 During Year

The annual business meeting of Calvary Temple was held in the church auditorium on Tuesday evening with a very gratifying financial report being presented by all departments. A total of $21,563.96 was raised for all purposes during 1951. Of this amount $9,195.91 came from outright gifts to the building fund, $11,048.08 through the general fund; $983.26 was raised by the Sunday School, $242.00 by the young people's group and $94.71 by the Women's Missionary Council.

The officers elected and appointments confirmed for the year 1952 are as follows: Deacons—Clem W. Jackson, Alfred G. Becker, G. M. Lott and Alan E. Haw; Trustees—C. W. Jackson, A. G. Becker, and J. Holcroft; Sunday School Supt., H. G. Harris, Assistant Supt., G. Reilly; Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. G. Becker; President, Christ's Ambassadors, Austin Haig; President, Women's Missionary Council, Mrs. C. W. Jackson.

Accepted With Regret

The church treasurer, Mr. Arnold Dyer, tendered his resignation, which was accepted with regret. Rev. Laurie Price spoke appreciatively of Mr. Dyer's faithful and efficient service, which was particularly arduous during the past two years owing to the extra work entailed because of the new building program. As a tangible expression of the regard in which he is held by the congregation, Mr. Dyer was made the recipient of a Sunbeam electric shavemaster. In his reply Mr. Dyer stated that he had enjoyed splendid co-operation from the pastors and he congratulated the congregation on their fine spirit of sacrificial giving. Not one cent had been raised by any social means; but the Bible pattern of tithes and offerings had been the rule in the financing of Calvary Temple.

The financial report revealed that over $2,000.00 had been donated to evangelists and special speakers. Of the amount raised by the Sunday School, $334.56 had been turned over to missions. As one of their projects the young people's group had purchased a duplicating machine for printing the church bulletin. The Women's Missionary Council had been quite active during the year. This group had sent Christmas boxes to mission stations, as well as Christian literature, bandages and other first aid supplies. Quilts and clothing had been made for home mission workers, also towels for the Lakeshore camp at Cobourg. Baptismal gowns and other church furnishings had been made by the women's groups.

Prospers Spiritually

Rev. Hope Smith stated that the church had prospered spiritually as well as financially. Many converts had been received into the fellowship during the year, and, he added, if the people continued to be faithful in their prayer life, tithes and Christian witness, God would surely pour out even greater blessing in the future.

It is interesting to note that Cavalry Temple has in its organization four graduates of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College. Besides the pastors, Rev. Laurie Price and Rev. Hope Smith, there is Mr. Austin Haig, church song leader and young people's president, also Mrs. L. H. Price, who is a gifted preacher and Bible teacher. Before her marriage Mrs. Price pastored a church in Newfoundland.

Three young men from the congregation are now studying for the ministry at the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough. They are Lloyd Faulkner, George Ewald and Keith Running. Other young men and women of the congregation are also preparing to enter this famous residential Bible College that has turned out many noted preachers and missionaries.

CHIMPS BAD BOYS

St. Louis, March 27. (AP)—A couple of chimps were thrown out of their "apartment" at the St. Louis zoo yesterday for aping people and throwing food at spectators. The chimps, Eddie and Moony, were moved to a glassed-in cage.

QUEEN SENDS REPLY

Baton Rouge, La., March 27. — (AP)—"I'm sorry to hear your papa died," six-year-old Harry Goodman wrote Queen Elizabeth. "I hope God will help you." A black bordered envelope from Buckingham Palace arrived yesterday at the residence of Harry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sinclair Goodman. "The Queen commands me to write and thank you for your kind letter," said the message signed by the Queen's secretary. "Her Majesty was deeply touched by your thought for her in her sorrow."

HIGH TAX RATE SET

Peterborough, March 27 (CP)—A 1952 tax rate of 64.75 mills for public school supporters has been struck by city council. This is an increase of 9.25 mills over last year.

Separate school supporters will pay 67.25 mills, an increase of 10.25 mills.

Women's Activities

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Marmora.—The March meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart hall on Sunday evening with a fair attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Cook, occupied the chair. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

The correspondence was then dealt with. This included a letter of thanks from the Rev. Father O'Flaherty, of the Indian Mission at Port Arthur, for used clothing sent this winter. Also a letter of thanks was read from Rev. Msgr. MacDonald, of Alexandria, for disposing of Christmas cards. Several other "thank-you" letters were read from members, who had received gifts.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Joseph O'Neill.

Mrs. H. English reported for Social Welfare.

Mrs. J. McCrodan and Mrs. B. Hughes reported fifteen visits to the sick and shut-ins and the same ladies volunteered for this duty this coming month.

Highest Matric Standing

President reported that Peter Nichols had obtained the highest standing in matriculation and the bursary from the League would be presented to him at the high school commencement exercises on Friday evening. It was decided to again donate this prize for next year.

A discussion was held and it was decided to hold an April Fool supper in the hall on Tuesday evening, April 1.

The members brought in donation for the basket of groceries to be drawn for after Easter. The basket was donated by Mrs. B. Hughes. Groups 2 and 3 were asked to furnish the lunch for the April meeting.

The nominating committee was then appointed with Mrs. A. M. Jones, chairman, assisted by Mrs. H. English and Mrs. W. A. Shannon.

Comic Strips

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill addressed the meeting on undesirable comic strips and literature which enters the home, after which a resolution was passed to write the Diocesan convener, condemning such comics and literature.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of Group four.

TOLD TO LEAVE BRITAIN

London, March 27 (Reuters) — Police guarded the London homes of a former diplomat and a leading medical expert last night after they received telephone threats that they would be murdered. Sir Reginald Hoare, British minister in Iran from 1931 to 1934 and now a banker, and Sir John Charles, chief medical officer to the education and health ministeries and the home office, were told they would be killed unless they left Britain within 24 hours.

Fashion Show, Entertainment Sponsored by RCAF Auxiliary Well Attended, Successful

Last evening at Trenton Air Station over fifteen hundred persons viewed with interest the spectacular, colorful, hilarious and unique presentation of the "Variety with Fashions" show, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Mrs. D. H. MacCaul, president of the auxiliary attired in a striking evening dress with white fox shoulder cape, officially opened the show, and cordially welcomed the vast throng of guests.

Dean Whalen presided at the console of the organ which had been loaned for the occasion and furnished several fine selections as a prelude.

Attractive Lobby

The lobby of Hotel Astra, with its attractive baskets of pink snapdragons, yellow daffodils and adiantum fern, soft lighting, and cosy chesterfield formed the setting for the evening's entertainment. Flight Lieutenant E. D. Herbertson, the desk clerk, carried out his oft-times bewildering task in a most efficient and realistic manner, as did the gum-chewing bellhops, and the little elevator and hat check girls as they attended the guests and those who kept arriving from time to time.

The little black gremlin provided mirth as he swished from time to time across the stage disappearing first into one door and then into another, while the call boy, in his natty pale blue uniform, rivalled a well-known cigarette radio voice as he continued down the stairs across the lobby and into the aileroom seeking the elusive "Mr. Sil-ver" for whom he had a parcel, which became ever larger and larger until finally the parcel became so large the call boy was nearly wedged in the stairway, and at the end of the show was seen in the distance in the hall seated upon a monstrous parcel, still calling for "Mr. Sil-ver."

Outstanding Contributions

Outstanding contributions to the evening were, the harmonica virtuoso, C.N.E. gold medalist, LAC. J. F. Wallace, who rendered a fine interpretation of "The Train" and other numbers; the Barber Shop quartet; the magician, Douhini the Great, G/C. J. D. Syme, of Camp Borden, who mysteriously produced an Easter bunnie from an otherwise empty box, a number of colored scarves, and lastly full grown, much disturbed hen from the collection of scarves.

Season's Fashions

As the various guests arrived displaying the season's fashions which included fetching white bathing suits, tennis outfits showing short, swirling skirts, corduroy hiking suits, slacks, picnic dresses, street suits, casual coats, afternoon and evening dresses and luxurious stoles and capes in fur, many mirthful incidents occurred, adding greatly to the whole. Not only the ladies held the attention, but their gallant escorts in their white fronts and tails.

The prevailing styles in women's apparel featured fine grey and blue checks, two and three-piece ensembles in red with harmonizing touches; skirts full, or pencil slim, slashed at the hem for freedom in walking; while navy blue and black were quite in evidence. The evening gowns were billowing and frothy, showing both the ballerina length as well as the stately formal wear, and were in lovely shades of soft lime green, yellow, mauve, and other pastel tints. Attention was drawn to the length of the torso, which seems to be lengthening.

Cast Included

Those composing the cast were: trumpets, Cpl. G. R. Taylor; LAC. A. Holmes, LAC. D. A. New; drums, Cpl. N. J. Pomeroy, Cpl. H. P. Costello, LAC. T. Bourdon; swimming instructress, Mrs. W. J. Musical Directors

Music was under direction of Mrs. E. R. Johnston, S/L D. F. Dunning, Mrs. D. H. Dunning, Mrs. R. C. Mair, Mrs. K. W. Joy were in charge of the selection and training of the models, including Mrs. R. M. Bowdery, Mrs. A. W. Breck, Mrs. R. E. Cleary, Miss Shirley Cleary, Airwoman M. P. Cook, Mrs. J. F. Corrigan, Mrs. K. W. Joy, Mrs. R. F. Murray, Mrs. H. V. Peterson, FO. Barbara Ross, Mrs. J. G. Sarginson, Mrs. M. J. Smith, Airwoman F. A. Whiting, Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Mrs. M. Wright and Mrs. R. H. Sexton.

The escorts were: Flight Lieutenants R. Fallis, G. V. Frosted, R. F. Reid, S. K. Woodley and Flying Officers D. C. McLeish and R. K. Scott. The children taking part included Barrie Barton, Cole Barton, MacKenzie Dunlop, Louise Easton, Valerie Fisher, Mary Forbes, Nora McKenna and Bobby Wright.

The exhibitors included: Vic Auger, Couch-Newton, Whitehouse, Simmons drugs, Helen Blakely, all of Trenton; Georgia Salon, Leslie Shoe Store, and Tiny Tot Town, all of Belleville.

Those winning door prizes were: Mrs. Marie Novac of Batawa, cosmetics; Mrs. Ray Milligan, silver ice bowl and tongs; and Miss Ann Armstrong, carton of cigarets.

Appreciation was voiced in song and rhyme by the entire cast appearing as a whole.

The show will be repeated this evening.

Cabinet Maker Plans Wood Carving Of Canadian History

Langford, B.C., (CP)— A Langford cabinet maker intends to devote his spare time in the next 12 years to carving on wood the history of a Canadian era.

Copenhagen-born Kaj Neilsen came to Canada 25 years ago and brought with him the desire to study the history of his new home. He finally decided that the Hudson's Bay Company and its explorers provided "the most colorful history in Canada."

Several years later he chose to put these stories on wood.

He completed the first of 36 carvings after three months of work. It shows a scene of a battle in Hudson Bay in 1697 between three British ships and a French vessel.

Neilsen said that it would take him about 12 years to complete all 36 carvings.

Club Activities

COMMUNITY FRIENDSHIP CIRCLE

Madoc Junction.— The March meeting of the Community Friendship Circle was held Friday night in the church with a good attendance.

The president, Mr. Carl Reid, presided over a program that had been prepared by Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

The worship period was conducted by Gordon Madill reading the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Harlow gave the commentary on the lesson and Rev. M. G. Clarke led in prayer.

Mrs. Hugh McMullen contributed a piano solo.

Thelma Prest gave an interesting reading on "Easter".

The Girls' Sunday School class sang "Somebody Did a Golden Deed".

A reading "The Faithful Few", was given by Mrs. Harry Clarke, and Marilyn Reid read a poem on "Prayer".

Donna Stapley contributed a piano solo.

Rev. M. G. Clarke gave an interesting address, based on the report brought back by the men, sent by Moses to spy out the land of Canaan.

Mr. Carl Reid was in charge of two contests during the recreational period.

Refreshments were then enjoyed.

HOLLOWAY STREET FELLOWSHIP CLUB

The Fellowship Club of Holloway Street United Church, held its March meeting in the church parlor on Wednesday evening. The president, Mrs. William Anderson, presided.

The usual business was taken care of and other items which included members acknowledging cards sent them while ill.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Cecil Sinfield, assisted by Mrs. J. Fitzgibbon. A solo by Audrey Elgie, "Irish Eyes" was delightful. A reading was given by Mrs. J. Fitzgibbon on "St. Patrick".

All enjoyed a social hour with refreshments and contests.

Winners were, Mrs. O. Wagar and Mrs. M. White.

First-Hand Springtime Observations

(Rev. H. Giffin, Foxboro.)

Once again the season of Springtime with its resurrection power seems a reality. The poet aptly expressed it in words as:

"The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back o'er hill and valley."

Already many of the sugar maples have been tapped and many of the rural school boys have had their first drink of sap. The sun, with new and increasing radiance, has vanished winter snows and every little creek is at flood stage. Old Man Winter seems well-nigh conquered and his encounter blows must necessarily be feeble.

For most of us it is a great time to be alive. Already the pussy-willows along the margin of the low places are waiting to be picked and the annual excitement of muskrat trapping is on. Any day now the graceful pike should be leaving deep water and finding her way upstream to some shallow stream or marsh to spawn. And high overhead the weird honking of the Canada Goose may soon be heard as he wings his way north to his home and nesting place.

For me, it is a revelation to travel through the woods and over the fields at this season. Along the creeks the returning ducks noisily fly up at your approach and the quaint cry of the Killdeer sounds in every field. Robins and delighted song sparrows greet you in every bush clump and the shrill "caw" of the crow dominates everywhere.

Going through the soft snow still protected by the woods, one is surprised by the number of coon tracks. After his long winter sleep the coon suddenly becomes active with mild weather. Fox tracks are everywhere and quite often Reynard may be spotted far ahead slipping along the side of a hill like a large yellow cat.

Partridge seem to have wintered well and it is encouraging to know the number one may flush in a three hour tramp. Even the jackrabbit is in surprisingly good shape the way he bounds away like a miniature deer. From conversation with several outdoor men and from personal observation, it has been an excellent winter for deer. In some places where deer 'yard up' as many as fifty have been counted in a single group. No doubt you have heard the old hunter say: "where the deer are look for the wolves." This may surprise some people—but I could show them the tracks of timber wolves within ten miles of Belleville.

But the glory of Springtime is ours again and we can discard our long winter disciplines. For me to take a walk at this wonderful season of the year is like a new adventure.

"And softly came the fair young queen
O'er mountain, dale and dell;
And where her golden light was seen
And emerald shadow fell.
The good wife oped the window wide,
The good-man spanned the plough;
'Tis time to run, 'Tis time to ride,
For Spring is with us now."

(Leland)

Starts Association Of Western Artists

Vancouver. (CP)—An association of artists and art groups has been formed here to provide "fellowship and exhibition outlets for painters".

Called the Western Art Circle, its membership is open to individuals and groups in British Columbia and the western provinces, but "its main interest and purpose is to fulfil a long-overdue obligation to local and B.C. artists with Vancouver as its logical centre."

It has been set up with the cooperation of J. A. Morris, curator of the Vancouver Art Gallery.

The circle aims to foster fellowship and give assistance where possible to all within the circle.

It is also planned to hold jury exhibitions in which artists can obtain constructive criticism of rejected works. Exhibition juries will be chosen by the executive of the circle.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants a date with his girl friend before going into service

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a boy of 18 and in love with a girl 17 who is not allowed to go out with boys.

When I first met this girl she todl me how things were, but I thought that she might find a way to go out with me anyhow. I asked her to go out without letting her parents know about it, but she won't do that.

I'll be called to the service soon, and I would like very much to go out with her before I go. It's two and a half months since I met her, and I fell in love with her the first time I saw her. I see her at the movies, and talk to her then, but she is always with her girl friend.

Don't you think she is old enough to go out? All her friends go steady with boys. Please help me as soon as you can.—P. T.

Dear P.T.:

Yes, of course, I think a girl of 17 is old enough to go out on dates with boys reasonably often. I do realize, though, that many parents don't feel the same way about it, and that this makes things difficult for the girls and boys alike.

The one thing I think that sometimes works in cases of this kind is for the boy to take things in his own hands, in a manly way, and go direct to the girl's parents himself. That is, he might call this mother on the telephone, or even go to the girl's house and see her mother, and then ask in just as polite and respectful a way as he can, if she would give permission for her daughter to go out with him. He should tell the girl's mother exactly where he wants to take the girl and promise that he will bring her home promptly at whatever hour is specified. If permission is given, of course he will be extremely careful to have the girl home on the dot.

Won't you try this idea out and let me know what happens? Somehow I believe that few parents would hold out against an approach of this sort.

Try a hobby that others will enjoy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem has two parts, both of them hard for me to solve. I am shy, and I am also crippled, which seems to bother most boys. I don't know how to make them forget that I am crippled and really enjoy themselves on evenings when I double-date with my girl friend.

I am 18 years old, and have been told that although I am shy, I am very independent.—Alice.

Dear Alice:

I rather suspect that your problem really has only one part, and that is your physical handicap. Your shyness, and what you call your "independence", very likely result from a feeling of inferiority because you are crippled. Dont' you think perhaps I'm right?

In any event, the best way to get over that feeling of inferiority (or shyness), and around your handicap, is for you to become very good at something within your capabilities that other people—even the boys—will enjoy. I can tell you about one boy I know who had the same sort of problem you have, only he was confined to a wheel chair and I don't believe you are, or it isn't likely you'd be double-dating. He wanted to know how he could be more popular and have fun, and he was advised to take up a hobby that others would enjoy. Last I heard of him he was having a wonderful time with photography, taking pictures for other boys and girls. They got interested in what he was doing; then, as they got to know him, they became interested in him for himself, and before long he was accepted as "one of the gang".

You don't necessarily have to go in for photography. There are lots of other things. Anyone who can play a musical instrument for others to dance or sing is always popular and invited around, for instance. Go to the library and get yourself a book on hobbies. Talk to the librarian about it; first thing you know she'll be helping you work out something. Get going now, and let me know what developed.

Food for Thought

Thus Endeth Your Search For Perfect Chocolate Cake

A pleasant little nudge from Julia V. pushed me into the kitchen on Saturday night after my young people had gone out dancing with their current "loves", and I wallowed in chocolate cake batter while I chortled over Twenty Questions on the radio.

I had four chocolate cakes before I was finished. I was glad that both my sisters and my neighbors were entertaining on Sunday. True the surplus cakes they were handed were two halves each of four different products. My own favorite samplers had to taste every one. It is now Monday morning as I type this and there isn't a crumb left. Is it any wonder I have to work hard for a living?

Pete and Art liked the chocolate custard cake best. Marianne and I thought the Devil's food had the edge on it for flavor.

There's no doubt that the texture of the chocolate custard cake is moist and mouth-watering. Try them both and argue it out with your family.

CUSTARD CHOCOLATE CAKE

First Part—Three 1-ounce squares of cooking chocolate, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 1 egg. Melt the chocolate in a saucepan over low heat, stir in sugar, then the milk and egg, which does not need to be beaten first. Stir over low heat until of smooth custard consistency. Stand aside at room temperature to cool.

Second Part— One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each soda and vanilla, 1 cup milk.

Cream the sugar and shortening in a large bowl until light and fluffy. Add yolks and continue beating for at least two minutes. Sift the dry ingredients together and sift 1-3 of them over the creamed mixture alternately with 1-3 of the milk to which you have added the vanilla. Continue until both are used. Fold in the cooled custard, until just blended. Grease and flour or line with buttered paper two 9-inch layer cake tins. Pour in batter. It is quite thin. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 minutes—until cakes shrink from sides of pans.

1952 DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

Into a large bowl sift 2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour, 1 7-8 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon each salt and soda. Make a well in centre and put in it 2-3 cup very soft but not melted shortening, and 1 1-4 cups buttermilk, and beat for three minutes or until batter is smooth. Beat in 3 beaten eggs and 2 1-2 squares melted chocolate. Beat two minutes longer. Pour into buttered and floured or paper-lined and buttered oblong pan about 13 by 9 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes—or until cake shrinks from edge of pan a little.

Both of these cakes may be baked in layers.

A wonderful way to finish is to split both layers into two layers. When cool, spread sweetened whipped cream between each layer and top with

CHOCOLATE MILK ICING

Scald 6 1-2 tablespoons evaporated milk. Over boiling water melt 5 tablespoons butter or margarine and stir in 1-2 cup cocoa. Remove from heat and add 2 2-3 cups sifted icing sugar, the scalded milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla and shake of salt. Beat until thick enough to spread.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to invite to a "blessing" of the marriage ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several weeks ago I wrote you asking advice about the correct procedure for having my marriage service "re-dedicated" in church after my husband returns from overseas duty. You will remember, I think, that you advised me to consult my clergyman about this idea that my husband and I had concerning this procedure. I did as you suggested, and my clergyman told me that we could have the marriage service rededicated in church, but that it would be in the form of a "blessing" rather than the actual marriage ceremony. Also, he answered the other questions you asked me to talk over with him. However, one thing I am still in doubt about is how to word the invitations. Should I use the word "rededication" on the invitations, or do you think another world would be more suitable and explanatory? Since my husband is still in the service (he will return home in several months), how would his name read on the invitations?—M. D.

How many people are you planning to invite to this service? If, as I imagine, you are inviting only the members of both families, other relatives, and intimate friends, it would be correct, and quite natural I should think, to give the invitations by word of mouth, either when you go to see these people or telephone to them. Then it would be easy to explain the idea of the "blessing", as the service is explained by your clergyman. Or if you write notes of invitation, this word would be used. But it would be inappropriate to send any kind of so-called formal invitation, engraved or printed.

When the priest comes to call

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We have recently moved to this neighborhood, and I have just joined the Catholic church. As I was a non-Catholic, I have been having an hour's instruction each week with the priest of our church. The other day he said that he would like to come to our house some evening soon to meet my husband. Just how should I introduce them?

2. Also would it be correct and/or necessary to suggest having coffee? If so, would it be proper to serve it on a card table in the living room, as we have no dining room?—M. S.

1. Mention first in your introduction the name of the priest, and then make such a simple introduction as, "Father McLean—my husband." If you wish to be more formal, "Father McLean, may I present (or 'introduce') my husband."

2. It would be pleasant and hospitable to suggest having coffee. You might have the tray all ready, in the kitchen, then make the coffee and serve on the card-table, or on a coffee table, if you have one, perhaps in front of a soft in the living room. And have a delicious something to serve with the coffee, maybe your "specialty" cake, or some special cookies.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Fifteen-minute facials

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

At bedtime, she can devote fifteen minutes to complexion care.

If a woman is strong, healthy, good-natured and cheerful, she should not have a line in her face until old age catches up with her, and she may not have any even then. There are women of eighty without a facial crinkle. They know something about the art of living, of getting along happily with their fellow creatures. They have sense enough to realize that you can't break the laws of health without paying a beauty penalty.

It often happens that a woman makes her own wrinkles. Disregard for nutrition can have a deplorable effect upon the skin. Lack of fat in the diet will produce a dry skin; underlying tissues will become slack and soft, with wrinkles the result. The finicky eater may have a sallow, leathery complexion, because she is not getting necessary vitamins and mineral salts.

Loss of sleep will bring premature wrinkles. Tension will cause them. The worrier developse the worrier's face. The nagger will develop two upright lines between her eyes. Such woman let their souls sour, with the result that they have lemonated faces.

No woman should defer skin care until tiny lines appear. They can come almost over night, are the forerunners of deep furrows. Have foresight. Beat old man time. Keep your fingers crossed.

No matter how busy or tired a woman may be, she can devote fifteen minutes at bedtime to the care of her complexion. She will find other benefits, too. Playing with cosmetics before her mirror, she can relax, plan the next day's activities. It will prepare her for restful slumber.

After the face-washing with warm water and a bland soap, a rinsing with warm water and drying, she is ready for her home facial. If done every night, it will accomplish more good than having a professional treatment now and then. tI is regular, steady-going care that counts!

Ordinary cold cream or cleansing cream is not the right medium. The emollient should be of heavy consinstency, so the fingers won't slide over the surface of the skin, but will exercise the underlying tissues.

Do up-and-down strokes on the neck. Sweep from the chin along the jawline to the ears; do little circles in front of the ears.

To forestall turkey tracks, do circles around the eyes, starting on the inner corners of the upper lid and coming back under the eye to the starting point. Pick up the flesh between the eyes, ironing upward with the thumb. Do a rotary movement on the forehead. Then tap and slap like everything!

THE ALL PURPOSE FLOUR
FIVE ROSES FLOUR
"Orchids to your wonderful Five Roses Flour and sour apples to myself for not having used it before — I probably wouldn't even be using it now if it wasn't due to the fact that my grocer, who incidentally calls here at the house, was out of the brand of pastry flour I always used.

"I was absent at the time, so he left the Five Roses with the stipulation I could change it on his next trip around. When I returned home I was quite provoked because I wanted to bake some individual meat pies for supper — I said, 'Oh, well, I'll have to use the flour but it won't be any good', but please accept my humblest apologies; my pastry was the nicest I have ever made, tender, flaky, beautifully brown. Everyone just simply drooled over the looks of it.

"Now, I can't understand why so many women are under the impression that Five Roses Flour is strictly a bread flour. For four years I worked in a grocery store and women just wouldn't purchase Five Roses for anything but bread making — could it be you don't stress the fact enough that it makes superior pastry to any so-called pastry flour. I love its fineness and another thing I noticed was how clean it leaves the baking board and rolling pin. No chunks of fatty dough to scrape off.

"Thanking you again for a wonderful product, I'll certainly recommend it to all my friends.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Della Knowles

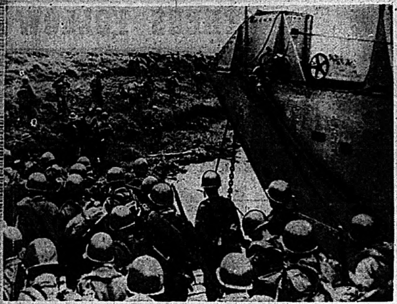
French Maintain Pressure in Indo-China



Fierce fighting continues in Indo-China between French Viet Nam troops and the rebel, communist-led Viet Minh. Photo shows French troops debarking from an amphibious craft to begin a raking-up operation against scattered enemy resistance in the swampy delta around Tonkin. While this operation was going on, French planes bombed and strafed Viet Minh concentrations just south of the Chinese border as red divisions battered anew at the southern flank of the French defence ring around Hanoi. — Central Press Canadian.

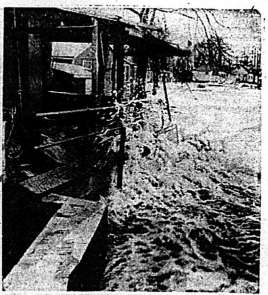
Fodder Airlifted to Save Starving Western Cattle

Carrying tons of hay to starving, snow-trapped cattle, a plane flies low over the blizzard-swept wasteland outside Elko, Nev. Known as Operation Haylift, the task of saving from death thousands of cattle and sheep is being carried out by U.S. air force and navy planes. Some of the most severe storms in recent years have virtually isolated a number of western ranches.—Central Press Canadian

Praises Red China

William Small of Toronto, United Church missionary and former bursar at the West China Union University in Chengtu praised the red China regime when he arrived in Hong Kong, one of six United Church missionaries to leave the communist-controlled country. Another colleague at the university, L. Earl Willmott, also of Toronto, also praised the reds. The other missionaries disagreed and said Chengtu is a "city of tenseness in which thousands are committing suicide." — (CP Photo.)

Call Canadian Attitude "Callous"



The storm which lashed the north shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario, bringing waves strong enough to lift the concrete breakwater shown here, has led angry protest from U.S. residents on the south shores. Homeowners there say the Canadian government, in a "cruel and callous" attitude, is keeping the level of the lakes up in anticipation of the St. Lawrence seaway demands for high water. They claim that highwater level of the lakes, together with the storm, caused millions of dollars damage to their homes. — Central Press Canadian.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District — The many friends of Miss Bessie Rush will be sorry to learn that she is a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital with pneumonia. All hope that she will soon be well.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johns motored to Toronto on Friday, returning in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson, Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman and Brenda, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson on Tuesday evening to surprise Mr. Ketcheson who was celebrating a birthday. The evening was spent in viewing television. Miscellaneous gifts were presented. Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Young of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Young of Prince Edward, were Friday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young.

Miss Shirley Meyers and Miss Joyce Curtis attended a quilting at the home of Mrs. Walter Harder of Johnstown on Saturday afternoon and evening as a Junior Institute project.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bowers, Marilyn, Audrey and Donald and Mr. Sam Bowers were Sunday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Hudgins of Belleville.

Mrs. H. I. Mooney and the Rev. A. C. McCallum called on a number of people in the community on Tuesday of last week.

Sunday School and church services were held at White's Church on Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Donald Bowers as pianist. The junior choir sang, "God Sees the Little Sparrow Fall," as an anthem. The Rev. A. C. McCallum chose as his subject, "The Crucifixion of Jesus," based on St. John 19. He said: "God so loved the world that He gave His only Son. The challenge of the cross is to surrender. A little boy was walking with his father when he saw a cross. He said, 'It is a plus sign.' During World War I soldiers were marching in Flanders past a small church. The commander, looking in, observed a cross showing the crucifixion of Jesus. He said: "Eyes right." As each turned they saw this too and, as they marched on, shoulders were thrown back and each seemed to have obtained new life."

The robin, the harbinger of spring, crows and geese have been seen in this district the past week.

Easy-Going Fatalism Underlies Serenity of Life in Thailand

Temple Gate

(Editor's Note: Bangkok, capital of Thailand, is one of the word's strangest places. Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, recently visited the city of temples. In this story, one of a series, he describes Bangkok as seen through Canadian eyes.)

By BILL BOSS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok, Thailand, March 27—(CP) — Anything can happen in Bangkok. If it does, not an eyebrow is disturbed.

Where else is one compelled to slow down on a paved road to pass a couple of elephants?

Where else is everyone on a first-name basis — no Mr., Mrs. or Miss, with surnames used only to differentiate between individuals who have the same first name?

Where else does hospitality extend to the stranger who hears the noise of a party and, without invitation, joins the fun?

Animals abound in Thailand. Families keep gibbons for pets A stroll may confront one with anything from dogs to water-buffalo.

The countryside is so flat it reminds one of The Netherlands, and it is laced by canals, called klongs. Housewives are as apt to peddle to market in a sampan as to walk or take a bus.

Twenty minutes from the heart of Bangkok by car or boat are coconut groves where dwellings on stilts, splashed by the water, remind one of motion-picture versions of the Malayan jungle backwaters.

Lead Simple Life

Life in such communities, if picturesque, is simple. Whole families live and transact whatever business keeps them alive in the two or three rooms the buildings on stilts afford. Their sampans keep them in touch with the world.

Yet a 2½-cent bus fare returns one to the heart of downtown Bangkok with modern hotels, office and government buildings, and a skyline glittering with the spires of 400 temples. The city of almost 1,000,000 population is only 200 years old.

It is impossible to look down a street, into a park, anywhere without spotting the orange-saffron robe of a Buddhist priest. There are between 25,000 and 30,000 in Bangkok alone, 130,000 in the whole country.

Buddhist thought and Buddhist practice are the keys to life here. They account for the cheerfulness and courtesy of the Siamese whose behavior is consistently serene.

By night the city is alive with business, especially in Chinatown whose residents control the country's trade. Shops are open, celebrants drive to the cabaret in foot-powered, tricycle "taxis" called pedicabs (they're lit like a mobile juke-box with as many as 15 colored lights) and the haunting, vibrant music of Siamese orchestras is everywhere.

The newspapers carry headlines across the front page, and the story is as likely as not to turn up on the back page. An appointment or a business understanding with a Siamese are matters for patience.

But that's part of the charm of the country. There is a delightful fatalism about life here. If it does not happen today it may tomorrow or the day after — and if it doesn't come true in this life — well, maybe it will in the next.

IVANHOE

Mrs. Keith Bray Shows Interesting Films

Ivanhoe — The regular meeting of the Young Adult Groups of Beulah United pastoral charge was held recently in Bethesda Church. Mr. Harry Lovibond presided in the absence of the president.

The worship service, arranged by Salem group, was conducted by Mrs. Harry Mayo. Scripture, Mark 14 (26-40) was read by Mrs. P. Downey. A reading, "You and I," was given by Mrs. Clarence Douglas, and a duet, "Alone," by Mrs. V. Hagerman and Mrs. H. Mayo.

The necessary business was dealt with.

The program prepared by the Beulah group was conducted by Mrs. George Wood, who read an introductory poem, "Opportunity." An address, "Who Is My Neighbor?" was given by Mr. George Wood, and a film, "The Good Samaritan," was shown by Mrs. Keith Bray, who used a View Master projector.

A series of consecutive readings were given, reflecting the attitude and comparable to the characters in this parable "Refugees Thieves," "The Indifferent," "The Good Samaritan." Refugees, Mrs. George Wood; Thieves, "Old Madge,", Indifferent, "A Christian", The Good Samaritan, What Is His Creed? and The Loaf, by Mrs. Harry Lovibond.

A piano solo was given by Mrs. Keith Bray, followed by a reading by Mr. Harry Lovibond.

Films Shown

The following films were then shown by Mrs. Bray: "The Butchart Gardens, B.C.," "The Fraser River Canyon," "Jasper Park," "The Pyramids," "Wild Animals in Natural Habitat," "Africa."

Ernest Holland conducted a number of contests.

Refreshments were served and a vote of thanks moved to the Bethesda group.

Mrs. Bert Jones entertained several ladies last Thursday evening to a party. At the close, she served refreshments.

Euchre Party

On Monday evening the Stirling Women's Institute sponsored an euchre party in the Community Hall with nine tables in play.

The prizes were won as follows: ladies high—Mrs. C. A. Mac Connell; ladies' low—Mrs. E. Foster; Men's high— Mr. George Sarles; men's low—Mr. Alex Rodgers.

Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles cake and tarts were served at the close.

Mrs. P. Bronson welcomed the guests at the door, and Mrs. Will West had charge of the finances with Mrs. S. Kirky in charge of the card playing.

DESERONTO

Deseronto—Mr. and Mrs. Bill Draper, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mrs. John Delanty and family.

Mrs. Edmond St. Louis, of Toronto, spent the weekend with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beyette and family.

Mrs. Bill Barker is a patient at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Joe Deforge. of Niagara Falls, Ont., visited at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. McVicker and family.

Mr. Henry Venton is visiting at Odessa, the guest of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kelly.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Herrington and family, of Toronto, were callers in town.

Mrs. Harry Bender, Phyllis and Lyn, and Jack spent the weekend in Belleville, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Potter and family of Churchill Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Brown spent a few days in Kingston, the guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown.

Mr. Albert Maracle died on Sunday at his home.

Mrs. Gordon Walker and Mrs. R. K. Jackson spent a few days in Toronto during the past week; they attended the Canadian Red Cross convention held in the Royal York as delegates from the Deseronto branch of the Red Cross.

Euchre Club

Mrs. George Cole entertained the members of the Ladies' Euchre Club at their weekly meeting. Prize winners were Mrs. C. Knight and Mrs. C. M. Luffman; consolation, Mrs. Gerald Fox; travelling, Mrs. H. Bender. The hostess served delicious refreshments at the close of a delightful evening.

GETS GOOD ADVICE

After I was married, my grandmother said, "Everyone's giving you lots of advice, but they may not have told you how to keep a man's shirt sparkling white. All that is needed is a swish of Reckitt's Blue in the rinse—and that goes for all white clothes. Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow—gives a snowy white wash every time without using anything that may damage fabric." Trust Granny to give me advice worth remembering.

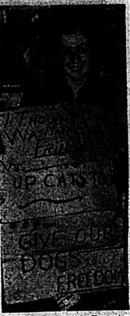
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1952

Top-Level Conference Called To Try for Steel Dispute Solution Before Deadline

In Protest



Town council of Brampton, Ont., had a juvenile revolution on its hands when it enacted a by-law making it an offence to allow a do goff the owner's property except on a leash. Shirley Smith is one of the youngsters who paraded down the main street with placards demanding repeal of the law. Adults, objecting to the number of dogs on the streets, are divided on their opinions of the law. — Central Press Canadian.

Washington, March 27 —(AP)— Top U.S. government officials worked today on a new plan to stave off a scheduled April 8 steel strike.

Defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson arranged to meet a dissenting colleague, chairman Nathan P. Feinsinger of wage stabilization board, and with economic stabilizer Roger Putnam and price stabilizer Ellis Arnall.

Wilson apparently had a new idea of settling the steel industry's crucial wage-price stalemate. He has indicated he wants to carve down settlement proposals advanced by Feinsinger's wage board.

But Feinsinger was known to be firm in the belief that the W.S.B.'s recommendation for a 17 1-2 cent hourly pay boost plus other benefits for C.I.O. steelworkers is perfectly fair. Wilson has said the W.S.B.'s proposals are inflationary and too high.

This showdown among top administration officials, with president Truman due back from his Florida vacation in late afternoon, held the possibility that someone in the administration's hierarchy may quit soon. Such was the temper of the situation.

One thing appeared certain: the steel-workers, headed by Philip Murray will get nowhere in negotiations with steel firms until the administration makes up its mind. The companies said they'll need price boosts of $12 a ton if they grant the W.S.B.-recommended terms.

Bargaining Talks Begin

Bargaining talks between the United Steel Workers and U.S. Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel began yesterday in Pittsburgh, but nothing was accomplished. Both sides looked to Washington for guidance.

The administration's real task was two-fold; to decide whether Feinsinger's W.S.B. over-stepped itself in its suggested solution, and whether steel firms will require any price boost to keep them in the black if the wage boost is granted.

Wilson's fears were based not on steel, but on possible effects to the economy generally. John L. Lewis is waiting to see what Murray does in steel before trying to drive a new wage bargain for coal miners. In short, a new wage pattern is in the making, at least in Wilson's view.

Back of that, if steel firms raise prices, a whole host of other industries will be breaking down the doors for higher prices, too. In other words, Wilson's group fears a new burst of inflation.

Feinsinger has said the W.S.B.'s proposed boost for steelworkers are not only fair but "uninflationary." He contends other workers and unions already have done as well as Murray's steelworkers and Murray now is merely "catching up."

Flynn's Damage Suit May Reach Jury on Friday

Nassau, Bahamas, Mar. 27 (CP) —A verdict is expected sometime tomorrow in movie actor Errol Flynn's £80,000 damage suit against Canadian millionaire Duncan McMartin.

The defence concludes its case today with an address by McMartin's counsel, A. F. Adderley, before the Bahamas Supreme Court.

Flynn's lawyer will sum up his case in the afternoon and Chief Justice Guy Henderson will instruct the jury tomorrow, with a verdict expected later in the day.

Flynn charges that McMartin struck him a "vicious blow" in a bar in the Windsor Hotel here last March. He claims the blow caused a recurrence of an injury suffered aboard his yacht in France and that it prevented him from carrying out a film contract which would have earned him a large sum of money.

Closing tesimony by the defence yesterday came from K. L. Ames of Chicago and Nassau. Ames testified to the fight required to boat a 150-pound marlin allegedly caught by Flynn in Jamaica after the actor said he was injured by McMartin.

Other witnesses took the stand yesterday to rebut testimony given earlier that McMartin struck Flynn a "vicious blow".

Wilber Cooke, manager of the Windsor Hotel, and Mrs. Cooke told the jury they were at a table with Flynn's party and gave the actor a "friendly tap on the cheek."

Lt.-Col. Michael Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, at a neighboring table, testified they witnessed the incident and described McMartin's gesture as "friendly.".

Kenneth Bally of Port Antonio Jamaica, photographer for two fishing clubs and the Jamaica Daily Gleaner, testified he took pictures of Flynn in Jamaica during the period when Flynn claims he was a semi-invalid from McMartin's slap on the side of the face.

Bally said he took pictures of the movie actor with a 150-pound marlin which Flynn said he caught and that Flynn was so jubilant he lifted Bella Grant, 120-pound Daily Gleaner reporter, up and swung er arounhd playfully.

He said Flynn was not wearing a brace and did not remove the brace as he claimed.

Mackinac Straits Open for Shipping

Cleveland, Mar. 27 (AP)—Now that the Straits of Mackinac are open to shipping, the U.S. Coast Guard said today that ice-breaking operations in the St. Mary's River will start Saturday.

The cutter Mackinaw will be sent through the river, gateway to Lake Superior, and on into Whitefish Bay. If opeerations go smoothly, shippers said, a few ore carriers may take off for lakehead loading docks Monday.

In a test of Lake Superior ice yesterday, the cutteree Woodrush 14 miles out of Duluth. The report was that the covering ranged from light to 14 inches thick.

Yesterday, the steamers Bradley and T. W. Robinson made the westward passage through the Straits of Mackinac then started for Green Bay but had to detour to Port Inland to assist the icebound freighter Joseph Block.

The Mackinaw is due to break another channel to the closed port of Escanaba, then cut a path down Green Bay.

Durham County Boys Sustain High Scoring

Peterborough, March 27—(CP) —Durham County boys sustained the cereal leadership of their fathers in the central Ontario spring show here yesterday.

Their team composed of Roy McHolm, Port Hope, Merrill Brown of Newcastle and Keith Van Camp of Nestleton, won top honors in the junior inter-county seed judging competition.

Fifty-two boys competed from the counties of Ontario, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox-Adington, Durham and Peterborough.

High boys in the individual scoring were: red clover, Mel Merrill, Northumberland; alfalfa, Ronald Neale, Ontario; winter wheat, Lawrence Foster, Prince Edward; barley, George Skelding, Durham; oats, Gordon Wilson, Durham; weeds, Ronald Brooks, Durham.

Aggregate scores of the winning Durham team, coached by Ed. A Summers, Bowmanfille, agricultural representative, were: McHolm 797, Brown 795, Vancamp 794, of a possible 850.

Officially opening the show, which continues tomorrow, Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, recommended the two year diploma course in Ontario's three agricultural educational institutions.

Number of students in that course at O. A. C., Kemptville and Ridgetown schools was fewer than two for every 1,000 farm families of Ontario.

"This two-year course is designed to give the student a sound foundation in farming and its modern practice and ideas, and also in methods of organization, experience in bookkeeping, public speaking and general personal development. For the blend of all these advantages that are made available to our young farmers, I would like to see five times as many students in that course at the three colleges. It is sound investment of two years of the student's life, and should be of more value to him than two years study for matriculation in high school."

Series of Price Raises for Hunting Licences Provided

Toronto, March 27 (CP) —A series of price increases for hunting licences are provided under an amendment to the fish and game act introduced in the legislature yesterday by Lands Minister Scott.

Licences for resident deer hunters are raised from $4 to $5, and for resident moose hunters from $6 to $10. Farmers' deer licences are raised from $4 to $5.

Non-residents hunting bear, fox, game birds, rabbits, raccoon, squirrels and wolves will pay $21 instead of $15.50. A licence covering deer, bear, fox, game birds, rabbits, raccoon, squirrels and wolves is raised from $25.75 to $36 and the licence covering moose, deer, bear, fox, game birds, rabbits, raccoon, squirrels and wolves is increased from $75 to $101.

Another change will permit control over persons flown into hunting or fishing grounds, and will let the government designate "hinterland" areas which will be closed for hunting and fishing except to residents of the area.

A five-month extension is provided in the length of time that deer, moose and birds may be kept. Snaring of beaver and shooting and snaring of otter will also be permitted.

Guides now will be held responsible for seeing that members of their party are properly licensed. Kenora district is removed as an area in which non-resident hunters will have to be accompanied by guides; Rainy River remains the only district where this rule applies.

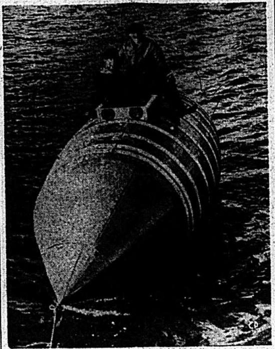
Ocean-Going Barrel



Peter Olsen, rear, veteran Norwegian seaman, plans to return to his homeland in June in the barrel-shaped vessel made in Waterloo, Ont., by a barrel and keg company. He hopes to cross the ocean, leaving from Sydney, N.S. The barrel was given to him by Mark Charlton (front) of Windsor, who had the barrel made in 1945. The barrel boat is equipped with two small hammocks, charcoal stove, batteries, lights, concentrated foods and a motorcycle. Mr. Charlton, who originally had the plan to cross the ocean to England in the strange craft, said the motorcycle was for touring the country. The barrel, six feet nine inches in diameter and 10 feet long, has a 700-pound keel and a 250 pound rudder and a stabilizing scoop at the stern. There is a 29-foot mast with three sails.—(CP Photo.)

Woman Labor Member Refuses To Obey Ruling, is Suspended

London, March 27—(Reuters)— Shouts of "Shame, shame," filled the House of Commons today when Mrs. Bessie Braddock, 210-pound Labor member of Parliament for the Liverpool dockland, was ordered suspended after refusing to obey a Speaker's ruling.

The uproar started at the tail-end of an all-night sitting, forced on the House by M.P.s from the Lancashire mill country to debate a slump trend in Britain's textile industry.

Tired and harassed M.P.s were nodding in their seats when plump Mrs. Braddock, one of the most colorful members — she once did an impromptu jig on the floor of the House — jumped up and protested she was deliberately being kept out of the debate.

"I've been sitting here since 1:50 a.m.," she said. "I say I've been deliberately ignored. I do definitely protest. It's most unfair."

"Sit down," said Deputy Speaker Sir Charles MacAndrew. Mrs. Braddock refused.

"If you will sit down . . ." MacAndrew said.

"I will not sit down. I'm making a protest. Am I permitted to make a statement?"

"No," said MacAndrew. After another exchange he said: "Perhaps the lady will withdraw from the House."

"No," said Mrs. Braddock.

Amid shouts of "Shame" from Labor members, Harry Crookshank, a Conservative, moved Mrs. Braddock's suspension.

Sends for Chief

MacAndrew sent for his chief, Speaker W. S. Morrison.

More shouts of "Shame" came when Col. Morrison put the suspension motion and it was carried by 125 votes to 67. Mrs. Braddock stalked out of the House crying, "I do this under protest."

Suspensions of this kind are usually enforced for five days.

After the upset, the House dragged on with the marathon debate which had already lasted 19½ hours and appeared to be on the way to beating the record for this parliament — 20 hours and 20 minutes last Nov. 27.

More than 30 members had put forward suggestions to keep the looms working in the Lancashire industrial area, where 70,000 are jobless.

Some members suggested the re-opening of the Liverpool cotton exchange, closed early in the war when the government took over the buying of raw cotton.

Two Labor members demanded more trading with communist countries — China and Russia — to offset the threatened crisis, brought on by import cuts throughout the Commonwealth and the upsurge in Japanese competition.

Body of Woman Found Believed Violet Pollock

Albion, N.Y., March 27. (AP)— The nude body of a young woman was found yesterday on the Lake Ontario shore about ten miles north of here. Authorities said they believed it was the body of a Canadian girl missing since Feb. 23.

Coroner John G. Ellis said the body bore a scar apparently left by an appendectomy. The missing girl, Violet Pollock, 20, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, had her appendix removed about two years ago.

Charles Hart of Albion found the body near his cottage at Oak Orchard, about six miles from the place where the headless nude body of another woman was found on the shore March 13.

After an autopsy, authorities decided that that body was not that of Miss Pollock because the appendix was intact. That body was buried without being identified.

Ellis said the body found yesterday was that of a woman between the ages of 20 and 25 and that it had probably been in the water from three to four weeks.

Miss Pollock left her Niagara-on-the-Lake home to take a walk the night of Feb. 23. Her sister Dorabelle, 24, went out to look for her and was injured fatally when she was struck by a train.

OPPOSE TALKS

Tel Aviv, March 27 (AP) — Twelve thousand Israeli men and women opposed to reparations talks with the Germans swore in chorus yesterday: "If I ever forget the destruction of Jews by Hitler may my right hand wither." The oath by former underground leader Menachem Beigin in his "unrelenting fight" against the talks was solemnly recited in unison by the thousands with right hands raised.

MAY BECOME VALUABLE

United Nations, N.Y., March 27 (CP)—United Nations stamps with a printing error showing the blue and white U.N. flag flying at half-staff were recently put on sale by the post office here. Twenty of the stamps were sold before the post office realized they were imperfect and recalled them. U.N. employees are believed to have bought most of the 20 three-cent stamps which might become valuable.

Alberta to Avoid Neighborly Quarrel With B.C. if Possible Over Livestock Embargo

(By The Canadian Press)

The Alberta government announced Wednesday night that it doesn't want to quarrel with a good neighbor but it considers British Columbia's livestock embargo "intolerable".

A cabinet meeting in Edmonton heard the result of Agriculture Minister Ure's talks with B.C. officals. The Alberta minister sought to have B.C. allow Southern Alberta livestock across their mutual boundary as well as north cattle shipments.

"The B.C. government has advised us that they will not give a decision on this matter until they have held further discussions with their livestock producers and game officials," Alberta's Premier Manning said in a statement.

That meeting was scheduled for Thursday. It may decide the fate of the B.C. embargo, clamped on as a precaution against foot-and-mouth disease in Southern Saskatchewan.

Mr. Manning said . . ."One does not quarrel with a good neighbor if it possibly can be avoided and for that reason we have done our best to persuade the B.C. government to remedy the present intolerable situation and not force Alberta into legal action to protect the constitutional rights of our livestock producers.

Said Unwarranted

"The continued imposition of B. C.'s restrictive ban on livestock shipments from this province with the exception of the Edmonton area, is unwarranted and unnecessary," Mr. Manning said.

Two possible courses are open to Alberta if legal action is taken. An Alberta government spokesman indicated earlier that Alberta might seek a court injunction. If granted, it would suspend the B. C. embargo until a court ruled on it.

Another method would be to send a shipment of cattle from southern Alberta into B. C. that would either force B. C. to prosecute the breach of its regulations or waive enforcement of the embargo.

In Victoria, B. C.'s Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman indicated any such action by Alberta would mean a fight. He believed a court would rule in B. C.'s favor "if we can establish what we are doing is purely on a health-problem basis."

Meanwhile, beside the marketing upsets suffered by southern Alberta livestock men, Dawkson, Y. T., found itself with only a month's meat supplies on hand because of the B. C. embargo.

Some beef, lamb and veal were ordered but the 350 miles of winter road over which the shipment must travel is becoming less passable daily with spring thaws. No pork will reach the 1,000 residents of this area until June.

In Vancouver, business me were concerned over the possibility of a trade war between the tw provinces.

Alberta buys quantities of B.C.' fruit, fish, lumber, plywoods an manufactured articles. A legal battle between the provinces migh disrupt this trade.

The federal government came f for some criticism from west coas merchants and also from Premie Manning. Both said the question o embargoes should have been bette handled.

Mr. Manning said the federa government should have "ove ruled the unconstitutional restrictions which individual province imposed on interprovincial trade."

However, the federal government likely will side-step the issue

Federal officials may possibl inform the provinces at a federa provincial agriculture conferenc here April 2 that Canada will as the United States to lift its embargo on Canadian livestock an meats by Sept. 1 next. That is, i there are no further out-breaks o foot-and-mouth disease in Saska-chewan.

Actress Beaten

Holding the aching side of her face, television actress Ann Sterling is shown in Hollywood hospital after being treated by doctors for bruises "from her eyebrows to her toenails." She told police she was kidnapped by four thugs, who held her captive for an hour and a half. She charged the beating came after threats had been made by "an investigator for Yolanda Elliott," her ex-roommate, who recently wa acquitted on a charge of stealing the actress' $2,000 fur coat. — Central Press Canadian.

Mt. Pleasant M.B. Entertains Wellman's Mission Band

Rawdon — On Saturday afternoon over 50 persons gathered at Mount Pleasant Rawdon Church Hall for a special joint Mission Band meeting.

Mrs. Herbert Smith, leader, and the members of the Sunbeam Mission Band at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, entertained the members of Wellman's Mission Band and their two leaders, Mrs. Burton Morton and Mrs. Carman Nix.

There were ten members of Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society, two adult visitors and the pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, in attendance.

Mrs. Herbert Smith welcomed the group and hoped it would be a profitable meeting to all.

Miss Lola McConnell, Mount Pleasant, presided, with Miss Ina Scott as pianist.

Miss Marlene Haggerty, Wellman's, read her report and called their membership roll which showed a large number of children from their community in attendance. Miss Eleanor Smith followed the same procedure for Mount Pleasant.

Helping Others

Mrs. John Mulheron, a former band leader, graphically pictured that old familiar story of "Old Martin, the Leather Mender," telling of his various gifts to needy people and at close of day, the message came, "Martin, it is I." This story left the thought of the value of trying to help others day by day.

Misses Muriel Morton and Nancy Chumbley sang, "Missionary Bells."

Misses Ina and Gail Scott contributed a piano selection.

Mrs. Burton Morton gave an illustrated story about a girl named "Betty," and her visit to Nurse Jenkins'. This proved that a "merry heart is better than medicine." Each child can be a little missionary in his own small corner if he will just endeavor to always keep smiling, no matter what hardships come his way.

As a closing to her story, all sang "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," with Mrs. Frederick Beckett as piano accompanist and the Misses Mildred Morton and Yvonne King sang "Tis Not Far to Jesus."

Miss Margaret Dracup gave a reading entitled "Katrina," followed by Miss Richy Bulten who delighted with a Dutch hymn.

Master Hughie Hoard sang "School Days," playing his own mandolin accompaniment.

The collection, which amounted to $3.60, was gathered by Ray Spencer and Billy Morgan and dedicated by Mrs. John Holmes.

Mrs. Smith staged a Bible contest with the children of school age in five groups and they nearly all had correct answers.

Thanks Tendered

The Wellman's Mission Band and their leaders were tendered thanks for their assistance.

The pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, spoke briefly paying tribute to the work of the two Mission Bands.

Mrs. Carman Nix staged several interesting games which the children thoroughly enjoyed.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, tarts and apples were served by Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mrs. Harry McAdam, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Milford Wrightman.

The members of Wellman's Mission Band and their leaders extended thanks for hospitality.

ARRESTED AFTER CHASE

Brantford, March 26 (CP) —William Craddock, 17, wanted on a charge of robbing his grandmother, was arrested yesterday after a police chase over plowed fields during which several shots were fired. None hit Craddock.

The grandmother, Mrs. William Craddock, was robbed of $20 Monday night while she was in her cellar tending the furnace, and $60 a week ago.

RAWDON

'Men's Night' at River Valley W.I. Proves Hilarious Success

Rawdon — On Friday evening almost 170 people gathered at River Valley School House and enjoyed an evening of fun. The program was staged by the men under the auspices of River Valley Women's Institute. The proceeds was $39 and over 40 children were admitted free. Guests were in attendance from Stirling, Carmel, Pine Grove and Wooler.

Thirty-one members of the Institute with their families were present on this special occasion.

Mr. J. L. Donohoe was chairman for the evening and he welcomed everyone and recited an old school poem, "Oft in the Stilly Night." He said if this program proved a success, the troupe were assured of a three-weeks' contract in a large city of Ontario.

Program

The program opened with "O Canada," with Mr. Ernest Rosebush playing violin accompaniment, Mr. Kenneth Morrow, piano, and Mr. Glenn Morrow, guitar.

A camp fire scene followed with a group of 12 male voices, led by Mr. George Heasman, singing "Home on the Range," "Tenting Tonight" and "O Susanah."

A quartet, "We have No Use for the Women," was given by Messrs. Dick Chard, Jack Chard, Harry Heasman and Jim Pack. At this juncture the girls from Hollywood arrived and upset all their former plans.

Master Douglas Kane and his stepdancer Joe, delighted with four dancing exhibitions throughout the program with Mr. Kenneth Morrow as piano accompanist.

The Pig Street Spinster Club held a humorous meeting with Mr. Stanley Irven, secretary, Mr. Roy Bush, president, Mr. Glenn Brooks, treasurer; Mr. Gerald Brooks and Mr. Jack Chard as executive.

A Riot

Mr. Dick Chard recited a poem, "All About the Boys." The club held a hilarious meeting and ended up in a riot when Mr. Glenn Bush left via his horse and buggy for Hazzard's Corners.

Messrs. Glenn Morrow, guitar and harmonica; Ross Bush and Peter Heasman, harmonicas, delighted with four musical selections during the evening.

Mr. Jim Park recided "The Cremation of Sam McGee."

A square dance followed with Mr. Jim McDonnell as caller. The men were Messrs. Ernest Carr, Ed Heasman, Bob Philip and John Kane. The ladies, dressed in latest spring fashions, were Mr. Harry Heasman, Mr. Allan McDonell, Mr. Ross Bush and Mr. Glenn Bush. This number was heartily applauded.

Mr. Jack Bush led in a round of community singing: "Smile," and "My Wild Irish Rose."

A dialogue entitled "Painting a Chair," was presented as follows: Ma Jones, Ross Bush; Pa Jones, George Heasman; Sonny, Peter Heasman; Deacon, Ross Holland.

Truly wet paint is an attraction, but Ma made a big fuss when Pa and Sonny got in her paint, but the Deacon (oh that was altogether different) and Ma thought it really didn't matter for it was easy to repaint her chair.

Mr. Jack Bush delighted with two vocal solos, "Our Neighbors Across the Way," and "Galway Bay," with Mr. Kenneth Morrow as accompanist.

A one-act play followed entitled "Lem Hoskins' Store."

Storekeeper, Jack Sager, he had a good variety of articles for sale and found it a problem to tie up his parcels.

Old timers in the district dressed in costume: Harry Heasman, Jim Pack, Thomas Hanna, Ernest Carr, John Kane. This group discussed the River Valley community pro and con as they sat around the old cracker barrel.

Mr. Sid Demorest and his baby, "Linda Lou," entertained with a humorous monologue and a couple of songs, "I'll See You in My Dreams," and "A Dog-Gone Mule."

Appreciation Voiced

Councillor Harry Morrow spoke words of appreciation on behalf of the audience.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman, vice president, W.I., voiced the appreciation of the Institute members to the men and hoped this event would become an annual affair. She also announced that the last card party for this term will be held on Friday, March 28th, at the school and everyone was welcome to attend. The Institute year closes March 31st.

After the program closed refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, cheese, cookies, cake, tarts and coffee were served by Institute members.

Later "Happy Birthday" was sung in honor of the vice president.

The folks in attendance had a hilarious evening of fun and merriment and the men were thanked for their time and talents in making this first Men's Night a success.

Missionary Praises Reds

L. Earl Willmott of Toronto is one of two United Church missionaries who praised China's red regime when they arrived in Hong Kong, among the last six United Church missionaries to leave red China. Mr. Willmott and William Small, also of Toronto, both were on the staff of the West China Union University in Chengtu. Both denied there is any religious persecution under the communists. The other United Church missionaries disagreed with them and said communist control is based on "fear."—(CP Photo.)

ROSLIN

Roslin — Mrs. Donald Leslie has returned home after visiting relatives at Ann Arbor, Mich., and Ayr.

On Sunday afternoon, William Dale, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Cockins, was baptized in St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hart and Stanley spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hart and family, Point Anne.

Mrs. W. Clapsaddle; Mr. A. Wilson and Misses L. H. and A. Wilson attended the Wannamaker - Moxam wedding in Bridge Street Church, Belleville, Saturday afternoon, and reception after at Masonic Temple.

Euchre

A successful euchre and ninety-two party was held in the church hall, Roslin, on Monday evening under the auspices of St. Paul's W.A. with 19 tables in play during the evening.

Prizes for high scores for euchre were won by Mrs. Murney Geen, Mr. Fred Gray; lone hands went to Mrs. Norman Alexander. Winners for ninety-two were Mrs. Harold Geen and Mr. Lewis Kellar.

At the conclusion of the games refreshments were served.

The Women's Association of the United Church held a quilting and dinner on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. Chisholm.

With the coming of the first day of spring the first robin was seen, although the ground was white with snow from Wednesday's storm.

MADOC

Sharbot Lake H. S. Glee Club Choir Wins Caldwell Trophy

Madoc—News of particular interest to the people of Madoc was the winning of the Cadwell trophy by the members of Sharbot Lake high school Glee Club choir.

This trophy signifies the highest honors for rural secondary school choirs and was presented to the Sharbot Lake high school entry which took place in McLeod Church auditorium, Ottawa, at the musical festival.

The chorus was competition with city collegiates and they showed marked superiority over all the other entries winning 81 out of the maximum 100.

The group was directed by Arthur Carkner, of Flinton, musical director for the Sharbot Lake school area. All rehearsals took place after school hours and were held in Arden, Mountain Grove and Sharbot Lake.

Only six mass rehearsals were held with their accompanist Mrs. Carl Whytock of Sharbot Lake. Mr. Carkner states that he entered his choir in a competition that he and they knew, would be over their heads, and his pride in their success is more than deserved.

The annual St. Patrick's tea and home cooking sale by St. John's Guild was held in the parish hall on Thursday afternoon. The guests were graciously welcomed by Mrs. T. H. Good, assisted by Mrs. Bruyns.

An inviting table laden with home-cooking and pickles was in charge of Mrs. Caterer and Mrs. W. Akey.

In the tea room Mrs. Bigelow poured tea, the table was lovely with a lace cloth and centred with a bouquet of spring flowers. The small tea tables for the guests were centred with bright spring blooms and were in charge of Mrs. L. Heyworth assisted by Mrs. D. Ault and Mrs. W. Smith. The afternoon proved successful both socially and financially.

Mrs. James Irwin of Peterborough spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. McCoy.

Mrs. John Armstrong who has been spending few months with her daughter, Mrs. A. Ward and Rev. Mr. Ward in New York, was called home on Thursday owing to the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Manley Fox.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Miss Luella Rorke, Azabu, Japan, was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Spencer on Thursday and Friday.

Rev. Harold Berry of the Standard Church will speak in the Frankford United Church on Wednesday evening, April 16. He will illustrate his talk with moving pictures taken in Egypt where he spent several years as a missionary. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. There will be no charge, only a free will offering.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting in the office of Scoutmaster Gene Lohnes, since the Community Hall, their regular meeting place, was flooded. A program of instruction, and indoor recreation was enjoyed, with some of the boys completing tests.

The moving pictures being presented in the Frankford Community Hall currently, are being quite well attended. Several attempts have been made to present weekly pictures in the past, but none have been as well received as the present series.

W.M.S. - E.A.

A joint meeting of the W.M.S. and the Evening Auxiliary of the Frankford United Church, was held in the Church Thursday evening, with Miss Luella Rorke, B.A., of the Girls' School in Azabu, Tokyo, Japan, as special guest speaker.

The meeting opened as organist Mrs. Walter Morrow played soft prelude music. Mrs. Beach, president of the Evening Auxiliary, took charge of the opening service.

Mrs. Beach welcomed visitors from Stockdale and Wooler. Mrs. Ketcheson took the roll call for the Evening Auxiliary, and Mrs. Spencer for the W.M.S.

Mrs. Harry Orr and Mrs. Norman Nelson, accompanied by Mrs. Maxwell of Stockdale, favored with a vocal duet, "I'll Go With You All The Way."

Mrs. Herb Moore then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Luella Rorke, who outlined her work and conditions in Japan, in a most interesting and informative talk.

Mrs. Spencer moved a vote of thanks to all who had taken part in the meeting.

A duet, "In The Garden," was sung by Miss Shirley Smith and Mrs. Claude Moran. A social hour was spent in Rose Lowery Hall, where refreshments were served.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—Members of the Endeavors' Class and the Young People's Union paid a visit to the group of the Baptist Church at Norwood, on Friday evening. Thirty-five enjoyed the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr prepared the interesting and inspiring program which was presided over by Mr. Dan Cooke.

Following the welcome by Mrs. Thompson, of Norwood, the Reverend Morley Clarke led in a lively sing-song of choruses. Mr. Gerald Cooke and Mr. George Post each gave helpful readings, while Mr. and Mrs. Clarke contributed two duets. The Misses Eleanor Wright, Marilyn Fitchett and Lois Cooke as a trio, gave a lovely song.

The Reverend W. Bingham, minister of the church at Norwood, gave a short address on "My Call to the Ministry," and Mr. Clarke also gave one on "What the Ministry Means to Me."

Mr. Philip Carr conducted a Bible quiz and Mr. Alex McCurdy read the scripture lesson.

Special Address

The special address was given by Arthur Wilson on the subject, "There Are No Gospel Substitutes," Mrs. Mac Sarles assisted by singing a verse of "Oh Where is My Boy Tonight?" Mrs. William Grant gave a solo, with Mrs. George Ashley as accompanist, who also presided at the piano for the evening's program.

Following the closing by Mr. Bingham, the Norwood group served refreshments in the dining hall for which Mr. Alex McCurdy voiced the appreciation of the group.

Personals

Reverend Morley Clarke was a dinner guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sills.

Mr. and Mrs. John McInroy and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Sharpe, of Frankford.

Former Employees Of Trucking Corp. Being Rounded Up

Danvers, Mass., March 27 (AP) —F.B.I. agents today began a roundup of all former employees of the U.S. Trucking Corp., owner of the armored truck robbed of $681,000 in Danvers square Tuesday while its three guards sipped coffee about 20 feet away.

A source close to the investigation, expressed belief the F.B.I hopes to determine if one of the former employees kept a key to the truck when he left the employ of the armored car service or divulged how a key could be obtained.

At the same time, Boston police swooped down on all known gangsters—"petty and big-time alike" —and made them account for their time Tuesday morning.

Boston police took that action after it was revealed the keys to the company's armored trucks were kept in an unlocked drawer just inside the entrance of a garage in Boston's north end.

Some police officers have expressed the opinion there might be a connection between the armored car robbery and the still unsolved $1,219,000 Brink's headquarters robbery on Jan. 17, 1950.

The U.S. Trucking Corp.'s armored trucks are kept in the same waterfront garage that houses Brink's Boston headquarters.

The Danvers robbery is believed to involve the second biggest cash haul in U.S. crime history. The biggest is listed as the Brink's robbery.

BABY TRICKS

St. Marys, Ont. — (CP)—A successful operation in hospital here removed a penny from the stomach of a baby girl. The 10-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bilton had swallowed the coin dropped by a brother.

Unhappy Week

Niagara Falls, March 27 (CP)— In some ways, this week has been an unhappy one for Alderman Harold A. Logan.

He received one of the 250 tickets handed out to motorists by police cracking down on traffic violations.

Right afterwards, he got another ticket—for letting his dog run at large.

GIVEN FIRST CALL

Toronto, March 27 (CP) —Surburban Long Branch residents whose homes were destroyed or damaged by Lake Ontario waves during a weekend storm will be given first call on obtaining low rental homes to be built soon by the Ontario government on the Long Branch rifle range.

The houses will rent from $4 to $60 a month.

Nationalist Party To Free Trieste From Any Power

Rome, Mar. 27 (Reuters) — Italian Nationalists today threatened to send "liberation battalions" to regain Trieste, now occupied partly by Britain, the United States and partly by Yugoslavia.

The right-wing Italian Nationalist party said the men would "free Trieste from any foreign danger."

Secretary-General Vincenzo Caputo said the battalions are already being formed.

The threat came as the latest development in a week of rioting in the free zone and in major Italian cities.

Caputo told Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi in a letter today that Italian Nationalists "will not tolerate foreign influences on the sacred Italian soil of Trieste."

Riots took place in Trieste after last Saturday's pro-Italian demonstration, staged on the anniversary of the western powers' declaration of intention to return the free territory to Italy.

Caputo said: "At the first sign of danger to Trieste — from Tito or anyone else — the blueshirts (Nationalists) will rally from every part of Italy to help their Triestini brothers."

TITOIST MOVEMENT

Rio De Janeiro, March 27 (AP) —A circular issued under the name of Brazil's No. 2 communist leader today announced a Titoist movement among this nation's outlawed communists. The circular bore the name of Jose Maria Crispim and appealed to the communists not to submit further to "foreign direction."

Three Charged With Killing Five Moose

Montreal, March 27 (CP) —Arrest of three alleged poachers from St. Charles de Mandeville was announced today by J. P. Bourque, superintendent for the game department in Montreal district.

Detained at Joliette, Que., pending arraignment are Jerome Beausoleil, Ferrier Arsenault and Gratien Arsenault. They were charged with killing five moose, two of them cows.

Game wardens travelled by snowmobile, dog team and snowshoes on a 45-mile trek through the forests to make the arrests after noting the sudden disappearance of the trio from the village of St. Charles de Mandeville.

The two-day pursuit ended 45 miles north of St. Charles de Mandeville in the winter habitat of a herd of moose.

SEIZE PROCESSED CHEESE

Washington, March 27 — (AP) — The government today announced seizure in Kansas City, Chicago and San Francisco of 6,000 pounds of processed cheese penetrated by a toxic chemical used to protect its wrappers.

The Food and Drug Administration said it was looking for other lots in the same wrapper.

The chemical, dehydroacetic acid, has been used to prevent mold growth on the wrappers The government said toxicity of the chemical is similar to that of carbolic acid.

BRAVE AS MICE

"Washington — A United States Air Force scientist told today of a rocket catapulted 80 miles into space with live monkeys and mice aboard."

—News Item

It was the night before the big experiment and an ominous silence hung over the animal cages on the Test Grounds far out in the desert of New Mexico. Miles away a sad hyena howled at the hard bright stars.

"I wish that hyena would go to bed," the monkey said dolefully. He paced up and down in his cage and peered through the darkness hoping to see his friend, the mouse, who chanced to be in an adjoining cage. "I never did like hyenas."

"Take it easy, George," the mouse squeaked in his happy little voice. "Your nerves are all on edge."

"Eighty miles into space in the morning—and he says my nerves are on edge." The monkey groaned and slapped a paw against his low forehead. "I tell you, Mickey, I'm scared. Back home I've faced alligators, tigers, lions. Spat in their faces. But this! If this is civilization," he moaned, "give me the jungle."

"Ah, you don't want to take it that way," the mouse laughed. "Here today and gone tomorrow. That's life. That's what I always say."

"Gone tomorrow," the monkey echoed, "80 miles. Straight up."

"Life is all a gamble," the mouse squeaked and at that instant a hawk screamed somewhere over the desert. "Hear that? A hawk! If it isn't a hawk it's a great yellow cat or fox terrier or a trap with a great brute spring on it or a space ship. I tell you, George, a mouse has to have a philosophy."

"Always an optimist," the monkey grumbled.

"Buck up, George," the mouse cried. "Think of the contribution we're making to science. Why, I had two uncles in the Bikini test and a half-brother at Alamogordo. It's a tradition in our family."

"Oh, we've had our share of science," the monkey responded in his glum way. "My father went into John Hopkins years ago. We never heard of him again except for a consoling letter from the Anti-Vivisectionist Society. They say my great aunt had a good deal to do with abdominal surgery...."

"Those civilians!" the mouse squeaked. "This is the Air Force, George. This is glory, boy glory."

"The hell with glory," the monkey said.

"Think of that moment tomorrow," the mouse went on. "The feel of the parachute tight around the chest. The swelling of pride and patriotism right here" — he struck a tiny blow at his heart — "Why say, they may even have a band out for us," a brass band!"

"I can hear them now," the monkey moaned. "They're playing 'Nearer My God To Thee'."

"Oh, buck up, George," the mouse said, "It isn't like a monkey to be downhearted. Laugh, clown, laugh! Put on a funny hat! Do a dance! That's why monkeys were born."

"Drop dead," the Chimp snarled.

There was a silence. The hyena howled again. Then the monkey spoke once more. Now his voice was hard and bitter.

"We're goin' to go all right, Mickey, but maybe it isn't in vain," he said. "Tey're testing all these things on a few of us, but it's people who'll be slain and slaughtered by them when they're perfect..."

"Don't excite yourself, George," the mouse squeaked.

"Yessir, people!" the monkey snarled. "A few of us monkeys died when they tested the first atom bomb, but tens of thousands of people dide at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Now they're fixin' to blow the whole of their fool civilization into pieces...."

"Please, George!" the mouse cried.

"...yessir," the monkey went on "and when they're all dead and gone the monkeys, the monkeys, Mickey, will swing out of the jungle and rule the earth. We'll start all over again right where we did before!"

"George! George!" the mouse squeaked. "You mustn't work yourself up! Listen! I'll sing you a funny song."

The mouse then sang a song known only to mice and the monkey laughed in spite of himself and shortly afterwards dozed off fitfully.

As soon as he heard the monkey snoring the mouse began to tremble. He forced himself to keep back a sob. Then he sank down to his knees in his little cage.

"Dear Lord of mice and men," he prayed. "I tried to keep George happy on this last night, but I know as he does what tomorrow means. Please watch over us tomorrow. And, Lord, if we're really goin' to the moon, Lord, let it be made of green cheese."

Chicago White Sox Better Club Than Last Year, Critics Believe

By BOB MYERS

Tucson, Ariz., March 27 — (AP) — For 41 days Chicago White Sox held the lead in the American League last year.

The Sox may not hold it as long this season, but there are those with the club who believe they will hold the lead when it counts — meaning the final day.

Much of the optimism is based on the point that Paul Richards is the manager, tactician and brains of the outfit. He worked a small miracle in setting the Sox ablaze and into fourth place in his freshman year as a major league manager.

Has Strength

Most critics think Richards has a stronger club this year.

The principal strengthening efforts were aimed at third base this winter. The White Sox obtained a star from the International League, Hector Rodriguez, to fill the gap. Rodriguez, 31, hit .302 and stole 26 bases for Montreal, as well as driving in 95 runs. Richards cut Bob Dillinger loose and presumably is going along with Rodriguez, with utility man San Dente from the Senators on hand to back him up.

Richards' catching is improved too with the acquisition of Sherman Lollar from the Browns to share the job with veteran Phil Masi.

The pitching should be adequate and deep, if not star-studded. Saul Rogovin, Bill Pierce, Ken Holcombe and Chuck Stobbs stand out. And able relief is to be expected from Luis Aloma or Harry Dorigh.

The infield, aside from third, is excellent, Eddie Robinson at first, Nellie Fox at second and Chico Carresquel at short are fixtures, ranging from Robinson's power hitting to Fox's slashing offence and fine defence, and Carrasquel's brilliance at short.

Big gun of the outfield is Orestes Minoso. The American League "rookie of the year" from Cuba powered the ball for .326, second high in the league.

Jim Busby and Ray Coleman have been regarded as Minoso's regular mates in the outfield.

Experts Fear Maoris Would Suffer Racial Prejudice in Cities

Wellington, N.Z., March 27 — (Reuters) — A new controversy over the racial relationship between New Zealand's native Maoris and Europeans has been aroused against the developement of a "brown proletariat."

Professor Ralph Piddington of Auckland University recently warned a group of Maori teachers that a blending of Maori and European races could breed "an underprivileged and despised community."

The natural environment of the Maori is rural and if the Maoris moved into the cities for unskilled jobs they would be subject to prejudice, he said.

Piddington believes that Maoris and Europeans can best live side by side, recognizing and respecting their differences.

Two schools of thought on the merging of the races have long existed in New Zealand.

One argues that the best future for the Maori lies in rapid assimilation into the European way of life, with the Maori mingling at all levels of society.

The other holds that the two races should live together in inter - dependence, with the Maori preserving as large a measure of his identity as possible.

The Ngati Poenke Maori Association, composed of Maori civil servants, sees in Piddington's views an inference that there would be better all-around harmony if distinct racial entities were preserved — a philosophy which the association regards as unacceptable and out of line with present-day trends.

Barriers Broken

Conditions in New Zealand today, a country hungry for manpower, have drawn large numbers of young Maori men and women from their usual communities to the city labor pools, and they have played an important part in all kinds of work. European employers' objections to engaging Maori labor have been largely broken down.

Men and women of Maori blood can be found in every profession in New Zealand today—a development which 20 years ago would have been thought impossible.

The right to equality with the European was promised the Maori in 1840 when the Treaty of Waitangi was signed and the Maori chiefs ceded their sovereignty to Queen Victoria.

For the last 50 years, there have been instances of a "color bar" and of discrimination against the Maori but they have been broken down considerably in recent years.

The slow population increase of full-blooded Maoris and the increase of half- and quarter-caste Maori population is an indication that racial assimilation is progressing quickly.

Kitchener Goalie Wins Valuable Player Award

Toronto, March 27 (CP)—Bill Harrington, goalkeper for Kitchener Greenshirts is the [illegible] winner of the A[illegible] Memorial Trophy awarded annually to the [illegible] the most valuable in the Ontario Association Junior A League.

Twelve sportswriters in the 10 cities represented in O.H.A. Junior A competition voted in the selection.

The trophy prepuates the memory of Tilson who played junior hockey in Regina and Oshawa before he was killed on active service with the Canadian army.

Second was Ken Laufman, centre for Guelph Biltmores. Thirteen players were named on the 12 ballots but Harrington was the only player to receive three first-place votes.

Following Harrington and Laufman in order of voting points were: Ken Wharram and Pete Conacher of Galt Black Hawks, Andy Bathgate of Guelph Biltmores, Danny Poland of To-[illegible] Bud Boone and Frank Martin of St. Catharines [illegible], Bob Shropshire of Oshawa Generals, Bob Brown of Windsor Spitfires, Ed Chadwick and Bob Sabourin of Toronto St. Michael's and Chuck Lumsden of Marlboros.

Previous winners of the award were: Glen Hall, Spitfires, 1950-51; George Armstrong, Marlboros, 1949-50; Gil Mayer, Flyers, 1948-49; George Armstrong, Stratford, 1947-48; Ed Sandford, Toronto St. Michaels, 1946-47; Hod Sloan, Toronto, St. Michaels, 1945-46; Doug McMurdy, St. Catharines, 1944-45.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

McMaster University has again applied for membersnip in the Intercollegiate Senior Football League, athletic director Ivor Wynne said yesterday at Hamilton. The application will be considered at a meeting in Toronto Saturday. McMaster applied last year but was turned down.

Wynne said if the application is turned down again McMaster has four alternatives: continuing in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, returning to the intercollegiate intermediate ranks, playing only exhibition games or possibly dropping out of football.

Ottawa Senators last night defeated Smiths Falls Rideaus 9-8 in a benefit game. Proceeds of the game went to Stu Smith, former Senators star whose farm home recently was levelled by fire. He received a cheque for $1,000.

The annual 10-mile men's swim will be an opening day feature of the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 22, the C.N.E. sports committee decided yesterday. The committee approved the usual $5,000 first prize. The women's distance swim will be held Aug. 27.

Edmonton Mercurys, Canadian Olympic hockey champions, were beaten 7-2 last night by Harringay Racers at London.

Howard Leslie of Saint John and Allan McFater of Toronto were matched yesterday for the main bout of a professional fight card Monday night at Hamilton.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission refused to issue a boxing manager's licence yesterday to Frank Blinky Palermo and continued his suspension pending further investigation. Palermo asked the hearing in hope he could be cleared in time to be in the corner of his fighter, Ike Williams, in a bout with Chuck Davey at Chicago. Williams, former world's lightweight champion, suffered a technical knockout in the fifth round of the scheduled 10-rounder. Davey is undefeated in 32 pro-fights.

Football referees are in for a rough time this year in Argentina's Cordoba Province. A new police code says the whistle tooters will be liable to seven days in jail and a fine if they are "guilty of partiality or negligence" which leads to incidents in the field. The code failed to mention who would judge.

FAMILY LIGHT

Port Burwell, Ont. — (CP) — Army enlistment of 23-year-old Jack Sutherland ends a family connection of 100 years with the Port Burwell lighthouse. His great grandfather first filled the position in 1852 and it's been in the family ever since. New keeper is Jack Hayward, navy veteran.

RELIGIOUS FETE

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — The 75th anniversary of the arrival of the Irish Christian Brothers in Newfoundland will be commemorated April 23 with high mass at the cathedral and a dinner at night. More than 300 former pupils are expected for the dinner at St. Patrick's Hall school.

BEAVERS CHEAPER

Halifax — (CP) — Lower purchase prices and a new system of marketing reduced the returns for Nova Scotia beaver trappers this season. The pelts were tagged and graded and returns from each were passed on to the trapper. In previous years the pelts were sold en bloc and returns distributed equally.

Weston Dukes Defeat Hawks 5-3 In 1st Game Home-and-Home Series

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Red" Doran's junior Hawks emerged on the short end of a 5-3 score against the highly-touted Weston Dukes here last night, but that is all they lost. At that, had they played the same confident type of hockey they tossed at the Barrie Flyers the other night the score might have been different. From the press box it seemed the Hawks were suffering from a spot of stage fright in that first period. Their passes were not clicking. They were not following up in their offensive thrusts, but to their credit it must be said they held off the smooth-passing drives of the "last hope of Toronto".

As a matter of fact the Hawks did not get fully "untracked" all night despite the furious offensives they tossed at the Dukes in the fast-moving second and third periods. They tried to work in too close to the Dukes net, something that can't be done against the hard-checking hard-hitting Toronto defence. True, they missed several chances and Albani in the Dukes nets pulled off some sensational saves, when the Hawks drove in close.

But, it was not a "walkover" as some predicted, for the smooth-skating Dukes. Risking the charge that we're being "home-townish" we'll venture to say that the Hawks, after their baptism of fire against the Big Six champions, will be a different squad when the teams clash again. The "giant" bugaboo has been dispensed with. The Dukes are just another hockey team albeit fast, well-coached, clever and poison in front of the nets. Not to mention being opportunists.

The Dukes might beat the Doran crew in the forthcoming semi-finals series. But we'll venture to say, that if and when they do, at least they'll rest with the knowledge that they have been in a hockey series.

PLAY IT OUT

Following last night's game the round-robin series between the Dukes, Hawks and Barrie will be played out. Barrie goes to Weston on Friday night and the Hawks visit Weston on Tuesday, April 1st. Incidentally those who wish to take advantage of the train accommodation to Weston next Tuesday should contact Bill Cook's Cigar Store immediately. A guarantee must be met—or else. Sixty fans and their money are needed.

HOCKEY TOURNEY

President Jack Yanover of the Belleville Hockey Association announced today that his organization will sponsor a hockey tournament for teams of the district composed of players 18 years of age and under. Entries are requested from Picton, Campbellford, Trenton, Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Stirling, Napanee, Deseronto, Wellington, and two from Belleville. Entries should be submitted to Secretary Dick Beare at the Cook's Wholesale, Coleman Street, phone 114, Belleville. The tournament will be in the nature of a round robin. Prexy Yanover added that he will donate a handsome trophy to the winner. Entries should be submitted immediately.

FLYERS-MARMORA HERE FRIDAY

Marmora Millionaires and the Trenton RCAF Flyers will start the Trent Valley finals series in Memorial Arena on Friday night, this department is informed. The Marmora squad ousted the Havelock team in a strenuous fifth - game tussle in Peterborough on Tuesday night by an 8-7 score and qualified to meet the air crew for the loop championship and the baubles that go with it. A report from Peterborough stated 1,800 fans saw the game, not a bad convention for a couple of out-of-town teams. If that is any criterion, with Belleville being much closer for Marmora fans a goodly throng should be on hand here Friday night.

GOOD SHOW

Coach Jack Doran and his gallant volleyball crew of St. Michael's High School should feel proud of their accomplishments during the recent COSSA tournament held at McMaster University, Hamilton. The team that eliminated the "Fighting Irish", the Collingwood CI won the COSSA championship. St. Mike's kids showing the same fighting spirit that characterized their football successes last year went to the fourth round before bowing out to the more-experienced "shipbuilders".

PART GOOD

Just about forty years ago Casey Stengel was doing his outfielding for Montgomery in the Southern League, hoping against hope that he'd attract enough attention to get in the big leagues. Then one day in Birmingham he was tipped off that a Brooklyn scout was in the stands.

Casey made so many hits that he was again and again on base, where he had a marvelous opportunity to mangle hit-and-run plays, to get picked off or to get caught stealing. He also made sensational catches and threw powerfully to the bases, often the wrong ones.

"That Stengel is a great player," reported the scout. "He can run, throw and hit. He's the greatest I've ever seen — from the neck down!"

NIP VS TUCK

Tonight two of the city's topflight bowlers will settle an issue when the Major "A" League goes to the alleys in their final scheduled game of the season.

Jim Corlies of Schwabs and Jim McKenzie of Lawn Bowlers will match strikes and spares for the high average title of the loop.

Corlies who has played in 78 games has an average of 242.8 while McKenzie who has rolled 81 games has a mark of 242.12. Not bad kegling in any man's league.

COMMUNITY EFFORT

Winnipeg — (CP) — A new neighborhood house will be established in Winnipeg's north end to provide better family service and recreation for all age groups in the area. Three Winnipeg organizations pledged $25,000 each to help defray costs of the project.

AGED COMFORTS

Fort Frances, Ont. — (CP) The Rainy River district's new home for the aged here will be opened soon. The sprawling one-storey edifice named "Rainycrest" will accommodate 83 persons, but is built so that additions may bring the total to 250.

Hawks Match Starry Visitors After Sluggish First Period; 2503 See Fast Furious Fray

By GEO. H. CARVER

(Sports Editor)

Weston Dukes, Toronto's lone hope for an amateur hockey title, eked out a 5-3 victory over the Belleville Hawks here last night in the first game of the teams' home-and-home series in the O.H.A. junior "B" round robin semi-finals.

The game was a dress rehearsal for the best-of-seven semi-finals series, since the Barrie Flyers, defeated three times, have been eliminated.

The Dukes meet Barrie on their home ice Friday night while the Hawks clash with the Dukes at Weston next Tuesday for their second game.

Regardless of the outcome, the Dukes will meet the Hawks in a best-of-seven series for the right to meet the Western Ontario winners for the provincial title.

Slowish in First

Despite the fact the Hawks appeared to be a trifle stage-struck in a slowish first period, the game developed into a second-third period battle that was easily one of the best junior games ever staged on Belleville ice.

The shots on goal tell the story. The Dukes had nine against the Hawks four in the first heat. In the furious second when the Hawks tied the score they had 11 against 9 and in the third they outshot the classy Dukes by a 13-6 count. In all the Hawks outshot the Dukes 28-24.

Offsetting that is the fact that the game was more or less a battle of goalkeepers. Barclay for the Hawks and Albani for the Dukes deserved stars as both came up with more or less sensational plays to thwart the opposition.

It was a hard-hitting heavy-checking battle with Dukes laying it on and getting nine of the thirteen penalties handed out by Referees Bill Reason and Art Casterton of Kingston. All were minor infractions. A few mild rhubarbs broke out with the boys pushing one another around but nothing serious developed.

The Dukes, a fast both-way checking squad of opportunists held the fort in the slowish first period. The Doran crew checking solidly, failed to follow through on their offensive thrusts but were equally good on the defensive and it was not until 15 minutes had gone in the first period that McCarthy opened the scoring from Fisher with the Hawks one man short. Wilson drew two penalties during the next four minutes but the Hawks held the fort and the period ended 1-0 for the Dukes.

Sparked the Hawks

Fisher's high driving shot caromed off Barclay's shoulder for the Dukes second counter early in the second period. The goal seemed to spark the Hawks, Fisher went off and Billy Strahan weaved through the Duke defence, missed by a foot, turned and whipped Jacklin's pass into the net while 2503 fans stood cheering. The Dukes roared to the attack and Barclay again saved the cause. Ross Mason breaking away with Therrien and Johnny Munro slung a hard low drive past Albani to tie the count and again the rafters rang.

It was the fastest hockey of the night and both front lines whipped up and down the ice. Harris of the Dukes racing in fast, picked up a rebound and turning drove a high corner backhand shot that beat Barclay to give the Dukes a 3-2 edge. The Hawks outshot the Dukes 11-9 in that period.

The Hawks struck with a fast offensive in the third period. It was nip-and-tuck hockey with end-to-end rushes that tested both goalies. Strahan hit a post. Fisher did likewise for the Dukes. Jamieson drew a holding penalty and the Hawks swarmed to the attack.

Broke in Clear

Fisher, one of the Dukes' stars broke into the clear and raced in to beat Barclay to make the score 4-2. Garner made it 5-2 a minute later on a similar play.

The Hawks roared back but they were not clicking in front of the Dukes net. Lalande and Strahan missed by inches then Jamieson of the Dukes drew a slashing penalty. Lalande and Strahan put on the prettiest passing play of the night with the former beating Albani cleanly for the Hawks third counter. Jamieson, then Stoyan got the gate and the Dukes were two men short. But sterling defensive work held off the Hawk threat with Albani kicking out plenty of rubber.

The period and the game ended with the Hawks, their stage fright gone, battling desperately to whittle down the margin.

The "7-11" duo of Dukes, Fisher, Harris with Reid, husky defenceman stood out for the Dukes. Fisher got a pair and Harris one. McCarthy and Garner got the others. Strahan, Lalande and Mason were the snipers for the Hawks.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, Green; centre, Lalande; wings, Jacklin, Strahan; subs. Munro, DeGray, Doran, Gilmour, Mason, Carey, Houle, Therrien Green.

Weston Dukes: Goal, Albani; defence, Stoyan, Livingstone; centre, Harris; wings, Jamieson Fisher; subs, D. Reid, Glover, McCarthy, Garner, Eleck, Sneddon, Chapman, Jackson, Clements.

Summary

Petes Win Title, Defeat Sacs 10-6

The Peterborough Petes won the senior "B" group championship in Kingston last night defeating the Sacs of that city by a 10-6 count to take the final series four in a row.

The victory was the eighth consecutive playoff win for the Petes, they having swept their semi-final series with the Bellevile Hawks in four straight tilts.

The Petes now meet the Stouffville Clippers in the senior "B" semi-finals.

Syracuse Gets 'Old Fireman' Joe Page

By Jack Hand

Plant City, Fla., March 27 (AP)—"This is it. No use kidding anybody. It's now or never."

Joe Page sat on the rubbing table in the Syracuse clubhouse.

You remember Joe Page. Old firemen Joe—the gay reliever-toast of New York in 1947 and again in 1949.

For the first time in his life Page is outside the New York Yankee organization.

There is no more hope of recall by the Yanks. For the move that brought him to Syracuse from Kansas City was an outright sale, conditioned only by make good—or else.

"I was up in Maine for three months," said the 34-year-old Page. "Hunting, wood-chopping, hoping the shoulder would stop aching. But it didn't. Even when I got back home about New Year's it still hurt.

"I was going to give it up altogether. My wife said I might as well give it a try. So I came down about a week ago.

"I don't know whether it's the hot weather but the arm feels good. I haven't cut loose yet but I threw batting practice for 15 minutes and it felt good. I've got all the confidence in the world that it'll come around with a lot of hard work.

"If I can't get back with the Yankees," he said. "I'd like to go with Boston or Cleveland. I always thought I'd kind of like to pitch in Boston. But first I've got to pitch in Syracuse."

Page got as high as $32,000 from the Yanks in his peak year, counting world series dough. Now he probably works for about 10 per cent of that.

Pocket Billiards Champ Scores Third Victory

Boston, March 27—(AP)—Defending champion Willie Mosconi, had three straight victories against no defeats to his credit today as he sought to win his 11th world pocket billiard crown.

Exhibiting his best form since the start of the championship round-robin title series here on Monday, Mosconi closed out with a 56 run while scoring an easy 150-65 triumph over Jimmy Mills of San Jose, Calif., last night in a 17-inning match.

Irving Crane chalked up a sensational 99 run in the final frame of an abbreviated 10-inning match to trounce Arthur Cranfield 150-25, in the other night game.

In the afternoon matches, Donold de Coy upset a seeded player for the second time in as many days, defeating Joe Canton 150-129, in 18-innings after running up a 133-4 lead in the first 13 games.

Seeded George Chernier of Toronto, overcame a 124-14 deficit and defeated Jimmy Moore of Albuquerque, N. M., 150-138, in a 13-inning match.

De Coy has now won two matches and lost one. Cranfield, Mills, Moore, John Fitzpatrick, Chenier and Crane have each won one and lost one.

Mosconi will shoot for his fourth successive win tonight against Canton. Crane and Fitzpatrick meet in the other night match.

In the afternoon matches, De Coy plays Chenier, Cranfield opposes Mills and Moore meets Willie Covington.

Phils' Pennant Chances Skyrocket, Curt Simmons Home From The Army

Clearwater, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Pitching ace Curt Simmons is coming home from the army—and with that announcement the chances of a second National League pennant in 37 years for Philadelphia Phillies went skyrocketing today.

Manager Eddie Sawyer and owner Bob Carpenter said they were notified the slim, dark-haired southpaw would be sent to a port of embarkation in Europe about April 1.

Sawyer immediately began speculating that Simmons might be ready to start the Phillies' season opener against Boston Braves at Philadelphia's Shibe Park April 18.

Ready to Go

"Once he's out of the army," said Sawyer, "it will be only a short time before Simmons is ready to pitch. His youth, the fact that he pitched considerable ball last year and always has kept himself in the best of shape, should enable him to pitch 10 days after his discharge."

Word that Simmons was on his way back to the team, gave the Phillies new life and started training camp talk of the club's pennant chances.

Curt's value to the club was amply shown at the end of the 1950 season.

After Curt donned an army uniform, the Phillies went into a tailspin. They finally squeezed into the pennant on the last day of the season. And last season—without Simmons—they slipped to fifth.

The return of the young southpaw—Simmons will be 23 in May—will give the Phillies one of the strongest hurling staffs in the National League.

Robin Roberts has been showing signs in spring training of repeating his 20-game winning performance of last season. Russ Meyer—picked by Sawyer before the Simmons news as his second starter—is expected to better his past record.

Sawyer also has for good measure veteran Howie Fox, Bubba Church, rookie Steve Ridzik, Karl Drews, Ken Heintzelman and reliefer Jim Konstanty—also showing vast improvement over 1951.

Turk Broda May See Action Against Red Wings Tonight; Bruins Problem, 'Stop Rocket'

Detroit, March 27 — (CP) — Pudgy Walter (Turk) Broda, one of hockey's great goalkeepers who has been around in the big time since the 1936-37 season—apart from a stint in the Canadian armed forces—may make his farewell appearance here tonight.

That's the gossip going the rounds as Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings get set for round two of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals. If managing director Conn Smythe of the Leafs decides that this is the time to use Turk, it will mark his 100th appearance in a playoff game.

Smythe made a promise before a sell-out crowd at Toronto Maple Leafs Gardens last Dec. 22—"Turk Broda night" that the weighty netminder, replaced by Al Rollins midway through the 1951-52 season would get in a playoff game before he hung up his gear. "And I've never broken a promise yet," the Leaf official said last night.

And if he goes tonight Broda, three times Vezina Trophy winner, will be on the spot. The Wings took the semi-final opener 3-0 in a battling, bruising game that set a record for penalties in a Stanley Cup game—29—and Toronto desperately needs this one.

Tips Scale at 202

Broda, now a weighty 202 pounds compared with his best playing weight of around 190, was out practising with the Leafs Wednesday and this led to speculation that Smythe, trying to get a winning combination, may decide to use him. Broda was in the Leaf nets only once this National Hockey League season—for half the schedule windup game at Chicago last Sunday.

Detroit, N. H. L. champions for the fourth straight season, is favored to take a two-game edge in the series before a crowd of more than 14,000 at Olympia Stadium.

Two years ago the Leafs and Wings started out with a game reminiscent of Tuesday's. Altogether 20 penalties were called in that contest. And Detroit's Gordie Howe went to the hospital in critical condition and required a delicate brain operation to save him.

The pace didn't slacken in the second game with 19 penalties called. League president Clarence Campbell ordered an end to the rough stuff and only three penalties were called in the third game.

Campbell said yesterday he planned no such edict yet for this series.

This is the 13th straight year that Detroit has reached the playoffs — equivalent of baseball's World Series. But in that time they've won only two Stanley Cups, in 1943 and 1950.

On personnel change is certain for tonight's game. Referee Bill Chadwick, who handled the Tuesday game, will be replaced — routine in the playoffs—and the choice is expected to be George Gravel.

Both teams go into the game in good physical shape. They are almost halfway to the record total of 61 penalties for one playoff series, set a year ago by Toronto and Boston in the semi-finals.

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 27 (CP)—Some time today coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens will knock on the door of his "leper colony" and summon Stan Long.

Long will be told to get dressed for tonight's second game of the Stanley Cup semi-final hockey series against Boston Bruins.

"Leper colony," for some reason or other, is the name Irvin has fastened on his little band of hockey hopefuls called up by the parent club as stand-bys for hockey's big annual show.

Long gets the call because Jim MacPherson, Canadiens' towering defenceman, came down with a charleyhorse Tuesday night when Canadiens plastered a stunning 5-1 defeat on the Bruins.

The whys and wherefores of that sound squelching are still being debated. The Bruins figure they got a bad game out of their systems. But the opener of a best-of-seven series admittedly was a poor spot to pick.

Must Stop Rocket

Coach Lynn Patrick must solve a many-sided problem if he is to get his Bruins even-up with Canadiens when the clubs head for Boston and the third and fourth games.

He has to tighten up a usually steady defence that was surprisingly wobbly Tuesday night. He has to inject some scoring punch in his forward lines. And, a major problem in itself, he has to devise ways and means of stopping the flying Maurice Richard and mates.

Patrick said yesterday he thought both teams played below form—his own team more so—in Tuesday's opener. As for the score, "There were stupid, plain stupid goals scored against us."

Patrick felt his club will play much better hockey tonight. On the basis of the season's play he had every right to think so. Although the Bruins finished fourth and Canadiens second in the regular National Hockey League schedule, the Bruins took seven games from the Montrealers and lost five. Two games were tied.

Goalie Jim Henry admitted Rocket Richard's second goal of the night was a brilliant piece of work—Richard firing a sizzling low shot from a difficult angle, the puck just clipping the inside of the goal post as it whistled in.

Irvin said he looks for a much tougher game tonight.

"The Bruins are a smart club," said Irvin. "They're fighting from behind now and they will probably be a different looking team in this second game. We've got to improve our own play to beat them."

Black Hawks' Hockey School Is Successful

Galt, March 27 — (CP) — A three-day hockey school, which brought 35 fledgling members of Chicago Black Hawk's system here from all parts of Ontario, wound up yesterday with a scrub game. Most of the 35 were from Northern Ontario.

Bob Wilson, chief eastern scout of the Chicago club, and Coach Red Hamill of Galt Black Hawks were in charge. Johnny Mitchell, Chicago's chief scout, was an interested onlooker along with Pete Conacher, Jack Hill, Jack Price and Ken Wharram of last season's club who have just returned from a Florida holiday.

Among the promising youths from juvenile and midget ranks were Larry Hillman of Kirkland Lake and Morris Mantha of North Bay, both defenceman.

Biltmores Trim Teepees 8-4 To Even Series

(By The Canadian Press) — The question to be decided tonight is: Can St. Catharines Teepees make a comeback from an 8-4 beating?

Guelph Biltmores administered the trouncing last night at St. Catharines, deadlocking the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association junior A finals 1-1. The Biltmores outplayed Teepees after the first five minutes of the game.

But the St. Catharines team has surprised the league before. After finishing sixth in the 10-team loop, they came back to win a semi-final series with Kitchener Greenshirts.

Teepees contnued to look good when they beat Guelph 4-3 last Monday in the first game of the series. The game tonight will be played at Guelph.

At one point in last night's game, three Guelph men were in the penalty box, but St. Catharines players couldn't muster the strength to balance the score.

The shots-on-goal tabulation tell the story—Teepees just didn't shoot often enough. Guelph shot 41 times for eight goals and St. Catharines 22 times for four goals.

Guelph scored four times in the first period, with Stewart, Ron Murphy, Chuck Henderson and Bill McCreary putting in the shots. St. Catharines' Al Kellogg scored one.

In the second period Chuck Marshall and Gordy Myles put in two for St. Catharines and Henderson and Andy Bathgate did the same for Guelph.

Guelph widened its lead in the third period with goals by Dean Prentice and Bill Chalmers against a singleton by St. Catharines' Pierre Pilote.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, Ariz., March 27 (AP) Signs of spring in the great southwest:

Chicago Cubs have been slaughtering everything in sight and the pitching monsters of Cleveland Indians haven't been able to win for losing. As usual, the exhibitions do not count in the final standings.

Leo Durocher of the Giants says he doesn't know what's eating his old pal Charlie Dressen of the Dodgers.

"I keep reading where he says we've been laughing as his club all winter. Hell, I haven't even mentioned the Dodgers all spring until right now. I know better than anyone does how lucky we were when Thomson hit that homer."

Roy Hamey, the Yankees' trouble-shooter, is out this way trying to put together a new scouting staff for the champs, who suffered a serious blow when their two famous talent hunters, Joe Devine and Bill Essick, died within a short time.

Between them, Devine and Essick discovered practically all the Yankees' west coast stars such as DiMaggio, Gomez, Crosetti and many others who won fame with the Bombers over the last 20 years.

Some astute observers do not feel that the Chicago White Sox are displaying quite the fire and hustle they did in training games a year ago. From what he's seen of them, Rogers Hornsby doesn't hesitate to say his St. Louis Browns will finish higher than Paul Richards' speed boys.

And speaking of speed, the Giants scoff out loud at a recently printed suggestion that the Sox are the fastest club in baseball. They declare that Bobby Thomson would beat either Minnie Minoso or Jim Busby by close to 10 yards in the 100, and that several others of their number, including Al Dark, Willie Mays and Whitey Lockman, would at least hold their own with anything the Sox can offer.

The Giants believe quite seriously that Thomson might have been the greatest sprinter in history if he had been trained for it. No baseball player has come even close to the flying Scot in a match race, and he ran right away from Vic Pollock, Army's top sprinter of two seasons back.

Cougars Edged By Westminster In Opener

(By The Canadian Press)

New Westminster Royals edged the defending champion Victoria Cougars 3-2 last night in the first game of the best-of-seven Pacific Coast Hockey League semi-final.

Royals outscored Cougars 3-1 after a no-score first period and the best the Victoria team could do in a third-period rally was to add one goal.

Second game of the series between Royals, who ended the season at the top of the league, and the sixth-place Cougars will be played Friday night in Victoria.

New Westminster goalgetters were Ken Ullyot, Jim Bedard and Butch Houle.

Andy Hebenton and Les Hickey scored for Victoria.

Colombo, March 27 — (AP) — Dudley Senanayake today agreed to succeed his father as prime minister of Ceylon. The 41-year-old son of the late Don Stephen Senanayake, veteran Ceylonese statesman and the country's first prime minister, had refused earlier to take the post left vacant when his father died Saturday of injuries suffered in a fall from a horse. He will serve until elections are held, in about 6 months.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Talk of doubles is never complete without some reference to a penalty pass. Like cake that seems to lack something until frosting is added. (Or do you bake frosting and add the cake.)

A double may be for penalty, saying it can defeat the opponent bid and asking partner to pass. Or it may be for takeout, a signal that asks partner to bid something if no opponent bid intervenes.

In answer to a takeout double, the general idea is that partner must show his longest or best suit. If the hand of doubler's partner is weak, discovery of his best suit may help the doubler defend.

Under such circumstances, partner of the doubler is likely to have a very weak hand. As a matter of fact, the assumption is that he has a hand that is too weak to help defeat the opponent bid.

If so, a pass by such a partner would permit opponents to make the bid that was doubled. And they might make overtricks with it for a score that would be costly to the doubler's side.

It is the rule, therefore, that doubler's partner may pass only if the intervening opponent makes a bid. If no bid intervenes, the doubler's partner must bid. Very definitely must.

The must, however, has a proviso. Times are when doubler's partner happens to have the stuff that will help defeat the opponent bid that was doubled. In such case, partner of doubler may pass.

What is the result of such a pass? It turns the takeout double into a penalty double. It says: "Partner, you asked me to bid. But I have the type of hand that can defeat the opponent bid!"

East held the hand shown here:

♥Q J 9 8 5
♦K 6
♣K 8 4 3

South had opened with a heart. West had doubled for takeout. North passed. East passed. It was a penalty pass of a takeout double. The foe is now surrounded.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 27 (AP)—Rita Hayworth says she will take a month's tour of the southwest and then drive to Reno for her divorce from Prince Aly Khan.

The red-haired actress finished work for her picture yesterday.

In an exclusive interview, Miss Hayworth scotched rumors that she is planning a return to Europe to reconcile the son of the Aga Khan.

Miss Hayworth will retain custody of Yasmin, their daughter. She offered no comment on other terms of the separation. She will not be required to remain six weeks in Reno for the divorce, since she is legally a citizen of Nevada.

"I am a resident of Glenbrook, Nevada," she explained. "I established residence there when I returned to this country. The divorce could be a matter of hours, but I may stay around Reno for a few days. I like Nevada very much.

When I saw her last night, the actress remarked that she was weary from the movie-making routine.

"I started out with six weeks of dance rehearsals," she said. "That left me completely exhausted. after all, I haven't danced for four years. In fact, I haven't done anything for four years."

The picture stopped shooting last week, but she has been posing for photographs to advertise and exploit the picture of "Affair In Trinidad." She is even posing in a bathing suit, proving that princesses are not above cheesecake.

"Now I'm ready for a rest," she said. "I'll rest on the motor trip I'm taking. I love to drive; I've done it on every continent. Once I drove all the way from Algiers to Tunisia.

"I don't know where I'll go on this trip. We'll stop wherever we feel like it, for I do want to get some sun. We'll probably spend some time in Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz.

After the divorce, Rita returns to Columbia Studio, where she will start another picture, "Salome and the Seven Veils."

A lot of school-book notions about the Pilgrim Fathers are going to be punctured by a new film from Hollywood.

The picture is called "The Plymouth Adventure," and it's being personally produced by Dore Schary, headman at MGM. Among the facts he relayed to me:

1. The John Alden-Priscilla Mullins-Miles Standist triangle was strictly a figment of Longfellow's imagination. Standish was a married man and much older than Priscilla.

2. The Pilgrime didn't land on Plymouth Rock.

3. The Mayflower wasn't blown off its course, which was supposed to be to Virginia. A land speculator bribed the captain to deliver the settlers to New England.

4. The Pilgrims weren't stiff-necked stolid people. They were warm human beings capable of having fun.

5. They didn't dress primly, with square, Buster Brown haircuts. Their outfits could be colorful, and their hair styles were similar to those of today, including the crew-cut.

6. The Indians were not exactly friendly toward the settlers but did them no real harm.

7. Only half of the Pilgrims were religious dissenters. The others were tradespeople and craftsmen.

Emphasis on Voyage

The picture will take the Pilgrims into their first spring in the new land but the emphasis will be on the voyage across the Atlantic.

"I don't think most people realize what a great achievement it was," said producer Schary "Here were 102 passengers cooped up for three months on a ship that was 102 feet long with a 22-foot beam. The weather was msierable and the seas rough; the supplies of food and water became perilously low. The privation and the embarrassment of having to live so close must have been terrific."

I asked Schary how he became interested in the Pilgrim saga.

"It has intrigued me for a long time," he replied. "Twenty-one years ago, Don Hartman (now the Paramount production boss) and I were working on a musical show to be based on the Pilgrims. We were all set to go into production but the project fell through.

"In recent years, there has been a lot of new material turned up about the Pilgrims."

M-G-M presents one of the greatest motion pictures in entertainment history... three triumphant hours of unforgettable thrills!
M-G-M's
1 The triumphal return of the Roman legions with their shackled captives, to the acclaim of hundreds of thousands.
2 The fateful romance of the Roman commander Marcus (Robert Taylor) and the beautiful hostage Lygia (Deborah Kerr).
3 The half-crazed Emperor and his wicked Empress entertain hundreds at their palace with an all-night feast and orgy.
4 The city of Rome burned to the ground while the tyrant Nero (Peter Ustinov) watching, sings and plays his lyre.
5 Marcus races in his chariot to rescue Lygia from the flames; their seizure and imprisonment.
6 The mighty giant Ursus (Buddy Baer) wrestles in the arena with a maddened bull, to save Lygia, tied to a stake.
7 Hundreds of captive Christians driven into the Circus Maximus, to be torn apart by ravenous lions.
8 The beautiful slave girl dies with the master she loves (Leo Genn).
9 Marcus rouses the masses to fury against Nero; the attack on the palace; the death of Nero and the Empress.

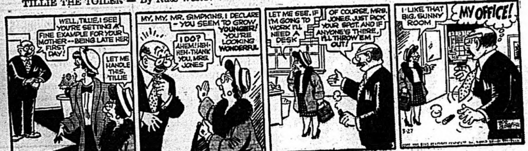
GOSH, MARK, CAN'T YOU FIND SOMEONE WHO'LL FINANCE DOC'S SICKNESS WITHOUT RISKING YOUR LIFE IN THIS BLASTED CANYON?
THERE'S A GUY NAMED JEFF CRANE WHO WOULD... BUT HE ALSO WANTS TO MARRY CHERRY... I'VE GOT TO STOP THAT, BARNEY! I'VE GOT TO!
MEANWHILE
CHERRY, MAY I ASK YOU A VERY PERSONAL QUESTION?
CERTAINLY, JEFF!
ARE YOU IN LOVE WITH MARK TRAIL?

TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



WELL, TILLIE, I SEE YOU'RE SETTING A FINE EXAMPLE FOR YOUR MOTHER—BEING LATE HER FIRST DAY!
LET ME HANDLE THIS, TILLIE
MY, MY, MR. SIMPKINS, I DECLARE—YOU SEEM TO GROW YOUNGER! YOU'RE LOOKING WONDERFUL
I DO? AHEM! HEH-HEH-THANK YOU, MRS. JONES
LET ME SEE, IF I'M GOING TO WORK I'LL NEED A DESK
OF COURSE, MRS. JONES, JUST PICK YOUR SPOT, AND IF ANYONE'S THERE, I'LL THROW 'EM OUT!
I LIKE THAT BIG, SUNNY ROOM

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Friday, March 28, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Mars today stresses need for special tact in dealing with others, including family. Delicate matters, artistic professions, home interests are top favorites.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Venus favorably aspected now augurs fresh advantages for private affairs, also benefits in your occupation, if you are on the job and doing as well as you conscientiously can.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Not all favorable for difficult tasks. Day challenges your able self to make good without much outside help. But it's good period for artistic work where accuracy, skill are needed.

July 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Aggressiveness, quick temper tempt; don't be ensnared. Keep your sunniest smile evident and you won't be disappointed. Cleverly managed affairs, extra capable work will gain.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Moderation and serenity big aids today. All genuine business and personal interests should move smoothly. The way you manage urgent tasks first will count most.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo)—Venus favorably aspected tends to increase cheerfulness, a desire to elevate self. Heed these helpful influences. Artistic professions, work of delicate nature may especially advance.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)— You are particularly sponsored with your auspicious Venus position. However, day won't be all easy, so be on guard and avoid ill temper. Don't neglect essentials, you'll be okay.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Indifference shown. In most things your own skill and patience will prevail. Manufacturing (items of necessity), readjustments, useful work benefits.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Whatever your schedule calls for, succeed with your own capability and effort. Finish things started before undertaking new tasks.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)— Perhaps not too easy a day for some things, but with sensible management and sincere effort you cannot fail to turn in a good record. Don't try for unreasonable returns.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—Today can be productive for your interests, depending greatly upon how you arrange and carry on. Take firsts first; don't try to cram too many tasks into one period.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—For you who have patience and enjoy doing intricate work, things that require thought and skill today can be most pleasant, fruitful. Don't tackle too many (unless urgent) items.

You Born Today: Ambitious, independent, courageous; possess much talent, ability. Usually successful in military affairs, managing large groups of people. However, must control tendency to be dictatorial. Don't waste time or energy on trivialities; keep fiery attitude from where it doesn't belong.

Birthdate of: Pierre Simon, Marquis de Laplace, noted French astronomer; Hon. Herbert H. Lehman, statesman.

Supply and Installation of a Steam Distribution System, Barriefield, Ont. (Vimy Area).

Sealed tenders plainly marked as to content and addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 2:00 p.m. E.S.T., Tuesday April 15th, 1952, for the performance of the following work: the supply and installation of a Steam Distribution System to be located at Barriefield, Ontario. (Vimy Area).

Specifications, plans and tender documents for this project may be obtained by prime contract tenderers at the address shown below. A deposit of $100.00 in the form of a cheque made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited is required for each complete set of plans, specifications and documents. This deposit will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition within seven days after tender award.

Each tender must be accompanied by a security deposit amounting to ten per cent (10%) of the tender price if such price is $500,000.00 or under and in addition five per cent (5%) of any excess of the tender price over $500,000.00. The security deposit will be forfeited in the event the successful tenderer refuses to enter into the contract on the basis of his tender when called upon to do so. The security deposit of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned. A marked cheque on a chartered Canadian bank and made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited or negotiable Dominion of Canada bonds will be accepted as security deposit.

Plans, specifications and contract documents have been made available for the purpose of information to sub-contractors and material suppliers at the following location: Kingston Builders Exchange, 83 Clarence Street, Kingston, Ontario.

... Doesn't help

Medical science has exploded the idea that fish is a brain food, although the expression still persists. It started from the discovery that fish contains a great deal of phosphorous, an element found in the tissues of the human brain. However, added phosphorous does not increase brain power.

6TH SIDNEY

6th Sidney.—Sorry to report that Mr. Jack Scott is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

SIGNS CONFESSION

Reading, Pa., March 27 — (AP) — Police announced last night that Paul Baer, 25, a bookkeeper, has signed a confession admitting he took part in the theft of more than $170,000 in cash from a Reading widow last weekend. The statement said $85,258 found Monday in a box behind the store where Baer worked was exactly half of the total taken from the home of Mrs. Helen M. Bidden. Police are searching for an accomplice who Baer said got the remainder of the money.

FOUR COUSINS NAMED

Santa Barbara, Calif., March 27 — (CP) — Four cousins living in Toronto are named in the will of Mrs. Ina Therese Campbell, disposing of a $2,000,000 estate which was filed for probate yesterday. Ethel T. Pellock, Florence H. Taylor and Leila A. Cato are to receive $10,000 each and Arthur P. Taylor, $12,000. Most of the estate is to be divided between the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and the Santa Barbara College of the University of California.

PREMIER SAYS

Noticeably Angry

Noticeably angry, Premier Frost replied: "If the honorable member for St. Andrew wishes to make charges, let him do so and stake his seat on these charges.

"Until someone wants to make such a charge, and stake his seat and reputation on it, this government is not going on a fishing expedition and cast doubts on the administration of justice."

Mr. Frost said the question had been raised in the fall of 1950 by E. B. Jolliffe, then leader of the opposition. The government was willing in the 1951 session to set up a crime committee if any definite charges were made.

There were no charges, but there were innuendos which could be classed as 'slimy insinuations.' That was the reason for the calling of the committee, but its probe revealed nothing to cast doubt on law enforcement in the province.

William Houck (L-Niagara Falls) a member of last year's committee, said the probe had been "torpedoed."

W. J. Grummett (CCF-Cochrane South), only other opposition member who was on the committee, said the investigation was not one-third completed when it was automatically ended with dissolution of the House before the election.

Knew Election Coming Claim

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver suggested that when the government set up the committee it knew an election would be called.

"When the water began to get a little too deep, that coincided with an opportunity to dissolve the House and also the committee."

Attorney-General Porter said he had not known of the impending election until the last week of the committee's hearings.

He said there were no recommendations from the committee, and that little was revealed to require action.

Mr. Grummett said statements made before the end of the committee by Mr. Jolliffe showed the importance of continuing the probe and making a report.

Actions Vindicated

Mr. Porter replied that the government's actions were vindicated by the majority it received in the election.

Mr. Grummett raised again the question of the United Emergency Fund for Britain, brought up last year in the legislature by Mr. Jolliffe who charged that of $593,000 collected by the fund only $1,000 was spent for food for Britain.

Mr. Grummett asked if an investigation by the public trustee had been completed and a report filed.

Mr. Porter said an investigation was begun immediately, but auditors were still at work. They would not complete their audit for two or three months. At that time a report would be filed.

The long-awaited bill providing $40 monthly pensions to needy persons totally and permanently disabled was introduced by Welfare Minister Goodfellow.

The pensions will be paid between the age of 18 and 64, bridging the gap between mothers' allowances payments and old-age pensions.

Mr. Goodfellow said that since the new measure is a "pioneering venture" it would have to be restrictive at first, and might be broadened after experience in administering its terms. It will apply to both physical and mental illness.

A second bill, introduced by Health Minister Phillips, will set up wards in hospitals to take temporary care of persons waiting for admission to mental hospitals. The province will pay grants to hospitals for the cost.

Another bill will require municipalities to pay burial costs of indigent patients who die in public hospitals. The province will pay the cost if the patient is not a resident of the municipality.

CANADIANS MAY

Mr. Sinclair said he felt the abolition of the four percent floor might open the door to demands for further tax concessions. That was something the government must consider, along with the amount of revenue that would be lost.

But he said Mr. Abbott would consider the proposal and the members, when the budget was brought down, would have ample opportunity to "approve or disapprove the changes, if any, which occur. . ."

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West) suggested the exemption be extended to include funeral expenses for relatives.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) suggested there is no reason why drugs and eye-glasses should not be allowed as a deduction.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L-Portneuf) a doctor, said the proposal would help both doctors and patients.

C. J. Henry (L-Toronto Rosedale) and E. T. Applewaite (L-Skeena) also expressed approval.

White's District — The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting at the Quinte View School on Wednesday evening with the members of Sidney council and their wives as guests. Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey presided for the businesss part of the meeting and for the roll call.

Mr. Fred Wilson O.S.D., proved an efficient program chairman and called upon Warden Lee Grills, Deputy-Reeve Harry Morrow and councillors Carman Frost, Byron Harder and Harley Hamilton, for informative addresses. Mr. John Reid and Mr. Albert Jones also spoke.

Mr. Percy Boulton provided a quiz with Mrs. Clayton Stickle as winner. Mr. Glen Meyers entertained with a contest. Mr. Everett Phillips, of Wallbridge, provided three numbers on the harmonica and the guitar, which were much enjoyed.

Films Shown

Mr. Chard of the Film Board, showed three films namely, "Gaspe Peninsula," "Horse Races" and "The Three Little Cubs."

Mrs. Clarence Holmes thanked the councillors, trustees Mr. Phillips and Mr. Chard for assisting in the program and proceeded to entertain with the Cinderella quiz program. Mr. Fred Wilson was the lucky winner of the many jackpot prizes.

The men catered for fine refreshments and all voted men's night a decided success.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker

"Lucy will be home the 15th," Tom told Jessica one evening. Then he added "you will be free to leave then."

Free! How could she be free, she wondered irritably. She wanted so desperately to shake off the burden of anxiety and worry which enveloped this old house. She tried to convince herself that she would be glad—yes, glad when she turned her back forever on Tom Blake and his family.

One afternoon David invited her to for a drive. No reason to refuse. Tom had no interest in what she did. His aloofness hurt her. After all, she had tried so hard to help him during his trouble, struggled to keep the house as his mother kept it, worked valiantly learning to cook, and feeling a surge of pride when Tom occasionally praised her. Not love—no, she and Tom no longer loved each other. They shared a home, which was something different, something which lacked the thrill of that mad ecstacy they had shared before Tom brought her to Akron. Something she would never experience again, once she left Tom.

The thought angered her. When she left she wanted to make a clean cut, having nothing to remind her of Tom.

But there was Betsy, she remembered.

She thought of Betsy now as David remarked that since housing conditions were difficult, they might live in a hotel.

Jessica wanted to say that Betsy would not thrive in a hotel, but there was time enough to discuss that later. Right now she had another plan to which she must win David's consent, a plan that had come to her the night before when she was writing her father, telling him she would soon be home in Kentucky.

David liked to talk about Kentucky. He was always interested in her descriptions of her home and the big plantation which her grandmother owned. Now she introduced the subject and he listened attentively.

Jessica was a bit breathless as she broached her plan. "I want to take Lucy with me to Kentucky."

"Permanently?"

"I don't know—You see — the change will help her," she pleaded.

A glance at his set face told her that David was angry. He looked straight ahead as he skilfully threaded the thick downtown traffic. He said bluntly "that plan is out—definitely out. Do you suppose I want to visit you and confront that girl? Have you considered what Linton will think?"

"Why should I care what Hugh Linton thinks?"

"Because Hugh Linton has the power to dictate my future."

An oppressive silence followed. David turned off the busy street and drove on for blocks. Then suddenly the car entered a park entrance, the same park to which Jessica had taken Betsy one bright autumn afternoon when she was heartsick and lonely.

David stopped the car. The sun slanted, blood red, through the snow-clad trees.

"Do you remember?" he asked softly.

"Yes." Her voice seemed lost in the silence of the woods.

David pulled her roughly toward him and kissed her again and again. There was no warmth in her lips. He gave a startled exclamation.

"I love you darling," he told her.

Many, many times he had said that, and always she had thrilled to his voice. Now she pushed him away.

She said "I don't love you David."

The silence terrified her. It was dusk. The shadows deepened in the woods and she could not see David's face clearly. After a little while he repeated blankly, "you don't love me?"

"No. I'm afraid I never loved you."

David said harshly, "what do I do now? Laugh? Is this some crazy joke? Are you angry because I objected to your scheme to help Blake's sister?"

"That had nothing to do with it," said Jessica sadly.

But his lack of understanding about Lucy, about anything which brought worry or anxiety or discomfort contributed greatly to her realization that she and David possessed nothing upon which to build happiness.

Their love lacked foundation. No love could exist upon anything so flimsy as caresses and soft living, and desire for pleasure.

"I'm sorry," she said.

David said eagerly, "Please darling." And then, as she pulled her hand away when he tried to take it, "you aren't sorry. Let's be truthful now if we never are again. You aren't sorry. You're more or less relieved. Ever since Tom Blake came home you've been different. Do you want to know what I think Jessica? I think you're still in love with your husband."

He stooped and kissed her gently. Then he started the motor. "Don't fret about me, Jessica," he said, "I'll get me another girl."

When David left her at the house he made no move to touch her other than to hold her hand for an instant. Jessica stood on the porch steps in the darkness and watched him drive away, his hand upflung in a salute, a gallant gesture of farewell to her.

She entered the house. Tom came down the stairs to meet her, pulling an envelope from his pocket. "I picked up your reservation," he said matter-of-factly. "I stopped and ordered it the other day. I wanted to be sure there would be no uncertainty about your leaving."

He turned and walked away.

Jessica stood staring after him. She held the envelope in her hand. She wanted to laugh hysterically, to cry. She didn't want David and Tom didn't want her.

Lucy came home on the 15th as planned. Tom changed his shift at the rubber factory so that he could be with her that day. Such a different Lucy, hiding her face from everyone and refusing to speak to Jessica for those first few days, clinging to Tom, never mentioning her mother. Had Tom told her what had happened here?

For days Lucy barely touched her food, refusing the trays Jessica struggled to prepare, closing her eyes and feigning sleep. Moody, morose, difficult. Then, one morning, when Jessica was busy in the kitchen, Betsy stole upstairs and presently Jessica heard voices above.

Lucy! It wasn't possible. But when she raced up to Lucy's room, she found Betsy clambering across the bed.

"Let her stay please." These were the first words Lucy had spoken to her.

Betsy had done what even Tom could not do, brought a faint smile to Lucy's disfigured face, a spark of interest to her lovely eyes. Betsy, who said frankly, "what's wrong with your face?"

Lucy did not cringe or shrink away. She reached out and caught Betsy's chubby fist and held it.

"I got hurt," she said briefly.

"Poor aunt Lucy."

Jessica slipped away. She passed the door of the other room which always stood open now, as neat as when Mrs. Blake bustled about hunting for dust. Even she could not criticize my housekeeping thought Jessica grimly.

It was almost Christmas. Christmas gave Jessica an excuse to delay her preparations for leaving. When Tom suggested that she might have plans to make she said evasively "there's too much to do right here to think of my own plans. Besides there's Christmas."

Whatever happened later, she wanted Betsy to have a real Christmas with all the trimmings.

Three nights before the holiday Tom brought home a tree. "It's on the back porch," he told Jessica. "Come out and see it."

He held her arm as they tiptoed through the door, and closed it behind them.

"Like it?" he asked eagerly.

The tree was beautiful.

Tom said "I'll make a stand in the basement and we can bring it in on Christmas eve."

They were conspirators planning for Betsy.

Jessica took a deep breath of the spicy fragrance of the tree. "Betsy will love it." Her voice almost betrayed her. She wanted to turn and fling herself into Tom's arms and beg him not to make her go away. The very touch of his hand made her heart sing. She wanted to stay here alone with Tom, on the narrow porch with the snow stretching white and unbroken across the garden.

It was Tom who broke the spell. "Well, is supper ready?"

They went back into the kitchen. Tom carried a tray upstairs while Jessica set the table. The everyday routine: supper, putting Betsy to bed, listening for any sound in Mrs. Blake's room, thinking again of the consequences to this household should there be any radical change in her condition.

Tom's voice from the doorway startled her. "Jess!"

She turned quickly.

Tom said "there's something wrong with Mom."

Jessica heard him talk over the telephone in the hall. A minute later he went upstairs. He came down again and stood beside her. She wanted to put her arms about him and tell him not to worry, whatever happened she was here and would be here as long as he wanted her. Then the thought that he did not want her chilled her, made her brusque and impatient as she continued to set the table.

Suddenly Tom brushed by her and paused at the foot of the hall stairs. "Listen," he said sharply. "Do you hear anything Jess?"

He raced up the stairway, taking the steps two at a time.

There was a sound! Jessica ran through the hall and flung the outer door wide open to listen. She stood with the cold air chilling her to the bone, the winter wind blowing her hair about her frightened face.

She heard the sound clearly now. A high, piercing wail which split the quiet of the evening, made her blood run cold as it rose shrill and sharp, and brought back the terror of another night. She closed the door against it, but too late, for from the hall above she heard a cry, and then another.

Lucy! She had forgotten what this sound must mean to Lucy.

Jessica was halfway up the stairs when Tom emerged from his mother's room, his face ghastly. He whirled and went toward Lucy's room.

Would she never reach the top of that steep flight of stairs, thought Jessica wildly her feet like lead, her heartbeats choking her? She caught one glimpse of Lucy's anguished face, a face the color of wax, thin hands stretched out blindly before her, gray-blue eyes wild and terrified. She heard Lucy's bitter cry as Tom reached her.

"Tom — I killed her. I killed mother!"

Tom was lifting Lucy in his arms. "Call the doctor," he said to Jessica.

"Your mother?"

He shook his head. She read in his eyes what he could not put into words. Mrs. Blake was dead.

A few moments later, as she stood in the hall below, Jessica heard again, faintly, the persistent wail of the siren. An ominious, terrifying sound—ill-omened.

Had that sound been responsible for a moment of consciousness in which Mrs. Blake relieved the horror of that tragic night in November?

Another thought followed as Jessica put back the receiver after calling the doctor. Tom and Lucy could manage without her now. Jessica had never known death. Her mother had died when she was too young to remember. Now Genevieve Miles and her mother arrived to take charge of the house and to treat her as though she were an interloper. To Jessica's surprise, Lucy seemed shocked out of her trance which had kept her hidden behind her own door. She seemed indifferent to the curious glances of her former friends. She was thin and pale but strong enough to do various simple tasks and appeared eager to be helpful.

The days following the funeral Lucy took an interest in everything about the house. She told Jessica that there was a small amount of insurance and that she and Tom had made some plans regarding the money. She would do typing at home as soon as she was stronger. Tom wanted to take a course in drafting at the night class offered by the university. He was ambitious to become something more than a plodding laborer. Lucy told this innocently, with no thought that Jessica might resent the confidence Tom gave his sister.

Then, the day before Christmas, Tom said to her, "Lucy says she can take care of the house, now Jess."

"You mean—"

"You may feel free to go whenever you wish." He turned on his heel and left her.

That evening Tom brought in the Christmas tree and they trimmed it. Lucy had strung popcorn and cranberries. There was the usual anxiety about whether the lights would work, and when they did, they sat together in the dark and regarded the little tree with pride. How delighted Betsy would be when she saw it! How happy this evening, anticipating the morning—Christmas.

The clock struck 12. Tom said "golly it's Christmas already."

Jessica's heart was so light it threatened to fly away, until she remembered—a few days and she would leave Tom.

She rose hastily and said "I'm tired. I'm going to bed." She rushed past Tom and up the stairs and into her own room. With the door closed she drew a deep breath. Did Tom suspect her impulse to fling herself into his arms and beg him to let her stay, on his own terms?

She did not hear the door open. She started as Tom spoke her name. She sat up in bed. She saw Tom's tall figure dark against the thicker darkness in the hall.

"I want to talk to you," he said.

He was silent a moment as he sat down beside her. Then he said "I planned to let you go away without telling you this. Tonight—" He brushed his hand across his eyes and was silent for another moment.

Did he think of the happiness they had shared as they worked together for Betsy's pleasure?

He went on, "tonight I decided I must tell you. I was a selfish guy when I married you. I wanted you, Jess, wanted you so desperately that I refused to face the fact that I could never make you happy. I know that I was wrong and I know the motive which prompted you to marry me, Jess. I understand exactly why you did."

"You know?" She kept her voice steady with an effort.

He nodded. "You pitied me."

"Pitied you?"

"You have a tender heart. I've watched you since I came back. In spite of your desire to go away you've stayed, helping me, helping Lucy."

"I feel responsible for what happened to Lucy."

"Why should you?"

"Because I influenced her to change. Because I set her a bad example when I treated my own marriage vows so lightly."

"You don't need to tell me about that," said Tom roughly.

"I want to tell you! Please, Tom listen this once."

"I thought I was in love with another man. I thought myself cheated because I had to endure a few petty hardships here which I never knew at home. I was selfish, opinionated. The man I met flattered me and made me think I was abused. He told me that nobody loved forever and so I should feel no guilt when I ceased to love the man I had married. I was unhappy and lonely. I listened."

Tom rose. He crossed the room and stood beside Betsy's crib for a moment. Then he came back and stood beside the bed. He said in a low impersonal tone, "I think I know what you're trying to say, Jess—that you've felt a strong obligation to stay here with me. You've stayed because you felt it your duty to stay."

"You think—" Her voice broke. "I don't want your pity."

She gave a little cry and slipped out of bed and stood beside him. "Is that what you really believe, Tom—that I pity you?"

"What else?" he asked, and made no move toward her.

"This," she said brokenly. "I went away with you that June night because I loved you—Wait, I want to tell you—try to make you understand. I want everything clear between us, now and always. I never loved David Gregory. I never loved any man but the man I married—you, Tom."

He caught her hands and drew her to him. He said, "Jess, my home will be an empty place without you. You must know that. But I have so little to offer. I didn't come here to beg."

"To beg?" Jessica laughed softly. She felt Tom's arms tighten about here. She lifted her face. She said "you don't have to beg for what belongs to you. Do you, Tom?"

Expelled Official States He Was 'Liquidated' On Trumped-Up Charges

Ottawa, March 28. (CP)—James E. McGuire, expelled secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.), let fly today with a series of charges against A. R. Mosher, president of the C.B.R.E. and Canadian Congress of Labor.

Mr. McGuire, whose long feud with his president resulted in eviction from the C.B.R.E. this week, accused the veteran president of "treacherous action" against his membership in wage negotiations and, among other things, of:

"Lazy and ineffectual administration, wasteful and unwarranted use of funds, singular lack of any form of constructive leadership, collaboration with a clique to pay themselves substantial salary increases up to $90 per month without the knowledge of the membership. . ."

Declaring he was "liquidated" by the president and a group of yes-men on "trumped-up" charges, Mr. McGuire said in a 2,500-word statement he plans to place 16 charges against Mr. Mosher before the union's membership.

Issues Challenge

The former officer, also was pushed off the C.C.L.'s executive committee after the C.B.R.E. executive board expelled him on insubordination charges, challenged Mr. Mosher to debate the charges and counter-charges before a mass meeting of railwaymen in Toronto.

His accusations against the 71-year-old Labor chief included:

1. Attempting to "smear" the International Railway Labor unions while the C.B.R.E. was collaborating with them in wage negotiations just before the 1950 general rail strike.

2. Approaching Donald Gordon, Canadian National Railways president, during the negotiations and proposing a settlement for a 44-hour work week without a general wage increase. (The unions subsequently got a 40-hour week and a general increase.)

3. Attempting also to "sell the workers down the river" in the three Montreal tramways strikes of recent years and in the 1948 general rail-wage negotiations.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 28 (CP) —Synopsis: Although temperatures have been anything but spring like for the past few days, this morning's weather charts give promise of warmer weather in the near future. A few clouds will persist throughout the province today, but enough sunshine will occur to send the thermometer up to the 45 degree mark in southern regions and to near 40 in northern sections. This warming trend is expected to continue through Saturday and Sunday.

Former Member Municipal Bd. Dies in Toronto

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — W. P. Near, 73, senior vice-chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board for 14 years prior to his retirement last June, died today.

He was well-known in motor transport circles. He presided at many hearings for application for public vehicle and public commercial vehicles.

Born at St. Marys, he was graduated from the University of Toronto about 1905 and joined the engineering department of the city of Toronto. Later he became city engineer of St. Catharines and still later as city engineer of London.

In 1934 he became a member of the staff of the Ontario Department of Highways. He was appointed a member of the Ontario Municipal Board in 1937.

He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

ADMITS SETTING FIRE

CONSERVATIVES WARN AGAINST ANY SECRET DEAL

Do Not Want Formosa Handed Over to Reds

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP)—The Canadian government was warned in the Commons last night against entering any "secret under-the-table deal" to hand over the island of Formosa to the Chinese reds when the Korean War ends.

The warning came from George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, with the suggestion that such an arrangement would be no better than the Munich "appeasement" policy which delivered the German Sudetenland into Hitler's hands.

Mr. Drew spoke in a protracted foreign-affairs debate in which he also served notice that his party will oppose a C.C.F. motion of non-confidence in the government on handling of economic aid under the North Atlantic Treaty.

He suggested the C. C. F. motion could be interpreted outside Canada as meaning the Commons is not fully behind a policy of collective action to maintain peace by strengthening the defences of the treaty nations.

On the Formosa question, Mr. Drew said he felt External Affairs Minister Pearson earlier in the debate had "implied" that the government might be considered an arrangement to give Formosa to the red Chinese government.

He drew that impression from Mr. Pearson's statement that no consideration should be given to the possibility of handing over Formosa to the communist mainland government "while it is continuing aggression in Asia."

No Secret Agreement

If the government adopted such a policy, it would be dealing with the millions of people living on Formosa as though they were "pawns in the game of diplomacy, with the cards being dealt under the table." Canada wanted "no secret arrangements" with regard to any country.

While Mr. Drew declared that his suggestion had nothing to do with support of Chiang Kai-Shek, one of his party members—W. J. Brown (St. John's West)—defended the Nationalist leader against criticism expressed of his regime earlier in the debate.

Mr. Brown said Chiang had been a "loyal ally" and it is "a disgrace for us, not only to have deserted him in his hour of need, but to malign him at the present time."

Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said he is not convinced that red China is a satellite of Russia. However, the west must reach a peaceful settlement with China or face the risk of forcing her into the Soviet camp.

Rodney Adamson (PC—York West), who visited Germany last year, urged the government to press for a full partnership for Germany in the Atlantic pact.

"If we have to fight," he suggested, "we had better have people on our side who know how to fight."

He also expressed hope Canada soon will appoint a minister to Austria, another nation acting opposing the communists.

Former Toronto Girl Lives Eskimo Style on Trip, Enjoys Arctic Life

Ottawa, — (CP) — Many of civilization's so-called necessities aren't really necessary. That's the word from a 30-year-old housewife who spent 15 months in the Arctic.

Dark – haired Vivian Wilkinson formed the cook-business manager end of a trio that travelled the Arctic to take pictures of Eskimos for the National Film Board. Companions were her 32-year-old husband, Douglas, and Jean Roy, 23, of Montreal, cameraman.

The former Vivian Jean Latremouille of Toronto says she is one of the few white women to live, act, talk and think like an Eskimo.

The trio joined an Eskimo camp headed by Idlouk and composed of four families. The women of the camp tought Mrs. Wilkinson to cook "iwnut" — Eskimo style. Idlouk, father of eight children, disclosed the secrets of seal hunting and camp lore.

Scenes shot in the igloo included the birth of a baby boy early in the spring. He was called Alak.

From Chesterfield they went to Pond Inlet, on the north shore of Baffin Land, with Idlouk. It was on this trip that Mrs. Wilkinson lived Eskimo-style.

"I really got to know the Eskimo and was astounded by their intelligence, warmth and terrific sense of humor," she said.

"Dressed in two layers of clothing, one outfit with the fur inside and the other with the fur facing outward, we were as warm as toast. Our faces got cold, but a frozen nose is nothing in the Arctic."

The expedition started at Chesterfield Inlet, an R.C.M.P. post a few hundred miles south of the Arctic Circle on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

At the end of the trip the team had shot more than 30,000 feet of sound and silent film. The film is being divided into two 30-minute shorts. Tentative titles are "Eskimo Hunter" and "The Life of an Eskimo."

Brief Asks Govt. to Place Floor Price on Prime Beef; Higher Wheat Price Sought

(By The Canadian Press)

A floor price for beef if the provinces drop restrictions on movement of livestock shaped up Friday as the key matter for discussion at a federal-provincial agricultural conference in Ottawa next week.

The livestock embargoes, imposed as a precautionary measure against foot-and-mouth disease, remained the chief subject of dispute between Alberta and British Columbia. The west coast province bans southern Alberta livestock and meats.

However, federal officials indicated in Ottawa Thursday that the government will place a plan to support beef prices before the provincial agriculture ministers in Ottawa April 2. The plan is understood to be conditional on the provinces relaxing their livestock embargoes.

The matter of beef price support was brought to the attention of Agriculture Minister Gardiner Friday. A brief prepared Thursday by the prairie farmers' unions asked for an immediate floor of 28 1-2 cents a pound on top grade beef with proportionate prices for other grades.

There were indications the government might use the agriculture products board to buy surplus meat which could be disposed of to some country at a reduced price.

J. L. Phelps of Saskatoon, leader of the unions' delegation also reported Thursday that Trade Minister Howe agreed to seek higher prices for Canadian wheat.

The union asked a ceiling of $2.35 a bushel, plus carrying charges, and a floor of $1.80 a bushel when a new international wheat agreement is negotiated. Present price is $1.80, basis No. 1 Northern at the lakehead, with a floor price of $1.30 and $1.20 for the next crop year beginning Aug. 1.

The union also suggested that the domestic price be different from that of the international wheat agreement but Mr. Phelps said Mr. Howe would rather see the one-price policy maintained. The union suggested $2.15 a bushel as the domestic price instead of the present $1.80, the same as the international wheat agreement.

Among the requests put to Mr. Gardiner Friday, was one for regulated marketing to prevent flooding with meats and livestock. The federal government also was urged to use its constitutional powers to break interprovincial meat and livestock embargoes if an appeal to the provinces failed.

Meanwhile, in Victoria, B.C., Agriculture Minister Bowman of B.C. said his province's embargo on southern Alberta meat and livestock will remain in effect until after the conference in Ottawa April 2-3.

He said a meeting of cattle and dairy men Thursday supported the government's refusal to take any action on Alberta's request for a lowering of the ban. He did not say what steps might be taken after the Ottawa conference.

Three Kinds Guided Missiles Coming Off Assembly Lines

Washington, March 28 (AP) — The United States Navy is ready to operate for the first time three kinds of guided missiles that already are coming off production assembly lines.

Disclosure that the missiles will be in service with the fleet in a matter of months was made in testimony on the $52,000,000,000 defence budget made public today by the House of Representatives Appropriations committee.

The published testimony of Navy Secretary Dan Kimball, Admiral William M. Fechteler, chief of naval operations, and other officers contains many "off-the-record" blank spaces. But these statements and disclosures emerged from the printed text:

By next year the navy will have seven different airplanes "superior" to the Russian MIG-15 jet fighter. All but two of these planes now are flying, principally in the testing stage, and some are in production for the fleet.

The navy has not requested and does not want operating bases in Spain. It is self-sustaining in the Mediterranean area, but could use some ammunition and fuel storage dumps in Spain and anchorage rights in Spanish harbors.

Navy Ready in 12 Months

Fechteler's predecessor as chief of naval operations, the late Admiral Forrest P. Sherman personally initiated the conversations with Spain that now are being ne-

300 Suspects Arrested in Cairo

Cairo, March 28. (Reuters) — Police here last night arrested 300 suspects in connection with the "black Saturday" riots Jan. 26

Most of them belong to the Socialist party while the rest are members of the Moslem Brotherhood.

More than 100 Egyptians have already been sent to jail because of the riots in which about 30 people were killed and hundreds of buildings damaged or looted. About 300 more persons are awaiting trial.

Ahmed Hussein, Socialist party leader, is serving 18 months on a charge arising from the riots. Ibrahim Shukry, deputy leader of the party, has also been arrested.

Socialist party officials have decided the organization will not take part in general elections May 18 unless the leaders are released.

ARTISTS TO EXHIBIT

Hespler, March 28. (CP)—This district five miles north of Galt has enough artists to put on a local exhibition. Some fifty paintings done by local artists will be on display April 3 and 4 along with wood carvings done by two new Canadian residents from Latvia.

ONTARIO GOVT. STANDING PAT ON EDUCATION POLICY

Will Adopt No Change That Will Divide People

Toronto, March 28. (CP)—The Ontario government is standing pat on its education policy.

Both Premier Frost and Education Minister Dunlop re-stated in the legislature last night the government's policy on the controversial Hope report on education.

Mr. Frost said the policy is unchanged from his statement of a year ago—that the government will adopt no policy that would divide the people. He added that greater advances are being made in education than anywhere else in North America and the government is not bound by any recommendation of the Hope report.

Neither speaker referred to the report's most controversial recommendation, dealing with separate schools.

The Education Minister said, however, there were some recommendations in the report that were perhaps more controversial than we care to deal with at the present time."

"We have never sidestepped the question of the Hope report," the Premier said. He had voiced his policy on it during the election campaign "and it was accepted by the people."

In the three-hour night sitting, the House passed estimates for the Departments of Health and Education totalling $113,791,000—nearly half the total amount to be voted this session.

Prime Minister Rejects Request For New Pensions

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) Improvements in social welfare will continue in Canada regardless of what party comes to power in future, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Canadian Congress of Labor yesterday.

The prime minister rejected a request however, for higher old age pensions at a lower age. While that is desirable, he said, Canada cannot afford it in this period of high defence spending.

The prime minister was addressing a big delegation from the 360,000-member Congress making its annual legislative submission to the government. The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada presented its brief Wednesday.

As in his reply to the T. L. C., Mr. St. Laurent was generally non-committal on the wide series of requests for government measures made by the C.C.L.

He did, though, reject a call for reimposition of direct price controls and subsidies as a means to hold down living costs.

Mr. St. Laurent said the cabinet does not believe in price controls at this time and cannot do what it does not believe in.

COMMANDER CHOSEN

Washington, March 28 — (AP) — The army yesterday chose Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, now deputy high commissioner for Germany, to be commander of U. S. forces in Austria. He will succeed Lt.-Gen. Stafford Leroy Irwin, whose health will require extended treatment.

Savage Rioting Erupts in Tehran, Five Killed

Communists Stage Parade To Support Red Charges

Tehran, Iran, March 28. (AP)—Bloody rioting erupted in Tehran today following a meeting sponsored by communists to support Russian charges that the United States is using germ warfare in Korea. At least five persons, including a girl and two policemen were reported killed. One unconfirmed rumor said there were about 20 dead.

The number of injured was estimated at 200 communist youths, including several young girls, and 23 police.

A communist source disagreed with these police figures, however and said five to eight members of the young communist group had lost their lives. Most of the injured were treated and released. About 25 remained in hospital, including one policeman with gunshot wounds.

The violent 15-minute battle erupted when a small group of bitterly anti-communist Pan-Iranians jeered at 3,000 to 5,000 parading members of the organization for democratic youth, a front group of the outlawed, communist-backed Tudeh party.

Police Intervene

Police intervened, bloodying the heads of many of the communist group. This group had met earlier, with police permission, in Fawzieh Square to support Russia's germ warfare charges. Then, shouting "down with America" and praising Stalin, they began parading back toward the centre of the city. The police had given no approval for a parade and called out reinforcements.

After the clash, police took truckloads of the wounded away to hospitals.

Most of the fighting was with sticks, fists and stones, but police started firing into the air to bring the rioters under control. Assistant police chief Gen. Danesh Pour said the communist-led group started firing at police first.

Seaman Makes Dramatic Escape From Red Poland

Stockholm, Sweden, March 28 — (Reuters) — A 30-year-old seaman escaping from communist Poland locked up two shipmates at pistol-point, forced the third to run the engine, and himself steered a fishing boat to a south Swedish port by following a Swedish trawler.

Police, revealing the story today, said the fishing boats both put in at Simrishamn last night, where the man asked for asylum as a political refugee.

The refugee said he seized the trawler shortly after leaving Polish shores. From Simrishamn to the nearest point on Poland's coast is about 100 miles.

Authorities opened the craft's forecastle and the two imprisoned crew members stumbled out exhausted.

London's Nightclub Owners Offer Drinks on House to Drum up Trade

London (AP) —Times are so tough for London's nightclubs that even the best of them often round up friends by telephone to fill in the great open spaces and drink on the house.

"There just isn't the money about" is the first reason any club owner will give.

The latest blow to fall on the night clubs has come from the government, which has told the treasury to tighten up on business men's entertainment allowances. Luncheon allowances still seem to be okay, but nocturnal jaunts now are out.

The law hits the clubs in two other ways. Even though they are "private," the clubs must stop serving drinks at 2 [illegible] them off the tables by 2.30. This is clearly discouraging [illegible] dawn reveller, who in the old bottle party days was still putting them away at sunup.

Another law has pushed up staff wages through the catering industry. It is designed to protect employees against various unfair practices and fixes steeply ascending rates for late night work. A general estimate is that wage bills are five times pre-war.

The basic problem of all clubs is how to keep going during the lean months, with overheads just as high as in the summer, when the tourist trade saves the day.

The owners are trying to combat the tightward trend by cutting prices. The lead was taken by the fashionable Churchill's Club, which charges one guinea ($3) annually for membership. People now can drop into Churchill's and from the bar and a few tables up at the end of the room see the floor show without paying any charge above the cost of drinks (about five shillings for a large whisky.)

Armed Robbery Laid Against Norman Boyd

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—Norman Boyd, 31, brother of Edwin Alonzo Boyd, suspected bank robber, has been charged with armed robbery last November of a branch of the Bank of Toronto.

The bank was held up shortly after Edwin Boyd, Leonard Jackson and William Jackson (no kin) escaped from Don jail.

Edwin Boyd faces 12 charges of bank robbery. Norman Boyd, a former employee of the city roads department, also has been charged with harboring his brother who was captured by police March 15 in a North Toronto apartment.

Meanwhile bail of $2,000 has been set for Edwin's wife, Doreen held on a charge of conspiring to commit robbery.

Searchers Follow Latest Clue To Missing Plane

Dalhousie, N.B., March 28 — (CP)—Searchers left this northern New Brunswick town early today to follow up the latest clue to the disappearance of an airplane and its five passengers Saturday.

Three children reported yesterday having found a "big silver plane with red wings" in a gully about five miles south of Dalhousie. A search was begun without results before darkness forced postponement.

The children, two boys and a girl, all about 10 years old, said "four or five men" were in the plane, seated with their heads "thrown back." One boy said the men seemed to have something over their faces."

Authorities were at first skeptical but finally concluded the children couldn't have "dreamed up anything so detailed."

The Maritime Central Airways twin-engined Dakota disappeared on a chartered flight from Saint John, N.B., to Goose Bay, Labrador. It was last seen on a radar screen passing Chatham, N.B.

Freezing rain, snow and poor visibility have hampered an air search from a half-dozen bases in the Atlantic provinces, and conditions remained dull today.

Wing Cmdr. P. S. Turner of the R.C.A.F. station at Chatham said it was possible the missing craft could be in the Dalhousie area if it had encountered trouble or bad weather and turned back.

COUNTIES STAGING "FOX-KILLING" RACE

The counties of Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington are apparently staging a "fox-killing" race. Prince Edward claimed it paid bounties on 223 of the animals while Lennox and Addington officials reported their "kill" was 225. Efforts are being made to have the provincial government subsidies the subsidize the counties for fox bounties.

GLENORA FERRY STARTS OPERATIONS

The Glenora ferry started its yearly run on Wednesday of this week. The first trips will be on a non-schedule basis. For the time being the ferry will operate in daylight only.

DISTRICT TEACHERS GIVEN POSITIONS

The Misses Eleanor Wells, Stirling and Helen Stinson, Campbellford students at Peterborough Normal School have been accepted as members of the staff of a Kingston public school. They begin their new duties on September 2nd next.

COBOURG SKI-CLUB IN FULL SWING DESPITE WEATHER

Ski-ing enthusiasts will welcome this piece of news. A report from Cobourg states the Northumberland Forest Ski Club is still in full swing despite recent balmy weather. Last weekend the runs were covered with 20 inches of snow, although it is doubtful if that much exists at present.

21ST BATTALION CLUB TO ATTEND SERVICE

The 21st Battalion Club discussed plans for its annual Vimy Memorial service at a recent meeting. The service will be held on Sunday April 6. Plans for the association's annual reunion were also discussed. It will be held in Kingston in September. The Vimy memorial service will be held at the Royal Military College, Kingston. A number of 21st veterans at this city will attend.

RUBBISH FIRE SOON EXTINGUISHED

Firemen were called to Ted's Restaurant early yesterday afternoon to extinguish a rubbish fire at the rear of the premises. No damage of any kind was reported and the blaze was quickly put out.

SHANNONVILLE MAN SUFFERS BROKEN LEG

Ray Cook, Shannonville, suffered a broken leg and scalp lacerations when the car in which he was riding went off the road and into the ditch on the 2nd concession of Thurlow township east of the coal chutes. Another man in the car, George McKillop, also of Shannonville, escaped injury.

Cook was reported to have said the accident was caused when the lights of the car suddenly went out.

BERT FARRAR DONATES TV SET TO KINSMEN CLUB

Bert Farrar, member of the Kinsmen's Club, has donated to the organization a beautiful TV set, which will be drawn for at the social evening being held by the club at the armories tonight. This set is now on display in the window of the Farrar Furniture Company on Bridge Street East. There will be a number of special prizes drawn for during the evening and a large crowd is anticipated.

Large Attendance At Meeting Fish And Game Club

The presentation of the Judge Anderson Cup to J. Cairns of Stirling, for the best fish caught in this district during the past year, four delightful films on wildlife and a report on the recent Federation meeting in Toronto by secretary Joe Shortt, comprised the business of the district Fish and Game Club held at the Orange Hall on Thursday night. The largest attendance in some years was on hand, when President Bruce Smith called the meeting to order.

With regard to the fishing prizes this year, it was announced that only those in good standing at the time of catching the fish will be eligible for the prizes offered. In other years, the winner, if not already a member, was allowed to purchase a membership card but this has been changed by the new rule. It was also announced that a special prize for anglers 16 and under would be opened this year. The committee requested that more members register their fish as it was believed better fish were caught during the season than were registered.

Reviews Meeting

Secretary Joe Shortt gave a comprehensive review of the recent meeting in Toronto, the most important item discussed being the motion forcing those who shoot moose to bring out the carcass as well as the head. Pollution of fishing streams was also thoroughly discussed, said the secretary and the government promised concerted action on this issue. The speaker explained that $5,000 was given annually by the Sportsmen's Show to the Federation to help run the organization but it was feared that some year the show may not be able to contribute that amount and therefore it was suggested that all game clubs contribute an extra 50 cents on their membership to help pay Federation expenses.

A period of discussion followed and the question was asked "if a stream or lake is stocked by the government can anyone fish that lake? The game overseer stated that everyone had a right to fish the stream but again it was asked if trespassing rights did not come into the question.

Should Request Right

It was the consensus of the meeting that everyone should request the right to cross property before entering the stream and that if the stream is entered by water, trespassing signs do not apply. It was agreed that trespassing is always illegal and that anglers should be courteous and request trespass over any property. The game warden gave as his opinion that some trespass signs that were erected had little value. A series of draws was held and valuable prizes awarded. Ald. Claude Tice and William Adams were chosen to provide the program for the next meeting before trout season opening.

POLICE COURT

Two attempted break-ins were reported in the city last night, one at Reid's Dairy on Parker Street, and the other at the York Trading Company.

Police reported that nothing was taken in either place of business and it was believed that the intruders may have been scared away before they had a chance to search the premises.

Obituary

LATE MOSES REDMOND DOYLE

A large number, including many merchants on Front Street, attended the funeral of Moses Redmond Doyle, held at St. Michael's Church this Friday morning. Solemn High Requiem Mass was celebrated by Very Rev. L. B. Garvin assisted by Rev. J. J. Buckley as Deacon and Rev. L. Duburry as sub-deacon. Present in the sanctuary were Rev. I. Donoghue, Parish Priest of Marysville and Rev. B. Farley, O.F.M., Conv of Winona, Ontario. Rev. J. J. Buckley conducted the last rites at St. James cemetery. A large number of floral and spiritual offerings testified to the esteem of the deceased.

The honorary bearers were C. L. Jewell, Jamieson Bone, W. H. Morton, J. V. C. Trualsch, A. B. Collins and Harry O'Neill. The active bearers were Frank Miller, Hugh Galway, Frank Deacon, Thomas Flurey, T. V. Scanlon and Jack Hawley.

The late Mr. Doyle took an active interest in parish activities, being a member of the Altar Society and the Holy Name Society. In the Knights of Columbus he was most active when health permitted and was a charter member of the local council.

JAMES ANSON RICHMOND

The funeral of James Anson Richmond took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, who also conducted the committal rites in Belleville cemetery. On Wednesday evening the Legionnaires of the Loyal Order of Moose held a service at the funeral home with Governor W. T. Thompson and chaplain George Bird in charge.

The bearers were all Legionnaires of the Moose Lodge and were William Thompson, George Bird, Joseph Roth, Albert Burtt, William Clare and John McCullough.

LATE SANDFORD NORMAN VANDERVOORT

The funeral of Sandford Norman Vandervoort was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. Rev. Walter Merrick conducted the service and the last rites at White's cemetery, Trent Road.

The bearers were Percy Meyers, Harry Hess, William Linn, Samuel Reid, Norman Weese and Blake Bedell.

LATE CHARLES GRASS

The funeral of Charles Grass was held from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon. Rev. R. A. Rowley of Tabernacle United Church conducted the service and also the committal rites at Belleville cemetery. The funeral was largely attended.

The honorary bearers were William Leslie, A. P. Allen, Frank Domenico, James Garbutt and Wesley Gray, while the bearers were Fred Gray, William Moorman, Elmer Sandercock, Francis Purdy, Erle Denyes and Robert Bell.

LATE W. J. CRONKRIGHT

Marmora—The funeral of W. J. (Jack) Cronkright took place on Thursday afternoon leaving his late residence west of Crowe River for St. Paul's Anglican Church where service was conducted by Canon J. M. Brownlie in the presence of a large congregation. Entombment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. The pall bearers were Ernest Cronkright, Frank Cronkright, Wilbert Moffatt, Stanley Kerr, Carl Boyd and Archie Wickens.

CHARLES EDWARD BEYETTE
(Deseronto)

The funeral of Charles Edward Beyette, College Street, Deseronto, was held on Thursday, March 27th, from his residence to St. Vincent de Paul Church with Requiem Mass being said at 10.00 a.m. by Rev. G. T. Martin.

A lifelong resident of this vicinity, Mr. Beyette died at home on Monday, March 24th, following a short illness. He was the son of Pascal Beyette and the former Mary Therrien.

In his 72nd year, Mr. Beyette had been employed at a stationary engineer at Metcalfe's Cannery, Deseronto, was a member of the Holy Name Society and of St. Vincent de Paul Church.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Delvina Laverture, are four daughters, Mrs. Raymond (Delvina) Joyce of Napanee, Mrs. John (Helena) Edwards of Deseronto, Mrs. Don (Clara) MacNamara of Deseronto, Mrs. Richard (Bernice) Harris of Kingston, and one son, Pascal of Deseronto. One daughter, Mrs. Earl (Anna) Alkenbrack, predeceased him.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. George Lesperance of Trenton, Mrs. Tom Johnson of Oshawa, and Mrs. Fred Rupert of Belleville.

Bearers included Eugene Gibson, William Gaulin, Fred Powley, Ambrose Gartland, Albert Cronk and Edward Roach.

Interment was in St. Vincent de Paul Cemetery, Deseronto.

MRS. IVA JOYCE
(Weston)

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Iva Joyce, 75 Church Street, Weston, Ontario, were held Thursday from the Gardner and White Funeral Home, Deseronto, with Rev. T. F. Townsend officiating.

Mrs. Joyce, born in Deseronto, had been a resident of Toronto and district for the past 25 years and died at her residence following a lengthy illness. She was a homemaker and a member of the United Church. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Edward Lyman, her husband, Donald Joyce, but was predeceased by her father.

Other survivors include one daughter, Donna Joyce, two brothers, Omer Lyman of Deseronto, William Lyman of Bancroft, two sisters, Mrs. Robert (Thelma) Sager of Mimico, and Mrs. Percy (Lillian) Akey of Yarker, Ontario.

Bearers included Ross and Gordon Joyce, Bill Thompson, Fletcher Vick, George Jackson and Tom Tinney.

Interment was in Bethany Cemetery, North Fredericksburg, Ontario.

WILLIAM AUSTIN SAYLOR
(Brooklyn, N.Y.)

William Austin Saylor a former resident of Stirling, Ontario, passed away on March 28th after a long illness. His late residence was 256 Prospect Ave., Brooklyn, New York City. Relatives and friends please take notice.

Fisher, Wild Cat Seen by Muskrat Trappers in North

While muskrat trapping will not really get under way for a week or so due to too much ice in the streams and marshes, trappers and conservation officers patrolling trap lines are making some interesting discoveries.

One trapper reports seeing a fisher, the second of its kind noted in the area, in the Coe Hill district. A fisher is a fur-bearing animal of the weasel family usually three feet in length with a dark brown fur.

Don Malcolm, farmer residing near Denbigh reported to conservation officers that he has seen a wildcat on Highway 41. The animal would weigh nearly 40 pounds, Malcolm said. The description closely tallied with that of a wildcat seen near Brule Lake in 1948.

Theatre Manager Says Film Series Will be Continued

Assurance was given last evening by Mr. T. Mascaro, manager of the Capitol Theatre, that the "Curtain at 8.30" series of pictures would be continued by his theatre. In a brief talk before the program started Mr. Mascaro expressed his appreciation to the public for support given to the new venture. He also gave an outline of the new spring series which will begin on April 23 with the fine presentation "The Tales of Hoffman" followed by nine other pictures of outstanding merit.

On behalf of Mayor McLean Haig, Alderman Thomas extended the thanks of the public to Mr. Mascaro for giving the citizens of Belleville an opportunity of viewing pictures which were formerly shown only in large metropolitan cities. He stated the theatre management deserved much credit for initiative in bringing such films to the city and extended best wishes for the continued success of the weekly program.

Businessmen Advised to Take More Interest in Welfare of- Country

An appeal to the businessmen to drop their apathy and take an interest in the welfare of their country outside of their own business was made by Malcolm Robb in addressing the Bridge Street United Church Men's Club, on Thursday evening.

Mr. Robb listed the problems which faced Canada, and then proceeded to show how the handling or mishandling of one affected Canadians in other problems. The four problems, all of which have been topics of addresses in the past by the speaker, were communism, tariffs, inflation and labor relations.

In touching on communism, Mr. Robb said that Russia is the declared enemy of Canada and even now is using a systematic method to control lands, both in Europe and in Asia.

Pointing to the recent closing of British markets against Canadian goods, including, of special significance to Belleville and Hastings County, the loss of these markets for cheese and bacon, the speaker pointed out that the general public will now be asked to pay subsidies to farmers because the farmers have lost access to their natural markets—the markets to which they were entitled to look.

Reached Position of 30's Claim

"We have now once again reached the absurd position very similar to that in the 30's, where in Canada we have a glut of bacon and cheese, whereas in England our cheese is not being bought, and bacon is being eaten at the rate of four ounces a-week. although 45,000,000 people are anxious to consume our goods, and give us their goods in return," said Mr. Robb.

The speaker pointed out that the cause of this situation was the tariffs created by this country. "These tariffs," he said, "are not the result of policy, but of the activities of pressure groups protecting their own unnatural industries, combined with the non-activity of the businessmen citizens of this country whose duty it is to halt the activities of such pressure groups."

He pointed out that an import in some sense is bound to hurt someone—but that Canada must import even if it hurts, because the only way Canadians can sell a dollar's worth of goods of their natural high-pay, non-tariff protected industries is to buy a dollar's worth of the goods of would-be customers.

Must Make Sound Policy

The speaker pointed out that "once again we have the problems of Japan and Germany and other countries which must trade to survive." "One of the causes of the previous war was the non-access to markets of these countries," he said. "Now we must face and make a sound policy on the problems of Japan and Germany and decide whether we are going to trade with them or have them fall to the communists. Thus, our tariff policy greatly affects our defence, and our chances of survival against enemy number one."

The speaker then dealt with inflation and showed how that, too, affected our chances of survival against communism. Low per capita production in industry, combined with the large introduction of cash sums by government had contributed greatly towards inflation. With the passing of each year, under such circumstances, the chances of defence against the enemy, without going bankrupt, become slimmer.

One Bright Spot

The only real bright spot in production figures was to be found in those industries engaged in profit-sharing, said the speaker. "Apparently, profit-sharing industries operate with sufficient efficiency so as to keep unit cost down, but still give to workers sufficient sums that all the desirables of life, such as pensions and health schemes, can be afforded, without breaking our economy."

In conclusion the speaker said that he had tried to show the tremendous inter-balance between communism and these other problems. "We must have a complete right-about-face by the businessmen of this country," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Everett Fairman with the appreciation of the club being extended by R. Gunsolus.

Prior to the speaker's address the Quintones, prominent Belleville Barber Shop Quartet, composed of Dick Brettingham, Dalton Kaye, Alf Evans and John Grant, entertained the club with several musical selections.

Soldier Given Death Sentence

Fayid, Egypt, March 28 (Reuters) —Cpl. Tom Houghton, 23, who shot and killed an officer for "stealing his girl" today was sentenced to death by hanging.

The verdict, reached at the end of a three-day court martial, is subject to confirmation by Gen. Sir George Erskine, general officer commanding British troops in Egypt.

An army psychiatrist gave evidence that Houghton could have been insane or in a jealous rage when he murdered Capt. Herbert Mason, at a canteen party Feb. 9.

The defence asked for a verdict of guilty but insane, pleading Houghton was a good soldier who suddenly turned into "some sort of wild beast."

Witnesses gave evidence that the young corporal, after seeing Mason dancing with Iro Hadjifoti, 20, Green stenographer employed by the British army identified as "the girl in blue," he ran amok with a tommy gun.

Three of his comrades were wounded before he pumped seven bullets into the officer.

The girl earlier told the court martial she had twice rejected marriage proposals from the corporal.

ORDERED ELIMINATED

Rio De Janeiro, March 28 (AP) — The newspaper Diario Da Noite says the cominform and the Brazilian communist party have ordered Jose Maria Crispim, formerly the country's number two red, eliminated. Two days ago Crispim broke with the party and launched a Titoist movement aimed at making the Brazilian communist party independent of Moscow's control.

Newcastle Man Wins Quinte Seed Fair Trophy

Peterborough, March 28 (CP) — James T. Brown of Newcastle yesterday carried off the major honors of the central Ontario spring show.

For the highest aggregate score in the grain classes, he was presented with the silver trophy of the Quinte district seed fair, succeeded this year by the spring show. Mr. Brown also won honors for the most points in registered oats, barley and winter wheat.

The inter-county square dancing competition was won by junior farmers from Hastings county.

RATIFY PACT

Baghdad, Iraq, March 28 (AP) —The Iraqui senate yesterday unanimously ratified a collective security and economic assistance pact among Arab nations. Iraq thus became the third Arab country to give the pact final approval. Egypt and Syria already have done so. It has yet to be ratified by Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Yemen and Lebanon.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 28—(CP)—Mid-session profit-taking today skimmed strong western oil gains and eased the stock exchange's index from its record 15-year high. Base metal also eased but industrials and golds were firm.

Trading was heavy as active oil speculation boosted turnover for the first three hours to 3,001,000 shares. Base metals and golds also attracted interest but volume was moderate. Petrol Gas was a standout as it climbed pennies in a turnover of more than 230,000 shares.

Oil gains ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Anchor, Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Canada Southern, General Petroleum A, Scurry, Superior and United Oil showed strong gains.

Papers, utilities, steels, liquors, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials higher with a broad list of fractional advances. Agricultures and constructions were firm.

Base metal gains were moderate as Barvue, Fenimore Iron, Eureka, Golden Manitou, Mindamar, Osisko, United Asbestos and Ontario Pyrites edged upward. Consolidated Smelters and Pend Oreille eased.

EXPELLED

4. Continuing support of the C.C.F. party by the union "when a questionnaire on political action revealed in unmistakeable terms that less than five per cent of the members of the brotherhood wanted or were even remotely in favor of using the union to support political parties."

5. Using his position in the brotherhood and the C.C.L. in an attempt "to secure a senate appointment for himself."

6. "Liquidation" of about eight other union leaders over a period of years because they could not be "dominated."

7. Accepting simultaneously salaries, emoluments and a pension from the union.

Charges Spies Used

8. Using "spies and informers" to check on the secretary-treasurer's work and "using false and misleading information to depreciate my efforts."

9. Making a "behind-the-scenes deal with the Fink National Maritime Federation of Labor, a pack of company stooges" to bring it into the C.B.R.E. (the C.B.R.E. executive last September repudiated the previously-announced action of President Mosher in admitting that group.)

Mr. McGuire said the charges laid against him by the president, and resulting in his expulsion, were "based on falsehoods, misrepresentations, common gossip regarding his misconduct, and childish concoctions of his own to give his plan of liquidation a semblance of credulity."

As announced by the C.B.R.E. executive Monday, these charges included circulation of false and misleading information, 'vilification" of the president, "disregarding constitutional authority without proper approval" and "general disregard for supervisory authority."

No Surprise

Dealing with his own eviction from the union, the 54-year-old former official said it came as no surprise.

He said Mr. Mosher "worked diligently for the last three years on his plan to liquidate me."

"It is unfortunate," he added, "that he did not devote his energy to doing the work for which he is being paid lucrative salaries by the workers."

(Mr. McGuire said verbally the president draws an $8,200 salary, $1,500 expense allowance and $700 pension from the union in addition to railway and old-age pensions. His own salary was $7,600.)

Mr. McGuire added:

"I have been the only person on the staff of the organization to challenge him and criticize his misconduct on innumerable occasions.

"I will never submit to Hitlerian methods of purging at which Mosher is so efficient . . ."

Eight Million Are Suffering Says Spokesman

New Delhi, March 28 — (AP) — A food ministry spokesman said today 8,000,000 persons in two southern-India states are suffering from near-famine conditions. He said the central government and state governments are meeting the situation with the determination "not to allow even one peasant to die of starvation."

It is the fifth year of drought in the Madras area. The ministry spokesman said it was the old tragic story of crop failures and lack of drinking water made harsher by its long continuation.

The worst suffering is in the Rayalaseema district of Madras, where 5,000,000 are facing near famine conditions and in Uttar Pradesh State where 3,000,000 are affected.

The spokesman said emergency distribution of food is being made from reserve stocks of 400,000 tons of rice in Madras State which had been intended to tide the area over until November. The Uttar Pradesh government is tapping a 200,000-ton wheat reserve to feed its hungry.

Profitable Financing

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — The Toronto Transportation Commission has earned $2,900,000 on its subway in which trains won't run until early 1954. In 1950, when the Canadian dollar was at a discount of 10 per cent, a $15,000,000 bond issue in New York was converted into $16,500,000 in Canadian currency. Last year, at a seven-per-cent discount, a $20,000,000 issue was converted into $21,400,000 Canadian dollars.

Negligent Driving Held Cause Of Cpl. C.P. Dorran's Death; Murney Malloy Is Exonerated

Trenton (Special) — A coroner's jury here last night found that Cpl. Charles Peter Dorran, 33, of the R. C. A. F., met his death on March 9 as the result of negligent driving.

Dorran suffered fatal head injuries in a car-truck crash east of the Dutch Mill Inn on Highway No. 2. The jury attached no blame to the truck driver, Murney Malloy of Belleville.

Malloy testified that the Dorran car, approaching from the east, forced him to pull over and almost come to a halt on the south shoulder of the road. He remembered feeling the impact of the car hitting right behind his cab and the truck rolling over on its side when the car struck the dual wheels on the left side at the back. He recalled shutting off the motor and opening the left hand door and crawling out on the highway. He related how he reached into the cab and pulled his baby out and handed the infant to passersby who helped him lift his wife free. He testified that there was nothing he could have done to avoid the oncoming car.

Cpl. Edwin Elliott, a passenger in the Dorran machine, said he wracked his brain and could not remember what happened after 8.30 p. m. shortly after he had entered Dorran's car for a ride home to 6 R. D. from the south station. "The next thing I remember," he related, "was waking up in hospital with a light in my face." He recalled meeting Dorran in the airmen's mess at 6 R. D. and visiting the corporals' club at the south station with him during the afternoon. The accident happened about 9.00 p. m.

Provincial Constable J. A. Fullerton, of Belleville, referring to photographs made at the scene indicated that there was 64 feet between the machines from the point of impact. Describing the scene he recalled finding two badly injured men laying on the road where they had been placed by people who pulled them out of the wreck.

Wing Commander Powell, senior medical officer at the Trenton Air Station, testified that Dorran died at 10.15 p.m. from a fractured skull and fractured spine, despite efforts to save his life. He reported that Dorran was unconscious and Elliott semi-conscious on admittance.

Dr. E. A. McQuade presided at the hearing, while Gordon Robertson of Belleville questioned the witnesses for the crown. The jury included Ernie Almey (foreman), Joe Gould, Sr., E. R. Hill, Ross Gunter and Harry Forge.

A. J. Neil, a graduate of the University of Toronto, has been engaged as town engineer to replace H. Riga, who resigned. His duties commence April 1.

To Scrap Wauketa

Harry Summerfield, part owner of the tug "Wauketa" on the bottom at the government dock, decided to scrap the old boat when he looked at her at the dockside this week. It was reported that Summerfield and his brother, both of Windsor, paid $20,000 for the vessel which hauled barges at Stoney Lake near Peterborough for 14 years. Two dynamos on the ship rendered useless by the sinking are valued at about $1,700.

It is understood that a diver will be sent down within the next two weeks to see if the damage can be repaired before the hull is brought to the surface.

Banfield to Ottawa

Councillor Norman Banfield is leaving for Ottawa on Sunday to commence a civil defence orientation course starting March 31 and concluding April 5.

Moisey Makes Visit

Tom Moisey, Canadian manager of the English firm locating a million dollar plant here, was in town last week with an architect inspecting the site alongside the Central Bridge plant and making arrangements to start the foundation as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The new factory has plans to employ in the neighborhood of 100 men to start.

Canadian Dollar Rises to $1.01

New York, March 28 (AP) —The Canadian dollar reached a full cent premium over the United States dollar today for the first time in 17 years.

Canadian currency in terms of the U.S. dollar rose to $1.01 at New York.

It has been hovering around par and a small fraction premium for the last few weeks.

Behind the steady rise in the Canadian dollar is an equally steady increase in foreign investment in Canada, which has resulted in a greater demand for Canadian funds.

FOLLY OR PROPAGANDA?

In the centre of page one last Tuesday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer there appeared a Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa under the heading "On Lonely Isle In St. Lawrence Canada Conducting Secret Phase Of Defence Program."

We had enough curiosity about secret programs on lonely isles to read the item through, carefully. Through this careful reading, we learned the nature of this secret business on this lonely isle.

Canada, it seems, is conducting "some of the most important and dangerous research in biological or bacterial warfare — one of the most secret phases of the defence program" on this lonely isle. We further learned the exact location of the lonely isle, as well as its name. It is thirty miles down the St. Lawrence from Quebec City and its name is Grosse Isle.

The dispatch further enlightens us that other experiments in chemical and bacterial warfare are being carried on at a place called Suffield, in Alberta. Probably the Suffield experiments are as important, as dangerous and as secret as those at Grosse Isle. However, we are left in ignorance as to this latter matter. Nor are we given the exact location of Suffield, as we were in the case of Grosse Isle.

It is common knowledge, at least to everyone connected with the publishing business, that the Canadian Press is a co-operative agency for gathering and distributing news and that it is owned by the Canadian daily newspapers. Through a subsidiary corporation, the Canadian Press also sells news to many radio stations. Consequently, this information about the secret isle and the secret investigations there was published not only in the Ontario Intelligencer. It was probably published in most of the daily papers of Canada as well as broadcast over many Canadian radio stations. Through the C.P.'s news-trading agreements with the Associated Press, and possibly through similar arrangements with other press associations, the same secret information about the secret isle was transmitted to, or made available to, practically every newspaper in the English-speaking world.

There are two possibile explanations as to how this information about the secret experiments on the secret isle came to be published and broadcast. One of these explanations is that one or more of the government experts employed by the department of national defence saw fit to release the information, including the name and the exact location of the secret isle, to the Ottawa bureau of the Canadian Press. It is possible that the department of national defence has in its employ a government expert who is sufficiently stupid to do such a thing, but improbable. It seems incredible that even a government expert would release for publication highly secret information connected with national defence. It not only seems incredible. It is incredible.

Then the second explanation as to how this information came to be divulged is probably the correct one. Here is that second explanation: the secret isle and the secret experiments being conducted thereon are not secrets at all, although it is quite probable that some experiments or other are being conducted on the island. The whole rigmarole, if this second explanation is correct, is a straight piece of propaganda, served out to some eager young reporter, with the sure knowledge that it would be published in some newspapers and with the hope that it would be published in many of them, for the purpose of making the taxpayers of Canada believe that they are getting full value for the large sums of money they are being asked to fork over in the name of national defence.

The readers of this and other newspapers will have to draw their own conclusions. Was the story about the secret experiments on the secret isle a colossal blunder on the part of a government expert, or was it a cunningly-conceived piece of propaganda created by someone who is not only on the government's payroll but who is really an expert in his particular sphere?

BELLEVILLE BOOM PREDICTED

Citizens of Belleville and district will receive with satisfaction the prediction made by Rene Perrault, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, during the address which he made here last Monday night, that Belleville was likely to enjoy a generous share of the business and industrial expansion taking place in this country.

As Mr. Perrault pointed out, Belleville is located between the two most heavily populated and industrialized areas of Canada. It is adjacent to an important tourist resort region and is located in a good farming district.

The south Hastings area, although long-settled, has not increased in population, industrialization and productivity as rapidly in the past as some of the newer parts of western and southwestern Ontario.

If Mr. Perrault assesses the situation correctly, Belleville and its environs are to enjoy a boom in the days ahead. Those of us who live here will unite in hoping that the boom eventuates.

JUST FOLKS

COUNSEL FOR THE GIRLS

I'd tell every maid who is seeking a man
To pick out a neat one, if somehow, she can;
An orderly fellow her husband to be
Who is properly tidy and not one like me,
For I am inclined to strew things on the floor
And my hat and my coat on the chair by the door.

The women folk say, and I'll add it is true,
I leave much to them that is my job to do.
They tell me in closets for garments are hooks;
That the shelves in a room are intended for books.
And this insolent query my carelessness brings:
"Did your mother not teach you to put away things?"

Well, she tried; but she failed. So I write to advise
Young women, when choosing a man, to be wise.
Find out if he's neat. To be certain of that
Observe where he tosses his coat and his hat.
Be sure before marriage has stripped him of wings
That his mother has taught him to put away things.

FINAL EXAM

Psychologists are constantly calling our attention to the increase of alcoholism in our population.

There are various causes for this disease. One is that many a person seeks out alcohol for solace when he encounters an overwhelming crisis in life. He experiences disappointment or sorrow, and because he knows that a few ounces out of a bottle will make him forget these things temporarily, he reaches for the bottle Of course he comes back to sorrows that are deepening and problems more overwhelming than when he last confronted them. But many a person is not able to resist the temporary relief which comes from anasthetizing a portion of his brain and thereby enabling him for the time being to forget or to evade.

That this is a tragically unwise way to approach any problem goes without saying. We need always to remember that life is a school and that the Master in charge of that school puts problems before us with the expectation that we will work them out, and grow in so doing. To toss the problem into the wastepaper basket is only to pile up trouble for ourselves on that day when the final examination will be held.

And for every one of us there is a final examination in prospect. The Bible calls it Judgment Day. It occurs many times (spelled with small letters, and finally spelled in caps).

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GLORY IN LITTLE THINGS

Were fe to appraise our lives over a term of years we would come to the conclusion that our richest happiness has come about through the experiencing of little things. Small pleasures, unrehearsed kindnesses and little surprises.

As we look back upon our lives, it's the inexpensive and wholesome pleasures that keep reminding us of the true values in life. Their memories stay longest with us, and we are influenced more happily through them. We all have our birthdays—and no matter at what age we arrive, we get our supremest joy at such a time from the thoughtful messages of remembrance that our friends and loved ones send us, in a telegram or letter.

There is a glory in little things that big things cannot equal. If we do a big thing every one looks to us to do a bigger thing, and is apt to be disappointed in us, but we can do little things every day of our lives and bring beauty and happiness into an endless number of lives. In my reading I came across a statement by William Davy where he said that "small obligations, given habitually, are what preserve the heart and secure comfort."

Scattered kindnesses are like seeds that, when planted in good soil, spring into life and spread their life far beyond those to whom they have been rendered. They even live beyond the life of the giver! Love is a little thing—but how big it can grow!

Not all of us can do the big things in life but everyone of us can do the little things—and like Shakespeare's candle, we can beam our little light afar through the darkness—perhaps saving many a one from stumbling, or losing his or her way.

Stevenson once wrote that "a happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is radiating focus of good-will; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted." It's the little things that give nourishment to the big things!

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE LONG NIGHTS

(Columnist Scott is temporarily floored by a virus. This is a reprint of one oif his earlier pieces).

Our middle daughter, Jill, has begun to talk in her sleep. If I am looking more haggard than usual, this is the reason. In fact, I'm seriously contemplating pitching a small tent out in the back yard in my pursuit of the decent night's sleep.

Jill's contribution to my insomnia is small. She says only "bow-bow" or "Jell-o" and not more than two, three times a night. It is just the cumulative effect that is driving the sand man from my door.

Perhaps I should explain, first, that I am a very light sleeper. Conditiaons must be just right. I have never been able to find sleep in a Pullman berth, for example. I was awake four years in the Army. Put me in a foreign bed and I lie there, owl eyes staring into the darkness.

Indeed it has taken me several years to get used to the shanty in which we live. Since the east side of the house began settling, as I believe I mentioned once before, all the doors and windows have been behaving in a most extraordinary manner. A slight whisp of a breeze will open the front door, causing two of the windows to sdude slowly down and the back door to creak open. Sometimes one of the windows comes down hard, with a bang. This occasionally starts a faucet dripping in the bathroom.

For over six months after I got out of the service and came home (and pretty badly in need of a nap, too) I lay awake night after night, up on one elbow, ears pricked up like a collie dog, listening to all this go on. Sheer exhaustion finally came to my rescue.

Now I find myself surrounded not merely by this obstreperous house, but by three females whose nocturnal clamoring is only a notch short of bedlam.

Brown eyes has always been a night-time talker. It was one of the first unexpected aspects of matrimony I had to get used to. One night a week or so after we were married she turned to me at about 4 a.m. and said, in a strong, clear voice, "They're burning all the leaves." I looked about me wildly and it was hours before I calmed down.

By experiment I discovered that the only way to cut off this dream-world dialogue was to make some brisk remark that would, as it were, close the subject. After the remark about the leaves, for example, I might say soothingly, "They're all burned now, go to sleep." Or, if she would suddenly cry "Watch out for the boat." I would pat her and say, "It's gone now, go to sleep."

Then, as now, I preferred to work late at night. Invariably, my late arrival in the boudoir would provoke some startled comment from my wife, such as "Watch out for that rake," or "Never mind the rest of them!" (Two I happen to remember).

I found that the best way to stop this was to hiss, "It's only me, it's only me," when I entered the bedroom, but frequently this would cause our oldest daughter, Judy, to start broadcasting from her room. Judy is a mumbler. She says things like, "Brooble the fram, brooble the fram!" For some reason this makes me even more tense than my wife's running commentary.

One night when I was drowsy Judy said, "Brooble the fram" and I hissed at my wife, "Judy says brooble the fram."

"Put the lid on the water sprinkler," my wife said. "It's all right," I said. "The lid is on. Go to sleep."

You get few conversations like this going and all that sash and door activity and I'm here to tell you sleep is elusive.

I didn't know I had it so good until Jill decided to take after her mother. In our house—or, for that matter, any house with beaverboard partitions— sounds from the adjoining rooms are not merely distinct, but have the effect of being magnified.

What is sagging the bags under my eyes is the three-way hook-up that's now become a regular thing. This generally happens at precisely the moment I have sleep in my grasp. Then it starts.

"Bow wow, bow wow," says Jill. I raise my head.

Judy stirs restlessly in her bed. "Maddle widda fraw," maddle widda fraw," she mumbles. I am on one elbow.

"Never mind the ice cream," my wife says, chucking at some never-to-be-known joke. I am now sitting upright, head cocked.

"The ice cream is okay," I say. "Go to sleep."

To date I have thought of no way to beat this. I can't wear car plugs, because then I would never get to sleep wondering what they were all talking about. I have thought of having three muzzles made, but I know there would be objections.

The tent idea itself is just wishful thinking. It wouldn't work in a neighborhood with so many dogs.

C.N.R. Travel Certificates Said Good For Sending Unwelcome Elsewhere

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Modern civilization appears to be ever on the look-out for new methods of easing life, for new ideas to solve the problems of harassed mankind.

The latest boon to the bedevilled is a recent announcement by the C. N. R. that it will issue gift certificates for train travel anywhere. To those irritable souls who are forever wishing others elsewhere this news must surely come as the balm of Gilead. How much more satisfying than the outdated advice to "Go to Jericho" — or elsewhere — will be the presentation of a gift travel certificate, carefully marked for transit to some remote spot such as Kelowna or Kamloops! And also how much more practical:

But a further beauty of the scheme lies in the graceful manner in which such a curt command as "Get out!" may be veiled. Even the most inherently suspicious relative, exhausting a too-long protracted visit, cannot but be charmed by the presentation of a tastefully decorated gift voucher. (And if previous experience of gift certificates is any criterion, the new vouchers may be decorated with anything from primroses to pullmans, from diesels to daisies). So that even when the gift is discovered to be a one-way ticket (coach class) to Kicking Horse, the subject should still be too overcome with emotion to protest. With any luck, this stupefaction should last at least as far up the line as Moncton, by which time retreat would be no longer feasible.

As a painless method of dealing with painful situations, this seems hard to beat. But the C. N. R., not content with this, go still further to ease the pain of the sportively-minded; they intimate that the donor may, over and above the ticket, specify an additional amount to cover meals on the train. The possibilities here for subtle suggestion and somewhat less subtle irony are breath-taking. To present a vegetarian with a food cheque which can be adequately utilized only by eating tenderloin steaks and cottelettes a la reine at every meal, and to imagine the resultant struggle between cupidity and principle, argues a mental cruelty which is sadistic in its refinement. But to present to a gargantuan appetite the price of a cheese sandwich for a day's travel is surely a legitimate way of saying: "You have eaten us out of house and home; now go, you human boa - constrictor, and fast."

If, as has been suggested, half the virtue in rudeness is to be delicately and subtly rude, then this announcement opens up a wide vista of technique.

Will there be queues at the ticket-offices when the new certificates will be available?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Just because a few hundred thousand Canadians spent some months or years overseas in England during the late war, the impression is fairly general that Canadians know and understand the Old Country a little better than formerly. There is one thing about England that ought to be generally understood, however, and which ex-service men are not likely to have encountered. And it is this: the English still use pins to do up a shirt when they iron it at the laundry.

In the service, you either did your own laundry; the unit did it; or you got some nice girl's mother to do it for you. You rarely if ever came in contact with a commercial English laundry.

Thus, if you go back to Britain now, as very well you might, you are in jeopardy. You are liable to be stuck in the most painful fashion. In Canada, the laundry industry has long since discovered a way of doing up a shirt so that it comes neat and flat without recourse to any pins. In fact, there may not be more than a few hundred thousand of us old-time Canadians left who can recollect the days when Canadian laundries used pins.

But in England, they stick to tradition. When your shirt comes back from the laundry, it looks very trig. Under the collar they have inserted a stiff piece of cardboard to hold the new-ironed collar just so. Around the shirt is a hand or strap of paper. You remove that and shake the shirt out.

Now(if you are lucky, you discover the pin immediately, because it is used to hold the sleeves folded under, in place. But usually, you just supopse the sleeves are slightly stuck; with starch, maybe. And you tug them loose.

The pin, therefore, is left—either in the sleeve, high up, in the fat part of your arm; in the back of the shirt, about level with your shoulder blades; or, else lower down.

You are then free to discover the pin either immediately, as you put the shirt on; or later in the evening, when you sit down, for instance, in a theatre or pub. The English always can tell a visitor by that yell.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THE MANIFESTATIONS OF P.D.

The oracle who presides over this contumacious column must have been nodding when he pounded out the piece titled Nutritional Deficiency and Pyorrhea (Feb. 18) or maybe overdue for a conference on the bowling green. In the first paragraph I said:

"The trouble know nas pyorrhea, in my opinion, is not a specific disease but a manifestation of physical degeneration due to nutritional deficiency."

Incidentally, young ones, there's a sentence to practice yoiur diction, construction, etymology punctuation and even your grammar (ouch) on.

Two or three games—paragraphs farther along in the same piece I said:

"In my opinion" (anyway my construction was better, don't you think?) "chronic rheumatiz or arthritis" (if you prefer the more expensive term) "is manisfestation of physical degeneration due to nutritional deficiency."

If at first you infer that my needle stuck or the typographers gummed things up you had better do some thinking before you call attention to the obvious blunder. Before I turn up my toes you're going to learn, I hope, that pyorrhea and chronic rheumatiz (arthritis to you, Wiseacre) are not the half of it. I have some more bad news for you today, to-wit:

In my opinion hardening of the arteries (arterioclerosis) and most cases of chronic heart disease are manifestations of physical degeneration due to nutritional deficiency.

I keep repeating physical degeneration lest lunkheads infer I am casting aspersions on the morals of people with pyorrhea, rheumatiz or cardio-vascular degeneration. As one of my most valued assistants, N. Webster, describes it in the Unabridged, degeneration is:

4. Med. Deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished; a substitution for a lower for a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue or the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues.

That's pretty good, but Stedman's Medical Dictionary gives a better definition of degeneration:

A retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass.

Even Stedman seems a shade too gloomy about it. He might have said "in consequence of which the functioning power is impaired or weakened and may be lost if the degeneration process is not retarded or reversed."

I'm not a therapeutic optimist but I believe it is possible to retard or arrest the degeneration in most instances or to reverse it in some instances—that is, to bring about regeneration and restoration of function.

In the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope, without particular reference to pyorrhea, rheumatiz or slow heart-artery failure there is a menu for a basic or model health diet, on which to build your own regeneration, rejuvenation or reduction diet:

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Bromidrosis

My son, in the Navy, and I both have stinking feet. With the slightest sweating our feet smell bad, no matter how much we bathe. It is very embrarassing. We have tried everything... (C. L. A.)

Answer — Formaldehyde will stop it, if carefully used. Instructions in booklet Care of the Feet, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Quack and the Doctor's Wife

My husband had injection treatment and enjoyed wonderful results. I was operated on for the same condition (hemorrhoids) and I suffered more following the operation than I ever did from the hemorrhoids. The doctor who operated, highly rated here, never examined me, but just heard my complaint and ordered me to the hospital ... (Mrs. D. E. A.)

Answer—Quacks are highly rated in many communities. A doctor who diagnoses hemorrhoids without an examination is a quack, of course.

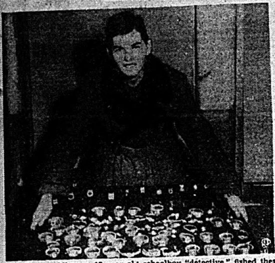
Discovers Loot



Eugene Misener, 13-year-old schoolboy "detective," fished these 71 watches out of a drainage ditch close to Moore School, near Welland, Ont., which he attends. The school principal, Campbell Kreuger, helped him. The loot is part of a $20,000 robbery from a Hamilton jewelry store March 20. Eugene, who had previously spotted one of the sample cases stolen in the robbery, discovered the watches in the ditch. — (CP Photo.)

Catholic Confederation Asks Bigger Tax Exemption, Higher Old-Age Pensions in Brief

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)—The Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, in a 12-page brief presented today to the federal cabinet, asked for bigger income tax exemptions for workers and higher old-age pensions.

It also requested price controls and curbing of what it termed "mass immigration."

Written in French and English, the brief was divided in two parts—a summary of demands and renewal of sugesgtions made previously.

The labor organization asked for old age pensions of $50 a month for men at 65 and women at 60, income tax exemptions of $1,500 for a single person and $3,000 for married persons, plus $400 for each child.

It also asked the government to use its budget surplus to defray costs of a vast housing scheme in order to alleviate the housing situation, and provide work for the unemployed.

The proposed income tax exemptions would result in decreased revenue but "could easily be made up by a maximum tax on excess profit."

Claiming a membership of 90,000 workers in Quebec province, the C.C.C.L. attacked monopolies in a renewal its demand for government price controls. It named the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Ltd., in particular, as a monopoly.

In regard to higher family allowances and unemployment insurance payments, it said that these should be gauged on increases in the cost-of-living index.

A 20-point increase in the cost of living in 1951 showed that wages should have been boosted by a proportionate $10 a week. Instead, statistics proved the weekly wage hike was only $5.

Claims Monopolies Exist

The labor group, headed by Gerard Picard of Montreal, claimed that monopolies exist in almost all heavy industries due to unfair, or lack of, competition and lack of free enterprise.

For that reason, government price controls were required to combat the current inflation. In the United States where such controls exist, the brief said, the cost of living increased only 3.3 per cent while in Canada it soared 11 per cent.

While holding it was Canada's duty to receive people from over-populated and less fortunate lands, the C.C.C.L. declared immigration should be "limited, regulated according to the resources of our country and always subjected to careful selection methods."

Nearly half the 150,000 immigrants admitted to Canada last year were said to be in dire circ-

The brief suggested discontinuation if immigration for seasonal work which led to unemployment in slack periods, award of family allowances to immigrants on their entry and discontinuation of misleading publicity in foreign lands.

Grieving Parents Identify Body Of Their Daughter

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., Mar. 28 (CP) —Grieving parents returned to their home here early today after identifying the body of their 20-year-old daughter.

An unclothed body recovered Wednesday from Lake Ontario near Albion, N.Y., was identified as that of Violet Pollock, 20, who had been missing since Feb. 23.

Her sister Dorabelle, 24, was injured fatally by a train the same day. Police said she was looking for Violet.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Pollock, said in Albion last night that they were satisfied the body was Violet's,

They did so after an hour's discussion with Dr. Joseph Tannenberg of Batavia, N.Y., who had performed an autopsy.

Dr. Tannenberg said the autopsy showed a piece of the caecum (part of the intestine) had been removed. He said such an operation had been performed on Violet two years ago when her appendix was removed.

Dr. Tannenberg said he had not determined the cause of death.

He said eight other minor points had corroborated the identification. He said the dental work would be checked today with dentists here and in St. Catharine's, Ont.

It was the second young woman's nude body found in recent weeks on the lakeshore near Albion.

The body of another woman, found about six miles from Oak Orchard March 13, was first believed to be that of Miss Pollock. It was buried without being identified after an autopsy showed the appendix was intact.

Violet left her home Feb. 23, saying she was going for a walk.

The parents said Violet would be buried tomorrow in Brampton, Ont., where Dorabelle is also buried.

BODY FOUND IN CAR

Buffalo, N.Y., March 28 (AP) — The scantily clad body of a woman was found yesterday in the back of a closed truck in a parking lot.

She was identified as Mrs. Julia Nicholas, 40, of Buffalo.

Detective Chief William T. Fitzgibbons said she was stabbed about 7.30 p.m. Wednesday night in an eastside tavern. Two men were held for questioning.

HE'S FED UP

Shrewsbury, England — (CP)— A headmaster of a boys' school here was critical of "progressive" trends in education. He said at the annual speech day he wondered whether new schools will have built-in dog-racing tracks and electronic machines to help in filling out coupons for football pools.

SWEDISH SHIPS

Stockholm — (CP) — Final figures on Swedish shipyards for 1951 showed launchings totalled about 404,000 gross tons, or 56,000 tons more than the previous year. Only Great Britain and Japan launched more tonnage last year than Sweden.

ARTIFICIAL DEPTH

Gosport, England — (CP) —The government has completed a 100-foot research column here which, when filled with water, exerts a pressure equal to 17 fathoms in the sea. Submarine crews will make controlled descents in tests of equipment.

TOUGH WRESTLER

Auckland, N. Z. — (CP)—Kenneth Gilligan, amateur welterweight wrestler, plunged in his car 115 feet over a steep slope near Auckland. Rescuers found Gilligan walking around on the beach below, dazed but ready for the next round.

Mrs. G. Conant, Oshawa, Guest Of Women's Club

Red, white and blue carnations and streamers formed an appropriate background for the "Lights Up" candle lighting ceremony symbolic of International Night in Business and Professional Women's Clubs, held at the March meeting of the Belleville Club. Mrs. Gordon Conant, of Oshawa, regional adviser, performed this impressive ceremony, which is an annual event at which members of all the Business and Professional Women's Clubs throughout the world, rededicate themselves to the aims and ideals of the club.

Mrs. Conant spoke of the beginning of the clubs in the United States in 1919, spreading to Italy, Canada, France and Austria by 1930, and by 1939, there were 24 countries which had national federations. During the last war, members of the B. and P. clubs along with Guides, Scouts and other such organizations, were persecuted and large numbers liquidated. There are five federations which were forced to go "underground" and will, of necessity, remain inactive until such time as they are able to breath the air of freedom and take their places once again with those more fortunate clubs.

On completion of the Lights-Up service, Mrs. Isabel Wallbridge formally introduced Mrs. Conant to the Belleville club. Also present as guests were Mrs. R. Arnott and Mrs. S. Amos, Guide Commissioners of this district.

Extremely Capable

As regional adviser of District No. 5, Mrs. Conant is well prepared and extremely capable of assuming the duties and responsibilities of this organization. She is the wife of Mr. Gordon Conant, ex-attorney-general and ex-premier of Ontario; she has been deeply interested for many year in Little Theatre work, hospital auxiliary work, Girl Guides, and has taken an active part in these and other benevolent organizations. Having just returned from a meeting in Mexico of the western hemisphere sub-committee of the Girl Guide Association, Mrs. Conant was able to describe vividly the country and her experiences while there, which ranged from stimulating conferences on Guide work to the thrilling spectacle of the bull fights.

In speaking of the B. and P. Clubs and Girl Guides, Mrs. Conant's enthusiasm, sincerity and charm sparked her listeners to rapt attention. She stressed the crying need for leaders of both adults and youth in order that youth may be trained to do a better job than is being done. Every woman has a chance to help youth to be better than ever before.

On behalf of the club, Muriel Jobson thanked Mrs. Conant for her inspiring address. Cecelia Maloney provided humor for the club by giving an excellent reading appropriate to the times entitled "The High Cost of Living".

Food, How to Buy Subject Of Address at Women's Guild

The March meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held recently in the schoolroom with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. A. D. McLean, presided over the meeting.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Hornsby, who chose as her topic, the "Easter Message". In a short time she refreshed the minds of her listeners with the main events leading up to the Crucifixion of our Saviour on the Cross. The part that women played at that time was given special mention. The Easter story was read from St. Luke's Gospel chapter 24.

Reports Read

During the business period, reports were heard from the secretary and treasurer. A letter of thanks was read from the Sunday School superintendent thanking the ladies for recently providing a complimentary dinner for Sunday School teachers and leaders at a Young People's Conference.

The date was approved for the fall bazaar.

Mrs. James Miller was given a life membership certificate by the Guild for the Women's Missionary Society.

The president asked for any announcements of group activities, which consisted of a rummage sale, lecture on interior decorating and catering for a banquet.

Mrs. Ryan reported plans were under way for the "Spring Tea". Mrs. Kane also reminded those present of the Girls' Work Board tea.

For the April meeting of the Guild, the Harmony group are in charge of entertainment and the Friendship Group will take care of refreshments.

Guest Speaker

At this point, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. W. N. Ponton, who capably introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. D. MacKinnon, who, until recently was with the consumer section of the Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. MacKinnon's subject was "Food"—the field of buying. Living habits are changing, hence the public demand more sanitary conditions for buying food such as washed vegetables, packaged foods, wrapped foods and other commodities, which all add to the cost of the articles.

Foods are packaged in small quantities to meet the need of families who have limited storage space, this too, adds to the cost.

The speaker also gave many hints and advice on buying food as to quality, quantity, ways of preserving, storage, and appearance. It is the responsibility of the older generation to train their families in careful buying and thrifty buying by shopping only for what they need.

"As women spend 80 per cent of the money that is spent on food it remains with us to voice our opinion if we are not satisfied."

Much To Offer

Mrs. MacKinnon is a gradate of the University of Toronto in Home Economics. She spent several years with a baking company in Toronto, and later did radio broadcasting in Ottawa, therefore has much to offer to her audience which she imparts in a most pleasing manner.

At present, Mrs. MacKinnon has taken on another position as Home Economics director of Poultry Products Institute of Canada.

Mrs. Argue graciously expressed thanks on behalf of the Guild to the speaker for her informative address.

A social half hour followed, Mrs. Fleming's group serving refreshments.

570,000 NAMES RECORDED

London, March 27 — (Reuters) — The Imperial War Graves Commission has so far recorded the names of over 570,000 members of the Commonwealth forces who lost their lives in the Second World War, it announced today in its annual report. The commission has also recorded the names of 66,438 civilian war dead.

Alberta Airwomen Now Ninety-Niners

Edmonton. (CP)—Women airplane pilots in Edmonton and Calgary recently formed Alberta's first branch of the Ninety-niners the international organization of women pilots.

Aims and objects of the organization are to provide a closer relationship among women pilots; to assist them in any activity which will be of help in aeronautical research, air racing events, acquisition of aerial experience and maintenance of an economic status in industry.

Membership in the Ninety-niners is open to women who hold a valid pilot's licence higher than solo grade. Power pilot and glider pilot certificates are equally valid. There now are more than 1,200 active flying posts in the organization.

Activities of the group include sponsoring powder-puff derbies, trans-continental and international air races and making the public more air conscious.

Chapters and sections also organize cross-country flights, tours and wing-dings."

The insignia of the Ninety-niners is a compass rose with the number 99 in the centre. A monthly news letter is sent to members and outlines activities on a national scale. Amelia Earheart was the club's first national president after it was formed in 1929.

President of the Alberta branch is Miss Lorraine Cooper of Calgary.

Ontario Artists Hold Eightieth Show

Toronto. (CP)—The cream of modern Canadian art will be found in the 80th annual exhibition of the Ontario Society of Artists to be shown at Toronto Art Gallery, March 7 to April 14.

Some 500 entries were examined by five judges before they chose 115 works of 105 paintings and 10 sculptures, for hanging in the show.

Works by non-members of the society were found to outnumber those by members.

The society this year is offering two awards. The Taber Dulmage Feheley Purchase award of $500 is to be given to encourage further progress in Canadian painting. The J. W. L. Forster award of $100 is given for the "best subject picture" in the exhibition.

All schools of thought are represented. Those showing include Robert W. Pilot, Montreal; Clare Bice, London, Ont.; Ray Mead, Hamilton and Grant Macdonald, Montreal. Among Toronto artists exhibiting pictures are A. J. Casson, Oscar Cahen, L. A. C. Panton, Peter Haworth, John Martin, Frances Loring, Fred S. Haines, A. Y. Jackson, Jean Horne and R. York Wilson.

The jury of selection was: Jack Bush, Grant Macdonald, A. J. Casson, John Martin and Sydney H. Watson.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has a good husband, but thinks she loves another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I got married when I was only 19. Now, after four years of marriage which has brought two children, I realize I'm in love with another man.

I knew this man before I was married and we went out together a few times. He told me he loved me and that he wanted me to marry him, but my parents objected because he was 38 and I was still in my teens, and they said I couldn't possibly be happy with a man so much older.

I listened to my parents because I didn't want to displease them, but I feel I made a great mistake. I see this man around occasionally, and he is still single, and says he loves me and would marry me if I would get a divorce. I love him very much and I feel I can't go on without him.

As yet, my husband doesn't know anything whatever about this, and I would hate to hurt either him or my children, as he is very sweet and trusting.

Could you please give me some advice on what I should do?—Susan.

Dear Susan:

Whose happiness and welfare are you going to put first in your life? Your own, or those of the people closest to you, such as your husband and children, who love and trust you and believe you love them as they love you? In other words, do you plan to live for other people, or for yourself alone, and do you really believe that selfish people are happy?

If your husband were mean to you in any way, it would be a different matter, but you have nothing but good to tell of him. Do you want to be mean enough to break up his home when he has never done anything mean to you?

My advice to you is that you put aside all thoughts of this other man, refuse to allow him to talk to you about getting a divorce and put everything you have into a sincere attempt to make a success of the marriage you entered of your own free will. If you are willing to do your part, I think there is a very good chance your present marriage will eventually be a happy one.

Her engagement ring brought first doubts of her love

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend and myself are both 21 years old. We have been going together for a year and a half, and I have never before had any doubts that I loved him. We have the same likes and dislikes about things and get along together very well.

The funny part is that my first doubt came when we picked out my diamond a few weeks ago, which I am not wearing yet. You see, when I am with my boy friend I love him very much and am sure I want to marry him, and yet when we are away from each other I sometimes don't seem to miss him at all. Is this natural? I don't want to wear my diamond unless I am absolutely sure of myself.—D. M.

Dear D.M.:

I don't think it at all unnatural that you should sometimes feel perfectly content and happy when you are away from your boy friend. Even people who love each other very much want to see their friends once in awhile. It's much better, too, for two people to keep up their other friendships, and do things occasionally with other people, rather than be together every minute, so I don't think this is necessarily anything to worry about.

What I do think you should do, however, is to give yourself a little more time in this whole thing before you actually marry. It may just be that when the ring was bought you suddenly realized you were committing yourself for life, and the thought frightened you a little. It might have been better if you had waited a little longer for the ring. But since you apparently have it, I don't think it would do any harm for you to wear it and see how things go. It's too bad if an engagement has to be broken, but it's by no means uncommon. And it's likely that you'll entirely get over your present feeling and never have to meet that problem at all. In the meantime, don't think it's a mistake to see other people besides your fiance now and then, and don't think it's abnormal if you enjoy doing so. It isn't.

BRIDGE STREET Y.P.U.

On Monday evening, the Young People's Union opened their meeting with folk dancing directed by Miss Helen McCammon.

After which Miss Loretta McDougall led a lively sing-song. The short business period was conducted by president, Jim Bailey.

The program and worship were under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Telford, convener of the Faith and Evangelism department.

A film-strip entitled "Bible Library in Pictures", was shown. The scenes led through the Old Testament, starting with biographies, dramas, the law, poetry and prophecy. Arriving at the New Testament, giving the Good News of the Gospels and the Letters to the Churches.

An interesting evening came to an end with the friendship circle and Taps.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Here is another reader coming for help. I have found your column just wonderful—it is the first thing I turn to. The Dr. has just told me I must lose about 50 lbs., so you see I have a big job ahead. Please send me calorie booklet. Tell me what this means: 44 calories 17 grams slice. I do not know what gram means. Do you think 1 piece of bacon, 1 fried egg, 2 slices Hollywood bread for breakfast, 4 slices Hollywood bread made in sandwiches of meat and lettuce for lunch and 1 cup vegetable, meat and dessert for dinner is too much,—tea with milk only. What should my weight be I'm 44 years and 5 feet, 4 inches.—E. M. B.

ANSWER:

You will have to change your menu E. M. B. That is a gaining routine, not a reducing one. The average ideal weight for your height and age is 125 lbs. If you have to lose 50 lbs. you must follow a strict diet such as below:

(This is for Mrs. Geo. H. P.; A Constant Reader—Augusta; Mrs. Gordon H.; Leah V.; Angelina S. C.; Mrs. Mary F.; Mrs. Jno. P.)

BREAKFASTS

(1) 8 oz. freshly squeezed orange or grapefruit juice; 1 poached (not fried) egg on half slice whole wheat toast unbuttered; 2 cups clear coffee or coffee with 2 oz. cold or 4 oz. hot whole milk.

(2) One-half large grapefruit or 1 large orange; 1 coddled egg or egg cooked in shell with 1-2 slice unbuttered whole wheat toast (1-2-inch thick is taken for granted for slices of whole wheat bread). Cafe au Lait without sugar. (Cafe au Lait is a great comfort to reducers. It is double strength boiling hot coffee with an equal quantity of very hot whole milk.)

(3) A 6 or 8-oz. serving of any of the fresh fruit coming into season—these include imported grapes, fresh pineapple, strawberries, raspberries, cherries, peaches, plums, blueberries, pears, apricots without sugar. One egg scrambled in 1 teaspoon butter and served on 1-2 slice unbuttered whole wheat toast. Sugarless tea or coffee.

LUNCHES

(1) 6 or 8-oz. serving thin clear non-fat soup; salad of lettuce, tomato, carrot, cottage cheese, celery and 1 teaspoon mayonnaise; 1 slice whole wheat bread with 1-2 pat butter; 8-oz. glass skim or buttermilk; 1-2 medium banana.

(2) Sandwich 2 slices unbuttered whole wheat bread with 1-4 inch thick slice lean meat with green relish pickle and 1 leaf lettuce; 8 oz. skim or buttermilk; medium apple.

(3) Unbuttered toasted cheese sandwich on w.w. bread; celery hearts and carrot sticks; 8 skim or buttermilk; whole orange. 4 p.m.—8 oz. glass tomato juice.

DINNERS

(1) 4 oz. lean beef not fried but broiled—this may be ground beef, beef tenderloin, beefsteak; 6 oz. each cooked carrots and Brussel sprouts; 1-2 grapefruit; cafe au lait.

(2) Broiled salmon or halibut steak 3-4 inch thick; lemon; stewed tomatoes or chopped spinach (undercook the spinach); 6 oz. canned baby limas; baked apple without sugar; cafe au lait.

(3) Broiled baby beef or calves' or chicken liver—4 oz.; 6 oz. broccoli or cauliflower with grated skin milk cheese; diced new beets with salt—no butter; 20 malaga grapes or 1 banana or fresh pear; cafe au lait or tea with whole milk.

10 p.m.—Glass tomato or sauerkraut juice or 1 whole orange or apple.

If this seems too strict write to me and I will help you get used to it.

ASKS NO ALIMONY

Los Angeles, March 27 — (AP) — Actress Terry Moore has sued football's Glenn Davis for divorce, charging cruelty. In an 18 - word complaint filed yesterday, she said they separated three months after their marriage in Glendale, Cal., Feb. 9, 1951. She said there is no community property and asked no alimony.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Birmingham, England, March 27 (AP)—Ephraim Morgan, 59, was granted a divorce yesterday on charges of cruelty. He testified his 47-year-old wife deliberately taunted him by getting up at 4 a.m. to vacuum the rug outside his bedroom door.

When a rabbi has a scholastic degree (is a "Dr."), what is the correct form of name to use in addressing an envelope to him? —A. R.

This is correct:
The Rev. Dr. Julius Mark

Future sister-in-law to give shower?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The bride-to-be is a girl from another town. Is it permissible for a future sister-in-law to give a shower-tea for her, the guests to be invited being relatives and close friends of the groom-to-be? —A. B.

It's in doubtful taste for a member of the groom's family to give a shower for the bride. And it's indeed in doubtful taste for a hostess to give any kind of party which will mean that she is asking the guests to bring presents for a girl whom they don't know. A tea given in honor of the bride-to-be by her future sister-in-law would be a charming gesture, a delightful way to introduce the bride-to-be to relatives and friends of the groom. But a shower would too obviously look like what it is, a bid for gifts.

"Date" etiquette for self-service elevators

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As in so many other apartment houses, our elevator has recently been converted to a self-service elevator. I have three friends (all about my age) who live in this same building, and we would like to have you answer this question which has now arisen: Should our "date" leave us downstairs, as when we had an elevator operator, or what is correct?—Alice and Three Others.

No. . . your date should not leave you downstairs. He should go up in the elevator with you and take you to the door of your apartment.

The greenback shower. . ."commercial" shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to give a shower for my future sister-in-law—a greenback shower. Please tell me if it is correct for the bride-to-be to open the envelope at the shower and thank everybody for the money, or thank everybody and wait to open the envelopes when she goes home? (Of course she will send thank-you notes after the shower.)—W. L.

(1) It is not considered correct for a member of the bride's family or of the groom's family to give a bridal shower.

(2) It is not considered correct to give a greenback shower.

But if you don't mind not abiding by these two important suggestions of good form and good taste, and do give the greenback shower and do ask each guest to bring a definitely-named sum of money, there is really no reason for the guest of honor to open each envelope. If she did, I should think it would look rather oppressively commercial, as if she were 'counting up.' Better to take the envelopes and write her thank-you notes as soon as possible after the shower—the next day, if possible.

Don't return to reception hall

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the place where my wedding reception is to be held, there is no room to change to my going-away outfit. If we go home to change, must we return to the reception hall to say good-by in our going-away clothes, or can we just say good-by when we leave to change and make that the final good-by?—G. S.

There is no need to return to the reception hall to say another good-by. When you think it is time to leave the reception, throw your bouquet among your attendants. . .you and your bridegroom say your good-bys to your families. . .then wave a general good-by to the guests. . .and depart in a blaze of glory.

STILL BEING HUNTED

Frankfurt, Germany, March 27—(AP)—Gold bullion worth $11,000 is still being hunted in the wreckage of the Dutch airliner that crashed near here last Saturday with a loss of 44 lives. The rest of $500,000 worth of gold being flown from South Africa on the ill-fated craft has been recovered.

P. E. Canners Will Not Sign Contracts to Process Tomatoes At $35 Ton on Ungraded Basis

Picton.—"We cannot process tomatoes if we are forced to pay $35 per ton for tomatoes on an ungraded bases," a spokesman for Prince Edward County and Bay of Quinte District Canners declared here today.

"At a meeting in Picton this week, canners from the entire district agreed that no contracts would be signed. To put it bluntly, we will not can tomatoes at that price—we cannot," the spokesman, who declined use of his name, declared.

The matter of tomato prices was decided last week by arbitration, with representatives of the growers and canners and an impartial judge forming the board. The prices were approved by the Ontario Marketing Board. Price for No. 1 tomatoes was increased from $33.50 per ton last year to $40 in 1952; for No. 2 grade from $23.50 per ton to $30 ton.

The canners base their decision to withhold plans for processing tomatoes on two main points. The first concerns financing. Smaller factories depend upon banks for finances until the pack is sold. Experience has shown them that this financing will be difficult to secure, since there is little assurance that profit can be made from $35 per ton tomatoes.

Strong Competition

The second important factor is the competition provided by California-packed tomatoes and tomato juice. California has announced field price of $30 a ton for 1952 tomatoes. This permits under-selling on Canadian tomatoes, not only locally, but in the important Western Canada market. Canners fear the latter market will be lost entirely to them if the higher price is paid.

Canners also point out that Quebec has no marketing legislation and prices there are lower than here, and again there is under-selling.

The increase in the price asked is 22 per cent. In addition, cost of cans is up seven per cent.

Labor costs are still rising.

One canner pointed out that there is a mistaken idea of the profit made by canners last year. The surplus pack, uncontracted by wholesalers, sold at $5 to $5.50 a case, he said. But three-quarters of the pack was sold in advance for $3.80 per case, he said.

"We are really alarmed over the situation," a canner stated. "We want the farmers to have a fair deal, but we just cannot—and wont—process tomatoes at that price. We will seek to have the price reviewed and revised so that we can hold the markets."

The higher prices were a victory for the newly-formed Growers' Co-operative. Successive poor crops in Ontario, plus empty wholesale and retail shelves were strong factors in the decision. The fact that canners secured extra returns for stock not sold before the pack, strengthened their case.

However, it is understood that some farmers are willing to take less than the minimum price, the top grade of which equals $1.20 bushel.

Last year, the growers refused to accept the arbitrated price and went on strike. They won a better price. This year it is the canners who are "on strike."

MAD AT CUSTOMS

Cape Town — (CP)— Dr. Danie Craven, trainer of the South African rugby team which toured Britain and France, had to pay £20 in custom dues on gifts and knick-knacks he brought back. Players also complained about severity of the regulations, saying the customs officials had usually been more tolerant on previous tours.

DOCKERS STRIKE

Genoa, March 28 (AP) —Approximately 8,000 dockers struck yesterday in this major north Italian port for a 20 percent wage boost. They now get about $5 a day. The strike tied up cargo ships, but workers continued to unload passenger baggage.

48 Candidates Are Confirmed At Christ Church

On Sunday evening Archbishop Lyons visited Christ Church for the Holy Rite of Confirmation. A large class consisting of 48 candidates was presented by the rector. There were seven others confirmed, four from the Military Station at Picton, presented by the chaplain, Capt. the Rev. G. A. Hatten, two from Madoc, presented by Rev. T. Harvey Good and one from Gananoque, presented by Archdeacon N. R. Stout. Assisting the archbishop in the service were the following, the Archdeacon N. R. Stout, Gananoque, Capt. the Rev. G. A. Hatten, Picton, Rev. T. Harvey Good, Madoc, Rev. Jos. Cantrell, of Belleville, Rev. E. P. Smith, Christ Church and the rector, Canon J. B. Creeggan.

A large congregation was present for the service of confirmation and also to mark the last visit of Archbishop Lyons to the parish, as Bishop of Ontario, since his retirement takes effect March 31st. The archbishop will visit Belleville again at St. Thomas Church for confirmation this Sunday.

After the service the candidates, their relatives and friends and members of the congregation with the archbishop and clergy went to the parish hall, where they were the guests of the Contact Club of Christ Church for a social hour and refreshments. Mr. Fred Beeby, People's Warden welcomed the bishop on behalf of the congregation, speaking of his long service as priest and bishop of the diocese. He expressed the wish that the archbishop would have many happy years of retirement from his responsibilities. Confirmation cards were presented by the archbishop, giving him the opportunity to speak a kind and cheery word to each one individually.

THREE KINDS

gotiated into some form of mutual military aid agreement.)

The navy will be ready for war, if it should start, in the next 12 months in men and surface ships. The navy now is ready to conduct initial war operations and to provide a rapid base for expansion. The navy's air arm will not be fully modernized until after December, 1954, but by that date most of its fighters will be all-jet powered.

Vice Admiral John M. Cassady., deputy chief of naval operations for air, named the new guided missles that will go into operational use this year as 'Terrier 1,' 'Sparrow 1 and 'Regulus.' The first two are for defence against planes. The last was listed by the admiral as the first "offensive" guided missile. It will be used by ships against other ships or against shore targets.

(Another admiral recently told a congressional group that the 'Sparrow' could knock out an enemy plane three or four miles away.)

Cassady said the three missiles are "being produced by assembly-line methods" but that production is being held to the bare minimum needed to attain the techniques that would be required for all-out production in the event of full mobilization.

Rookie Ben Wade Looks Like Star For Brooklyn

Bradenton, Fla., March 28 — (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers may have hit pay dirt once again in the case of Ben Wade who is striving for a pitching berth at the ripe old baseball age of 29.

Wade, younger brother of Jake who pitched for six American League clubs, is on the Montreal International League roster but he won't be there long if he keeps up his good work.

Thirty years ago the Dodgers gave another old gaffer, 29-year-old Dazzy Vance, a chance after he had been passed up by Pittsburgh and the Yankees. Vance won 18 games in 1922 and 189 during his 11 years with the Dodgers.

The Dodgers struck it rich again in 1939 when they took on Whitlow Wyatt 31, who had failed in previous trials with Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago White Sox. Wyatt and Vance rank as twp of the greatest righthanders in Brooklyn's history.

Wade, also a righthander, has been knocking around the minors for 11 years. He just about clinched a job yesterday as the Dodgers defeated the Boston Braves 3-0 on one hit.

He held the Braves hitless until the seventh inning when Sam Jethroe beat out a bunt for Boston's only safety. Wade left after the seventh and Johnny Schmitz finished up.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Senators will apply for admission to the American Hockey League at the league's next meeting, the Cleveland Plain Dealer says. At present Ottawa is in the Quebec Senior Hockey League, for years it had teams in the National League and had more Stanley Cup champions than any other city.

The Plain Dealer says: "Tommy Gorman, wealthy Ottawa sports figure and prominent in hockey for 40 years, has written asking the American League to consider taking in his Senators."

In Ottawa last night, Gorman said he had been approached with regard to entry into the A.H.L. but had "no comment" on the Cleveland report.

In another Cleveland report yesterday, James C. Hendy, general manager of Cleveland Barons, said he definitely will apply this season for admission to the National Hockey League.

Manager Eddie Sawyer of Philadelphia Phillies slapped a $200 fine on third baseman Willie (Puddinhead) Jones yesterday in Clearwater, Fla., for "conduct detrimental to the welfare of the ball club." He declined to elaborate, but reporters concluded that Jones, 26-year-old former Toronto Maple Leafs infielder, had violated the midnight curfew. The fine was unofficially reported the biggest since Miller Huggins tagged the late Babe Ruth for $500 in the 1920s.

Rocky Graziano, former middleweight champion who meets champion Ray Robinson for the 160-pound title in Chicago next month, scored a technical knockout victory over Roy Wouters of Vancouver last night in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout in St. Paul, Minn.

Youthful Marilyn Smith and veteran Patty Berg trimmed par with 73s to tie for the lead in the $4,000 New Orleans Women's Open golf tournament yesterday after 18 holes. Babe Zaharias posted a one-over par 75 to take third spot after first round play in the 72 hole tournament.

Edmonton Mercurys last night in London bowed to Wembley Lions 7-6 in an exhibition hockey game.

Jack Kearns, manager of light heavyweight champion Joe Maxim, said yesterday in Chicago that he has signed with London promoter Jack Solomons for a title fight this summer at a guarantee of $100,000. Kearns said Maxim would meet either Don Cockell or Randy Turpin in London June or July.

Marty Furgol, 34-year-old professional from Lemont, Ill., yesterday equalled the course record with an eight-under-par 64 to lead a mass assault on par in the opening round of the $10,000 Azalea Open golf tournament in Wilmington, N.C.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Hpenix, Ariz., March 28 (AP) —His face has become lined and somewhat weatherworn from a thousand suns, but his left arm still hangs at that strange angle and heads still turn when he strides through the hotel lobby.

They whisper: "That's Carl Hubbell."

Hubbell's left wing took on a permanent slant from the years he threw the screwball, a sort of patented and unnatural delivery in which he twisted his wrist backward and let the ball go from the side of his hand. Nothing quite like it, or quite so consistently effective, has been seen since. Carl now is head of the Giants' extensive farm system, and he is showing results. He's here trying to find out which youngsters the parent club an let him have back so he can begin to smooth out his minor league rosters.

In a discussion of the science of pitching as practised by the good ones, Hub, one of the true greats, was able to shed much light on some of the inner workings.

"Some managers have a kind of mania about getting that first pitch over, staying ahead of the batter," he observed. "I never worked that way, and neither have any of the real good pitchers I've known. I guess I was what you would call a two-behind pitcher, because I always felt better and had the most success against a majority of hitters after I had put the first two pitches outside the strike zone."

Did he mean that he habitually and deliberately missed the plate with his first two tosses—got himself into the hole to that extent? No wonder managers go nuts.

"Sure," Hub grinned. "That way you really get most batters set up. He says to himself, now this sucker will have to come right through the middle with a nice, fat fast one, and he gets himself set to knock it a mile. That's when you slip him the one with some stuff on it that you wanted him to hit all the time.

"Of course, if you miss with that third one, you're in trouble. I wouldn't recommend the two-ball routine to any pitcher who hasn't got absolute confidence in his control, as I had in mine. But it's wonderfully effective if you know you can put the ball where you want it and with some stuff on it.

"The funniest thing is that batters, with very few exceptions, never change. I pitched the same way to scores of batters for years and years, used exactly the same tactics in every game, and yet they went right on falling for it. They never changed their stance or altered their swing or quit going for the pitch I wanted them to hit."

Saskatoon Edges Edmonton 2-1 For Second Win

(By The Canadian Press)

Saskatoon Quakers last night edged Edmonton Flyers 2-1 in a tense battle before a sell out crowd of more than 5,300 in Saskatoon to take a 2-1 lead in games in a best-of-five Pacific Coast Hockey League quarter-final.

George Senick's goal from Ken Hunter and Carl Kaiser at 18.56 of the third period settled the decision in Quakers favor to give them a commanding advantage in the series which continues at Edmonton Saturday night.

Chuck McCullough scored the first Saskatoon goal from Doug Bentley at 9:19 in the opening period and Jim Uniac tied the score for Edmonton at 15:18 of the second period with Eldor Thomas and Howie Cox assisting.

WOULD LIKE TO RETIRE

Pusan, Korea, March 27 (AP) — President Syngman Rhee, on his 77th birthday, said today: "I would like to retire to make way for young and able men." But he did not say he would not seek re-election in June. Korean political observers interpreted his remarks as an invitation to his followers to urge his candidacy.

90th Birthday Celebrated By Mrs. Geo. Martin

Picton — Still enjoying good health, Mrs. George Martin yesterday celebrated her 90th birthday. An anniversary dinner was held at the home of her son, Bruce Martin. Mrs. Martin has spent all her life in Athol township. She retains the use of all her faculties and enjoys assisting with the housework. She has two sons, Bruce and Stirling, and one granddaughter, Shirley Martin.

Hundreds View Work

Several hundred people attended a display of work done by the hobby classes at Picton Public School Wednesday night. The classes, sponsored by the Home and School Association, have been under way for the past two months, and the display revealed astonishing progress. Many articles of sewing, knitting, weaving, articles from tin, model planes, leather work, puppets, shell craft and snapshots were on display. Though the work of children, most of the articles would have reflected credit on adults.

Need of Conservation Stressed

The need of conservation was stressed by Major P. G. Ketcheson when he addressed Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club at its monthly dinner. This theme was further stressed in the showing of two Carling films dealing with trout and caribou.

The new club president, William Norton welcomed the members and guests, totalling nearly 100. He said the club has made donations to the Red Cross and to the Easter Seals campaign. In a draw, Nick Welsh was winner of a rifle. Past President Ray Young gave highlights of the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers.

READY TO GO

The junior Hawks came out of the rugged Weston Dukes battle on Wednesday night in fairly good shape. Billy Strahan suffered a painfully bruised knee when a Duke flipped him over his head during the third period, but the limb is responding to treatment and the fleet winger will soon round into shape . . . Barrie plays at Weston on Saturday night, it says here . . . One of the "joltingest" bodychecks handed out the other night was that given to Reid, (17) husky Duke, by Bob Wilson. It jarred half the spectators in the arena . . . The Hawks now they have tested the enemy steel are confident they can give the Dukes the battle of their lives in the forthcoming playoffs . . .

Bill Tobin, Chicago Black Hawks boss, sent a wire to the Hawks management congratulating the team on the fine showing it has made todate. He expressed his regret at not being able to be present at Wednesday night's game but said he would make a special trip to Toronto next Tuesday to watch the team perform.

"My best wishes to the team" he added. "I feel sure the determination they have shown todate will carry them through to the top. Good luck to you and the boys".

"Red" Hamill coach of the Galt junior "A" club, Carson Cooper, Detroit Red Wings scout and Johnny Mitchell of the Black Hawks Chicago organization saw the tilt as did Kenny Wharram, Galt junior "A" star, who played a game or so with the National League team. Kenny was nursing a broken arm. Said the Hawks shaped up as one of the best junior "B" squads he has seen this season. Mitchell also praised the kids as did Hamill. Chief scout Wilson with Mrs. Wilson was also present and was well satisfied with the showing made by the Hawks.

PETES PRODUCE

Peterborough Petes with little regard for anybody's feelings handed the same lethal dose to the Kingston Sacs as they did to our late lamented senior Hawks. They swept the series in four straight games rushing through the group playoffs undefeated with eight Kingston and Belleville scalps at belt.

Kingston, according to Michael J. Rodden, seems to be "fed up" with the senior "B" picture in the district. And the Sacs apparently won't be sending the OHA any Christmas presents. He states that "rumors" have it that Kingston would welcome entry in a league not affiliated with the OHA which would include teams east of the Limestone City.

Writes Michael:

"Hockey hasn't produced the financial returns anticipated this season in the costly Community Memorial Centre and ways and means will have to be found to gain the support of the paying public. The senior "B" group including two teams from Peterborough and one each from Belleville and Kingston seems to have outlived its welcome.

"A proposal has been made that a league be organized with Ottawa, Renfrew, Pembroke, Cornwall and Kingston represented when the next campaign rolls around but only time will tell if this will become a reality. The step locally would be a drastic one in that the new league would not be affiliated with the Ontario Association.

"Ottawa Senators are the Achilles Heel in the mooted new deal. They have been operated at staggering expense in the widely strung out Quebec League and are reported to be seeking greener pastures. Pembroke and Kingston, having modern arenas, face the same problems and each seeks the road that leads to success."

LOYAL FANS

Marmora, to quote the Peterborough scribe, will likely be a "ghost village" tonight when the central section champion Millionaires clash with the Trenton RCAF Flyers in the first game of the Trent Valley League championship series in Memorial Arena.

The loyal fans of Marmora flocked to Peterborough the other night to cheer the team to victory over Havelock and tonight they will likely padlock the village and hike to Belleville for the "crooshul" opening game. Game starts at 8.30.

Mosconi Holds Two World Marks

Boston, March 28 (CP) —Willie Mosconi, defending champion, today held two new world records after chalking up his fourth straight victory in as many matches in the world pocket billiard championship round-robin series.

The Havertown, Pa., cue artist reeled off a high run of 121 in one inning last night while trouncing George Chenier of Toronto, 150-2, in two innings. It was Chenier's second defeat against one victory.

Mosconi's high run shattered the mark of 114 set by Joe Diehl of Rockford, Ill., in 1950, and his 150 two inning total bettered by one inning the mark he set last year.

Donald de Coy of St. Louis meets Chenier today.

Geoffrion Paces Habitants To McNeil's First Shutout; Tubby Turk in Toronto Net

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 28 — (CP) — Boom Boom Geoffrion's game-busting hat trick and Gerry McNeil's goal-tending wizardry left Boston Bruins with a mountain-size task today if they hope to overhaul the free-running Montreal Canadiens.

The amazing Montreal rookie many periods last night to lead his mates to a 4-0 trouncing of spaced his three goals through as the Bruins and give Canadiens the first two games of the Stanley Cup semi-final.

The best-of-seven series in the annual hockey scramble, with the Bruins decidedly on the spot, now moves to Boston. The third and fourth games will be played there Sunday and Tuesday.

Mosdell Breaks Leg

Geoffrion's triple followed a first-period goal by Ken Mosdell, centre of Canadiens' checking line. A few minutes later, Mosdell crashed into the boards and suffered a double fracture of the right leg.

Once that first goal was safely stowed away, Canadiens romped merrily along on the Boomer's marksmanship but they needed little McNeil to hold them together when the frustrated Bruins threw all they had into desperate offensives.

There was more vim and vigor to the Bruins' attack last night than they showed Tuesday when they were walloped 5-1.

Their front lines worked better, they bored deep into Montreal territory with more consistency but they couldn't beat the agile little goalie who dived headlong to the ice at least half a dozen times for sensational saves.

Canadiens soon found their defence in front of McNeil wasn't impregnable. At that, it was better than Boston's. Up front, Canadiens' speedier forwards buzzed around the lumbering Bruins, missing few chances to strike quickly when the opportunity came.

Mosdell's loss is a blow to Canadiens. He is the second centre man lost in a week. Johnny McCormack suffered a broken arm last Saturday night while playing against Detroit Red Wings in the second-last game of the regular season.

Ed Sandford of the Bruins piled into the boards with Mosdell. Both fell while racing for a rolling puck that was headed toward the Montreal goal.

Coach Dick Irvin now is faced with the problem of changing his front lines or calling on one of his farm hands. Last night rookie Dickie Moore was moved from his left-wing spot on the line with Richard and Elmer Lach to replace Mosdell at centre on the third line.

Irvin hinted that he may try out young Gerry (Dutch) Edmundson who hails from Grand Prairie, Alta., and played with the Kitchener, Ont., juniors this season.

Coach Lynn Patrick of the Bruins indicated last night he had no immediate plans for replacements to bolster his team.

But now that Hershey Bears are out of the American Hockey League playoffs—eliminated last night—it wouldn't be surprising to see some farmhands hurriedly called to Boston.

Detroit, March 28 — (CP) — Tubby Turk Broda, too old to help during the regular National Hockey League season and at least 12 pounds over his best playing weight, may become Toronto Maple Leafs' chief hope of stopping the onrushing Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The 37-year-old Turk made a dramatic return from near retirement last night and came within an eyelash of unfolding one of hockey's great comebacks. Only a cheap first-period Red Wing goal by a rookie left-winger Johnny Wilson, robbed Broda of one of his great moments.

It was the only goal of the night and it put the Wings, N. H. L. champions, two games up in their best-of-seven semi-finals. The teams now move to Toronto for the third and fourth games Saturday and Tuesday nights.

The Leafs played their hearts out for Broda who, at 37, is the oldest man in the big time, but they couldn't get past Terry Sawchuk, Vezina Trophy winner this season who now has two straight playoff shutouts. But it was the Turkey's night and he lugged his 202 pounds around the nets in almost-perfect style.

Made 100th Game

He made his 100th playoff game —incidentally, a record—one of his greatest. And the old performer drew praise from Conn Smythe, the Leafs' managing director, Detroit manager Jack Adams and most of the 15,146 crowd that rocked Olympia Stadium with their cheers for Broda.

The soon-to-be 38-year-old (May 15) goalkeeper, an institution around the N. H. L. circuit since the 1936-37 season had played only 30 minutes this season. That was in the final game of the schedule against Boston Bruins.

At first the crowd thought Smythe's use of Broda was just a sentimental gesture to allow the Turk to play in his 100th playoff game. Sentimental or not, the blue and white team played it with all the stops out but bumped up against one of Sawchuk's better games.

Thought He Had It

"I thought I had the winning goal blocked," Broda said in the dressing room. Metro Prystai set up the goal with a pass to Alex Delvecchio 20 feet in front of the net. Broda made a great stop of it but Wilson, appearing in his third playoff game, and standing by the net, flicked in the rebound for his second goal of the series.

It came at 15:33, just after Toronto defenceman Bill Juzda was penalized for boarding. And Wings didn't have another decent scoring chance.

Leafs almost went out in front early in the game when Jim Thomson's shot hit the post with Sawchuk out of position and they almost scored in the third period to tie the game.

Max Bentley stick-handled to the Detroit net and passed to Sid Smith who he figured was in slightly better position on the other side of the net. The left-winger blazed one at Sawchuk from a few feet out and the goalkeeper barely got a piece of it.

The Wings' big line of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel was broken up when Abel sat this one out due to a knee injury suffered in the first game Tuesday night. Defenceman Len (Red) Kelly took his place but Abel is expected to see action Saturday.

Compared to Tuesday's rough-house, when a record 29 penalties were called, last night's game was tame stuff. Referee Red Storey called only nine penalties, six against the Leafs.

Ben Johnson, the first president of the American Baseball League, died in St. Louis 21 years ago today. Johnson was the league president from 1900 to 1927 when he resigned because of illness, after taking leave of absence during most of the 1927 season.

Hornets, Reds Oust Hershey, Cleveland Barons

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets have advanced to the finals of the American Hockey League, accomplishing this Thursday night on Bob Solinger's goal at 1:54 of the second overtime period.

The goal gave Pittsburgh a 4-3 decision over Hershey Bears and enabled them to take the best-of-seven "A" series four games to one.

Pittsburgh, winners of the A. H. L. championship and the western division title, now will meet the winner of the Providence-Cincinnati semi-final.

Providence qualified for the best-of-five series by ousting Cleveland Barons, 4-2, in the deciding game of their best-of-five set.

At Pittsburgh, the Bears, eastern division champions, led 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Sam Bettio and Joe Schertzl while Andy Barbe got one for Pittsburgh.

Chuck Blair tied the game for Pittsburgh at 3.32 of the middle session but the Bears came back a little more than a minute later to go in front again on Schertzl's second goal.

Gordie Hannigan scored at 8:10 to tie the game 3-3. The teams battled through a scoreless final period and first overtime session until Solinger came up with his winning effort.

Third Straight

At Cleveland, it was the Reds' third straight victory over the defending champions, who won both the league and playoff titles in 1950-51. Providence stayed in command all the way and scored three times before Cleveland got a goal.

Pete Kapusta got the first goal in the first period and Ken Smith scored another just 50 seconds later. Kapusta backed up another in the second period before Ken Schultzl finally scored one for Cleveland at 14:02 of the second.

In the last period, Zellio Toppazzini ran the count to 4-1 and Ike Hildebrand netted the final tally for the Barons.

Winners Decided In Major A Bowling League

The Major "A" Bowling League returned two winners at the closing games of the 1951-52 season at the Bowl-O-Drome last night.

Moore's Chisellers won the schedule's fourth quarter title and Jim Corlies nosed out Jim McKenzie for the high average championship.

Chisellers added the fourth quarter title to the third defeating Lawn Bowlers by a 5-2 count.

Corlies and McKenzie staged a close race for average honors the former barely winning by decimal points. Corlies average was 241.31 as against McKenzie's 241.34.

In the other games Kinsmen won over City Cleaners 7-0 with Belleville Golf and C.N.R. taking 5-2 decisions from Callaghan's Ice and Schwabs.

"Toots" Holway of Kinsmen was high for the night with 828 (309-183-336); Ron Saylor 799 (322); Vic Belliveau 745; Joe Legault 741, (307); Wilbur Kiser 731; Wally Dingman 719; Ernie Colebourne 712, (207); Jack Callaghan 696; Art Cruft 691; Jim Corlies 687; Jim Semark 670; Les Lennox 662; Jack Bennett 660; Jim McKenzie 659; Frank Bailey 655; Al Hitchon 650.

The final standing: Moore's Chisellers 40; Belleville Golf 33; Schwabs 31; C.N.R. 26; Lawn Bowlers 23; Kinsmen 21; City Cleaners 12 and Callaghan Ice 10.

Giants Release Clint Hartung

By BOB MYERS

Phoenix, Ariz., March 28 (AP)—New York Giants announced the outright release today of Clint Hartung—sold for an undisclosed sum to Minneapolis—thus adding what may be a final chapter in the big league career of one of baseball's most publicized rookies.

President Horace Stoneham made the statement which ended the Giants' five-year trial with 'the big kid from Texas.'

His departure was in sharp contrast to the spring of 1947 when the lean, six-foot 4 1-2 figure first checked into the Giants' camp here.

He was the rookie bet of the post war era. Thousands of words and hundreds of pictures told of young Hartung, then 24 years old.

His fame was based on exploits with an army team in Honolulu. He could pitch, he could hit, he could play the outfield. As it developed, Hartung was not ready for major league baseball. And baseball law can be blamed as much as anything for his failure.

Farm director Carl Hubbell explained it today. Said the old pitching star: "every year since Clint came to us, we tried to get him waived out of the league. We wanted to farm him out for experience. We never could, until yesterday."

Braves' Jethroe Not Slowed Up

Bradenton, Fla., March 28 (AP)—Sam Jethroe's gold tooth glittered as a wide grin spread across his face.

"Have I slowed up?" he echoed. "Man, what makes you ask such a silly question? Why, man, I'm faster than I ever was. The older I get, the speedier I become. That's a fact, man."

The slender, owlish-looking centrefielder of the Boston Braves, listed as 30 years in the record books, generally is regarded as the fastest man in the majors. In each of his two seasons in the big leagues "The Jet" has paced the base stealers with 35 each season.

Jethroe, who wears glasses, thinks they have helped him a great deal.

"I can see the ball much clearer now," he explained, "especially in the field. Before I started wearing them, there were times when I didn't see the ball until it was almost by me! Now, I can get the jump on the ball."

Jethroe was batting around .260 until he purchased the specs. That was in July. From then on, he raised his average to .280 and his fielding improved considerably.

Sam is a rare specie among ball players, a switch hitter.

"I am a natural born righthander," he explained. "I used to bat crosshanded, with my left hand above my right. So they made me into a switch hitter. I hit better lefthanded. That is, for average, not distance. I have more power batting righthanded."

Baseball Rookies Finest Crop In Many Years

Tampa, Fla., —(AP)—The 1952 major league baseball season should produce just about the best freshman crop of the last 10 years.

Of the 122 rookies with the 16 big league clubs, chances are that from 25 to 35 will be in the regular lineups when opening day rolls around April 15. That's more than double the normal output.

Candidate for the No. 1 rookie of the Grapefruit League in Florida is Andy Carey, third baseman with the Yankees. The St. Mary's College of California alumnus seems a cinch to open the regular season with the world champions. He has impressed onlookers with his power at the plate and his steadiness in the field.

The No. 2 rookie is Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, the colorful lefthanded strikeout pitcher from Houston, who is tabbed a sure shot to win a starting berth on the Cardinals. His fast ball is alive and his curve is explosive.

"You don't have to be an expert to predict that the kid pitcher will go places," observed manager Tommy Holmes of the Braves.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A penalty pass of a takeout double turns the takeout double into a penalty double. Is that good? Is it bad for the player who has bid? What can be done about it?

South opens with a heart. West doubles for takeout. North and east pass. This pass by east turns the west takeout double into a penalty double. East says he can defeat one heart doubled.

The south player must realize he is in some kind of trouble. If west has what it takes for a takeout double and east can afford to pass, south is not only in trouble. He is in a trap.

West shows strength. East shows enough additional stuff to sink one heart. What kind of stuff? Evidently strength in hearts. So, if north has nothing the defeat of one heart may be a big loss.

Is south willing to take the rap? If not, he has a choice of outs. He may pass if (1) he thinks he can make one heart despite what east says, or if (2) he thinks his loss may be very small.

If he thinks he can do better or no worse at another bid, he can mention another suit. This will help his partner decide which of his suits will be best for their side under the circumstances.

He may have another alternative. His hand may contain support for two other suits. All he may need is to know which of partner's suits is the longest. So, he may ask partner to bid.

Since his partner has passed and may pass again unless forced, he must force partner to bid. How does he do this? By redoubling. Such a redouble is a signal that forces partner to bid.

Suppose south has this hand:

♥K J 7 6
♦A Q 7 2
♣A 8 6 5

If the bidding went as mentioned, south would redouble in a spot like this. Such a redouble is the same as a takeout double.

When you know the ropes it improves your hopes.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 28 (AP)—The movie Indian is pictured as a howling savage who submits cowboys and pioneers to all kinds of tortures and murders for the heck of it.

And some Indians don't like it.

One of these is Iron Eyes Cody, a Cherokee who is in a position to do something about it. An expert on Indian lore, he has been in the movies as actor and technical adviser since "The Covered Wagon" in 1924.

Indian's Side

"There have lately been some excellent pictures that show the Indian's side," he remarked, naming such films as "Devil's Doorway," "Broken Arrow," "Comache Territory" and "Navajo."

"But still there are too many pictures which are either inaccurate or put Indians in a bad light.

"For instance, the studios nearly always paint up the Indians like African savages. The truth is that the Indians did not put on paint to look ferocious. They only put on lines of color to represent dreams they had before going into battle."

Feathered warbonnets were used by only a few tribes, he added, and each feather symbolized an act of valor.

Another thing—not all Indians lived in teepees.

"The Indians lived in everything from mud huts to cliff dwellings" he said.

Iron Eyes added that the Indians are no more maddened by liquor than any other race.

"It's all a matter of whether a person has built up a resistance to alcohol," he explained. "Some Indians had their own native alcoholic drinks, so the white man's liquor didn't faze them."

Besides advising the film studios, Iron Eyes has his own local television show. He plans to make TV films about the true Indian life.

"My main purpose," Cody said, "is to present the American Indian as what he really was—and is—a human being with high cultural standards. When he had to use force it was to protect what he felt was rightfully his."

INDIAN STEER

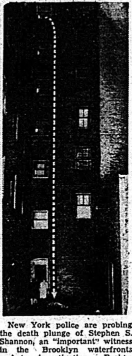
The cayuse originally meant an Indian pony, the name deriving from an Indian tribe in the Western states.

AT THE BELLE — Robert Taylor playing Marcus Vinicius, commander of Nero's military legions, falls under the spell of Lygia, lovely Christian hostage, enacted by Deborah Kerr in "Quo Vadis," M.G.M.'s spectacular Technicolor drama, filmed in Italy, starting at the Belle Theatre today, with continuous showings daily.

AT THE CAPITOL — Margaret O'Brien, starring in Columbia Pictures' "Her First Romance," at Capitol Theatre today and Saturday, goes from a pigtail kid to a camp queen in a laugh-crazy story of that boy-crazy age. On the same program, in color by Technicolor, "Man In The Saddle," with Randolph Scott. Both hits are first showing. Continuous showing Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL — Randolph Scott stars in Columbia's "Man in the Saddle," in color by Technicolor at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. Joan Leslie, Ellen Drew and Alexander Knox are featured. On the same program Margaret O'Brien in "Her First Romance." Both hits are first showings. Continuous showing Saturday from 1.00.

Another Witness Dies Before Trial



New York police are probing the death plunge of Stephen S. Shannon, an "important" witness in the Brooklyn waterfronts rackets investigation. Broken line shows where he plummeted from a stairwell window to an extension roof. Detectives are shown leaving after examining the remains. His death is the third within two months of important witnesses in U.S. criminal prosecution. — Central Press Canadian.

Bey of Tunis Names Premier To Succeed Chenik

Tunis, Tunisia, March 28. (AP)—The Bey of Tunis today named a new premier, regarded as friendly to France, to succeed Mohammed Chenik, who was arrested by the French for his nationalist activity.

The 71-year-old Bey, the country's nominal ruler, named Salah-Eddine Baccouche to replace Chenik. The new premier is a big Tunisian landowner and was premier of the country in 1949. He is regarded as a moderate in politics.

(In Paris, a high official of the French Foreign Ministry commented: "That is good news. Now France should be able to put into effect the reforms she proposed.")

The apparently conciliatory move of the Bey followed a day of ominous calm after the arrest of Chenik and three of his top ministers Wednesday on order of French resident General Jean de Hauteclocque, Tunisia's real ruler.

De Hauteclocque had charged them with fostering nationalist riots and demonstrations—demanding more self-rule for Tunisia—which since mid-January have resulted in almost 100 deaths and numerous acts of sabotage.

Throughout yesterday the Bey, Sidi Mohammed Al-Amin, had refused to see de Hauteclocque. The resident general was joined last night by two special envoys from Paris who flew here with special messages for the Bey from French President Vincent Auriol.

RIVER BURSTS BANK

Frankfurt, Germany, March 27 (Reuters)The Neckar River in south central Germany has burst its banks in several places, flooded some roads and villages, and forced a complete halt on river shipping on the lower reaches, river authorities reported here last night. The village of Murr, near Ludwigsburg, on the upper Neckar, was partly evacuated as flood water swirled into house cellars.

INAUGURATE SERVICE

London, March 27 — (AP) — British Overseas Airways Corporation announced today it will launch a new once-weekly service from Germany to Japan within a week. The nationalized airline said four-engined Argonaut airliners will set out from Frankfurt April 3, calling at Rome, Cairo, Basrah, Karachi, Calcutta, Rangoon, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Tokyo.

. . . From dueling

When we say that someone is a "stickler" for accuracy today we seldom think of dueling matches. But a stickler was a second in a dueling match. He was on hand to see that the contest was carried out according to the rules. The "stickler" carried a white stick as an emblem of his office.

TENDER

File#122-5-B1-27 Job#1912

Supply and Installation of a Steam Distribution System, Barriefield, Ont. (Vimy Area).

Sealed tenders plainly marked as to content and addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 2:00 p.m. E.S.T., Tuesday April 15th, 1952, for the performance of the following work: the supply and installation of a Steam Distribution System to be located at Barriefield, Ontario. (Vimy Area).

Specifications, plans and tender documents for this project may be obtained by prime contract tenderers at the address shown below. A deposit of $100.00 in the form of a cheque made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited is required for each complete set of plans, specifications and documents. This deposit will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition within seven days after tender award.

Each tender must be accompanied by a security deposit amounting to ten per cent (10%) of the tender price if such price is $500,000.00 or under and in addition five per cent (5%) of any excess of the tender price over $500,000.00. The security deposit will be forfeited in the event the successful tenderer refuses to enter into the contract on the basis of his tender when called upon to do so. The security deposit of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned. A marked cheque on a chartered Canadian bank and made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited or negotiable Dominion of Canada bonds will be accepted as security deposit.

Plans, specifications and contract documents have been made available for the purpose of information to sub-contractors and material suppliers at the following location: Kingston Builders Exchange, 83 Clarence Street, Kingston, Ontario.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Why We Say--
A "STICKLER" FOR ACCURACY
3-19

...From dueling

When we say that someone is a "stickler" for accuracy today we seldom think of dueling matches. But a stickler was a second in a dueling match. He was on hand to see that the contest was carried out according to the rules. The "stickler" carried a white stick as an emblem of his office.

Specifications, plans and tender documents for this project may be obtained by prime contract tenderers at the address shown below. A deposit of $100.00 in the form of a cheque made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited is required for each complete set of plans, specifications and documents. This deposit will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition within seven days after tender award.

Each tender must be accompanied by a security deposit amounting to ten per cent (10%) of the tender price if such price is $500,000.00 or under and in addition five per cent (5%) of any excess of the tender price over $500,000.00. The security deposit will be forfeited in the event the successful tenderer refuses to enter into the contract on the basis of his tender when called upon to do so. The security deposit of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned. A marked cheque on a chartered Canadian bank and made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited or negotiable Dominion of Canada bonds will be accepted as security deposit.

Plans, specifications and contract documents have been made available for the purpose of information to sub-contractors and material suppliers at the following location: Kingston Builders Exchange, 83 Clarence Street, Kingston, Ontario.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Not all encouraging but those who try hard, and work extra, will gain advantages. Be cognizant that we usually get what we earn, deserve,

April 22 to May 20 (Taurus)—More stimulating day than it looks on surface. Do some thinking, use plenty of energy, and reap rewards.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Stick to facts, constructive measures, and right principles to gain lasting success and recognition. Take no wild chances. Heart interests, socials thrive.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—With fairly strict exercise of your best efforts you can achieve some good results. Kindly understanding, less zeal to force your opinion will mean better relationships.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Start day with a clean slate. Study prospects thoughtfully; have proper discretion handling problems, answering questions, Good news coming!

August 23 to September 23 (Vigro)—A word of caution: don't stunt progress being either overconservative, nor too sure. Though competition is keen, you can make gains in many matters. Consistency wil lhelp.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Freeze out all foolish risks, unruly emotions; look at things with rational eye, with faith. An agreeably persuasive manner will fare better than iron-hand methods.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—You haven't realized one-half what you really can accomplish with concerted effort. Keep abreast of developments, new thoughts, true improvements.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Vibrations so-so. Beware of being gathered in by subtle talk, matters that seem harmless but actually pack trouble. Don't let doubt or fear hold sway.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A tendency toward tactlessness, or being all wrapped up in your own ideas. Check them! Today may have some buoyant, encouraging items. Be thoughtfully vigilant.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Advice, according to your planetary chart, is to be particular of what you say, how you commit yourself, especially in money or business matters. Be on the alert!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Don't allow small interruptions to bother you, neither be annoyed by others' negligence. Personal affairs will progress with co-operation, kindly attitude.

YOU BORN TODAY are of Aries, vivacious, quick-minded. The mental type of keen perception, but may often lack persistence to carry plans through to completion. You have idealistic, dynamic tendencies, enthuse at your undertakings, and have courage of your convictions, so see to it that you follow through as determinedly. Natural mechanical ability; also make excellent promoters, directors, writers, inventors. May indulge argument at times, making enemies. Correct your faults for your own and family's good. Sunday School Lesson of the Week

God and Minorities

By ROY L. SMITH

Anyone who has read history with any mental discernment must surely have noticed how many times the hope of the future has rested with some minority.

A cynical old statesman once remarked, "The majority is usually wrong." It was an overstatement, of course, but it at least deserves a second look, for in the conflict between the majority and the minority it has happened again and again that God has been with the minority.

Some Historic Minorities

There were millions of people living in Egypt and it was luxurious with rich and rare treasures gathered into its temples, and barns bursting with grain. The few thousand Jews who straggled across the Red Sea seemed like such a hopeless minority, but God and destiny went out with them into the wilderness.

Babylon appeared to be eternal; Jerusalem lay in ruins; and the Hebrews bloody and beaten were being led off into exile. It all looked so final. The noble experiment begun at Sinai was at an end. But who among us has had any dealings with a Babylonian, lately? Who survived the destruction of Jerusalem?

The eleven disciples hiding in back rooms in Jerusalem, with Jesus in the tomb of Joseph, were in the hopeless minority. A single raid on the part of a tiny squad of Roman soldiers could have wiped out the entire enterprise. But God was not with the Romans.

Read the lives of the truly great— Elizabeth Fry, Charles Kingsley, Cardinal Mercier, Cardinal Mindzenty, and thousands more—and notice how independent they were of numbers and power.

On the River Bank

No one knows, today, the name of the mayor of Philippi, nor who the richest man in town may have been that Sabbath morning that Paul found a few women praying at the river bank.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 30: "Lydia, Who Opened Heart and Home." Acts 16: 6-40.

There were many very rich, very famous, and very powerful people in the city—people who had almost given their lives for the power or the place they enjoyed—but no one today even knows their names. Destiny was on the river bank, and not in the city hall that sabbath morning.

And they were a company of women! No one, ordinarily, could have occupied a less promising position in the ancient world than did a woman. And the only people praying that morning at the river bank were women! That ought to indicate how stupid and foolish prayer was!

But when God sent Paul into Europe to redeem the continent he led him first to that prayer meeting!

Beware of Minorities

Thirty years ago a little group of people—some of them preachers—begin campaigning against the twelve hour day and the seven day week. They were called "Bolsheviks" then, but they would be called conservatives, or even reactionaries, if they were to take their same position today.

The missionaries were called visionaries, when they set off for the South Pacific to preach the gospel to the "heathen". But when the GI's found them, and saw the difference their preaching had made, they were called the forerunners of civilization.

Minorities have such strange ways of getting even with their persecutors among the majorities.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was thinking about getting reddy to do my homewerk, and I said to pop, Our teetcher had a fierce toothake today. Jimminy roozalem, it must of hert like anything. She gave us our lessons with one hand up to her face, and the principal sent for a substitoot, and as soon as the substitoot came, Miss Kitty went home, I said, and pop said, That's too bad.

Yes sir, us fellows were sorry as anything, I said, and pop said, By gollies, that's a proof that human nature is actually improving. When I was your age and a substitute was sent in, the class used to think it was the next best thing to Chrissmas. We talked and we Whissled and threw spit balls and we jumped around the class room like munkies. We behaved like little barbarians, and that's probably what we were. Kids really must of been wild in those days. Why, we used to ask for a substitoot in our prayers, he said.

Well jimminies, pop, we still do, I said. But heck, pop, who would ever of expected to get a sabstitoot 10 times more strict than Miss Kitty at her werst? She kept the whole class a half an hour after school for nuthing at all, I meen just only for trying to find out how strict she was. Gosh, pop, no wonder we were sorry, I said.

Well well, it looks like human nature hasn't changed after all, pop said. Perhaps it's a good thing. With everything elts changing so rapidly, maybe it's just as well to know that at least we're still hanging on to the same old human nature. Now get to werk on that homewerk, he said.

Which I did feeling agenst it.

Truman Faces Need for Action In Steel Dispute

Washington, March 28 (AP) — President Truman, just returned from his Florida vacation, faced the prospect today of having to act soon in the steel labor crisis.

Negotiations between Philip Murray's strike-threatening CIO steelworkers and big steel companies are in recess—with every indication they won't resume until the government clarifies its wage-price position.

A strike, already postponed four times by the steelworkers at the government's request, is now fixed for April 8.

Recommendations made by the wage stabilization board are in doubt with the W.S.B. claiming they fit within the anti-inflation rules and defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson contending they are "a serious threat" to economic stabilization.

Steel companies insist that if they are to put the proposals into effect they must first get government approval to boost steel prices by $12 a ton.

Any such price increase is being stoutly resisted by price stabilizer Ellis Arnall. He fears it would open the way for price boosts up and down the line, causing a new burst of inflation just when living costs have levelled off.

Thorough Review

The entire matter was ticketed for a thorough review by president's cabinet today. But there was no sign when Truman will step into the situation. The strike deadline is only a dozen days away.

Murray has insisted that he won't settle for anything less than the W.S.B. recommended.

This calls for a 17 1-2 cent an hour pay boost, of which 2 1-2 cents would be payable next July 1 and 2 1-2 cents next January 1. The W.S.B. also recommended the union shop, which would compel all steel workers to belong to the union, and added vacation, holiday, shift and Sunday pay benefits.

Steel workers now average about $1.80 an hour. But when overtime and other premium pay is added, their earnings average nearly $2 an hour.

Arnall's aides have figured that the steel industry has only $2 or $2.50 a ton increase coming under the Capehart amendment to the Controls Act covering post-Korean cost increases to July 26, 1951.

Murray has contended the industry could afford to grant the W.S.B.'s proposal and get along with only the $2-a-ton Capehart amendment allowance instead of the $12-a-ton the steel companies say would need.

NEVER SIMILIAR CASE

Corpus Christi, Tex., March 27. (AP)—Six-day-old John Cox is the joy of his dentist dad's heart. He was born with two teeth, upper cuspids. His father, Navy Lieut. Lee Cox said it wouldn't be so unusual if the teeth were lowers. A specialist in children's teeth told Cox he never had seen a similar case in 15 years of practice.

ONTARIO GOVT.

Health Minister Phillips told the House that he would like municipalities to wait for at least another year before beginning fluoridation of water supplies to prevent tooth decay. He said it will be another year before more statistics are available on present tests and the final results will not be known until 1955 or 1957.

Not Allowed to Sit on Floor

The legislature also adopted a motion by Premier Frost which is designed to speed up work on departmental estimates. Deputy ministers now will be permitted to sit on the floor of the House and aid ministers in answering questions. At present the aides sit at the edge of the legislature floor.

Crime comics came up for discussion in the afternoon session. It touched off a renewal of the clash that occurred Wednesday between J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. — Toronto St. Andrew) and the government front bench.

Wednesday's flare-up grew out of opposition demands for a reconstitution of the legislature's crime committee.

Yesterday, the communist member's demands for stricter enforcement of laws against crime comics launched a verbal fight between Mr. Salsberg and Attorney-General Porter.

Mr. Salsberg charged that the minister was failing in his duty to lay charges against sellers of such comics. He termed them a "very dangerous, very pernicious influence" on children and said the publisher was to blame, not the seller.

Mr. Porter said the comics "were saved up to make a spectacular speech when you should have taken action immediately."

He said such comics generally stayed away from picturing the actual committing of a crime. The government was careful to ensure freedom of the press, and even permitted the distribution of cards through the mail "depicting life in another country" which he had received every day for three months.

Sent to Law Offices

The heated debate was ended by Premier Frost who said the comic books introduced by Mr. Salsberg had already been sent to the legislature's law officers.

The government statement on its education policy was made during consideration of the education department estimates. It also was raised by Mr. Salsberg.

Mr. Frost said the 21 members of the Royal Commission, which met for nearly six years under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice J. A. Hope, were divided on certain basic points. On these points the government "should not divide the people."

Mr. Dunlop said there were some "excellent" recommendations in the report. Some of them, dealing with abolition of high school entrance examination, departure from the policy of "authorized" text books and extra stress on such subjects as citizenship, had been adopted before the appearance of the report.

YOU CAN AFFORD

THE Thor "500" DE LUXE AUTOMAGIC SINK

FACTS AND FIGURES REGARDING BUILDERS' SAVINGS
THE AVERAGE COST OF PLUMBING TO BUILDERS IN NEW HOMES TODAY IS BETWEEN $700.00 AND $800.00.

When a Thor Automagic Sink is installed in new homes, the builder will save up to $200.00 in plumbing and other costs as listed below. These figures were compiled after extensive canvassing of many plumbers and builders. They are meant to guide you as you list your own particular costs in comparing the many advantages to the builder and home purchaser.

KITCHEN
Kitchen Sink	$ 25.70
Kitchen Taps	15.97
	$ 41.67

BASEMENT
Laundry Tubs (concrete)	$ 20.10
Laundry Taps (swing)	8.00
4" Sewer drain and labor	15.00
Trap (S type)	4.87
Vent Pipe 1½"	8.00
Pipe Fittings	8.00

TOTAL SAVINGS (Approx.)
Kitchen Sink, etc.	$ 41.67
Laundry Tubs, etc.	78.97
Carpentry, Labor, etc.	92.00
	$212.64

NOTE:—

(1) Arrangements can invariably be made with the Mortgage Company to obtain an extra amount, often as high as $200.00 when the Thor Sink is installed, because it is a permanent fixture in the house.

(2) The builder has added space, eliminating the necessity of having a utility room.

(3) Where Septic Tanks are used in new building projects, we have found that many builders have saved the cost of purchasing and installing a special pump to be used for laundry tub drain water. The Thor Automagic Sink, of course, eliminates this extra material and labor as it combines washing-machine and kitchen sink in one streamlined cabinet.

(4) The Builder offers the prospective buyer of his house the most up-to-date method of home laundry which adds 'glamor' to the kitchen.

Three Americans Ride Ice Island, Nine Await Rescue

Plane Damages its Landing Gear on Takeoff Near Pole

Washington, March 29—(AP)—Three Americans rode a floating ice island on top of the world today while nine others, stranded in a thrust at the North Pole, awaited rescue.

Maj. Gen. William D. Old, commander of the Alaskan Air Command, reported to the Pentagon last night that an Air Force C-47 landed successfully March 19 on an ice island floating 60 to 100 miles from the North Pole.

Eight men made the landing but only three were left behind. The operation completes the first phase of a small expedition to set up a semi-permanent station to gather weather and scientific data.

Meanwhile, some 400 miles from the North Pole, a Navy RD-4 plane equipped as a flying Arctic laboratory damaged its landing gear on an attempted takeoff. The mishap left nine members of the Navy's "operation ski-jump" stranded on the ice, but unhurt and well-stocked with fuel and provisions.

The accident occurred at a research station established as a step toward the floating polar island. At Barrow, Alaska, about 700 miles to the south, Navy crews worked outside in bitter cold weather, rushing repairs on a plane damaged in an earlier accident. It was the only craft available to pick up the nine stranded men. They hoped to make a rescue flight Sunday.

A 10th Rescue Squadron plane, bearing supplies for the Polar Island, took off yesterday from Fairbanks, Alaska. After a brief rest in Greenland, it was scheduled to parachute supplies to the three airmen.

REMOVE RESTRICTIONS

Toronto, March 29. (CP)—A bill to remove restrictions on legal actions brought against the Crown, as represented by the provincial government, was introduced in the legislature yesterday by Attorney-General Porter.

It is similar to legislation passed last year by Nova Scotia and Manitoba.

At present the Attorney-General must give permission for any legal action against the provincial government or its Crown corporations.

If the bill is passed, the Crown in Ontario may be sued as if it were an individual.

Spring Blizzard Lashes Britain, Northern Europe

London, March 29 (CP) — The coldest spring blizzard in 36 years lashed the British Isles today and snow and cold gripped most of Europe.

Shipping in the churning English Channel was virtually at a standstill. A number of small boats sent out distress signals.

Road and rail transportation in southern England was blocked in many places by drifts piled as high as two feet. Three double-decker buses overturned on icy roads but no deaths were reported.

Air transportation into London was slowed. One plane from the United States was five hours late after bucking gale winds.

Mid-Atlantic gales delayed the 13,000-ton liner Parthia, due at Liverpool today from New York. She was expected to dock tomorrow morning.

Maximum temperature in London yesterday was 36 degrees fahrenheit, lowest for the date since 1916. The mercury dipped below freezing in most of southern England early today.

Weather observers gloomily predicted more of the same for the next few days. They blamed a cold front sweeping across northern Europe and Scandinavia from the Siberian "ice-box."

March, which entered like a lamb, roared out like a lion in other countries, too.

A blizzard swept most parts of Holland, threatening the endless acres of tulip bulbs which are just beginning to bloom.

Strong winds and heavy snow were reported in Belgium and Germany. Moscow radio said the Russian capital had its deepest snowfall in 10 years.

Anne Sterling Changes Story About Beating

Hollywood, March 29 — (AP) — Anne Sterling yesterday changed her story of having been kidnapped and beaten by four thugs. Instead, she said, she was battered by a Hollywood playboy at his home early last Monday.

The actress made the switch in the approved Hollywood style — calling in reporters and issuing a statement naming her asserted assailant.

Police said Miss Sterling did not immediately ask for a complaint against her alleged assailant.

Her lawyer, Jerome Weber, washed his hands of the case.

"I am withdrawing as her attorney," said Weber, "because she disregarded my instructions not to talk."

Miss Sterling was treated for bruises and lacerations "from head to foot" following the altercation. At first, she said four men had kidnapped her from her apartment house, taken her to a lonely mansion and slugged her.

MRS. PERON HONORED

Buenos Aires, March 29 (AP)—The pro-government Writers' Union proposed yesterday that the Argentine National Culture Commission award its grand prize for literature to Mrs. Eva Peron for her autobiographical "The Reason of My Life." The union said the book by President Peron's wife deserves the prize because of its "deep moral value" and other virtues.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— Synopsis: Under clear skies the temperatures dropped to the freezing point over most of southern Ontario Friday night, while readings near zero were reported to the north of Lake Superior.

During the weekend there will be variable amounts of cloudiness over the province with afternoon temperatures ranging from 40 to 45 degrees in most sections.

LOVE FOR GIRL COSTS MURDERER HIS FREEDOM

Melville Wilkie Taken By Police in B.C.

Vancouver, March 29 (CP)—Love of a 19-year-old raven-haired girl cost killer Melville Wilkie his freedom yesterday. And it was the girl who put the finger on him.

Wilkie, 42, squat and dark, escaped from the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene, Ont., for the fifth time July 19, 1950. He had been committed to the hospital for the criminally insane for the arson murder of his wife and child at Owen Sound, Ont., in 1933.

Police said Wilkie went to Winnipeg and took the name Andy McBeth.

In a boarding house there he met the dark beauty whom police identified only as Shirley. The two lived together and three months ago came to Vancouver.

Three days ago, police were tipped off that the couple was living in a one-room shack in Vancouver's squalid east end.

They went to make the arrest but Wilkie was not at home. When Shirley was told Wilkie's true identity, police said, she agreed to act as bait for a police trap.

Wilkie, knowingly, walked into the trap four times to try to persuade the girl to escape with him. Three times in a row the trap could not be sprung because police feared the girl might be caught in any exchange of gunfire.

The fourth time, Wilkie was spotted alone and the net fell on him. His car was overtaken after a 90-mile-an-hour chase through Vancouver streets and he surrendered meekly.

Ontario police are to fly here to return Wilkie to the hospital. His jailer said last night Wilkie had spoken only two sentences: "Please close the window. I have had pneumonia three times and I don't want to die in the city jail."

Spotted Police Car

Wilkie drove up to his home Thursday and spotted an empty police car outside. But he decided not to run.

He telephoned Shirley and arranged a street-corner rendezvous with the terrified girl. Two such meetings were held, the girl talking through the car window to Wilkie each time.

Armed police watched the meetings but made no move.

Late Thursday night, Wilkie drove up to the house and the girl went out to the sidewalk to talk with him. He yanked her into the car and sped off.

The couple drove around for about two hours. She still refused to leave with him. Wilkie let her out a couple of blocks from the house.

Red Charges of U.N. Germ Warfare Disbelieved Outside Iron Curtain

(By The Associated Press)

Soviet charges that the United States is waging germ warfare in North Korea and red China are meeting in general with disbelief outside the Iron Curtan countries, an Associated Press survey showed today.

It is impossible to tell what effect the Soviet charges are having on the populations in the communist countries. They get only the Soviet side of the story.

One of the chief aims of the Soviets is to sell the millions of people in southeast Asia the idea that the western powers have no compunction against using germ warfare to further "western imperialism."

The United States and Britain demanded that the international Red Cross or the World Health Organization be permitted to send experts into communist China and North Korea and report what they found. The communists replied with a scornful no.

British foreign office officials believe the communist refusal to permit such inspection has blunted the effect of the red propaganda on the minds of Asian peoples. But the officials admit that counteracting the "big lie" tactics of the Soviets is a tough task, and the communists will have a victory even if they raise doubts in enough minds.

Newspapers in French-controlled sections of Viet Nam, where the French are heading the fight against the communist led Vietminh, view the germ charges as ridiculous.

Saigon newspapers have pointed out that the Chinese communists killed off many of their best physicians in purges, are undoubtedly short of medical supplies and are undergoing epidemics.

In India a top-level official summarized his government's reaction to the Soviet charges as "incredulous horror."

Some followers of Mohandas Gandhi, however, are inclined to give the Chinese reds the benefit of the doubt until an inquiry is made.

Indonesia's press, concerned with a cabinet crisis, has paid almost no attention to the communist charges.

Responsible observers of public opinion feel, however, that the constant red reiteration of the charges has aroused "widespread doubts" among many Indonesians, who usualy tend to be suspicious of western sincerity.

In western Europe, as expected, officials and the press—with the exception of the communist organs—ridicule the Soviet germ war charges.

British officials and the press have hammered at the red charges as baseless lies intended to win a propaganda victory in Asia. Official Italian reaction has been the same.

The French officials and U.S. embassy officials in Paris think the French public, as a whole, does not take the red charges seriously. One leftist, non-communist paper even has satirized the reports in a cartoon showing North Korean soldiers equipped with flit guns.

Legislature Hopes to Find Means of Controlling Floods, High Water Along Great Lakes

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — The Ontario legislature hopes to find means of controlling floods and high water levels along the shores of the Great Lakes.

The legislature yesterday appointed an all-member select committee to study the problem and report next year. Its work is expected to parallel that of a similar investigation announced this week by the federal government.

Premier Frost, in moving for appointment of the committee, admitted the province has no jurisdiction over the international lakes. The committee's job would be to "obtain the best advice we can," find out what controls are exercised by states bordering the lakes and recommend any action that can be taken to control fluctuations in the lake levels.

At the same time Mr. Frost said the committee would not be concerned with relief to flood victims of recent storms along Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

In reply to opposition demands that the province give immediate aid, the premier said assistance is available from Ontario wherever the federal government declares an emergency situation.

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver said Ontario had sent $200,000 to Winnipeg flood victims and "shouldn't shove off to one side the responsibility of our own people."

Arthur Reaume (L—Essex), mayor of Windsor, said homes at Windsor and nearby Riverside were "actually floating away."

Committee Set Up

A second select committee also was set up to study the operation of election laws passed last year, in the light of last November's election. It also will meet between sessions.

With the two committees set up yesterday, the legislature will have four groups of members meeting between sessions. Commitees were appointed earlier to study rent controls and a new companies act.

Premier Frost reasserted his policy that the government will not pay cash relief to those at present unemployed. The question was raised by Mr. Oliver, who referred to a brief presented earlier in the day to the premier by a delegation from the self-styled Union of Unemployed Workers.

The premier said unemployment was mainly due to federal credit restrictions.

Ottawa Took Action

"The federal government took direct action to stop production in certain industries," he said. "Why not then extend the provision of unemployment insurance to take care of workers laid off?"

Any cash relief by the province would be in the form of additional unemployment insurance benefits, and the federal government had accepted responsibility for that in 1942.

"If we're to take care of unemployment insurance, give us the premiums and we'll do the job," he said.

Chairman of the Flood Waters Committee is O. F. Villeneauve (PC-Glengarry). Other members are Planning Minister Griesinger, Public Works Minister Thomas, Arthur Child (PC-Wentworth), William Murdoch (PC-Essex South), Hollis Beckett (PC-York East), Robert Manaulay (PC-Toronto Riverdale), Ray Myers (PC-Waterloo South), opposition leader Farquhar Oliver, W. L. Houck (L-Niagara Falls) and T. D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario).

To Meet Earlier

The legislature will meet at 2 P.M., one hour earlier than usual, Monday and Tuesday. More early-afternoon sittings and some night sittings are expected to clear up the session's work before Easter.

Debate Monday will centre on the labor department, whose budget estimates will be up for study.

During consideration yesterday of budget estimates for the Department of Travel and Publicity, the minister, Louis Cecile, said tourist camp operators would have to give additional service to U.S. tourists to offset the tourists' loss of a premium on the U.S. dollar.

"One of the first things we are planning to do is to impress on every Ontario resort operator the importance of making up for the loss of monetary premium of the finest kind of Ontario service," Mr. Cecile said.

U.S. Increases Firepower Of Army 50 Per Cent Over Second World War--Collins

Washington, March 29 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins says the United States Army has increased its firepower by 50 percent over the Second World War and is making "superior weapons to those of the Soviets."

The army chief-of-staff told Congress the Korean campaign proved this superiority.

Collins said the American arsenal of weapons—from artillery to tanks now would be "tremendously effective" against a mass Russian attack in Europe.

In the future, he said "atomic artillery and guided missiles with and without atomic warheads will greatly enhance the power" of forces trying to hold back a mass assault.

Collins and other top officers testified last month before the House of Representatives Appropriations sub-committee on army requests for $14,200,000,000 of new funds in next year's 52 billion dollar military budget. Their testimony was released today.

Maj. Gen. G. H. Decker, chief army budget officer, said the army's share of the Korean fighting averages about $380,000,000 a month, even during the "twilight war."

He said the army cost was around $7,000,000,000 at the end of last year and probably would reach $9,000,000,000 by next June 30, if fighting continues.

Draft Call to Jump

1. Army draft calls will jump to around 50,000 a month after July 1, more than triple the 15,000 scheduled for May. New recruits will be needed to replace between 600,000 and 700,000 inductees who will be released from service before June 30, 1953.

2. Anti-aircraft defences around key American cities and industrial areas have been more than doubled but are not yet sufficient, Collins said. However "our new rockets and missiles are showing great progress and will materially strengthen the defences of our cities against enemy air attacks."

Collins said a Russian attack on Europe would be met by the "great firepower" of conventional weapons, plus a "series of new anti-tank weapons," equally effective against troops and armor.

These would be augmented by "greatly improved tanks" and air-power.

"We know from experience that such a combination," he said, "can greatly reduce the offensive power of an army that uses masses of manpower and a great many tanks," such as the Russians do.

The chief of staff said the superiority of American land weapons over the Soviets had been proved in Korea.

Police Seek Hit-Run Driver

Toronto, March 29. (CP)—Police today sought a motorist they said left Robert Lord, 11, lying on a roadway last night after his car struck the child.

The boy has been staying with an aunt while his parents are in Montreal. He suffered a broken leg, concussion and possible rupture of the spleen.

His father, G. Ross Lord, is an associate professor at the University of Toronto.

Star Ups Price

Toronto, March 29 (CP) —The Toronto Daily Star today announced that effective Monday, March 31, its price will be five cents a single copy and 30 cents a week for home delivery. Previous rates were three cents a copy and 18 cents a week.

The announcement said the increase was due to higher production and distribution costs.

NEW TRADE AGREEMENT

Buenos Aires, March 29—(AP) — Finland and Argentina signed a new one-year trade treaty yesterday for exchange of $150,000,000 worth of goods. Argentine sends cereals, vegetable oils, vegetables, leather, meat extracts, fruits, wood paper, newsprint, precision instruments and motors.

ANNUAL QUARREL OVER ESTIMATES STAGED IN HOUSE

Opposition Says Not Enough Time Given

Ottawa, March 29 —(CP)—The Commons went through the anguish of its annual family quarrel last night.

The blow-up concerned the federal government's supplementary estimates, those last-minute appropriations brought down every year to meet expenses not provided for when the main estimates are approved in the previous year.

The Progressive Conservatives complained the government wasn't giving members enough time to study the supplementaries, which total $246,500,000. They must be passed by midnight Monday night, the end of the government's 1951-52 fiscal year.

The government, through Finance Minister Abbott, said the appropriations represented no new policies; they were the traditional tag-end expenses presented every year-end.

The grumbling and grousing rumbled across the chamber most of the day and then blossomed into a full-throated quarrel when George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, accused the government of trying to "blackmail" parliament.

With Liberal members chanting a chorus of "withdraw," Trade Minister Howe advanced into the aisle between government and opposition benches and rasped that Mr. Drew should apologize for that remark.

Mr. Drew wouldn't. He said the estimates were presented in a way "designed" to prevent adequate discussion.

Mr. Abbott observed tartly that if thousands of civil servants don't get their cheques on time it will be because the opposition has delayed them.

Four Votes Forced

The 11 P. M. adjournment hour was upon the chamber by that time and members agreed to set aside the study of private members' legislation Monday to have another crack at the estimates. Of the $246,500,000, $195,500,000 of the appropriations had passed.

Another battle developed during the evening private members' hour when the C. C. F., campaigning against the passage of divorce bills from Quebec and Newfoundland, forced four formal votes by tactical moves. They lost all four votes, but won a point when only four of 51 divorce bills passed.

The discussions on estimates produced little news, though a pint-sized debate developed over immigration.

As the opposition questioned estimates for that division, citizenship minister Harris reported that experience has shown that it is not possible or desirable to halt all immigration into Canada during the winter months.

Jury Believes Missing Montreal Girl Killed, Would Like Husband to Testify

Key West, Fla., March 29—(AP)—What really did happen to Huguette Lemay, the young Canadian beauty who vanished so mysteriously in the Florida Keys?

A Monroe County grand jury believes she may have been killed and would like to have her husband George, a 26-year-old Montreal real estate dealer, appear as a voluntary witness "and waive immunity when so doing."

The 18-man jury feels this "could materially aid in the solution of the alleged disappearance.

(In Montreal, however, Lemay said in a statement to the press he has decided not to return to Florida. He said the decision was made after consultations with his lawyers and other advisers. It added that he might make a further statement later.)

Mrs. Lemay, 21, petite, brown-haired and French-speaking, was fishing with her husband on a bridge on the overseas highway between Miami and Key West the night of Jan. 4.

George said she was cold and went back to their convertible to put on warmer clothing. The distance was between 100 and 150 yds. It was dark and swift water swirled under the bridge.

The husband said she did not return and that he never saw her again. Police searched for weeks under the direction of sheriff's deputy James O. Barker. Her brother, Raymond Daoust, a Montreal lawyer, and a private investigator, joined her husband in the hunt for three weeks.

The jury began its probe March 21. It heard testimony by investigating officers and others and drove out to Tom's Harbor bridge No. 4 where the couple had been fishing.

The jury reported yesterday that testimony indicated "Huguette Lemay may be dead, and if dead, she met death as a result of an act of violence.

"It is the opinion of this body that George Lemay, husband of Huguette Lemay, could materially aid in the solution of the alleged disappearance of Huguette Lemay if he would voluntarily appear as a witness before this body and waive immunity when so doing."

The jury also urged law enforcement agencies to continue their efforts to solve the case.

State Attorney J. Lancelot Lester said the sheriff's office would keep at it until the case was solved. He pointed out that under Florida law a grand jury could not issue an indictment unless there was a body or a confession had been made.

"So far, we have neither," he said.

The grand jury recessed after presenting the report to circuit judg Aquilina Lopez, Jr. It can be called back into session at any time.

Car-Train Crash Kills 3 Persons Near Matheson

Young Couple and Girl Were Returning from Dance

Matheson, Ont., March 29. (CP)—Three persons were killed early today when their automobile collided with a freight train at a level-crossing a mile north of here.

Dead are Adrien Grenon, 26; his 21-year-old wife; and Jenny Jaworski, 17. All are from Ansonville, 20 miles northwest of this northern Ontario asbestos centre.

They were on their way home from a dance.

Matheson is about 40 miles northwest of Kirkland Lake.

Provincial Constable Joseph Kavanagh, of Matheson, said both women were thrown out of the car by the impact. One fell beneath the wheels of the train and the other was crushed as the car flip-flopped along the tracks.

Grenon was pried from the crumpled car 80 feet from the crossing. Bits of wreckage were strewn more than 100 feet.

Oxford Scores Stunning Upset, Beats Cambridge

London, March 29 (Reuters) — The Oxford University crew pulled a stunning upset by defeating Cambridge today in the boat race. Oxford strained along the 4¼-mile wind-and-snow driven Thames River course, winning by a scant quarter-length.

Setting a faster stroke than the long-sweeping Cambridge crew through the whole gruelling race, the Oxford shell broke ahead in the last 100 yards to nip the favorites in Britain's biggest rowing event.

Heavy snow and a biting wind made for the worst conditions in the history of the race, first rowed in 1829. Choppy water and stinging spray combined to make it as uncomfortable as possible for crews and spectators.

The official time was 20 minutes and 23 seconds, a slow time but creditable in view of the weather. It was the closest finish—with the official margin being a "canvas" — since 1877 when the contest was pronounced a dead heat.

Diehard bands of spectators—well short of the 1,000,000 who would have turned out in good weather — clomped through the snow-covered towpaths along the river to follow the straining crews.

Hundreds of thousands of other Britons followed the race in cozy living rooms or cheery pubs, watching the television screen or trying to catch the commentators' running account through barking static.

Steel Industry Peace Move May Avert Strike

Washington, March 29 — (AP) —A sudden peace move by the steel industry spurred hopes today that a scheduled April 8 steel strike may be averted.

The industry's six largest producers arranged to begin meetings Monday in New York with C.I.O. President Philip Murray, head of the United Steelworkers of America.

The fact that the bid for the meetings came from the companies and that they are willing to take the unprecedented step of bargaining as a group with the union seemed promising.

This indicated possibly the industry had been passed the word that the government was ready to give it the price relief industry has said was needed before it could make a wage deal with Murray for 650,000 basic steelworkers.

Murray is standing fast on the basis of wage stabilization board recommendations calling for a 17½-cent pay boost, plus other concessions, including the union shop. Only 12½ cents of pay boost would apply right away, with 2½ cents on July 1, and another 2½ cents next Jan. 1. The workers now earn about $2 an hour.

The steel industry has claimed it will take a $12-a-ton price boost to pay for this but government officials have figured it would take only $4 to $5 a ton. Officials have said the industry has only $2 a ton coming under existing price rules.

Mining Man Pleads Innocent to Charges

Montreal, March 29 (CP) —J. E. Ayrhart, 54, who police say is a Montreal and Ontario mining engineer, yesterday pleaded innocent to 10 charges of theft involving $65,200.

Preliminary inquiry was set for Wednesday and the accused was released on $950 bail.

The complaint was signed by Jean Philippe Toupin, a business man of St. Johns, Que. No details of the alleged thefts were given.

Good Offering Of Syrup With Prices Firm

Maple syrup was offered in quantity on the local produce market today as district farmers quoted $5 per gallon or $1.25 per quart. Small squares or cakes of maple sugar sold at a dime.

Farmers said there had been a good run of sap during the past week.

Potatoes took on a slight increase in price with vendors quoting $5 per 75 pound bag or $1 per peck. Hot house radishes and lettuce made its appearance at a dime per bunch or three bunches for 25 cents. Winter vegetables such as carrots, beets and parsnips were 30 cents per half peck.

On the inside market eggs held at 42 cents for first with mediums at 40 cents and pullets at 35 cents per dozen. Broilers sold at 60 cents per pound and mature fowl at 50 cents per pound. Dairy butter was 65 cents.

Whitefish was 40 cents a pound with lake trout being offered at 56 cents per pound.

Pork by the quarter sold at 30 cents for fronts and 35 cents for hinds.

Spring flowers made an appearance with tulips and daffodils bringing from 50 cents to 75 cents per pot. Rosebushes were $2 and hyacinths $1 per pot.

There was a large offering of apples with top grades a bit firmer in price. Fancy spys were quoted at $3 per hamper, ranging down to $1.75 for C grade. Basket lots of Delicious were 65 cents with McIntosh and Russets selling at 60 cents. Starks sold at $1.75 per hamper.

One farmer offered red clover at $20 per bushel and Timothy seed at $8. Young pigs were quoted at from $7 to $9 each.

Reserve Units In Fire Power Scheme Sunday

Reserve army units of the district acting in conjunction with the RCAF will demonstrate fire power in a combined operations scheme at Cobourg tomorrow afternoon.

From the city and district will go the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA, (SP) ALI and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Artillery and infantry units will fire at floating targets in Lake Ontario while the RCAF will release rockets.

The 9th Anti Tank Regiment will move off in convoy from the Bridge Street Armouries at 8.45 tomorrow morning, while the Hasty Pees will converge on Trenton from company points. From Trenton the regiment will convoy to Cobourg.

Arrangements have been made by officials in charge of the demonstration for the general public to observe the scheme.

Frank Parsons Retires After 36 Years Service

A railroad career extending back over 36 years was ended yesterday for Frank Parsons, 12 Strachan Street, as he stepped down from his engine for the last time.

There was a big crowd on hand at the Canadian National Railways station platform as Mr. Parsons ended his final trip. He stepped down from his engine cab to receive congratulations from his wife and family, fellow engineers and yard officials, who were on hand to greet him.

Born in England, Mr. Parsons had a varied career before choosing the railway as his life's vocation. As a skip of a lad he was drawn to the race track and worked as a jockey for several months before a bad fall put an end to his racing days.

He then came to Canada and after working at several jobs became bartender at a Toronto club. In 1913 he quit to become a fireman with the C.P.R. and three years later transferred to the C.N.R. He was classed as engineer 12 years ago and for eight years was in the pool hauling passenger trains and freights in and out of Belleville. For the past four years he has worked in the Belleville yard.

Four in Family on Road

His railroading days are now ended but railroading is in the family blood. Two of his sons work for the C.N.R., while two sons-in-law are also railroaders.

The Parsons are a large family and are a happy family group. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons raised four sons and as many daughters. One boy Jack was lost in World War II. Three of their sons served in the Royal Canadian Navy.

It was a happy time at the Parsons home last evening. The children presented "dad" with a handsome lazy-boy chair, while congratulations were extended by brother engineers. Harry Drury proposed a toast and Dick Sargent referred to the spirit of cooperation between trainmen, yardmen and the engineers. Earlier at the station this had been exemplified by yardmen who presented Mr. Parsons with a handsome toilet set.

Many on Hand

A. G. Cooper, master mechanic, and Wilfred (Wicky) Ross, general yard master, were on hand at the station to extend congratulations as Mr. Parsons ended his railroading days.

Priding himself as somewhat of a fisherman Mr. Parsons expects to get in some lake trout fishing this summer. Also he has a big garden that will receive more attention this summer.

Children of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons are Mrs. Pat Holden, Toronto; Barney of Belleville; George "Buck" Parsons, Capreol; Mrs. Lyle Langabeer, Belleville; Mrs. Frank Sunderland, Belleville; Mrs. Harold Young, Belleville, and Bruce, also of this city. There are ten grandchildren.

90th Birthday Being Celebrated By Col. Ketcheson

One of the oldest men in the township, Col. "Bill" William G. Ketcheson, 5th concession Sidney, is celebrating his 90th birthday today at the family farm homestead.

Well known in military circles of the district, Col. Ketcheson was associated with the army for many years and took the 80th Battalion overseas during the First World War. Prior to the First World War he commanded the 49th Hastings Rifles.

Now living on the family farm west of Foxboro, Col. Ketcheson is still in good health. He is keen of mind and follows world events closely through the newspaper and radio.

Several weeks ago a son, Lawrence J. Ketcheson was fatally injured when struck by a falling limb while he was cutting timber on the family farm.

Battersea Couple Wedded 66 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ritchie, of Battersea, near Kingston, observed their 66th wedding anniversary on Friday. They live on the same farm where they took up residence following their marriage.

Both still enjoy fairly good health despite their advanced age. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie are in their 88th year. They live with their son Elmer and his wife and two children.

Mrs. Walter Emmons, Coleman Street, Belleville, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie. Children of the couple are Fred Ritchie of Battersea; Thomas of Latimer, and Elmer, at home.

Bishop Lyons To Make Last Official Visit

BISHOP LYONS

The Most Rev. John Lyons, M.A., D.D., Metropolitan of Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario and Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, will pay his annual visit to St. Thomas' Parish on Sunday and at the morning service he will administer the Rite of Confirmation to a class of candidates which will be presented by the Rector Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith. This will be the last official act to be performed by Bishop Lyons as on Monday he will retire after forty-five years of faithful and efficient service in the church, during 20 years of which he has held the high office of Bishop.

On Feb. 1st., 1927, Bishop Lyons, who was then Rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene at Picton, was appointed Vicar of St. Thomas' Church and he held the appointment until July 1st., 1931, when he resigned to become rector of Prescott. It was during his term as Vicar of St. Thomas' that he was made an Archdeacon. In 1932 he was consecrated Bishop and for several years now, as Metropolitan of Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, he has held the status and title of Archbishop.

On Sunday morning in all parish churches in the Diocese of Ontario the following letter will be read from Archbishop Lyons:

To my brethren of the clergy and laity:

Greeting:

The time has come when I must lay down my mantle as your Bishop and another will take it up—so God's Church moves on towards its ultimate goal.

Twenty years ago yesterday, March 29th, I was consecrated Bishop in our beloved old Cathedral Church of St. George. These years naturally have witnessed many changes. We began the work together under very trying conditions. The intervening years have not been easy for any of us—depression, years of war, war clouds, anxious days and moments— but thank God who has overruled all things for our good, forgiven wherein we have done amiss and blessed what has been acceptable to Him, the diocese, we believe, is in a healthier condition today than at any time in its history.

I can assure you that it is not an easy decision for me to make—my whole ministry, 45 years in all, has been in the diocese—born and schooled in the diocese, baptized and confirmed in the diocese. Ordained and consecrated in the diocese, and enthroned as Metropolitan of this Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario in the same cathedral in which I was ordained. I shall miss meeting you and visiting you from year to year in your churches. It has been my earnest desire that I might be permitted to visit you all once again as your Bishop. Time and health, however, will not permit. While I may not visit you as your Bishop, I hope, D.V., to see you from time to time as I have chosen to retire in the diocese. You shall be ever in my thoughts and prayers.

In behalf of Mrs. Lyons and myself, I wish to thank you for your many kindnesses. The friendships made throughout the years shall remain fresh in our memories and last into eternity.

May God of His goodness bless each one of you. May you in Him and through His Church, enjoy strength and refreshment in body and soul now and forevermore.

With our affectionate best wishes,
Faithfully, your Bishop.
John Ontario.

Talk on Labor Union Movement Given Y's Men

Ford Brand, member of the Board of Control of the city of Toronto, addressed the Y's Men's Club at their weekly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night. In the absence of Mayor McLean Haig, acting mayor C. L. Hyde, represented the city.

The speaker addressed the members on the topic the labor movement in which he has had a life-long interest. At the outset he indicated the democratic structure of labor unions which he claimed were the subject of criticism because of misunderstanding. He pointed out that criticism had been the cause of union strength. The movement had been born out of criticism and had attained a membership of one million organized workers in Canada whose efforts had raised the standard of living for all workers.

Explains Labor Act

Dispelling the idea of arbitrary rulings as a means of calling strikes, Mr. Brand explained the procedures on the Labor Relation Act for settling disputes. Negotiations are required to continue for 83 days he stated when a conciliation officer may be called in to try to bring about a settlement within 15 days. The minister of labor is required to form a conciliation board. Failure of settlement requires the union to seek strike sanction from the International Union which, when granted, must then be voted on by secret ballot by the local union before a strike is called.

The speaker explained another viewpoint offsetting criticism directed at the Musicians' Union particularly in connection with the supplying of music for outdoor skating rinks in Toronto. He pointed out that royalties were paid in a trust fund by the unions and the recording companies from which $17,000 had been returned to the city of Toronto for cultural concerts last year. Such a stand as the unions have taken makes for the encouragement of cultural talent being developed.

Other Benefits Outlined

Continuing, the speaker indicated other benefits which resulted from union activity. He had come to learn since becoming a member of council in Toronto that of the large budget for welfare, very little of it went to union members. The unions, he explained, augment unemployment insurance and extend other benefits to members which reduces the assistance required for these people from other sources.

Shorter hours, the speaker explained, though a subject of criticism, actually reduced unemployment by creating more work for similar workers as well as for persons in amusement and service industries.

In the educational field, Mr. Brand explained that the unions had done considerable work for their members in improving their working ability as well as their ability to serve the community in many and varied volunteer efforts.

The speaker received the thanks of the club from Alderman Hyde.

Announcement was made that the next meeting would be President's Night.

Two Narrowly Escape Death As National Defence Truck Crashes Into Parked Car

Trenton (Special) — Two persons narrowly escaped death and another serious injury last night when a Department of National Defence truck crashed into a parked vehicle on Dundas Street west, shortly after eight o'clock in the evening.

The truck, operated by Private Cecil M. Cheetham, No. 3 Company, RCASC, Artillery Park, Kingston, was proceeding east on Dundas Street, near the western limits of the town, when the driver was blinded by bright lights of an oncoming vehicle and crashed into a parked automobile in front of the Cobley-Van Luven Funeral Home.

The parked auto was owned by Frank McKay, of Havelock, who only a short time before had left the car and entered the funeral parlors to pay his last respects to Benjamin Chambers, of Trenton, who had died on Thursday. Had he been sitting in the vehicle, he would undoubtedly have been killed as the auto was totally wrecked, the entire side being caved in with parts flying in all directions.

The force of the initial impact shot the McKay car ahead and into the rear of another auto owned by Sarah W. Streke, 180 Byron Street, Trenton, in which June Marie Streke was sitting. After receiving medical attention Miss Streke was allowed to return home.

Damages reported were $550 to the McKay auto, $200 to the Department of National Defence truck and approximately $40 to the Streke vehicle.

Explosion Rocks Building, Cracks Cement Walls

Trenton (Special) — An explosion rocked the building of the Trenton Motor Sales about nine o'clock last night, shaking the area and cracking the cement block walls of the building when an oil boiler exploded. Windows in the boiler house and as far as thirty feet away were broken by the blast.

The Trenton Fire Department was called as danger threatened from an inflow of oil from a 1,000 gallon tank of oil outside the building. Firemen, at first, could not get into the building where the switch to the tank was, but extinguished the fire and eliminated the danger.

This is the second time this year that the boiler in the plant, owned and operated by George Weltz, has exploded.

A second explosion happened after the firemen arrived without visible additional damage.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

Europeans Better Linguists Than Americans

(Article 62)

I think all of us like to talk shop at one time or another and I don't claim to be any exception. The biggest problem is how to stop once we have got started, since it seems the time always flies by so fast that we have to leave off before we have hardly started. However, there is a limit to what I can put into one article, so I don't think you will have to worry about my not being able to stop.

My two pet loves are of course languages and economics, but since the latter is for the most part filled with abstract theories I shall spare you the misery of having to read a long article on that. Quite a bit can be said about the first however, without getting into a discussion of the declension of Class II irregular verbs in French or noun endings in Italian.

First, a word of reproach. Europeans are unanimous in stating the English-speaking people are the laziest in the world when it comes to learning languages. Whereas the others make some attempt to learn a language it seems that the vast majority of English, Americans and Canadians who visit the Continent hardly know more than merci and s'il vous plait. Some of them still believe that if you shout loud enough, a foreigner will understand you whether he can speak English or not. That shouting is quite rude never seems to occur to some of them. At the present time the Europeans do not mind too much because the tourists bring badly-needed dollars with them, which supposedly makes up for some of the rudeness which especially the Americans show at times. Needless to say people who can speak English are in great demand over here, and any storekeeper who knows a few words, or has a clerk who does wastes no time in hanging a sign outside saying "English spoken."

Europeans Linguistic

So that people over here do not become too prejudiced, I usually explain that in North America a person can spend his whole life without ever having to use anything but English, whereas such is not the case in Europe. It is not surprising then that people fail to realize the importance of knowing another language.

Of course this applies more to the Americans than it does to us, for we have two national languages and so less of an excuse for not doing it. I wonder how many make any attempt to keep up their French learned in high school or university.

Whereas it is next to impossible to tell from what part of the country a Canadian comes from listening to him speak, it is not the case over here. Each language has so many different dialects that a man gives away his origin almost at once. This is the case especially in Switzerland. There Swiss German varies from valley to valley and I often used to tell them that it was almost possible to tell on what street in St Gallen a person lived.

I think one of the things to which it is most difficult to become accustomed in studying other languages is how to say "you." In English we just have the one word, which causes no difficulty whatsoever, but such is not the case in other languages. French has two forms, German three, Italian and Spanish four, and Portuguese no less than six or seven. That you use the same form in German in speaking to your dog, to God or to your best friend makes it quite confusing. To an older person whom I know very well I use the polite form, but to a student whom I know hardly at all I use the familiar form. Not very reasonable, is it? Italian is no better. You use the plural of the familiar form in writing a business letter to a certain man, but in talking to the same man you use the polite form.

Verb Often Last

Another peculiarity of German is that the verb very often comes at the end of the sentence. This is very annoying if the sentence happens to be particularly long, which German sentences often are. We sometimes claim that publishers of continued stories usually chop off the last sentence right in the middle, so that the readers will have to buy the next copy just to find out what the verb was.

Another thing, the popular opinion seems to be that German is a very coarse and gutteral language. That may be so, but for me the German lyric poetry is the finest that has ever been written.

In Spanish most "g's" are pronounced as a harsh H. Therefore I was not surprised when a young Spaniard once asked me if I had ever seen any movies with Hinher Robers in them.

He Has Accent

I always thought I spoke English without an accent, but now I am not so sure. Recently an American military policeman got into the same train compartment as I and we got into a conversation. After a few minutes he asked me what we German people through about the army. I explained that I wasn't German, but he wouldn't believe me, said I spoke English with a German accent. That he came from Texas explains part of it, for he probably considered English that terrible drawl that he spoke.

Another time when I was in Milan in Italy I came upon an American couple who were trying to find out something from an Italian who could hardly speak English at all. My offer to help was accepted and after I had finished translating the women turned to me and asked, "Are you an American?" "No," I replied. "Well, where did you learn it? You speak it well for a foreigner." I told her I had spent a few years in the States and she seemed satisfied. I just couldn't bring myself to tell her I was Canadian.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

NEW JERUSALEM

(Article 27)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — When one thinks of Jerusalem he usually thinks of a centre of churches and minarets, holy shrines and sanctuaries. Millions who study the Bible think of Jerusalem as a still life sanctuary enclosing clusters of churches, mosques and synagogues.

There is such a Jerusalem, confined to the Holy City within the walls, which at the present time is controlled by the Hashemite Jordan Kingdom. Within that small area, comprising an area of less than half a square mile, are places which are holy to Islam, Christendom and Judaism. These holy places include the Mosque of Omar, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the Wailing Wall, the only remnant of Israel's second temple.

But there is another Jerusalem, the New City outside the walls New Jerusalem is of fairly recent growth and comprises an area of eleven square miles and has a population of one hundred and thirty-five thousand inhabitants. This new and modern city with its broad avenues lined with modern buildings, busy shopping centres, banks, stores, office buildings, cinemas, cafes and restaurants is a typical example of Israel reborn.

Airport Discussed

There is now talk of a Jerusalem airport, but the site is not easy to find in the Judean Hills and the project may have to be deferred. Industry is being promoted in the city and textiles, wood products and metal branches, printing, building materials and pharmaceutical products are proving successful. The water supply for the city has been improved and will be augmented The city has a railroad and more electricity has been forthcoming for industry and general use.

Jerusalem is an integral part of the new state of Israel. The hurly-burly of its street and quarters is part of the general scene observed as you travel from Dan to Elat. Fifty thousand new immigrants have entered Jerusalem since it was liberated by the Israeli defence army during the Arab-Israeli war. Other immigrants live on the outskirts of the city in immigration camps and abandoned houses. These immigrants, who come from the Orient, the Levant and the Balkans, present a colorful spectacle.

Capital Again

As in former times, Jerusalem is once again the capital of this ancient land. Here the Knesset (Israel's parliament) meet and three days a week the nation's representatives come to Jerusalem to participate in sessions of the Knesset. Most of the members of parliament live outside Jerusalem and their journeys to the city swell the 40,000 strong tide of travel which monthly flows to and from the city. The office of Prime Minister David Ben Gurion is located in the city and here he presides over his energetic cabinet.

Jerusalem has also become the capital and centre for the World Zionist Organization. A large and beautiful Zionist convention centre is now being built and Zionist leaders from the four corners of the earth will periodically flock to this convention centre to attend Zionist congresses. Between congresses the convention building will serve as an entertainment centre and concert hall for Jerusalem.

Now Dispersed

New Jerusalem is also an educational and medical centre. Since the war of liberation, the Hebrew University and Hadassah Hospital buildings on Mount Scopus have been cut off from Jerusalem by the Arab Legion. These institutions are now dispersed, each in a half-dozen buildings, throughout the city. The number of university students has risen to over 2,000 excluding post-graduates of the medical school which is operated by the Hadassah Hospital. Attempts are being made to find permanent premises for the university and hospital in the immediate vicinity of Jerusalem.

Cultural activities in Jerusalem are many and varied. There are three musical institutions, two of which are conservatories, three ballet schools and a number of musical societies. There are two broadcasting stations, Kol Yisrael for local listeners and Kol Zion Lagola, beamed to countries abroad. There are a number of art schools and painting exhibitions and guest artists are many in the Holy City. There is no outstanding theatre in the city, but this will be looked after by the spacious theatre and concert halls being built at the convention centre.

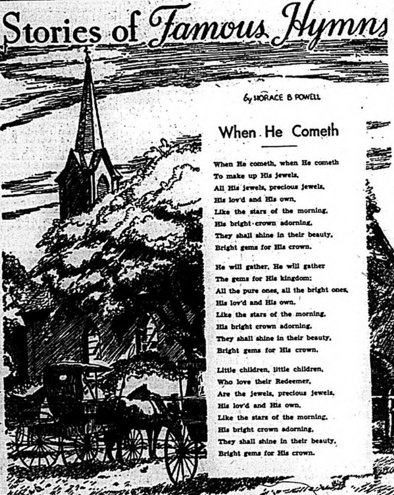
Churches, Synagogues

Holy places throughout the city are limited to churches and synagogues, and the holy places of Mount Zion. On this famous mount are located churches of various Christian religions, synagogues and the tomb of King David.

Jerusalem with its holy places has deeply influenced the spiritual life of mankind. No visit to the Middle East would be complete unless the traveller pays a visit to both Old and New Jerusalem — cities which have sacred and cherished associations for the followers of the three monotheistic religions.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B POWELL



When He Cometh

When He cometh, when He cometh
To make up His jewels,
All His jewels, precious jewels,
His lov'd and His own,
Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
They shall shine in their beauty,
Bright gems for His crown.

He will gather, He will gather
The gems for His kingdom:
All the pure ones, all the bright ones,
His lov'd and His own.
Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
They shall shine in their beauty,
Bright gems for His crown.

Little children, little children,
Who love their Redeemer,
Are the jewels, precious jewels,
His lov'd and His own.
Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
They shall shine in their beauty,
Bright gems for His crown.

"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels—"

Rev. William C. Cushing was thinking of that Bible verse in the third chapter of Malachi when, one day in 1856, he wrote his famous "Jewel Song." The hymn, like many of his other compositions, was written for use in his own Sunday School but it became an immediate favorite with church schools everywhere.

Its popularity as a children's hymn has been due to its music as much as to its words. George F. Root, who composed the hymn tune, collaborated with Mr. Cushing on many of the latter's best known Sunday School songs. He was one of America's most popular nineteenth century composers and, in addition to his religious tunes, he wrote the music for "Rosalie The Prairie Flower," "Hazel Dell," "There's Music In The Air," and the favorite of Civil War days, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, The Boys Are Marching."

It was George Root, too, who sent Mr. Cushing the music for which the clergyman later wrote the words of "Ring The Bells Of Heaven."

There is an anecdote telling of how Mr. Cushing's "Jewel Song" won the hearts and voices of a crowd of European immigrants one day during a crossing to Canada on an English steamer. A minister who was aboard the ship, according to the story, visited the steerage quarters during the voyage and proposed "a community sing."

Because of its winning tune the "Jewel Song" was chosen as the best piece for the international concert. The music caught the fancy of the immigrant-singers at once, and, as they sang it again and again, some of them even learned the words of the hymn. Throughout the voyage they remembered that mid-ocean sing and a few days later, when they disbanded at Quebec, many were still humming the "Jewel Song."

OVERMANY SUCH PLANS NOW

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada has asked the government to institute a national health insurance plan. A Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa the other day said the Congress "deplored the fact that the government was not setting up a health insurance committee at this session of parliament, as cabinet spokesmen had indicated earlier would be done."

Another Canadian Press dispatch, published in this newspaper on the same day as the one dealing with the request of the Trades and Labor Congress for a health insurance plan, deals with a similar health insurance plan which is in operation in Great Britain.

This British health insurance plan is no half-hearted, half-way measure. It not only provides free hospitalization, medical attention and so on. It even provides free false teeth, free spectacles, free wigs and free wooden legs to those who want them.

But this British health insurance scheme is costing a good deal of money. The government is struggling to keep its costs down to £400,000,000 during the current year, but is finding it difficult if not impossible to do so. The medical profession has just put in for and is going to get an extra £10,000,000 per year, plus back pay of £30,000,000.

Of course Canada's population is smaller than Great Britain's and consequently a health insurance plan here should be correspondingly cheaper. But Canada also has correspondingly fewer taxpayers to carry such burdens. Besides, if a health insurance plan were once instituted in Canada, there would be no guarantee that the cost would not continue to increase, as has happened in Britain. Canada's department of health and welfare spends a great deal of money already. If a full-fledged health insurance plan on the British model were undertaken here, the spending of the health department might rise to fantastic proportions.

If the Trades and Labor Congress wants a health insurance plan, let it start one of its own. Other groups of people have done so.

CHINESE REDS APT PUPILS

Communist China is learning Communist Russian techniques rapidly and applying them with increasing success, it appears from a Washington news story.

The United States government has just disclosed that it has paid the Chinese Communists $800,000 for the release of twelve Americans whom the Chinese had kidnapped and were holding for ransom.

But that is not all — after they had collected and pocketed the $800,000, the Chinese Reds released only four of the twelve prisoners. Presumably they are holding the remaining eight until Uncle Sam kicks in with more money.

Senator William F. Knowland, (Republican, California), has expressed strong disapproval of this deal. Senator Knowland thinks that the Truman administration should not have handed over the money until the unfortunate prisoners had been freed.

In response to Senator Knowland's probing, Elting Arnold, apparently a spokesman for the U.S. treasury department, said that "a new policy has been adopted and that no more such payments would be made until the prisoners concerned were safe in some such Communist-free area as Hong Kong."

The "new policy" should have been instituted as soon as these kidnappings for ransom began.

BOMBS LYING AROUND

If Russian or other hostile paratroopers land near Pembroke, the citizens of that community will be able to begin defensive operations at once, because they have a supply of bombs handy.

A Pembroke small boy found one of these bombs in a garbage heap. Later, members of the Canadian army provost corps who were sent to investigate found five more in the same locality.

Ottawa military experts who examined these bombs said they were "composed of various inflammable powders and were very sensitive." They added that, if the bomb found by the child had exploded, the results would have been "disastrous."

An ordnance officer from Petawawa said he thought the bombs had been left where they were found "by a careless gunner on a course."

It seems to be about time that the ordnance officers at Petawawa started checking up on these careless gunners who leave deadly explosives lying around where they are liable to be found by children.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 29th., 1932.

The Venerable John Lyons, Archdeacon of Frontenac and rector of St. John's Church, Prescott, and formerly vicar of St. Thomas' Church in this city was consecrated Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, this morning. The office of consecration was performed by the Most Rev. James F. Sweeney, Bishop of Toronto, and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario. Following the oath of obedience to the Metropolitan the Litany was sung by the Rev. T. Austin Smith, Minor Canon and Precentor of St. George's Cathedral and the questions were put to the Bishop Elect by the consecrating Bishop. The Bishop Elect was then robed and was duly consecrated by the bishops present, namely Most Rev. J. F. Sweeney, Bishop of Toronto; Rt. Rev. J. C. Roper, Bishop of Ottawa; Rt. Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Bishop of Niagara; Rt. Rev. C. A. Sager, Bishop of Huron; Rt. Rev. R. R. Smith, Bishop of Algoma and the Rt. Rev. J. C. Farthing, Bishop of Montreal. The sermon was delivered by Bishop Owen. In the Communion Office the celebrant was the Most Rev. J. F. Sweeney, assisted by the Rt. Rev. J. C. Farthing and the Rt. Rev. J. C. Roper.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ASSETS

Assets are tremendously important in this world. In business they are what give it prestige and standing. Great businesses, like insurance companies, banks and highly capitalized organizations, play up their assets, because they are proud of them and they give confidence to all whom they serve.

In a financial way, therefore, each of us feels more secure with some form of assets. I got to thinking about this today and the though came to me that the greatest assets any of us can have are our friends. We can lose money, or the tax collector may take a goodly portion away from us, but our friends remain, to give cheer and courage to us for so long as we live.

These friends are the assets that we should conserve and keep adding to. We can then be assured of dying rich! What is sadder than a friendless rich man? To have genius for friendship is of far greater importance than to have a genius for making money.

Simple were the material assets of Abraham Lincoln, after being nominated for the presidency of the United States—but he had a host of friends and neighbors who believed in him, and these assets meant more to him than anything else, and sustained him through the darkest days of his administration.

The elder J. P. Morgan once stated he often loaned a million dollars to a man with no other asset outside his character. Indeed character is an asset of which any of us can well be proud—and we make that asset ourselves! Cheerfulness, kindliness, a tolerant mind are all great assets and can be gained by anyone who wishes to have a high standing in his community.

People who have formed the habit of reading great books gain knowledge as an asset, and that is something that can never be taken from us. And what an asset we have, here in this western world, in freedom. Millions of this earth daily pray that some day it may be theirs. Every blessing that we have is an asset!

SEVEN FATALLY BURNED

Calipatria, Calif., March 29—(AP) — Seven Mexican farm laborers were fatally burned yesterday in a fire which destroyed a one storey shack. Deputy Coroner O. R. Jones said the seven were "apparently in the United States illegally." Jones said Charles Graham told him the laborers applied for work yesterday. He hired them and told them they could sleep in the unfurnished shack on his ranch.

TRAFFIC TOLL RISES

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — More persons were killed in Ontario traffic accidents last month than in any other February on record.

The Ontario Highway Department today announced there were 74 traffic deaths last month, compared with 57 in February, 1951.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

STILL DREAMING

My wife's dream of a country housing development for old age pensioners is by no means dead.

A certain Vancouver business man, who prefers anonymity, is now looking into all of the many aspects of the idea. I've known this man personally for several years. If anyone can convert the dream into reality he's the one. I'll keep you posted from time to time on what's going on.

Nearly everyone is enthusiastic. One outstanding housing authority, whose opinion was asked, wrote this: "The amount of procrastination and apathy about all kinds of low-rent housing, whether for old, middle-aged or young people, is so great that every generous and honest effort to get something actually built is welcome.

"Certainly," he continues, "a public subscription could lead to a constructive little demonstration project. All the more because the provincial government has a standing undertaking to put up one third of the cost of any approved scheme for housing old people."

The two important qualifications, the expert says, are good management and the designing of such a project specifically for people who really want to retire "out in the country."

"There is more experience available on housing for old people than any other section of the vast housing problem area," he writes. "The difficulty is to get action. If any man or group is willing to draw on the experience, as well as help raise money, a lot of people, not only the wretchedly-housed thousands in Vancouver, will bless him."

In my last column on this subject I mentioned the suggestion of one businessman that I organize a fund to get a minimum of 2000 people to contribute $100 each, not as charity, but as an investment.

The response to this was very heartening. I have pledges from 18 men and women who will contribute $100 each and actual cheques from six others. I've written these people to tell them that there is no actual fund, but I am holding those cheques for the time being.

One businessman in Prince Rupert pledges not only his own hundred, but "at least 10 other businessmen locally." He writes, "I only hope that your wife's idea has been as heartily endorsed by as many others as are required to see it through to a realization. Sometimes idealistic dreams do come true—thank God."

Another contributor in Williams Lake writes, "We feel that you would get your 2000 contributors with little difficulty for if you and your wife, who are young and we, who are younger, can see the need of such a country housing scheme, why then, there must be many others."

A woman in Vancouver who mailed me her cheque also enclosed a cheque from her husband "as a memorial to a parent who has passed away."

Another young couple ask that I put them down for $100, but since they're building a house of their own and raising a family they want to pay it in monthly instalments.

Two more men have volunteered their help. Sam Bawn, an electrical contractor, says he'll wire three or four small homes a month as his contribution. Les Baines, another electrician, says he'll take on the wiring job of four homes.

Three other readers offer the use of their land at no charge. Their generous offers will be looked into.

I've received a great many letters from people who have small cottages and other accommodation for pensioners, but since I'm not able to investigate them and haven't the space for them all I'll have to skip that.

The best tip of all comes from a reader who points out that the small town weekly newspapers almost always have listings for cottages in the country that don't appear in the daily papers.

Readers continue to write to me about similar schemes which have been tried with varying degrees of success.

The one that interests me most is the low-rental non-profit housing scheme for senior citizens now in operation in Burnaby under the auspices of the New Vista Society. None of the officials of this outfit are paid for their services.

The first project consisted of six duplex units (12 cottages) designed for occupation by couples. Each cottage has entrance lobby, living room, bedroom, kitchen, utility room and bathroom. The row is crescent-shaped, each cottage with a small garden.

The second project, also of 12 cottages, was designed for single persons. These have a large combined living room and bed alcove, kitchen, utility room and bathroom. The third project of 10 cottages similar to the first, but single people are accepted as well as couples.

All rents are $20 a month, which includes water.

I'm told that the driving power behind this scheme was Mr. E. E. Winch, Burnaby's venerable and much-loved MLA. Wouldn't you know there'd be a man like that behind such a scheme?

Well, we're still dreaming about the country development — and thanks for dreaming along.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Wild motherhood is planned motherhood. With very few exceptions, the fawns of deer are all born within a period of two or three weeks. The fox, beaver, muskrats, the mice, weasels, cottontails are born each in its season, and a very limited and close season it is. And for a great many of them, the date of birth is in spring, hardly before the snow has gone and the ice melted.

Nature having planned wild motherhood so skillfully, it is remarkable that the plan includes the heavy burden of motherhood at what must be the worst possible season of the year both for the comfort and security of the mothers.

The wilderness is at its worst right now. Footing is wicked whether mud or soggy snow. Caves and dens are flooded. Rivers are raging, Pastures and meadows are drowned. Travel is almost impossible. Weary and half starved at this waning end of winter, the mothers of the wild have to defend themselves, search for and find a safe place for their ordeal, while all nature is at its ugliest and most comfortless. The moose and the mouse are in the same fix. It is in this tricky, changeable, treacherous season of the year that they must carry their young to their birth.

It has been by countless centuries of trial and error that nature has concluded this to be the best season in which so many wild creatures should be born. What appears tough and inconsiderate in nature is probably a lot less tough than any alternative.

TAKE CHILDREN TO CHURCH

Probably every minister in the country becomes discouraged over the fact that so few children and young people attend church services.

But how could it be otherwise? The modern parent doesn't want to put any pressure on the modern child to do anything. If the child wants to go to church, they say, well and good; but if he doesn't then it is all right for him to go home and read the funnies while dad and mother are listening to the sermon. Anyway argue these parents, a child doesn't get anything out of an adult service. He can't understand the sermon. Besides, if he if forced to go to church as a child, that may create a prejudice in his mind which may keep him from going to church when he grows up.

Such arguments violate logic and all known principles of psychology. We tend to keep on doing what we have been accustomed to do. The child who at six is accustomed to spend Sunday morning reading the funnies will, ten years later, be lying in bed until noon on Sundays. He does not have the church-going habit.

And as for the child understanding the sermon, he will get just as much out of it, consistent with his immaturity,, as his parens get out of it, consistent with their age and mental development. And what he remembers will have even more effect on his growing life than what his parents remember.

CARRY MORE INSURANCE

Albany, N.Y., March 29—(AP) — After June 1, young owners of "hot-rods," jalopies and other motor vehicles must have more liability insurance in New York State. Governor Dewey signed a bill yesterday providing for the added protection to the public from car owners under 21 years of age. The measure boosts from $5,000 to $10,000 the coverage that must be carried by the young drivers for injury to one person and from $10,000 to $20,000 the amount for injuries to two or more persons.

Camera Catches Flames' Terror

A prize news photo is this one of fireman helping a guest in the flame-swept St. George Hotel in Los Angeles. At least six persons were known to have died in the fire. Five bodies have been recovered. Another victim leaped to death. Twelve others were injured. Firemen figured in spectacular rescues of trapped guests.—Central Press Canadian.

ALMANAC STUFF STILL SUITS CUSTOMERS

One of the loafers on the bowling green Jan. 31 wore a scarf or some such coddling around his neck. It irked me. Lots of things on the green do, such as the way M. E. moves about with his chin in the air when he makes a good shot — which, happens often enough to keep me constantly nettled, the chin, that is, not the shot, for the only way to take care of the chin would be to fit the fellow with a kind of reverse check-rein.

I endured the taunt for an hour or longer, and finally decided it was my moral duty to needle the mollycoddle a bit. So I excused myself for a moment and sidled over to the general vicinity of the animated mummy, yet remaining just out of reach, and offered him a leg of Grandpa's red flannel drawers and a slab of salt pork for his delicate throat. His reply was unprintable, as I expected, but I believe that as a consequence of our little ruckus there will be the shadow of a doubt in the poor geek's mind next time he catches the c-r-i or a crick in the neck.

Mind now, wiseacres, I do not mean to deny that heat or warmth in any degree or form, wet or dry, is comforting and desirable for the relief of soreness, pain, lameness, stiffness. If you are not an idiot you judge for yourself whether heat or warmth gives you enough relief to bother with it. If you are an idiot you may prefer to think coddling somehow drives out the "cold" or protects you from "taking more cold."

There are still millions of idiots, or should we say morons, who harbor precisely this quaint fancy, and thousands of doctors shrewd enough to cater to them.

Not only the majority of doctors but also the nostrum vendors and the insurance corporations exploit this popular delusion—of course always at the expense of the customers. For instance, compare the winter campaign of 1952 against pneumonia — particularly the picture of the man clutching his hat, scarf and overcoat collar as he trudges in the falling snow or slush, and the accompanying advice to "Dress warmly when going out," (dimwit) "especially during cold, damp weather," with any old almanac you may happen to have preserved from the dawn of the century. Was the almanac hokum of the gay nineties one whit more ridiculous than that which the doctors and the insurance company's mentors hand you today?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercise for Hard of Hearing

My hearing has improved extraordinarily in the two months I have been doing the facial exercises as prescribed in your pamphlet. I thought I was doomed to be shut in, but now I miss very little . . . grateful . . . (Mrs. E. S.)

Answer—Thank you. Few readers bother to report progress unless they want something more. The system of exercises is given in pamphlet Deafness and Tinnitis (head noises), available on written rquest (not a clipping) if you inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Do Tell

Trouble I have had for years. Went to the ——— Clinic for a complete check-up. They diagnosed the trouble as edema. It is a constant swelling of the legs . . . (M. B.)

Answer—You mean you went to the "clinic" for a hold-up, don't you? Quit fooling around. Consult an honest doctor—that is, one who practises under his own name.

Her First at Forty

Is a woman 35 years old too old to have her first baby? (Mrs. W. A.)

Answer—No. Read the chapter Her First at Forty in booklet Preparing For Maternity. For the booklet send 25c and stamped, self-adressed envelope. The question is, not how old are you but can you roll somersaults?

Former Crookson Resident

Career of Martha Anna Twiddy Reviewed in British Columbia Paper

An interesting review of the life and career of Miss Martha Anna Twiddy, a former resident of Hastings County, was printed some time ago in the Summerland Review, a weekly paper in British Columbia. A clipping has been forwarded to the Ontario Intelligencer for publication.

Miss Twiddy was born in Huntingdon Township and is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Twiddy who resided at Crookston. She attended White Lake School. The review which follows, will be of interest to relatives and friends of the family in the Ivanhoe and Crookston districts.

A challenge to modern schools is found in Miss Twiddy's claim that she is a product of a little red schoolhouse, which she attended from her farm home in Hastings County, Ont. The family is one of English-Irish and United Empire Loyalist extraction.

There was no high schooling for her as a child for her father died when she was quite young, but added to three R's of the little red school her own efforts and love of humanity have brought her through many splendid accomplishments.

Her only brother homesteaded in Saskatchewan so she trained as a nurse at Moose Jaw General Hospital. Harvesters' excursions brought men to the west and typhoid was prevalent for six months of the year, and the hospital was a busy one.

Nursed in Buffalo

On graduation she nursed in the Buffalo City Hospital until she could be admitted for post graduate work in the Women's Hospital in New York City. While she enjoyed being in the latter hospital, she felt that the most she learned was to more fully appreciate her Canadian training.

She was asked by the Buffalo superintendent to return there. This was in 1914, and on receiving a request from the Moose Jaw head, who was going overseas, she went back to the hospital where she had originally trained to become night superintendent. Hearing of a chance to go overseas herself she mentioned that she would like the opportunity and overnight found she had a post in No. 8 stationary hospital being recruited at Regina. In early 1916 she left and for three years served in England, France, and on a hospital ship.

Back from overseas and wanting a change she answered an advertisement for assistant head of a children's home in Buffalo. In no time she had full charge of seventy-five children, most of them from broken homes, and aggressive. It was not quite the place for a person just back from active service, and on medical advice she left.

Attended Albert College

At this time public health work was broadening and Miss Twiddy felt she needed more basic education. By using her savings she attended Albert College at Belleville, Ont., the same girls' school from which Mrs. H. B. McGregor, Penticton, graduated. On matriculation she was offered a scholarship to study medicine. At the same time through Miss Elizabeth Smellie, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Ottawa, a V.O.N. scholarship was available to her. This she accepted and went to the University of Toronto to take the course in public health.

On completion she returned east to Trenton, Ont., near her home where she carried on V.O.N. practices for seven years. What a stock of experience she gained that year while she walked all over the big town with her little black bag synonomous with V.O.N. nurses! Through a bit of tactful talking the next year she was given a car —a Model-T Ford. One of the doctors said, "Can you run it? Can you swear? You can't run it if you can't swear."

Well, she ran it, and it was a great asset, in which she covered more territory and saved her strength a little, though everyone knows she has never tried to save herself very much.

Opened V.O.N. District

On the death of her mother for whom she had a great affection, she asked for a transfer to western Canada. She was sent to Oliver to open a V.O.N. district there. Here she had her first bit of work with Indians, and the whole setup became a good one through her organization.

This was the beginning of public health service in the south Okanagan as she was doing nursing and social welfare at the same time.

The driving was long and hard. As always with those in public health, even the most rugged, she found it made great demands on her strength.

When Westbank - Peachland asked for a V.O.N. nurse, Miss Twiddy went there soon after its inception for a few months to organize the service.

Just then the department of health was urging Penticton to establish a public health nurse. Penticton replied that they would if they could have "Twiddy." Miss Twiddy knew that the life of a V.O.N. nurse, more or less isolated in a small scattered community, was a rather lonely one. When the health department sought her as the first public health nurse in Penticton she took the job.

To the V.O.N. she gives full credit for her training and experience which enabled her to do such acceptable pioneer nursing in the P.H. field. She concentrated on poorer families, but gave pre-school, school, prenatal and post natal care as widely as possible.

Under the Children's Aid Society with the help of many Penticton people, she established serving milk in Penticton schools, the initiation of the cafeteria there.

Tried Fruit Growing

Then, and she chuckles as she tells it, came an adventure! She bought an orchard at Peachland and tried fruit growing! While working hard she loved the outdoor life and found it wonderful for her health. After eight years and not without success she sold and built a house in Summerland on Giant's Head Road next to her friend, Mrs. Bob Barkwill, a former teacher at Penticton.

Maybe she has always like it here for she owned a house in Summerland before, though she didn't live in it and sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Dryden. It is now owned by Mrs. Walter Wright.

She has always worked with Women's Institutes and would like to belong to the Horticultural Society. She likes to work with her hands and to study in groups. One summer she attended the University of Berkeley where, in the mornings, she browsed around in classes in sociology and psychology and in the afternoons attended art classes, where she was encouraged by the instructors in her natural ability and gift in drawing and color.

While in Penticton she took drawing lessons. She thinks she hasn't accomplished much with it, but would like to develop it.

The Indian agents have been in touch with her ever since she came to the Okanagan, and she has done all sorts of nursing and social service for them. Not long ago on the Kelowna-Westbank ferry one of the red-headed Indians of Westbank spoke to her saying: "You're lookin' good."

A tall, big woman, she has always "looked good" to them and to the thousands of people to whom she has been a tower of strength through many years, for she has always liked "to do things" for people.

Grants Will Not Be Reduced For Five Years

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Provincial grants to township areas annexed by cities and towns will not be reduced for five years after annexation, Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar told the legislature yesterday in introducing a bill to adjust provincial grants.

Townships receive higher grants than cities and Mr. Dunbar said it would be "quite a burden" on cities if grants were lowered immediately after annexation of township areas.

The bill provides that the grant will remain unchanged for the first five years after annexation and will be progressively lowered in the next five years to the level of city grants.

REJECTS DEMANDS

Belgrade, March 29 (AP) — Yugoslavia has bluntly rejected Romania's demand for the return of five Romnaain airmen.

In a note to the Romanian embassy yesterday, Yugoslavia said the five fliers had been granted asylum in accordance with international law. The refugee fliers said they fled their country in an army plane two weeks ago to escape "intolarable living conditions" and Russian domination.

CHILD AROUSES FAMILIES

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 29 — (CP)—Barbara Shellington, 6, roused two families in time for them to escape early today from their flaming home in suburban Korah Township. In all, eight persons fled barefooted in night attire.

Sharing the one-storey frame dwelling were Mr. and Mrs. John Shellington and children Barbara and Carol; Edward Gagnon, 11; and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nicholson and their son, Darwin.

Religious Tolerance Keystone of Buddhism Practised by Siamese Says Visitor

(Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, recently visited Bangkok, capital of Thailand in southwest Asia. In this story, one of a series, he writes of the Buddhist religion which affects every aspect of Siamese life.)

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok, Thailand, March 29 (CP) — Every Siamese man spends part of his life as a priest in a Buddhist Temple.

Every man is a walking mirror to the conscience of a Buddist priest. He may know more about his religion than the saffron-robed monk who passes him on the street.

He also knows the standard of conduct and dress expected of the priest and is as quick to spot one falling short of the mark as another monk ought to be.

One monk to whom I talked—he had spent seven years in the temple and served as the temple's interpreter—pointed to a hotel room-clerk and said: "That man was my teacher in the temple when I was a student there."

One medical student of my acquaintance spent three weeks in the temple before he began his university studies. He plans to spend another three months there after his course when he will be joined by his brother, due to graduate in engineering at the same time.

A man may enter temple life anytime and leave anytime. Most Siamese spend three months there before marrying.

The result is diffusion among the people of a profound understanding of the religion they practise—daily, not just once weekly.

Up to Individual

Buddhism is a religion of the individual. Each must work out his own path to Nirvani—the state of Everlasting Enlightenment. All Budda did was say, in effect: "All I can do is show you what I have learned. The rest is up to you." There are no prophets or messiahs in pure Buddhism, no rituals and no ceremonies.

Since religion is a matter for the individual, there is complete religious tolerance. Early American missionaries first preached the Christian gospel in a Buddhist temple at the invitation of the patriarch of the day.

In Thailand, the monarchy sought to preserve its despotism by placing the church under its patronage. It introduced brahministic rites to lend Buddhism the trappings of ceremony. Lately there has been a revision of procedure. The number of monks has been reduced.

Traces of the brahmin influence remain, but in the more severe temples, such as beautiful wat benchamamopitr (marble temple), the service has been stripped to prayers and readings from the suhtra, the writings of Buddha which are in the original pali, and commentaries on them by the priests.

Such services are held four times a month, regulated by the periods of the moon. Priests officiate at family events but in a straight-forward way. They are invited to family celebrations. Siamese parents keep their children's heads shaved as a sanitary measure and the first shaving is performed by a priest. From then, effectively, he has no other religious connection with the family until death occurs, when he presides at cremation.

Marriage is not a religious event in Siam. It is enough for a young couple to live openly together for their union to be recognized. The law simply requires them to register the fact and there is no legal ceremony though unions may be blessed by the priest if a couple wishes. A man may have concubines.

Divorce is as simple as marriage. One merely orders, before witnesses, that the woman go home.

TRUMAN RETURNS

Washington, March 29—(AP) — President Truman returned from a three-week Florida vacation last night and settled down in the gleaming "new" White House for the first time in more than 3 years.

The Trumans vacated the White House in November, 1948, and moved across the street to Blair House. In the interim, the executive mansion has been rebuilt and remodelled at a cost of $5,671,000.

Now equipped with bullet-proof windows, the old building has been strengthened from basement to roof.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

HATCHING TIME

The majority of us are fairly well acquainted with robins, their beautiful green-blue eggs, and their babies. Probably you have watched one of their big, untidy nests closely enough to know that Mrs. Robin, who is not as brilliantly colored as her husband, lays an egg a day, and these hatch in the same order. The nestlings, all different ages, are born practically naked and quite helpless. Gradually down grows on them, and later feathers; but for some time they must remain at home and be cared for by the parents.

We are apt to think this is the pattern for all birds, but here we are wrong. It is so with many perching birds, but by no means all of them. A red-winged blackbird, for instance, lays an egg a day, yet does not start incubating until the whole clutch is ready. About the 12th day, all the babies come popping out of their shells, ready to start life as triplets, quadruplets, or quintets as the case may be.

Birds of prey, as eagles, hawks and owls, are born either partly or entirely covered with down, and from there on, their story is the same as that of the robin. The great horned owl, and the cuckoo (whose babies come naked) vary matters another way. Their eggs are not laid on successive days, consequently there is sometimes a difference of several days in the ages of the youngsters.

A great number of birds, including shore and water birds, are all hatched at once, born with little feathers, and able to look after themselves either immediately or very soon. These are known as "precocial." They come from eggs that are much larger in proportion to the size of the parent, because there must be sufficient albumen in them to care for the chick, that it may be far advanced when born. Newly hatched killdeers (whose period of incubation is 27 days), ruffed grouse, and woodcocks are all able to run around almost as soon as their down is dry. Little sora rails, practically at birth, can swim and protect themselves. Ducks emerge from their shells, dry off, and in half an hour are ready to take to the water.

Perching birds remove egg shells from their nest when babies are born, that attention may not be drawn to the home; but parents of precocial chicks do not bother, as the family will not be remaining near. This seems to show intelligence, yet scientists say it is only instinct.

Mr. Stokowski Won't Face Camera

World-famous orchestra conductor Leopold Stokowski has avoided cameramen for years but was caught off guard with this snapshot. He attended a ballet performance in New York and this photo was taken before he knew a camera was aimed at him. So he and his wife, the former Gloria Vanderbilt, right, quickly left the theatre. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

Firm Pondering Reopening Mine Found in 1686

Haileybury, Ont. — (CP) — A mine first discovered in 1686, lost for 164 years and found again, may be re-opened soon by a new company.

Just across Lake Temiskaming from this town, a party of French soldiers under Sieur de Troyes first stumbled on the deposits of lead and silver while on their way to attack the English post of Moose Factory on Hudson Bay.

De Troyes says in his journal of the trip: "We extracted a few small pieces with great difficulty and returned to camp." After the De Troyes party left, the deposits were lost.

In 1850, E. V. Wright, an Ottawa lumberman, gouged out a few small chunks of galena with his hobnailed boots as he was making his way along the edge of the lake. He started operations and sank a shaft to a depth of 12 feet.

The project was abandoned when the second shipment of 10 tons on a raft was smashed to pieces at Deux Rivieres.

In 1895, the mine was worked again, with concentrates going to Swansea, Wales, after travelling by boat down the Ottawa River.

Timmins - McMartin interests drained the property in 1925 and did some diamond drilling but unfavorable prices for lead, zinc and silver forbade further exploration.

TIGHTEN CONTROLS

Vienna, March 29 — (AP) — Communist Hungary has apparently tightened its already existing controls over the teaching of religion. Budapest newspapers say the council of ministers has approved a new decree whereby all instruction outside of school—except singing and dancing and language — must first be approved by the government. Recently minister of education Joszef Darvas complained that priests and religious teachers were conducting small classes in their homes.

Women's Activities

VICTORIA AVE. SENIOR M.C.

Thirty members of the Senior Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church gathered at the home of Mrs. A. Fox, 98 Bridge Street West, for their March meeting on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. W. Neil, conducted the meeting which began with a worship service.

Following the opening hymn, Miss Ethel Nurse read the Scripture, Psalm 96, and Miss Viola Handley spoke on the theme 'Joy'. Mrs. L. K. Daniel presented up to the minute missionary news of work at home and abroad in a Watch Tower talk.

Speaker

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Clarence Hay, who spoke of the educational work carried on by Baptist Missions in India, assisted by Mrs. Clayton Phillips, and Mrs. H. Thompson, who provided answers to Mrs. Hay's leading questions. The ladies reviewed Baptist work over the past 75 years pointing out the growth from the first school to village schools, boarding schools, high schools, normal school and theological seminary. Special notice was drawn to the fact that annually these institutions graduate from 1,100 to 1,200 citizens whose moral and educational standards compare favorably with contemporary thought and training in India. Mrs. Hay closed her remarks with a plea for additional support for this worthy Christian work.

The business period followed, after which Mrs. J. Carr closed the meeting.

The refreshments were then served.

BEULAH W.M.S.

The March meeting of the Beulah W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Twiddy with ten members and three visitors present.

A delicious pot luck dinner was served.

After dinner there was a "quilting" for the supply department.

Business was discussed.

Mrs. A. Creaser gave a talk on her mission work at Hillside.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Sam Twiddy for opening her home for the meeting.

Mr., Mrs. Willoughby Fox, Ameliasburg Twp. Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

Lifelong residents of Prince Edward County, Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Fox, 1st concession of Aemeliasburg township, observed their 50th wedding anniversary Wednesday, when they were feted by members of their family and community friends.

It was on March 26th back in 1902, that Mr. Fox, then a young man of 21, and his young bride, 16-year-old Zella May Trumpour, were married at the Methodist parsonage at Rednersville. They then took up residence on the groom's farm, where they have since lived.

To commemorate the event of 50 years ago neighbors of the Fox's "dropped in" Saturday evening and presented the couple with a handsome trilite lamp.

On the date of the anniversary relatives gathered to extend congratulations and offer well wishes to the couple who have lived continuously in the neighborhood for well over half a century. Mr. Fox is 72, while Mrs. Fox is 67.

Retained Area for Home

With the sale of their farm three years ago, farming days are over for them, but they retained several acres on the homestead and it is here where they now make their home.

But even at 72, Mr. Fox has no thoughts of retiring. He has worked "off and on" as a carpenter most of his life and he still follows the building trade, either working for contractors or "on his own." At the present time he is working on a new house but took a holiday to observe the anniversary.

Mr. Fox also is in good health and the couple are regular attendants at Centre United Church. There Mr. Fox sang in the choir for a number of years and also acted as Sunday School superintendent.

One Son Killed

But for a railway crossing accident which claimed the life of their only son, Earl Fox, during the summer of 1950, the cup of happiness for Mr. and Mrs. Fox would be full.

The son had been operating the family farm until for the better of his wife's health he quit the farm and moved to Belleville. Earl was working as a driver for a bread company, when in an early morning fog his truck was struck by a train at Ivanhoe and he was fatally injured.

"If only Earl were here we would be perfectly happy," Mrs. Fox sadly said. "I just can't seem to forget."

Two lifelong friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fox were present Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bryant of Wellington who "stood up" for them at their marriage, spent the evening with them along with relatives.

The couple have one grandchild, Leo Fox, 16, student at Belleville Collegiate.

St. Michael's Children of Mary Present Three-Act Irish Play

The living room of Derry O'Toole's summer cottage was the setting of a three-act play recently presented by St. Michael's Children of Mary under the direction of Mary MacDougall in St. Michael's auditorium. The well-chosen cast delighted the audience with their Irish accent.

Leo Callaghan as Dermot O'Toole played the part of a warmhearted Irishman with a real touch of "blarney" when it come to the girls.

He was completely captivated by the soft brogue of a young Irish colleen, Nora Mullen, played by Bernice Tobin, although he had vowed never to "spake" to them again after he heard of the faithlessness of his "swateheart", Eileen Cassidy, played by Shirley Evans. Her husband Jacob Augenblick, Leo Finnegan, added many laughs with his dull manner and strong hand shake.

The villain looked and played his part well. Henri, the bogus French count, was played by Ernie Poirier and mademoiselle, his partner in crime, was Vivian Cannon. The victim of their criminal attempts was pretty little Carol Sager as Barbara Harrington. Their plot was completely upset by Nora's unwitting actions.

Bill Ross as Van Tassel MacMurrough, a handsome young millionaire, helped in the rounding up of the gang. His pretty young fiancee, Loyola Chapelle, was so proud of his ingenuity in the case that she consented to become his bride.

Dennis Harrington, Barbara's father was played by Jack Ross. The play ended happily with Nora returning Derry's love.

Furniture was obtained through the courtesy of Percival's. Stage setting and properties were handled very capably by Bill Barrett, Joan MacIntyre, Catherine Meagher, Joe Chapelle, Joe O'Neill and Pat O'Grady.

Choral Numbers

Two choral numbers, "Husheen" and "Old Irish Mother of Mine", were an added feature to the evening's entertainment. The singing group included, Helen Grant, Carolyn Forhan, Muriel McIsaac, Joan Temple, Jacqueline Henderson, Barbara Chapelle and Mary O'Neill, accompanied by Mrs. William Grant.

Robert Burke, a talented young singer delighted the audience with "Dear Old Donnegal" and "Kitty of Caleraine".

ANAF Auxiliary Reviews Work During Year

The Women's Auxiliary of Branch 201 of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, recently held their annual meeting under the presidency of Mrs. William McKenna and at the conclusion enjoyed a potluck supper. The work of the Unit No. 49 during the past year was reviewed and showed a wonderful amount of work done by these wives and sweethearts of the veterans.

At the meeting hld, 12 pairs of socks were completed and donated to the veterans in Sunnybrook hospital but this was only one of the many gifts sent during the year. The members held card parties throughout the year and the lunch was donated by other members and the proceeds were used to purchase bathrobes and slippers for the several veterans from this district confined to the TB hospital at Kingston.

The women catered for the Darts teams, the soccer teams and the Armistice Day banquet held in the armouries. They also served the lunch for the Officers' Mess at the New Year's party. They assisted the men's unit in conducting the children's picnic held during the summer and also the Christmas party. The social evenings held by the men's unit twice a month was also catered for by the women. Previous to Decoration Day the women sorted and arranged in bouquets the flowers which were placed on the graves of the veterans in Belleville and St. James' cemetery.

Donations were made to the Sunnybrook Hospital, the March of Dimes and the Canadian Institute for the Blind. It was shown that the unit justified its existence and plans were laid to assist more generally in all projects during the coming year. The president and executive were extended a hearty vote of thanks for the excellent work done.

Basic English Aids Newcomers

Montreal. (CP)— Vest pocket versions of both the English and French languages are doing a lot to help integrate immigrants into Canada's way of life.

Florence Gaynor, of Ottawa, consultant on immigrant education for the Canadian Citizenship Council, says that basic English and a similar form of French is proving to be an effective way of teaching these languages quickly to Canada's new citizens.

The immigrants themselves are enthusiastic about the project. An estimated 40,000 are taking courses in the simplified forms of English and French across Canada.

The emphasis of basic English is placed on a small, well-spoken vocabulary, says Miss Gaynor. Students start to speak English with the first class, and after about one year of night school—about 100 hours of classes—they are able to speak English fairly well.

Miss Gaynor now is training teachers in various parts of Canada in how to instruct basic English. The new method, she says, is not only better for the student —it is easier on the teacher.

Makes Pupils Talk

One class might include pupils speaking as many as 10 different languages and unable to understand each other. The teacher starts with simple words, accompanied by appropriate gestures. Her aim is to get the pupils to do the talking.

Basic English has a vocabulary of 850 words, of which 16 are verbs. Those verbs are the difficult ones for beginners. . such as the verbs, to be, keep, say, send. The student is launched right into them, for they are essential to English speech.

The classes are becoming so popular that immigrants of 20 years ago are starting to follow them, says Miss Gaynor. Students range in age from five to 75 years.

The project is being supported by the federal government, which supplies free text books, through the provincial departments of Education.

VIRUS KILLS 800 DOGS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 29 — (CP)—A virus infection with symptoms resembling distemper is killing off dogs here at the rate of five or more a day.

Veterinarians have warned residents to keep their dogs off the streets and call an expert if the animals show any signs of having a cold.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

In Korea, husbands do not mourn their wives because wives are considered replaceable! For a father, a Korean mourns three months, for a mother, two. Korean custom also dictates that marriages are not only arranged by the parents of the lucky couple, but by an exchange of horoscopes of the boy and girl. In this way each set of parents can consult their own fortune teller to find out whether the match will "take" or not - - - Perhaps this is why divorces are such a rarity in that country.

Divorce in Korea is a simple process. The husband simply sends the unwanted wife "back to mother." That's all there is to it. Incidentally, Korean mothers feed their little ones from the breast until they are four or five years old.

Burma Marriage

Talking of marriage and divorce, in Burma, only the wife may sue for divorce. No Burmese husband may divorce his wife. In fact, in Burma, it is the woman who marries the man, not the man who marries the woman as elsewwhere in the world.

This custom even includes the fact that the man is taken into the woman's family circle and not the wife into the man's.

Titles

On being raised to an earldom for his services as Governor General of Canada, Earl, formerly Viscount Alexander of Tunis, has chosen a subsidiary title "Baron Rideau of Ottawa." Reason for this is that the eldest sons of Earls and higher ranks in the peerage are known by their father's next most senior title.

This is merely a courtesy title and does not give the eldest son a seat in the house of Lords. That is why many members of the British House of Commons are Lord So and So. They are mere "courtesy lords" and may not enter the upper house until their father's death.

From the Alexander family's standpoint, this now means that the Hon. Shane Alexander will become Lord Rideau of Ottawa.

His sister, Hon. Rose Alexander, becomes Lady Rose Alexander, being raised to the rank of an earl's daughter rather than a viscount's.

The distinctly Canadian flavor to Alexander's new subsidiary title is nothing new. A hundred years ago, a Governor of Upper Canada, Poulett Thomson, was raised to the peerage as "Lord Sydenham and Toronto." This linked his English home with the focal point of the Upper Canada which he governed.

In the same way, "Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal" retained in his chosen title a reminder of his Scottish birth-place and of the beautiful Mount Royal which overlooks and gives its name to the Canadian city of Montreal.

Best known Canadian-born peer is the British newspaper tycoon, Max Aitken, "Lord Beaverbrook" whose ear for a good Canadian sound resulted in his choosing a little known and meandering New Brunswick creek as the title by which he would be known.

Second Canadian Stars in London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—The stage production of Agatha Christie's thriller, "The Hollow", which completed a year's run here in January, just can't get along without a Canadian.

Fair-haired Barbara Cummings of (58 St. David St.), Thorold, Ontario, is the second Canadian to appear before packed west end audiences in this typical Christie story of an English weekend house party, in which murder is the main dish.

Barbara plays Veronica Cray, a Hollywood star of doubtful years, who returns to Britain to find out whether an old flame is still susceptible, and finds herself suspected of murder.

"I really enjoy the part," says 26-year-old Barbara, who, like her predecessor, finds it hard to appear sufficiently old and sophisticated. The part was first played by Edmonton-born Dianne Foster, 23-year-old wife of Andrew Allan, drama supervisor of the CBC.

For slim, five-foot-seven Barbara, who took over in September, this is the first west end role of any size and she hasn't lost the thrill of appearing before audiences that are among the world's most discriminating.

"It's still packing them in, and will probably play throughout the summer," she said appreciatively.

Took Small Parts

After five years in London, climbing the hard way by a series of small parts, this means a lot to Barbara. But it has a wistful side too.

"You know," she said in an interview, "this is the first time in those five years I've really felt homesick for Canada. I'm going home on holiday just as fast as I can."

Barbara first saw Britain in 1943 when she arrived with the Canadian army show that toured the European battle areas. In 1945 she returned for a nine-months' session at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, using her war gratuity to help with expenses.

Since then it's been hard work and little glamor. Her first appearance on the British stage was a six-months' provincial tour in 1947 with the Restoration comedy, "Immortal Lady". Later she understudied the female lead in "All My Sons", starring Hollywood's Joseph Calliea. She also had a small part in Paul Muni's "Death of a Salesman", sharing honors with Mary Laura Wood of Sackville, N.B.

With occasional spots on radio Luxembourg and British television, and small parts in such films, as "Lili Marlene" and "House in the Square", starring Tyrone Power, Barbare has been happy in London. And, provided she can make an occasional trip home, she's keen to stay.

CRIPPLED WOLF SHOT

Owen Sound, Ont., Mar. 29 — (CP) — Four district men shot and killed a 55-pound wolf near the eastern outskirts of Owen Sound yesterday.

The wolf was brought down only after a six-hour chase that covered an estimated 20 miles. For most of the distance it ran with a hind leg broken by a shot fired by William Linn, veteran wolf hunter.

WILL ADD COLOR

Preston, March 29 (CP)—The Public Utility Commission is asking itself: "Do fire hydrants have to be red?" When the question of re-painting the town's 152 hydrants came up, members suggested various combinations of colors —orange and black, orange and green, or red and white—to add color to the town.

Canadian Women Meet High Cost Living

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canadian women owe it to themselves—and to the economy of their country—to "buy only what they need, not what they want," says Mrs. Allan Turner Bone, Montreal.

As president of the National Council of Women, Mrs. Turner Bone has special interest in measures calculated to cut living expenses. For the last five months the Council has been urging its 600,000 women to economize.

Mrs. Turner Bone explains that this Thrift Campaign is an anti-inflationary effort. The Council doesn't want its members to forego spending—but to curb it, and restrain it, and delay it.

The N.C.W. president expressed her views to The Canadian Press after she was asked for her opinion about current high prices and how she meets them in her own home.

The Council head practises what she preaches. Enclosed with her letter were recipes for two inexpensive dishes, favorites with the Turner Bone family.

Cold Meats in Overcoats

This, says Mrs. Turner Bone is an excellent way to use meat left-overs.

Ingredients: One-half cup flour, one-quarter teaspoon baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one egg, milk, thin slices of left-over meat, (ham, beef, etc.).

Mix dry ingredients. Add egg and enough milk to make a thick batter. Beat well. Dip slices of cold meat in batter. Fry in greased pan.

Mrs. Turner Bone's Poor Man's Pudding is a fine dessert for chilly weather.

Ingredients: One cup brown sugar, one cup raisins, one cup sour milk (or buttermilk), 2 1-2 cups flour; two tablespoons butter; one teaspoon soda; spices to suit taste.

Steam in mold for two hours.

More Thrift

"Thrift" suggestions from the National Council include the following recipe for an inexpensive spot remover.

Ingredients: One-half ounce alcohol, two ounces concentrated ammonia; one-half ounce ether.

The above items should be measured and mixed by a druggist. Then cut three-quarters of an ounce of castile soap into small pieces and dissolve in one cup of boiling soft water. When thoroughly dissolved add six cups soft water. Add the drug-store mixture, bottle and cork tightly.

If soft water is not available use rain-water or melted snow. The latter may need to be strained through cheese-cloth until clear.

For general sponging dilute with equal parts water.

Campaign for Vice-Presidenc

Six-foot-tall Mrs. Marian Mosick, 38, has announced in Los Angeles her candidacy for the vice-presidency of the U.S. In her first speech she said that her campaign symbol would be a "broken shoestring." I want to call attention to the public," she said, "that our national debt now costs the taxpayers $30,000 every minute." — Central Press Canadian.

WESTERN LEMON

Roland, Man. — (CP) — H. V. Van Wyck who bought a tiny lemon plant two years ago at Georgetown, Ont., now has a remarkable lemon. Two ordinary lemons dropped off the plant when ripe but a third grew to 12 inches in circumference, weighing three-quarters of a pound.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thoughts on weddings. . .from an aisle seat

There is something very endearing about a Juliet cap. . . enchanting bridelike. . . dream-come-true. . .practically always becoming. Juliet caps and pearls and lace. . .what a charming trio!

Most bridal bouquets today are smaller, much smaller than formerly. . .simpler, more casual-appearing in design, easier to carry.

New note in headdress for bridesmaids: small coronets of silver leaves.

The inevitably youthful look of the short, short, shortie gloves worn by so many of today's bridal attendants.

At an extremely fashionable wedding recently, the bride's only attendant, maid of honor, wore a bronze-net-over-yellow-taffeta dress, a fascinating little yellow hat, and carried yellow daffodils. Very picturesque. . . lyric.

How grimly apparent it is at some weddings that there has been no conference between "the mothers" as to what they are to wear. . .no co-operation as to the type of costume both are to wear, no decision about the colors to harmonize. And the moral: it is the bride's mother who is the hostess of the wedding, who must decided on what type of costume "the mothers" are to wear . . .she should get in touch with the groom's mother, or the groom's mother should get in touch with her. . .they should consult together about (1) the type of costume each is to wear; (2) most importantly, the length of the dress, both floor-length, or both ankle-length, or both street-length; and (3) the color each is to wear, colors that must harmonize. (The mothers stand next to each other in the receiving-line . . . .so color-harmony is most important.)

Not a double wedding for these sisters. . .but two weddings on same day

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have a very special problem, and would so much appreciate your advice. Our two daughters are planning to be married the last part of June. They are our only children, there is ten years difference in their ages, and they are deeply devoted to each other. My husband and I have suggested that they have a double wedding, but neither wants this, although they would like to be married at about the same time. Any suggestions, Mrs. Beeckman?—Mother.

Yes! Friends of mine had a somewhat similar problem quite recently, and solved it with a memorable distinction and charm. They had two weddings the same day, in the same church, and a joint reception after the second ceremony, in the home of the brides. The older (in this case she was only two years older than her sister) chose to have a high noon wedding, and the younger sister, a four o'clock wedding, and the reception followed immediately after this. Each bride had her own attendants, one honor attendant, two bridesmaids, and both had the same flower girl. the little daughter of their only brother. The planning for these two weddings was really simpler, in a way, than planning for a double wedding; same church flower decorations and other plans, and same reception plans and procedure.

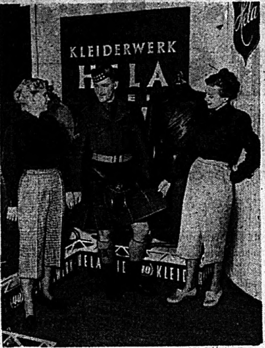
Bride's father wears same type of attire as groom, best man, ushers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The groom, best man, and ushers are to wear tuxedos at the wedding. Does the father of the bride, who is to escort her up the aisle and give her in marriage, have to wear a tuxedo also?—Bill

Yes. The bride's father is a member of the wedding party, and so must wear the same type of attire worn by the other men in the wedding party. (Also the groom's father, who is the man guest of honor, wears the same type of attire.)

Confusing but Amusing



A bit perplexed are these two German mannequins at the Hannover Trade Fair as they examine the highland garb of a Canadian soldier and compare it with the latest German fashions of slacks for frauleins. The fair, one of the largest and most varied in Europe, annually attracts exhibitors from all parts of the world, including Canada. On hand this year to compare Canadian products with products of other countries are thousands of soldiers serving with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany. The corporal is Don Fletcher, of Toronto, a member of the 48th Highlanders of Canada. — (National Defence Photo.)

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

Sometime when you have space would you kindly print a recipe for porcupines—a dish with raw rice and hamburger made into balls and baked in tomatoes.—Mildred L.

ANSWER:

I'm glad you reminded me of this delicious dish. I had forgotten about it.

PORCUPINE BALLS (No. 1)

One lb. ground beef, 4 slices bread, 1 beaten egg, 1 cup milk, 2 medium onions, 2 medium stalks celery chopped, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup washed uncooked rice, 2 cups tomato juice. Soak bread in milk till soft, then beat egg into them. Add all ingredients except tomato juice. Shape into 8 balls and place in buttered baking dish. Pour tomato juice over, sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours.

PORCUPINE MEAT BALLS (No. 2)

One-half cup rice, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 1-2 lbs. ground beef or hamburger, 1 can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 soup can full of water, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper. Wash rice well in strainer. Mix meat, rice, salt and pepper. Add the water to the soup and bring to boiling and add onion and pepper. Shape meat into 1 1-2-inch balls and drop into boiling sauce. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 40 or 50 minutes—or until rice is tender. Spoon tomato sauce over balls when serving.

Note: If desired meat balls may be browned in fat, and the tomato soup poured over, and then the whole simmer 45 minutes covered.

QUESTION:

To me your column is the most fascinating in the whole paper. I followed your Christmas cake recipe precisely and it came out to be the best and moistest I've ever tasted. Had to make another batch at New Year's. . .I have tried and am staying with your recipes for cookies and salads and vegetables. They are all super.

You gave a recipe for Springerle. I would like to know just what the Springerle roller looks like. I saw it (I think. . .in a dept. store). It has a sort of deeply carved squared design.

Every year I make my own supply of grape juice. I cook the grapes drain them overnight through double thickness of cheesecloth, then I add sugar, cook and bottle. But there always forms a crunchy sediment at the bottom of each bottle. What causes that? Is there a way of preventing this?. . . I would like to ask if you have a recipe for pretzels and arrowroot biscuits?—Fran.

ANSWER:

Look, my sweet, there are such outstanding columnists on this newspaper that you embarrass me with my homey stuff. Thank you though, whole-heartedly.

PRETZELS

Haven't you ever heard of a pretzel bender? Seriously these require machinery to make them—it is not practicable to make them at home. I have never seen a formula for the batter for pretzels. Could other readers comment on this please? Is there a pretzel maker in the audience?

ARROWROOT COOKIES

are extruded through a tube in a cookie making machine too, but you can make arrowroot cookies like plain sugar cookies, using arrowroot flour instead of wheat flour,—but sift the arrowroot flour 4 times before measuring and use only 2-3 as much as you would of wheat flour: 2-3 cup shortening, 1 1-4 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups sifted arrowroot flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

The sediment in your grape juice to which you refer is tartaric acid. The only way to prevent it being in your juice is to filter it out after it stands for anywhere from 2 to 21 days. You could filter the juice for 24 hours without it becoming too warm and exposed to bacteria. You might manage three drainings through thick filter in that time. But don't worry about it—it happens in the best regulated of grape juice canneries. This tartaric acid from grapes is what cream of tartar for baking is obtained from—after it is refined and pulverized.

The springerle roller is what you describe.

I have just remembered that you can make shortbread with arrowroot flour. Remember to reduce the quantity of flour though until it is of good rolling consistency.

QUESTION:

I am a faithful reader. . .can you give me a simple inexpensive recipe for a topping for 1 crust pies that could be used instead of whipped cream or regular meringue. . .it is commonly used in bakeries. . . .the foundation seems to be marshmallow or powdered skim milk. . . am I on the right track?—Mrs. Mac.

ANSWER:

Yes, you are.

SKIM MILK POWDER TOPPING

(Replaces meringue or whipped cream)

One-half cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-2 cup skim milk powder, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla. Put water and lemon juice in a bowl and add the dry milk powder. Beat with rotary beater until thick—about 10 minutes. Add sugar and vanilla. (1 1-2 cups).

QUESTION:

. . .my problem is a friend of mine is being ordained. His sister is having a reception for 1,000. We would like a good recipe for punch—enough not to run out.—Mrs. Jack L. K.

ANSWER:

PUNCH FOR 1,000

(At 4 ounces per serving—1 serving each—1,000 people will drink 25 gallons punch.)

Forty (40) dozen lemons, 150 oranges (12 1-2 dozen), 10 20-oz. tins crushed pineapple, 60 lbs. sugar, 60 quarts (15 gal.) water. Make a sugar syrup of the water and sugar and if practical some of the rind shredded from the lemons and oranges. Ginger ale or soda water may be used in place of some of the water. If so, it should be added at the last minute. Have slices of oranges and maraschino cherries to float on top of the punch in the punch bowls.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Tell-Tale Diary

You've heard of husbands who got jealous and quarreled with their wives over the discovery of old letters, diaries and other paper souvenirs which disclosed the perfectly normal fact that the wives had had girlhood romances.

A curious twist in this type of thing is a husband who found his own name in the pages of his wife's high school diary, and didn't care at all for what she had said about him. Now he refuses to believe that she later really did come to love him, and the incident has caused serious trouble between them.

The wife, who is only 19, was married right after graduation from high school and has a little son. In desperation, she writes for help, relating the story as follows:

"Right after we were married, my husband and I were over at my parents' home one day, and he happened to come across an old diary of mine. Since then, nothing has been the same between us.

"You see, the big trouble was that when I first started to date him, I had been going with a boy my mother didn't like and would not let me go out with, She did like Bill, who became my husband, and was willing to have me go out with him. So in order to get to go out at all, I accepted Bill's invitations, although at that time I didn't really care much for him.

"Well, that was all in my diary, and so Bill won't believe now that I really did get to love him, which I do truly. I have grown up a lot in the last two years, and while I grant I was a child when we were married, I'm a woman now, and a mother.

"But Bill won't believe it. He hasn't told me he loves me for so long now that I can't remember the last time, and he seems to hurt me deliberately sometimes, just for the pleasure of it. When I want to be kissed, I have to ask him, which is very humiliating.

"I'm still young, and I want to be loved. I can't keep on being hurt and criticized all the time, with never a word of praise or affection. "If his love for me is dead, I want to know it, so I won't keep on breaking my heart over him. But do you think perhaps there might be something I can do to bring him back to me and have him the way he used to be?"

Bent on Wrecking Happiness

What's the matter with this husband anyhow? Here he is, with a wife who obviously loves him devotedly and who would do anything to make him happy; with, no doubt, a pleasant and comfortable home that she makes for him; with a small son who must certainly be the apple of his eye. Yet with all this, he has to seize upon some insignificant thing long since over and done with, and set about doing his very best to wreck the whole structure of his happiness.

That would be bad enough, if it was only his own happiness he is bent on wrecking. But it is a thousand times worse when he deliberately seeks to destroy the girl who, out of love and devotion, has given him the happiness he has.

The trouble here, of course, is quite clear. Where the girl he married left her childhood behind in the pages of her diary and has gone on to maturity, her husband is still living in his own childhood emotionally. What he really needs, of course, is a good psychological overhauling. But it's highly unlikely he's going to realize it and take steps to get it. Or that he would listen to anyone who tried to suggest it to him, least of all the wife he is deliberately torturing.

Perhaps, since it is unthinkable that he will do so himself, she might be the one to consult a marital counsellor and ask what methods she could try in an attempt to get some sense into him.

Otherwise, I'm afraid all she can do is to bide her time, ignoring her husband's boorishness as best she can, and filling her life with all the outside interests possible in order to leave as little room as possible in her day and in her mind for depression and brooding. If there is any real love for her in this fellow, time and tolerance on her part may work a miracle. If it doesn't, then she will have to accept the fact that the estimate of him she entered in that teen-age diary was accurate, and that she made a mistake to revise it, stop breaking her heart over him and take steps to set herself free to find someone who, like herself, has attained normal emotional growth.

The drawback in this happy marriage—can be adjusted

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For nearly four years I have been married to a man who is one of the best of husbands. He has a good job which he loves. We have a two-year-old boy and live in a rented house instead of an apartment, so that the baby has his own little room, and a yard to play in. Sounds like Paradise, doesn't it, particularly since we are both under 25?

There is only one drawback, but that is the biggest one any marriage could have. This is that I can feel absolutely no emotion at all toward my husband, except pity that I am hurting him so by my lack of affection. He is so sweet, and I know that he loves me very much, but I can't fake what I don't feel. If he would only get mad or fight back, even have an affair with another woman, perhaps it might kindle a spark in me, but he just gets hurt and keeps it all inside himself.

Is there anyone I could go to for help? We haven't money for a psychiatrist, and I don't know any minister to whom I feel I could talk about my problem.—A.

Dear A.:

I am sure this problem of yours can be worked out if you are really anxious that it should be.

The first thing for you to do is to check with your doctor to make certain there is no physical reason for your attitude.

If the doctor reports that your physical condition is perfectly normal, then it becomes a matter, as you imply yourself, that should be handled by someone who can help you find the emotional cause of your trouble and guide you in adjusting to it.

You could either consult a psychiatrist or a trained marriage counsellor, the difference being that the former has a basic medical training which the latter has not. Even though you do not have money to pay large sums for the advice of either, it is entirely possible that anyone you consulted would willing to make an arrangement by which you could pay a little at a time.

You seem to have everything in your favor for a happy marriage. I'm sure there is no reason why you cannot make it so.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Water benefits the complexion

Do you know that dry skin often develops because a woman doesn't drink enough water? It is so. The cutaneous surface is thirsty. Water is more essential to health and splendid appearance than most of us realize. If you have an arid skin, or one that has become coarse of texture, drink six glasses of water a day. If you are a demon tea or coffee drinker, four will suffice. Many women, not being thirsty, never drink water at all.

Two-thirds of the body's weight consist of water. It is found in every cell and fibre. The human system must have its full allotment if the digestive motors are to function normally and the body dispose of waste materials. Without good nutrition and normal elimination, various good-looks ills may appear—facial eruptions, pallor, dull eyes with shadows under them, listlessness of spirit. After all, you can't get away from the fact that to look well you must feel well—physically, mentally and spiritually.

The body disposes of about four pints of water a day through the various avenues of elimination—the skin, kidneys and intestinal tract. Though one may not be aware of it, the skin exudes considerable moisture during twenty-four hours. To counterbalance this loss, the intake of water should be at least a quart, which means four full glasses. So decide right now to be a water baby and cut down on the cosmetic and beautifying overhead.

The blood supply needs water to carry on its important business of distributing nutriment and building new cells. The coloring of your complexion depends upon active blood streams.

To look well, you must feel well.

Women who have sallow complexions should take the water cure. Ice-water should be avoided. It lowers the temperature of the body and slows up the pulse. Taken with meals, it chills the digestive machinery and retards digestion. Water that comes from the faucet is cold enough. Why refrigerate your insides?

There are individuals who say they dislike water. They can substitute buttermilk or tomato juice, both of which are health-building fluids and helpful in keeping the skin clear and of fine texture.

It just won't do to pin too much faith to cosmetics. They are helpful if health conditions are normal, but they can't make any headway unless one sticks to hygienic measures.

CAUSED BY VIRUS

London, March 29—(Reuters) — A 38-year-old British housewife turned a bright shade of red after being bitten on the hand by a kitten — and was probably the first victim here of "cat scratch fever" which is common in France. In the medical magazine The Lancet, Dr. Oliver Garai says the woman was ill for more than two months, and the fever was almost certainly caused by an unknown virus.

Would Convert Barren Acres To Duck Hatchery

Memphis, Tenn., March 29—(AP) — A Canadian sportsman said today million of acres of barren land in Canada could be converted into a vast waterfowl hatchery that would increase the duck population 400 per cent.

Angus Gavin, general manager of Ducks Unlimited of Canada, told trustees of the organization: "Ducks Unlimited has turned ,700,000 acres of parched, useless prairie lands into a waterfowl hatchery, but we have not touched more than 10 per cent of those barren lands."

Reclamation and conversion of those waste lands into a giant chain-lake region, Gavin said, would produce enough ducks to blacken the skies in the Mississippi Valley flyway during the fall-winter migration.

Ducks Unlimited is financed by contributions from United States sportsmen. Trustees, representing 8 states, came here for the meeting.

Casualties Show Heavier Fighting

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—The army today issued its 99th casualty list of the Korean war, reporting four men killed in action and six wounded, bringing to 35 the number of casualties reported within three days.

This indicated Canada's 25th Brigade has been in some of its heaviest fighting of the war—certainly the toughest since mid-December.

The 35 casualties reported since Wednesday have included nine killed, 25 wounded, and one injured in action. They included 15 members of the Princess Patricia's 10 members of the Royal Canadian Regiment, five members of the Royal 22nd Regiment, four in artillery and one in an armored unit. Unlike the practice in the Second World War, casualties in the Korean theatre have been announced promptly, with no delay after the next-of-kin has been informed. Since December, casualty lists have been short, often containing only one name.

The Brigade has been out of the line part of that time, and fighting for much of that time was slowed during truce negotiations.

The past previous heavy run of casualties was Dec. 13 and Dec. 6, when in two lists the army reported 47 casualties. However, these included only one man killed in action.

Today's list brought to 737 the number of casualties suffered so far, including 139 dead, 532 wounded, 61 injured in action, four missing and one captured.

Deadly Cobra Loose in Denver

Denver, March 29 (AP) — A deadly king cobra was believed loose in Denver today.

The snake apparently slithered out of the automobile of a reptile garden operator during an attempted burglary of the vehicle.

The snake, said to be from five to six feet long, was in a carload of reptiles and animals being transported to Bergen Park, Colo., by Scott Lamb.

Lamb said about 400 snakes, including rattlers, boa constrictors and blue indigos, were in cotton sacks in the rear of the automobile.

The cobra was sacked with a blue indigo. The blue indigo was found by a man shovelling snow near bustling downtown Denver.

Cheaper Beef Cuts At New Low Price

London, Mar. 29 (CP)—While good cattle are still at a premium, the price of hamburg and cheaper cuts of weekend roasts have dropped to the lowest price in years in London butcher shops.

One butcher shop quoted chuck roasts, round boned shoulder roasts and blade roasts at 55 cents a pound.

May Lift Color Ban

Toronto, March 29 — (CP)—The Ontario government may introduce a bill lifting the ban on coloring of margarine in the 1953 session of the legislature, Kelso Roberts, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Patrick, reported in a letter he made public here yesterday. The letter was to Agriculture Minister Kennedy and referred to a conversation he had with the minister.

CUT OFF HEAD

Medellin, Colombia, March 29 (AP)—Governor Braulio Henao Mejia told reporters yesterday that blood-thirsty bandits cut off the head of a police lieutenant and "carried it away as a trophy." He said the incident occurred about 5 miles from here at Betulia where police have been trying to wipe out bandit activity.

Reserve Junction Is Site Of Largest Lumber Mill In Province of Saskatchewan

Reserve Junction, Sask. —(CP) —Saskatchewan's largest lumber mill is located in this company town in the heart of the Porcupine forest reserve, about 160 miles east of Saskatoon.

Since the first portable sawmills were set up in 1928, the big plant owned by a lumber company at The Pas, Man., has grown vastly. When it started logging operations it used four small portable sawmills in different parts of its timber area, and hauled the lumber to Reserve Junction.

Today, although the village itself hasn't grown to any great extent, there are almost 100 camp houses with a total population of 350. Almost 100 children attend a modern school. There is a dance hall where movies are shown weekly, stores, offices, a regulation-size skating rink and a small company hospital.

Supplies Electricity

Electrical power supplied by the mill's steam plant is sufficient for all residents. There is a large boarding house for single men. Accommodation for almost 100 men is provided in spotless bunkhouses which are unique in construction.

Each bunkhouse has several partitions and men can arrange their belongings in separate rooms.

Increased business during the war years resulted in the company building a new mill here in 1946. Today 120,000 board feet of lumber is sawn in two eight-hour shifts in the new plant, which employs 125 men throughout the year.

Start in November

Sawing of spruce logs usually starts late in November when the first log train arrives from the logging camp. It continues until about the first of June. During six or seven months approximately 15,000,000 board feet of lumber is sawn and dry-piled on the mill site.

About the first week in June, when all sawing operations are completed, all men move on to the planer plant which adjoins the sawmill. Here the latest planing equipment is used to dress lumber.

The output from the planer runs up to 20 carloads per week, or approximately 700,000 board feet, and this continues throughout the summer and fall, after which the sawmill goes into full swing again.

All lumber is shipped to Canadian and American markets. Lath and slab wood is obtained from waste material while most of the sawdust is consumed by the furnaces of the huge steam units. A negligible percentage of any spruce log goes into the large waste burner next to the mill.

Flynn Awarded $14,000 Damages In Slapping Suit

Nassau, Bahamas, March 29 — (CP)—Movie actor Erroll Flynn was awarded £5,000 and costs by a Bahamas supreme court jury yesterday for the face-slapping Canadian millionaire Duncan McMartin gave him in Nassau bar.

Defence counsel A. F. Adderley indicated he would appeal the decision to the privy council.

Flynn, who sued for £80,000, said McMartin gave him a "vicious blow" on the face last March which aggravated an old back injury and kept him from filling a $200,000 movie contract.

McMartin contended the blow was "light and friendly."

The Canadian is the son of the late Duncan McMartin, one of the original owners of the fabulous Hollinger Gold Mines. He inherited a reported $10,000,000 from his father's estate.

The question of how well McMartin knew Flynn was argued during the trial. McMartin contended he was friendly with Flynn and that it was customary for them to greet each other in a "hearty manner." Flynn said he hardly knew McMartin.

The movie actor claimed the blow was struck while McMartin was drunk. He said it "paralyzed" him.

Possibility of an appeal was suggested by the defence lawyer's action in protesting a decision by Chief Justice Guy Henderson, permitting the jury to reconsider its answers to several of the questions he had left with it.

Reply to Questions

After deliberating three hours, the jury came in with these replies to the chief justice's questions:

1. The jury members did not feel that the slap was either friendly or hostile.
2. The relationship between Flynn and McMartin was not so close as to justify a slap.
3. They believed the actor's spinal injury was aggravated by the slap.
4. They were not sure whether the spinal aggravation was solely responsible for Flynn's inability to fill a contract to make the picture, "Lydia Bailey."

After hearing the replies, and noting the doubt expressed in answering the last two questions, the defence lawyer claimed a verdict in favor of McMartin.

However, after further discussion the court allowed the jury to reconsider the last two questions. It returned with a decision that the slap caused Flynn to lose the contract.

McMartin's counsel asked for both sets of answers to be recorded, indicating an appeal might be lodged.

QUARANTINE LIFTED

Ottawa, March 29—(CP)—Dr. Thomas Childs, Canada's chief government veterinarian, said yesterday he has lifted the quarantine imposed on a Shelburne, Ont., farm because of an outbreak of an animal disease there.

The animal, a bull, was under observation after coming down with an undiagnosed disease with some symptoms similar to those of foot-and-mouth disease.

Dr. Childs said while he was not certain, he believed the animal was suffering from lump jaw, a rather common animal ailment which causes the jaws to swell. Recovery is rapid.

Chiang Warns Armistice In Korea Dangerous

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Taipeh, Formosa, March 29 — (CP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek said yesterday that "if the United Nations accepts peace in Korea in the communists meaning of the word, it will represent a defeat for the U.N."

An armistice is possible, said Nationalist China's president, "but from long experience with them (the communists) I believe it would be interpreted by them as a U. N. invitation to strike elsewhere.

Chiang, referred to in this nationalist bastion as "the Gimo," gave his views on the Korean war, the communist problem and world affairs in an exclusive interview with this reporter.

Chiang said his government's policy is unreserved co-operation with the west against the communists and it recognizes that Nationalist China's return to the mainland must be part of a coordinated effort by all anti-communist countries. But he also realizes this may mean years of preparation.

"But once it is started I believe the mainland can be regained from the communists within three years," he said.

He expressed confidence that if his forces invade red China the people will join them in a revolt against the communist Peiping regime.

"Once we establish a grip and hold it for six months — which will inspire confidence among the people there — the rot worked by communists will work as a self-liquidating process, helping us as effectively as our armies themselves. I am sure that 90 per cent of the people, once they see we are back to stay, will rise up to help us."

Chiang is so confident of his 360,000-man army that he believes he can launch an invasion of the mainland and help out on the communist front elsewhere — if he is given the weapons and munitions.

"A limited offensive assault against the mainland" would draw off much communist manpower "and keep them too much occupied either to resume hostilities in Korea or to increase activities in southeast Asia."

"We could undertake such operations anytime," he said. "Otherwise, the only way to handle the situation will be to meet increased force with increased force."

New Organ Being Installed At St. James'

Tweed—A new Marshall organ is being installed in St. James' Anglican Church. The old organ has had sixty years continuous service. It was purchased second-hand from St. Thomas' Church in Belleville sixty years ago. It was pumped by hand until about five years ago, when it was powered by electricity. Technicians are already working on the installation of the new organ and it is hoped to be ready for use on Sunday when the rector will preach his farewell services.

The purchasing and raising of funds to cover the cost of the organ has been assumed by the Anglican Young People's Association. The cost of the organ will be about $1,500. The present organist is Mrs. Lois Chambers.

Will Confer Degrees

At a special ceremony in St. Carthage's school hall on Sunday Tweed chapter of the Knights of Columbus will have 50 new members who will receive their second and third degrees. A banquet will be held at the Hotel Tweedsmuir where it is expected over three hundred wil lattend. Representatives are expected from Belleville, Trenton and Kingston. Last Sunday the 50 local members were iniated into the order and received their first degree.

TED

if farmers were to obtain the spring help they needed. It wasn't wise to order a winter shut-down on immigration.

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) suggested the government appeared to be following a policy of bringing immigrants to Canada and dumping them on the labor market to fend for themselves. Cities such as Toronto are flooded with job-seeking immigrants.

Another discussion on Saskatchewan's footh-and-mouth outbreak — on which Agriculture Minister Gardiner will report Monday — developed when Ross Thatcher (CCF — Moose Jaw) urged the federal government to test the validity of provincial embargoes against western livestock.

He suggested the embargoes were threatening to "strangle" inter-provincial trade and were causing 'disastrous' losses to many farmers. Western government might be forced to consider "retaliatory action."

Dr. W. G. Blair (PC-Lanark) said immigrants are being brought in at the request of farmers but many of them stay on the farm only two or three months.

Mr. Harris said he knew it was frustrating for farmers to lose their help in the middle of the season. The department tried to persuade the immigrant to stay or to find a replacement.

L. E. Cardiff (PC-Huron North) said he had retained an immigrant on his farm by paying him $50 a month to start and by increasing his salary $5 a month until it reached $100. Both he and the immigrant were well satisfied with the arrangement.

The government was urged by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) to establish a floor of $40 or $50 a month for civil service pensions.

He suggested it should set a level below which future pensions could not go and, at the same time, should raise the payments of civil servants already superannuated to that floor. Some who retired years ago were getting only $20 or $25 a month.

Vote Party Lines

Mr. Thatcher said that Premier Duplessis of Quebec was "trampling" on the Constitution through restrictions against imports of western livestock and meats.

The votes on the divorce bills generally were along straight party lines, with Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F. and Social Credit members opposing the Liberals. The government forces won all the tests, but by slim majorities because of small house attendance.

Mr. Knowles said evidence was available for only six of the 51 bills. The House should not be asked to judge without the evidence.

He moved adjournment of debate on the first bill but lost out by a vote of 49 to 32. The bill then was given second reading by a vote of 51 to 33.

At that point Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William), a United Church minister, said he was as opposed as anyone to divorce, but "this sort of thing is a discredit to the House of Commons". It also was a reflection on the hard-working Senate committee which took evidence in the cases and which he was sure was a competent tribunal.

Mr. Knowles said his party agreed "this whole business is a farce" but it was no reflection on the Senate committee. The Commons was not a rubber stamp.

Morality Check-up

Morality officers of the Ottawa police department have seized about 10,000 books and magazines suspected of containing obscene material. The publications were taken from book and cigar stores in the capital. Morality Inspector Ubald Suave is to decide which publication is obscene. Constable Stewart Kettles is shown checking some of the exhibits. — (CP Photo.)

Famine-Stricken Indians Again Face Starvation

Drought and poor crops have again brought famine to India. The government has allocated enough food to the most severely stricken areas to provide a cupful of thin gruel a day, but has not enough food in stock to continue the dole for very long. Government agencies report that 10,000,000 persons are starving in Madras province where five successive years of drought has rendered the soil almost useless. Like the pitiful figures shown here, thousands have left the arid countryside to seek relief in the cities. — Central Press Canadian.

Fabulous Racing Establishment Of Millionaire Sportsman on Block

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 29 (CP)—The fabulous racing establishment operated by the late multi-millionaire sportsman James V. Rank is to be put on the auction block to help pay death duties on the estate. Already £1,200,000 worth of shares in the Rank flour-milling empire have been sold in process of winding up the estate of the horse-breeder who died in January.

The dispersal will involve the sale of some 25 valuable horses which racing men believe will bring in more than £100,000.

Missing, however, will be such top-notchers as the colt Gay Time, entered for this year's Derby and St. Leger, and the filly Triangle, nominated for the Oaks. Under terms of the will the widow, a race-horse owner in her own right, was given the privilege of selecting any six horses from her late husband's string, to ensure that his breeding experiments would be continued. Gay Time and Triangle topped her list.

Also to be offered as a going concern is the famous New England stud at historic Newmarket, and Druids Lodge, the Rank training quarters near Salisbury Plain, familiar to Canadian troops during the First World War. On the 3,500-acre estate are several farms, a 15-bedroom lodge, trainer's quarters, steeplechase course and workout tracks.

Famous Horses

Druids Lodge contributed some of the finest bloodstock in the country, including Scottish Union, winner of the St. Leger in 1938 and second in the Derby that year; Why Hurry, victor in the 1943 Oaks and Strathspey who won the Goodwood Stakes and Cesarewitch.

The Wiltshire plant under the guidance of the noted Newmarket strainer, Noel Cannon, produced more than 320 winners for Rank in 16 years and around £180,000 in purses.

But racing authorities paid tribute to Rank not for his financial success on the turf, but for his devotion to a cause — the raising of the standard of British bloodstock.

He had set his sights on meeting the growing challenge from the wealthy and successful French breeder, Marcel Boussac, whose horses in recent years have had a habit of romping off with major awards in Britain's classic events.

Rank was gradually reducing the Frenchman's supremacy and last year had raised his winnings to £24,600 against Boussac's £39,300.

"J. V." as he was known to his intimates, entered the racing game against the wishes of his father, Joseph, a stern Methodist. The son, however, persevered and evolved a breeding experiment of his own by concentrating on performance rather than pedigree.

He started by purchasing a few selling-plate mares that had shown the qualities he was after and wound up by rearing a breed distinguished for speed and stamina.

CONQUERS SKUNKS

Vineland, Ont. — (CP) James Platts has devised a trap which gets rid of skunks. He claims a total of 13 skunks for the device, a wooden box affair with a trapdoor, which imprisons the animal until it can be taken out in the woods and shot.

Broda May See Action Tonight Against Wings; Habs, Bruins Call Up Help

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

FUN TONIGHT!

The Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit renew their Stanley Cup playoffs tonight with the setting in Maple Leaf Gardens and in front of a Toronto crowd. The Mapleos are two games down and they'll need to pull this one out of the bag if they don't want their backs to the wall next Tuesday. However strange things happen in this game of hockey. It wasn't so long ago that these teams met and the Detroiters grabbed a 3-0 game lead. But the Leafs fooled the experts and the boys in the back room but plenty by staging a fierce comeback that netted them four games in a row and the Stanley pewter.

Down in Boston, Lynn Patrick's Beantowners also play before a hometown crowd against the flaming Montreal Canadiens. The Habs also have a 2-0 game margin on the boys from Back Bay and tonight's tussle won't be any Boston tea party. These Canucks are hot and are being sparked by the "Rocket" whose rest in Florida apparently did him a world of good. And with "Boom-Boom" booming the biscuit home at a fairly consistent rate of speed, things do not look so rosy for the codders.

TICKETS ON SALE WEDNESDAY

Secretary Dick Beare of the Pelleville Hockey Association announced yesterday that the reserved seat tickets for the first semi-finals series game between the Weston Dukes and the Belleville Hawks, will go on sale at Cook's Cigar Store on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

The date of the game will be announced following the Dukes-Hawks game in Weston on Tuesday night.

SPEAKING OF BASEBALL

It seems the faraway pastures apparently know more about the business and future of the Central Ontario Baseball League. than does that august body itself.

George (Chef) Campbell, Oshawa, tossed a hunk of rumor garlic in his columnar "stew" the other day with the announcement the loop "had folded again".

The Cobourg sheet comes out with the statement that Picton, Batawa and Napanee are seeking entry in the Lakeshore Baseball League because of the "cloudy future of the Central Ontario League". The writer adds that the Peterborough senior baseball club would also like entry in the LSBB should the COBL fold.

For the Cobourg scribe's benefit, it might be stated that Picton, Batawa and Napanee did not drop out of the COBL because of its "cloudy future." They could not very well "drop out" of something they have not as yet entered .Picton and Napanee never had any intention of entering the COBL. Batawa is still considering it.

The Lakeshore Baseball League, according to President R. D. Dodge, will consider breaking away from the Ontario Baseball Association at its annual meeting being held the week prior to Easter. Seems as though the LBB, like a great many others, is fed up with the antics of the OBA. The COBL severed relations a year ago. The Toronto Baseball League notified the OBA that it has decided to "take a year's holiday" from the parent body's jurisdiction. So it looks like the Intercounty League, which operated it anyway, and the Niagara District Baseball League will be the only major organizations left.

After all, the invitations to the OBA annual convention being held in St. Catharines this year, might bear the inscription, "Kindly omit flowers."

CLEARS IT UP!

There has been some misunderstanding regarding the handsome Gruen watch valued at $72.50 donated by Ab Wonnacott to be awarded to the "most valuable player" on the junior Hawks team.

Hawks manager Bill Cook said today the award will be made to the player voted by popular ballot to be the "most valuable" to the team during the playdown series. That means all games from the Barrie-Hawks tilt played here a short time ago to the end of the playdown trail.

It was formerly announced that the award would be made to the player named "most valuable during the Barrie and Weston games played here.

Ballots will be issued to fans during all home games for the rest of the season.

FLYERS ONE UP

Trenton RCAF Flyers took a 9-3 decision over the Marmora Millionaires here last night to cop the first game of the best-of-five Trent Valley finals series. Second game scheduled here Monday night.

Flyers showed more finish around the nets and this with pay-off breakaways told the story. The Millionaires couldn't find the target all night especially in the second period when they would have had three or four goals had their "shootin' eyes" been on. They hit everything in the rink with the puck except the net.

The boys played it the clean way. Body-checks were scarcer than the proverbial hen's teeth. Only a few minor penalties were handed out by "Fitz" and "Junior".

Bratton Shuns Montreal Fight

New York, March 29 (CP) — Manager Hymie Wallman and welterweight Johnny Bratton last night decided not to go to Montreal following the suspension of the Chicago boxer by the Montreal Athletic Commission.

"It's useless for us to make the trip now," Wallman commented afte- the commission suspended Bratton for side-stepping a bout here March 31 with Pierre Langlois of France.

Fabulous Fatty May Launch 2nd Century of Goalkeeping; Canadiens Play Boston Sunday

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 29 (CP)—That down-the-middle nerve centre of Montreal Canadiens comes in for critical examination today.

Although Canadiens hold a two-game margin over Boston Bruins in the Stanley Cup semi-final, the centre-man cordon holding the physical hockey machine together is worn and frazzled. Two centres have been lost.

Coach Dick Irvin called out the full squad for practice today. He will try different forward-line combinations.

The team leaves tonight for Boston where the third game of the best-of-seven series will be played Sunday, the fourth game Tuesday.

At the moment, Canadiens are riding high, needing only two wins in five games to reach the final against either Detroit or Toronto.. The Bruins are on the spot even if the next two games are on their home ice.

But the hurrah over Canadiens' high position is tempered by the loss of Johnny McCormack and Ken Mosdell. McCormack broke his arm last Saturday night. It was the second-last game of the regular National Hockey League season.

Two Centres Left

Mosdell, just recovering from a broken shoulder helped out in the 5-1 beating of the Bruins Tuesday night. He scored the first goal in the 4-0 trouncing Thursday night and then was carried from the ice with a broken leg.

Two veteran centres are left, Elmer Lach and Billy Reay. Rookie Dickie Moore was moved from the wing position on a high-scoring line Thursday night to centre the third line, a checking, defensive trio.

If Irvin wants to take a chance, with a two-game cushion, he may try a junior, Garry (Duke) Edmundson, a husky youngster who comes from Grande Prairie, Alta., and played this season with the Kitchener, Ont., juniors.

Or the call may go to Ross Lowe, a former Bruin and a strong rushing defenceman, who has been called on a few times for emergency front-line work.

Or at the last moment Irvin may decide on Moore, figuring that's the safest move.

The Bruins will have to get along without winger Dunc Fisher who came out of Thursday's game with a cracked bone in his left big toe. But they expect to have Fleming Mackell back. He was left at home with a sharp attack of the flu when the team came to Montreal.

Farmhands will also join the Bruins in Boston. After the sorry showing of the team here, a call went to Hershey Bears, just knocked out of the American Hockey Association playoffs.

Four were summoned: goalie Gordon (Red) Henry; forwards Leo Labine, who played 15 games with the Bruins this season, and Jerry Toppazzini; defenceman Bob Armstrong.

By CRAIG SWAYZE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 29—(CP)—The biggest question stirring this hockey-mad town today is not just who is going to win tonight's third game of the Detroit-TToronto Stanley Cup semi-finals, but whether or not the fabulous fat man, Walter (Turk) Broda, will be launched upon his second century of playoff goal tending.

A couple of weeks ago, any suggestions that Broda would play more than once—and then only to fulfill general manager Conn Smythe's promise of 100 playoff appearances—would have brought forth loud jeers from even the staunchest of Maple Leaf supporters. However, now that the unpredictable has occurred, what's to stop a rebirth in the tubby hero's career?

The fans—and no doubt his teammates—are rooting for the 37-year-old veteran of 14 National Hockey eLague seasons.

Not Saying Who

Maple Leaf officials are keeping mum about who will don the big pads tonight, the Leafs first home-ice chance to whittle down the two-game edge the Red Wings hold on the best-of-seven series. Both Smythe and coach Joe Primeau admit the decision has been made, but no one else will know the answer until the dressing room door opens and either the Turk or Al Rollins—the club's regular goalie—leads the club up the ramp to the ice.

Aside from the netminders, the Toronto club is expected to ice the same team that bowed 1-0 to the Wings Thursday at Detroit. That would mean centre Cal Gardner would again sit it out with Tod Sloan filling in at Gardner's pivot spot and rookie Jim Morrison available as a utility man.

With the leafs working out at St. Catharines, Detroit moved into Hamilton Friday, their headquarters for the Toronto end of the series. With them came their star centre and captain, Sid Abel. He benched himself Thursday after suffering a knee injury when the Wings took the Tuesday opener 3-0.

However, there is more than a good chance the Detroiters will be without the services of Red Kelly, one of the most important cogs in their offensive and defensive machine. Equally at home up front or back on the blue line, he suffered a severely sprained wrist in the second game and may be on the sidelines tonight.

But the Red Wings still have Terry Sawchuk in goal. Considered by many as hockey's top goaltender, he will be striving for his third successive shutout. In pulling off another whitewashing job tonight, Sawchuk could tie ex-Leaf Frank McCool's record set in 1943 against Detroit.

The record for the most shutouts in a playoff series—four—is held jointly by McCool and Dave Kerr, the former New York Ranger great.

A curfew could raise its head tonight, just as it did in last spring's semi-finals with Boston Bruins. Because of a Sunday blue law in Ontario, the game would be halted just before midnight should a tie and overtime carry play that far into the night.

Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford Play 2-2 Overtime Tie

Sault Ste. Marie, March 29 (CP)—There has been much talk of late concerning the relative strength of teams competing in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league and those in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A circuit.

Northern fans were confident their Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds the N.O.H.A. champions, would run wild against Stratford Indians, the OHA big six champs. There were just as many southern Ontario fans who thought the Indians would take the best-of-seven Allan Cup quarter finals in four straight.

Last night both clubs fooled them all by playing to a 2-2 overtime tie in their opener before 6,000 at Sault Memorial Gardens. The second game is scheduled here tonight and the third at Stratford next week.

The Indians took a 1-0 first period lead and held it through the middle session before giving up two straight goals to the Greyhounds. Stratford deadlocked the issue late in the final period and an overtime stanza failed to change the score.

The two clubs were evenly matched through the first two periods with the checking close. Stratford held the edge in play throughout the final session despite the Greyhounds' two-goals-to-one margin.

Mickey Roth opened the scoring for Stratford at 16:15 of the first period. Gunnar Telkkinen knotted the count at 1:24 of the third and Husky Hodgson gave the Greyhounds their lead at 5.31. Stratford's tying goal was netted by Billy Flick at 14:39 of the third.

Boston Coach Confident Team 'Can Come Back'

Boston, March 29 (CP) —Coach Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins remained hopeful today as his team prepared to resume its National Hockey League best-of-seven playoff with Montreal Canadiens here Sunday.

Trailing 2-0 in the series, Patrick said:

"We proved we can come back, and we beat this club in two important games at the end of the season. They'll have a tough time trying to win two out of five."

Although the Bruins looked good only in spots during the first two games in Montreal, Patrick refuses to be panicked into shelving his veterans in favor of youngsters from the Hershey Bears, Boston farm club in the AHL.

While he had goalie Red Henry up from Hershey, he appeared ready to stick with Sugar Jim Henry (no relation).

"He was a big factor in helping us into the playoffs. He didn't seem jittery to me, and I don't think there's any reason for any of us to get that feeling."

Cougars Even Pacific Series; Edge Royals 3-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Scoring once in each period, Victoria Cougars evened their semi-final Pacific Coast Hockey League playoff series with New Westminster Royals at one game apiece by downing the league champions 3-2 last night in Victoria.

Walt Atanas, coach Roger Leger and Bob Frampton fired home the goals for the scrappy Cougars. Amy Dufault and Ken Ullyot notched the Royals' markers.

The teams renew their best-of-seven series at New Westminster tonight where the Royals won the opening game, also by a 3-2 count.

'Red' Kelly's Wrist Not Fractured

Detroit, March 29 (CP) — X-rays disclosed yesterday that defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings suffered a severely sprained left wrist, but no fracture, in the Stanley Cup playoff game against Toronto Maple Leafs last night.

Kelly slammed into the boards in the final minute after colliding with Leafs' Jim Thomson. He was taken to hospital after the game and released today.

Dr. C. J. Karibo said Kelly probably will miss the third game of the series at Toronto tonight, but that — aided by a special cast — he may be ready for the fourth game at Toronto Tuesday.

Terriers Sign Kaiser

Galt, March 29 (CP) —Galt Terriers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League have signed outfielder Vern Kaiser for the coming season it was announced yesterday.

Kaiser now is playing hockey with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League.

The Terriers' management also said Jack Barry of West Plains, N.Y., a right-hand pitcher, and first baseman Irv Schupp from Kentucky have been signed. Barry played with Galt last season while Schupp performed with Ottawa and Cornwall in the class C Border League.

American League Players 'Sissies' Says Stanky

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29—Manager Eddie Stanky of the National League of St. Louis Cardinals says American Leaguers don't like to play rough.

Instead of indulging in a little give and take on the base paths "they want to cry and bellyache" Stanky said yesterday.

Stanky's remarks were prompted by a double play incident during an exhibition game which the Cardinals lost to New York Yankees 8-2.

Stanky and Gil McDougald, Yankee second baseman, exchanged sharp words and advanced on one another after McDougald tagged out the Cardinal manager to start a fourth inning double play.

"I tried to knock the ball out of McDougald's hand," Stanky explained, "He didn't like it."

Trenton Flyers Defeat Marmora 9-3 In Trent Valley Finals Opener

Paced by the four-goal effort of Len Beatch, the R.C.A.F. Flyers shellacked the Marmora Millionaires by a score of 9-3 in the first game of the Trent Valley Hockey League finals, played at the Belleville Memorial Arena last night.

Prior to the contest Frank S. Follwell presented the Follwell Trophy, emblematic of the championship of Southern Division of the Trent Valley Hockey League, to Flyer captain Ron O'Meara who accepted it on behalf of his team. O'Meara in turn presented it to Wing Commander Mason, senior administrative officer of the Trenton station, who accepted it on behalf of the command-

Flyers leaped into a three goal

Take Three Goal Lead

Flyers leaped int oa three goal lead at the end of the first period, outscored the visitors by two goals to one in the second and then pumped in four more in the third after Marmora had rallied for a pair.

Other scorers fo rthe Flyers included MacDonald with a pair of goals, Parnell with one goal and an assist, McLean and Roberge with a goal each, Attrill and Faulkner with a pair of assists and Bowman with one assist.

The Millionaires top line of Ken Trumble, Glen Lavender and Mike Forestell accounted for all of their scoring, picking up a goal and an assist each, the former garnering a pair of assists.

Had Edge

The winners carried a decided edge throughout the contest although Marmora threatened at the beginning of the second and third periods. Good work in the Flyer nets by goalie Gary Scott kept the visitors at bay, although the Marmora team missed many chances and lacked finesse in finishing their play off.

It was a clean contest, only five penalties being handed out by referees Dick Fitzpatrick and Don Barrett ,four of them in the second period and all to the winners.

The Teams

RCAF Flyers: Goal, Scott; defence, Bruce, Faulkner; centre, Parnell; wings, MacDonald, O'Meara; subs, Pumple, Hampson, Beatch, Bowman, Attrill, Roberge, Dickson and McLean.

Marmora Millionaires: Goal, Killian; defence, Maynes, Gray; centre, Forestell; wings, Lavender, Trumble; subs, Darragh, Doyle, Jones, Mantle, Stewart, Kerr, Smith, Brown.

Referee: Dick Fitzpatrick and Don Barrett, Belleville.

Johnny Bratton, Chicago welterweight, was suspended yesterday by the Montreal Athletic Commission, which charged he is side-stepping a bout there March 31 with Pierre Langlois of France.

The commission says Bratton "ran out" on the Montreal fight in favor of a match with Rocky Castellani last night in New York's Madison Square Garden. Castellani, 18-to-5 underdog, won the fight with a unanimous 10-round decision.

The return heavyweight title bout between champion Jersey Joe Walcott and challenger Ezzard Charles will be signed and sealed in Philadelphia Monday for probable delivery June 9. Promoter Herman Taylor said the two Negro boxers will meet in a 15-round bout in the huge Municipal Stadium in south Philadelphia where 120,757 persons watched Gene Tunney win the heavyweight crown from Jack Dempsey in 1926.

Pitcher Bob Alexander, who won 15 games for Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League last year, has been returned to Montreal by Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League, it was announced yesterday in Melbourne, Fla.

Patty Berg, who has played more than a dozen years of professional golf, shot a par 74 yesterday to take a six-stroke lead in the New Orleans women's open tournament. Bab Zeharias posted a 78 to remain in second place.

Russian swordsmen yesterday were admitted to the International Fencing Federation. Michael Sesliak of Russia attended the meeting in Paris and thanked the delegates.

Participation in intercollegiate athletics has little effect on scholastic marks, a researcher on the subject told a meeting of physical education instructors in Topeka, Kas. E. G. Tillsonburg Wins Ontario Senior Basketball Title

Tillsonburg, March 29 (CP) — Tillsonburg Livingstons ran over Sault Ste. Marie Gunners 97-57 here last night to win the Ontario Senior A basketball championship in two straight games.

Tillsonburg won the first game of the best-of-three series Thursday night 90-52. They new meet the winner of the Ottawa-Montreal series in a best-of-three series, starting Tuesday, for the eastern Canadian championship and the right to meet the western winner for the Canadian title.

This was the second Ontario title in four years for a team sponsored by Gerry Livingston. In 1949 his Trojans were winners of the intermediate B championship.

The Gunners fought to the end last night, although they lacked the height and polish of the local crew. They set a fast pace in the first few minutes of the game but Tillsonburg overpowered them midway through the first quarter, going ahead 30-15 at the end of the period. Tillsonburg led 47-29 at half time and 66-38 at the three-quarter mark.

Bill Coulthard, although he played less than half the game, was the top point-getter for the Livingstons, piling up 18 points.

Frankford Sport

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League wound up its regular season this week, with the Crackpots romping home to the league pennant with little opposition on the final night from the runner up Fireballs and Pinpoppers. The Crackpots, ipolted by Ross Huffman, downed the Skeeters for five points, needing only three to clinch the pennant. Ray Scott's Skeeters, a team that was highly counted on to give plenty of competition finished the season in the cellar, despite their captain's fine bowling all season. Jack Farley's Fireballs finished in second place, taking one gae from Ed Tomecek's Rockets. Gene Lahnes' Pinpoppers rolled their lowest triple of the season, dropping seven points to Karl Austin's Bobsmob, who were without the services of their ace bowler Joan McCrea and Bob Morglan. Russ Hogg's Inkspots took five points from Harry Hearns' Hot spots, but failed to catch them in fifth place.

Next week, the playoffs begin, with the Crackpots and Hotshots meeting, the Fireballs and Inkspots playing, the Pinpoppers and Rockets, Bobsmob and the Skeeters in the first round. The second games of the first round will be on Thursday night following.

OMHA Suspends Coaches, Players

The sub-committee of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association has considered the reports in connection with the St. Catharines at Stratford Juvenile A game of March 24th, and issued the following ruling:

Coach Carl McCauley of Stratford and G. Goble of St. Catharines, will have their coaches permits suspended for one game. They will not be permitted on the bench, nor may they take any part in direction of their respective teams.

Players Doug Smith, Earl Barton and Paul McPherson of Stratford; Robert Maxwell, Wimpy Roberts and Bruce Sherlock of St. Catharines are suspended for one game for their part in the rowdy game.

The Stratford management failed to provide adequate police protection and no further games will be sanctioned in the Stratford arena until such time as assurances are received that proper protection will be provided for all games.

St. Catharines are warned that adequate police protection must be provided for all future home games.

The above rulings are issued as a result of a free-for-all that developed in the last five minutes of the first game of the home and home goals to count semi-final series.

Stouffville Edges Peterborough 3-2

What To Do About Poor Fishing Spots

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

In almost every lake, pond or stream there are areas of uninteresting water which usually are grouped under the general terms "barren water." Shorelines without cover, shallows without weeds, places where no fish, in his right mind, would take up residence.

Usually we pass up these places in favor of more likely territory, and give them no more thought. If the fishing waters happen to be among your pet stamping grounds, it isn't very much trouble to make these "barren" spots good places to fish.

Used Old Logs

A good case in point is the north shore of Georgian Bay Ontario, near Birch Island. In case you have never been there, this is granite country. Along that stretch of the north shore evidently there had been a fault at one time. This fault broke itself loose. One side of it settled about twenty or thirty feet; the other side lies about a foot under water. This leaves a sheer rock cliff, of sorts, along several miles of lake front.

There are some monster great northern pike which live in the deep shadows of this cliff, but, there being no cover of any sort, the bass fishing there was practically nil. Bass, as you know, like cover - - - something of a protective nature under which they can hide.

A certain resident of that area decided to do something about it. Left over from the lumbering days are numerous logs, partially waterlogged, so that one end rests on the bottom while the other end sticks out above the surface. The local name for these is "dead heads."

This man spent his entire summer towing dead heads from hither and yon and depositing them in the shallower water along the north shore. He didn't bother to anchor them - - - he simply towed them in as far as he could and allowed their own weight to hold them in place.

Most of these dead heads he deposited within half a mile of his camp. Then he sat back and waited for nature to take its course. It wasn't long before he had good bass fishing right there handy to his camp. Bass like submerged logs, and these were no exception.

Brush Provides Cover

There is a certain pond in Vermont which is a part of the Clyde River which has been dammed to provide hydro electricity for the town of Newport. When the dam was built it was necessary to remove a considerable growth of timber from the area to be flooded.

Instead of burning the piles of slashing and the remaining stumps, the lumber crew simply gathered the brush into piles and left things as they were. Each stump and brush pile now provides a furnished home for one or more bass.

One stretch of shore line was originally a field and, of course, that shore is barren of cover. Just to see what would happen, we towed some old logs and trash down from the head of the pond and deposited it along that barren shore line. Within two weeks we were catching bass around these new patches of cover.

In every trout stream or bass river there are always stretches of flat water, usually shallow and with pebble bottoms, affording no cover for the fish. To be sure, the fish do use these places as feeding areas but they do so mostly at night and even then they merely cruise about for a while, retiring to the deeper water when the feeding period is over.

There are several things that an interested angler can do to these places which will make them hold fish twenty-four hours a day. After all, if a fish can find reasonably safe cover in a good feeding area, he asks for nothing better.

Rock Dam Advised

If the stream is not too large, it is not much work to construct a rock dam which will raise the water level a foot or so. All you need to do is to pile rocks from one bank to another.

The current soon will fill the spaces between the rocks with leaves and trash, making it fairly tight. Once the water level is raised, the fish will move in and stay there. Where you once had no fishing you will soon have reasonably good fishing.

If building a dam is too much of an engineering operation, a few rock piles here and there about the flat will hold some fish for you. It takes only a short time for the current to scour out a deep channel around a rock pile and the fish will move in and stay as soon as there is enough depth to cover them safely.

Small trees and bushes along the bank can often be used to good advantage. The trick is to make these things anchor themselves. Instead of cutting the trunks clear through, cut only part way through. Then push the bush or tree into the stream, breaking the uncut portion of the trunk so that it anchors itself in place.

Wing Dam Useful

Perhaps the most satisfactory compromise in stream improvement is the deflector or wing dam. This is a bank or rocks, extending out from the bank at an angle of about forty-five degrees to the direction of flow.

This deflector will cause the current to sweep toward the other bank. Before long, you will have an undercut bank under which the fish can hide.

At the end of the deflector the sweep of the current will set up a whirlpool of sorts and this scoops out its own hole in the stream bottom in a remarkably short time.

The wall of the deflector sets up a natural concentration of the drifting food in the current, collecting it all along the face of the wall and delivering it in a steady stream at the end of the deflector and against the far bank.

No doubt you will be able to figure out some rigs of your own, developed or "invented" to suit the needs of the immediate conditions. To be sure, it is work but it is pleasant and interesting work that eventually will pay off in improved fishing later on in the season.

Provide cover for the fish and they, in turn, will repay you in terms of better fishing.

Willie Hoppe, Famous Cue Champion, Plans to Retire on 56th Birthday

San Francisco, March 29 —(AP) — Willie Hoppe, 48 times a world billiard champion in 47 years, plans to retire next fall — perhaps on his 56th birthday. That's Oct. 11.

"I've been considering this step a long time," he said today. "I do not want to wind up seventh or eighth, and have everyone feeling sorry for a beaten old man."

Hoppe won his first championship, at 18.1 balkline billiards, in 1906. Teddy Roosevelt was president then; Tommy Burns was heavyweight boxing champ and Honus Wagner led National League batters. Willie went to Paris and defeated the great Frenchman Maurice Vignaux.

He won the title he now plans to be his last — the three-cushion crown, defeating the Japanese star Kinrey Matsuyama, 50-37 in 60 gruelling innings. It's his 12th year on the three-cushion throne.

Survived Two Defeats

To win that one, he survived two heart-breaking defeats; an obvious case of nerve strain; the wear and tear of 47 years of tournaments, challenge matches and exhibition tours; a head cold, and the tension of a title match before a standing room only crowd in a hot, smoke-filled room.

Hoppe not only has won — he's monopolized every recognized billiard championship, plus three specials tossed in for diversion.

He held the 18.2 balkline title 14 years: in 1907; 1910-20 inclusive; 1923 and 1924. He owned the 18.1 balkline crown 19 years: in 1906-7; 1909-11; 1914-27. Balkline competitions were discontinued 18 and 25 years ago because Hoppe, Jake Schaefer and Welke Cochran became so proficient fans got tired watching them make long runs.

The three then turned to the spectacular three-cushion game. Schaefer never won that title. Cochran won it six times and retired. Hoppe has had it 12 years: in 1936, 1940-44 and 1947-52.

He also won a special 14.1 balkline crown in 1914 and a 71-2 balkline title in 1938 — only time either event was held. And he picked up a cushion carom title in 1933.

Northerns, Nurses Win at Basketball

Two games were played in the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Basketball League on Wednesday night. Northern Electric "B's" bowed to the O.S.D. girls by the score of 32-7 while Nurses bested the Northern A. team 28 to 18. The results made no change in the team standings in the league. "Y" Business Girls are still in the lead with no defeats and Nurses, O.S.D., Northern A. and Northern B. following in that order. Northern B. have failed to produce a win while their plant rivals have had two wins at the expense of their sisters. Nurses and O.S.D. have one game to play which if won by O.S.D. would produce a tie for second place.

Lorna Fraser of Nurses was high individual scorer for the night with 19 points with her teammates Joanne Crocker scoring 5 points and Barbara Patterson and Helen Aston 2 points each. For their opponents the Northern "A's" Dorothy Taylor scored 7 points, Barbara Alcorn 6 points, Nellie McKenna 3 points and Barbara Robson 2 points.

High scorer for the O.S.D. was Dorothy Wiltse with 14 points. Helen McCammon scored 10 points. H. Tobin 6 points and F. Bennett 2 points. Joan Ball and Betty McGowan scored 2 points each for Northern "B's" and Joyce Shore scored 1 point.

Officials for first game were George Garrow and Doug Soule with Ted Batchelor as scorer and timekeeper. For the second game Bill Spafford and Ted Batchelor were the officials with Ants Juurup as scorer and timekeeper.

Mosconi Wins Five in Row

Boston, March 29 (AP)—Willie Mosconi, defending champion from Havertown, Pa., today held a comfortable lead over his nine opponents and appeared a safe bet to annex his 10th world title as the pocket billiard championship round-robin series reached the halfway mark.

Mosconi overcame a nine-inning 138-133 deficit last night to defeat Joe Canton of Watervliet, N.Y., 150-137, in 13-innings for his fifth straight victory against no losses. It was the fourth straight setback for Canton, who has yet to win a match.

The champion plays John Fitzpatrick of Washington, D.C., who has won two and lost two, tonight.

Irving Crane of Binghamton, N.Y., who has won three and lost one, blasted Fitzpatrick, 150-13, in 23-innings in the other night match.

In afternoon competition, Arthur Cranfield of Syracuse, N.Y., trounced Jimmie Mills of San Jose, Calif., 150-31, in eight innings; George Chenier of Toronto downed Donald De Coy of St. Louis, 150-53, in a 23-inning match, and Jimmy Moore of Albuquerque, N.M., trimmed Willis Covington of Milwaukee, 150-69, in 25-innings.

MADGEDOMAS WIN

Brockville, March 29 —(CP) — Brockville Madedomas last night took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five Ottawa District Hockey Association senior B semi-finals by downing Richmond Royals 2-1. The fourth game is slated here tonight.

Greatest Catcher, 'Mickey' or Dickey 'Neither', Say Giants 'Twas Gabby'

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, March 29 —(AP) — While sitting around and talking time after the Giants' daily workout and the subject came up as to which was the greatest catcher the game ever saw—Mickey Cochrane or Bill Dickey.

"Neither," growled Tom Sheehan, head scout of the National League champs. "For my money, the best anyone ever has seen behind that plate was Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs. He had a better throwing arm that either Cochrane or Dickey, and he could murder you with that bat, too."

"Check," assented Frank Shellenbach, the club's pitching coach. "You've named my man. Smart, too. Some players thought old Gabby was on the dumb side, but it was the biggest mistake they'll ever make. Dumb like a fox, he was."

"I'll have to go along with you," came in Carl Hubbell. "I can't honestly judge the two American Leaguers because I didn't see too much of them, but I don't see how either of them could have been better than Gabby."

"Ole Tomato Face"

It was suggested that either Cochrane or Dickey, going strictly by the record book, show a slight advantage over old 'Tomato Face' in the matter of batting averages. In Hartnett's best year, 1937, he hit .354. Dickey soared to .362 in '36; Cochrane to .357 in '30.

"That's all you fellows go by when you start getting up an all-star club—the record book," Sheehan charged in a voice which swayed the draperies. "Any baseball player will tell you you can't go by the book. If you could, we wouldn't need any scouts. The men who played against Harnett, though, will tell you he was murder, pure murder.

"Steal against him? Not a chance. That guy could wait until a runner was halfway down to second and throw him out by 10 feet. He seemed to have second sense which told him when you were going down, too. He'd call for a pitch-out and you were dead.

"And don't think he couldn't hit that ball. He'd give you 30-40 homeruns a season and he always seemed to hit them when they hurt the most.

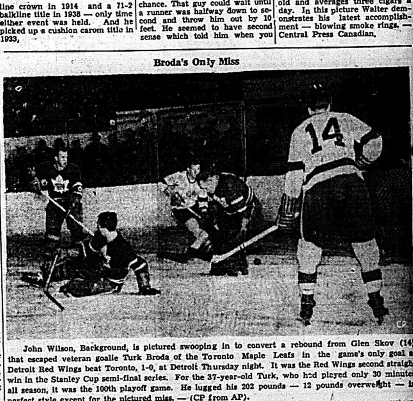
In addition to his mechanical ability, Hartnett also had a remarkable faculty for calling for the right pitch at the right time, the three former curvers agreed. A batter very seldom got what he was looking for.

"From a pitcher's viewpoint it's a wonderful thing to have a man like that behind the plate," Hubbell observed.

Gee, Look Ma, Smoke Rings

Getting set for a canter around the living-room on his hobby horse is Walter Oslowski, Jr., of Philadelphia, Pa., who won't be three years old until May. It's a toss-up whether Walter loves his hobby horse or his cigar the most. He has been smoking regularly since he was nine months old and averages three cigars a day. In this picture Walter demonstrates his latest accomplishment — blowing smoke rings. — Central Press Canadian.

Broda's Only Miss



John Wilson, Background, is pictured swooping in to convert a rebound from Glen Skov (14 that escaped veteran goalie Turk Broda of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the game's only goal as Detroit Red Wings beat Toronto, 1-0, at Detroit Thursday night. It was the Red Wings second straigh win in the Stanley Cup semi-final series. For the 37-year-old Turk, who had played only 30 minutes all season, it was the 100th playoff game. He lugged his 202 pounds — 12 pounds overweight — i perfect style except for the pictured miss. — (CP from AP).

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When partnered with Akoolsp Oxpert, egad, you need all the stuff in your purse. His doubles are always consistently bad. His redoubles flunk out much worse.

There is a spot in which a redouble takes on the same meaning as a double for takeout. It is known as a takeout redouble of a penalty pass of a takeout double. Quite a mouthful.

South opened with a heart when he held this hand:

♥A K 7 5
♦K J 7 5
♣Q J 8 5

West doubled for takeout. North passed, indicating weakness. East also passed. Is there something odd about this picture? Yes. It is not customary for east to pass a takeout double by west.

Ordinarily, east must bid there, in answer to the takeout double. Except under one condition. The condition is that he can help defeat one heart. This is known as a penalty pass of a takeout double.

From this south knows that the opponents expect to defeat one heart. How would they expect to defeat it? Evidently by strength in hearts held by east combined with the outside strength in west.

South might crawl out of the hole by bidding two clubs or two diamonds. But what if he guesses the wrong suit? If he bids clubs, partner may have better diamonds, or the other way around.

Of which suit will north have the most cards? To find out, the south player must force north to bid something despite the weakness already admitted there. To do so he uses a signal.

In a spot like this, the signal for such a purpose is redouble. This is not the kind of redouble that says it can make the bid that was doubled. It means just the opposite.

It says: "Partner, I seem to be in trouble at hearts. We may be better off in your best suit. So, tell me which suit it is."

It is another way of hollering: "Help! Take me out of here."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 29 — (AP) —People in the television industry are always moaning, "everybody's a critic."

And it's true. Everybody has ideas about what is good and bad on TV. On the theory that enough criticism might bring improvement to the medium, I'm going to get into the act and offer some thoughts about what comes over the home screen. For instance - - -

When will comedians learn that getting messy with food isn't as hilarious as their writers think it is? The thrown pie was funny when Mack Sennett introduced it. But TV comics have worn the gimmick out.

Last weekend, two young comics strained for laughs by putting butter and jam on their arms and throwing food wildly. Funny? Nope. These two flirt with the borders of good taste more than most others. They're funny enough without seeking comedy from physical incapacities or imitating girls. That might go in night clubs, but not on home TV.

Talking Commercial

Why oh why do all the soap ads on TV have to be sung? Some day a smart ad man will come up with an old-fashioned talking commercial. It will revolutionize the industry.

One of the most exciting shows on TV is the Ed Murrow program, "See It Now." It emphasizes the fact that TV's greatest worth is in the field of news. But - - - it is disappointing to see more than half the Murrow show being presented on film. Viewers can see that sort of thing in any newsreel theatre. What they want is news as it's happening.

The "I Love Lucy" show is one of the most amusing of the cemedy half-hours. Lucille Ball is undoubtedly the best of the low comediennes (and Imogene Coca the queen of high comedy). But - - - I wish the story situations wouldn't be quite so far-fetched and unbelievable. "My Friend Irma" gets almost as many laughs with plausible happenings and leaves a better impression.

Lowest of the low: The hucksters who shout at the children in the audience, "Now kiddies, go tell your mother that she's got to go to the store and buy the jumbo size box of Crunchie Wunchies."

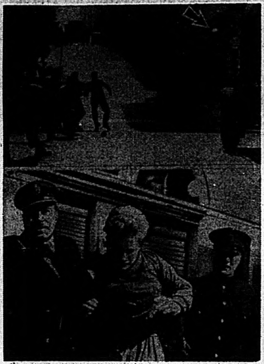
Italians Continue Rioting Over Trieste



Italian demonstrators stone a British truck (top) during violence that flared in the Free Territory of Trieste. A stone (arrow) may be seen about to strike the vehicle. Below, a rioter is hauled to the police station. He was one of 60 arrested as the demonstrators, demanding the return of Trieste to Italy, stoned Allied buildings, tore down street signs that were in English and shouted anti-American, anti-British and anti-Yugoslav slogans. Similar demonstrations occurred in Rome and Naples. — Central Press Canadian.

SPRIGHTLY CENTENARIAN

Kelwood, an. — (CP)—Andrew McCutcheon celebrated his 100th birthday at a party and dance, during which he did a lively step-dance for the audience. He was born in Arthur, Ont., and came west in 1896.

AT THE McCARTHY — Dick Powell, right, and Peggy Dow, second from right, are starred in Universal-International's riotous new comedy hit, "You Never Can Tell," which features Charles Drake and Joyce Holden. "You Never Can Tell" is the screwball story of a murdered dog which goes to animal heaven and then returns to earth as Private Eye Dick Powell to apprehend his own murderer. The comedy hit opens Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Second feature presents Mark Stevens and Peggy Dow in "Reunion in Reno."

AT THE CAPITOL — We two alone!—Alone with their love in all the world seem Ava Gardner and Robert Mitchum in this happy moment from "My Forbidden Past," opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre for its first showing. But drama and tragedy stalk the course of love in this picture of New Orleans of the gay Nineties, so affectingly translated to the screen in the Robert Sparks-Polan Banks production released by RKO Radio. Melvyn Douglas is co-starred with above. On the same program, Academy Award winner for the best actor, Humphrey Bogart in "Sirocco."

AT THE CAPITOL — Academy Award winner for best actor Humphrey Bogart appears in "Sirocco", with Lee J. Cobb, opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program for its first Belleville showing, "My Forbidden Past," starring Robert Mitchum and Ava Gardner with Melvyn Douglas.

REBUKE FROM GRAVE

Port Elizabeth, South Africa — (CP) — "I leave my wife her lover and the knowledge I was not the fool she thought I was," says the will of a South African farmer who died recently. "I leave her the pleasure of earning a living," it added. The farmer bequeathed his money to his son on condition the latter does not help his step-mother.

"QUO VADIS"

Robert TAYLOR PLAYS HIS MOST STRENUOUS ROLE AS MARCUS VINICIUS IN M-G-M'S EPIC TECHNICOLOR FILMIZATION OF "QUO VADIS." HE DRIVES A CHARIOT IN A THRILLING RACE AGAINST TWO RIVALS; HE BATTLES BUDDY BAER, ONE-TIME HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP CONTENDER; AND HE FIGHTS OFF 200 ROMAN GLADIATORS WHILE TRYING TO SAVE DEBORAH KERR'S LIFE!

Deborah KERR IS HOLLYWOOD'S MOST "WIDELYTRAVELED" ACTRESS. HER NEW ROLE AS LYGIA IN "QUO VADIS", FILMED IN ITALY, MARKS HER 8th CROSSING OF THE ATLANTIC IN FOUR YEARS.

Leo GENN CAST AS PETRONIUS, ARBITER OF ELEGANCE IN NERO'S DAY, WAS A SUCCESSFUL LONDON LAWYER BEFORE BECOMING AN ACTOR. HE SERVED AS PROSECUTING ATTORNEY AT THE NUREMBERG WAR CRIME TRIALS.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 30, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Excellent aspects, except for unwarranted sudden decisions. Have due care in weighty matters. Military activities, all affairs requiring determination, vigor favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Rays encourage all useful matters, our armed forces, the cause of freedom, and obedience to God's laws. Recreation, prayer, essential duties have their turn.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Your stars highly favor mental alertness, originality, creativeness, domestic, personal affairs generally. Don't neglect soul's needs or important "little" work.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Mildly benefic here for personal wishes, but grand day for doing good for others, aiding worthy causes. You can earn many real blessings.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Much can be accomplished now in improving the mind, a talent, hobby. First, go to your church and pray for those in troubled lands. Enjoy wholesome interests.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Benefic Mercury, Saturn and Pluto aspects. Authors, journalists, playwrights among top honored. Necessary tasks under fine rays, ask quick attention.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Mild Venus influences but other planetary aspects should inspire you to aim at high achievement. Tackle esesntial matters vigorously. In free time, relax and pray.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mars and Saturn in splendid aspects today should spur you to do good in every way you can. Build spiritual graces, help the needy.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — May not be a profit-taking day in temporal way but it is ripe for all useful and good lines of endeavor, for healthy recreation, charity. Start at church to enjoy day more.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Excellent Capricorn day with your especial talents and favorite subjects stimulated by fine Saturn rays. Think of your soul, health, family needs.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — If careful not to jump to conclusions or make hasty decisions, you should have a pleasant, even interesting day. Seek spiritual gains, have relaxing fun with family, good friends.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Domestic, religious and other duties honored; a generous, benefic Sunday. Avoid the unnecessary, but cheerfully do tasks you should. Our armed forces under fine star configurations.

YOU BORN TODAY are bright, quick of thought and action, perhaps too sharp in speech at times. Can go far in your employment if you apply self consistently. You have leadership qualities; could make excellent journalist, editor, manager, executive in business; could be first-rate worker or director in trade, profession. All-round capability, but, do not hinder it by being too domineering or boasty. Birthdate of: Paul Verlaine, noted Fr. poet.

Dr. W. B. Tufts of Outlook Wants Big Dam Constructed On South Saskatchewan River

Moose Jaw, Sask. —(CP)— An irrigation-minded physician from Outlook, Sask., is one of the biggest boosters of the proposed South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project.

Dr. W. B. Tufts, president of the Saskatchewan River Development Association, says development of the South Saskatchewan would bring as great a revolution in the west as the fur trade brought to the Prairies in the pioneer years.

In past years, Saskatchewan people chose variety of alternatives during dry spells.

"They grumbled, prayed, left the country, changed their politics and hired rain-makers," Dr. Tufts says. But the trial and error period is passing.

The story of the Outlook area is typical of the dry districts of the big grain-growing province.

The district's population has dropped from 40,000 to 22,000 since 1925, the farm population has slipped from 30,000 to 18,000, the wheat yield has fallen to an average of six bushels per acre and the average net farm income today is only $50 a month.

In 1931 there were 4,000 school children attending 110 schools in the district. Today there are only 1,600 students in 57 schools.

Dr. Tufts says that in the last 30 years the government contributed $57,000,000 in direct relief to keep the Outlook district alive... "Enough to build the dam."

Lists Benefits

These are the benefits he says will be reaped by construction of the irrigation dam at Outlook:

(1) A good crop could be grown every year instead of every four or five years;

(2) A livestock industry could be built up with irrigated pastures and feed lots, feeding 1½ head per acre instead of "one critter to 40 acres and shoot 'em when the dry spell comes;

(3) Farm income would move up to $300 per acre instead of $600 per year for a 360-acre farm;

(4) Wheat acreage would average 60 bushels instead of six;

(5) The rural population would be 40 to 60 persons to the square mile instead of three;

(6) New power would electrify farm homes, new industry would spring up, more and cheaper power would flow into prairie towns; and

(7) The young people could stay and find jobs and new opportunities to build a greater Saskatchewan instead of quitting the province.

With Canada's Naturalists:

Learning to Identify Bird Calls Fascinating Game for Amateurs

(Written for The Canadian Press)

By PERCY GHENT

Spring is the time to learn bird calls. It's a fascinating game, with the characteristic calls and songs provided by species after species — several hundred of them in Canada alone.

Canadians well know the call of the crow and the rhythm of the robin's song is almost as readily identified. Obligingly, some birds tell you their names in their songs, the whip-poor-will, bobolink and pipit among them.

In that expanding zone of southern Canada where the cardinal has taken up residence, the high, tuneful whistled call is one of the happiest notes of springtime.

Throughout that wide range from Newfoundland to Alberta, white-throated sparrows tell of their joy at being home again after wintering in the south. "Sweet, sweet, Canada, Canada, Canada," is plainly enough what they are singing, and definitely not "Old Sam Peabody, Peabody, Peabody" as listeners south of the border so mistakenly suppose.

The song-sparrow's song, a tuneful and cheery one, declares he's a "pres - pres - presby-terian," and that affiliation stressing, has doubtless earned the auld kirk's blessing. Should you hear in some woodland an enthusiastic call that sounds like "very, very pleased to meetcha," you may be sure you are listening to a chestnut-sided warbler. "Hip — three cheers," calls the olive - sided flycatcher. Or, as translated by the facetious ones, it's a mildly tipsy, "Hic-three beers."

Besides shouting his name all over the spring landscape, that golden-winged woodpecker the flicker, also delights in instrumental music — drumming on any available tin roof.

Nature Lovers

Canada more and more is becoming nature-and conservation-conscious.

Lecturers from the Audubon Society of North America often express their appreciation of Canadian audiences, whether the topics they discuss are birds, mammals, insects, trees or flowers.

Toronto was the first city on the continent, they state, where citizens packed a hall as large as Eaton auditorium on two successive nights to hear nature lectures and see motion pictures from nature. In other Canadian centres they find the appreciation and zest for natural history studies equally evident.

Toronto Field Naturalists' Club, incidentally, with a membership approaching 1,000, has monthly meetings and lectures which pack the theatre of the Royal Ontario museum.

Footprints in Snow

Hungrily mountain lions and grizzly bears come uncomfortably close to Banff and other resorts of the Canadian Rocky Mountains during the winter. Only rarely were they actually seen, but their footprints left in the snow and carefully measured by wildlife experts, show them to have been animals of more than average size.

Foreigners Leave Egypt to Avoid Nationalist Tide

By GILBERT SEDBON

Cairo, March 29 — (Reuters)— Egypt's 250,000 foreign residents, faced with a rising tide of Egyptian nationalism, are beginning to move out of the country in increasing numbers and as many as possible are taking their capital with them.

Many of them are seriously considering returning to the countries their fathers or grandfathers left.

Others plan to seek new lives in North or South America, South Africa or Australia.

They see little prospect of a future for them in the country.

The foreign minority, economically important but politically powerless, comprises about 100,000 Greeks, 70,000 Italians, 6,000 French, 35,000 Britons and about 30,000 from some 30 other countries.

They first migrated to Egypt under the rule of Mohammed Aly the Great, founder of the present Royal Dynasty, shortly after the turn of the 19th century, when he encouraged foreign immigration to promote the welfare of his people.

Heavy Investment

The immigrants were followed by large investments and attendant benefits such as the full development of the country's irrigation and agriculture particularly the cotton crop — Egypt's "white gold," the expansion of exports and trading, the establishment of industries, and a general rise in the standard of living and education.

A recent survey shows foreigners own more than one-third of the $478,800,000 invested in Egyptian companies. However, with the tendency to "Egyptianize" foreign concerns many foreigners have been "squeezed out."

In the Egyptian parliament, senators and deputies have tabled bills for the nationalization of the Suez Canal Company and other giant foreign - controlled concerns including oil, transport and water companies.

The result has been a marked drop in new foreign investments at a time when Egypt should be entering a new era of industrial prosperity.

Prominent Egyptian financiers and statesmen emphasize the dangers of extremism in Egyptian nationalism that may alienate the constructive friendship of foreigners, with disastrous economic consequences.

The Egyptian government is encouraging all foreigners to stay and King Farouk has urged them to resume their full activities and help raise the general living standards of the country.

But foreigners continue to queue outside foreign consulates to get permission to settle abroad

Geiger Counter Used in Study Of Plant Growth

Regina,—(CP) — Saskatchewan research with radioactive isotopes may help increase crops.

Dr. A. M. Krustjanson, assistant professor of chemistry at Regina College, said in a lecture here that the major use of the process at the University of Saskatchewan has been to determine the rate at which grain absorbs different kinds of food under different conditions.

Grain was planted in special plots in which some of the rows were spread with radioactive fertilizer. Tests at certain stages of growth determined, by means of a Geiger counter, the amount of radioactive substance in the plant and therefore the amount of the fertilizer food it had absorbed.

The grain plots were sown in various parts of the province in a variety of soils and weather conditions.

Dr. Krustjanson said that if best crops could be improved even a little by this study of the kinds of food grain absorbed it would be well worth while because of the millions of acres over which this improvement could be spread.

He also said that by activating substances and feeding them to cattle it is possible, by means of the Geiger counter, to trace everything the animal eats and say what happens to it.

An example in this field concerned the search for forms of iodine, copper and iron which had a balance of solubility for inclusion in salt blocks. Various forms of these substances were fed to cattle and traced by Geiger.

Thus it was possible to find just which forms were most easily absorbed by the cattle and would be most suitable for inclusion in the salt blocks.

SHOULD WAIT

Manila, March 29 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told a press conference yesterday the United States could make its foreign aid policy more effective by "waiting until it is asked" for help instead of trying to thrust it on some countries. She said Syria and Indonesia are still suspicious of American aid because their long history of colonialism leads the people in those countries to fear foreign domination will come with it.

$15,000 FIRE LOSS

Chicago, March 29 (AP) — One man died and some 120 persons were routed last night when a $15,000 fire of undetermined origin damaged the eight - storey Raleigh Hotel on the near north side. Several persons were injured slightly. The blaze originated in the basement and was confined to the seventh and eighth floors.

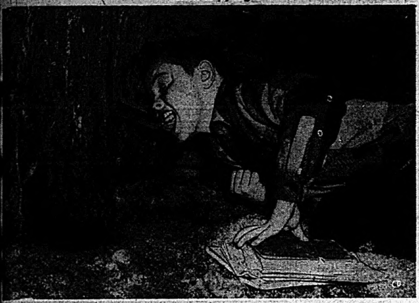
Nectar in Spring



During the spring sap run the sweet-tasting syrup tastes best when taken right from the maple tree itself. One unidentified Montreal lad tests the liquid fruits of the annual run and judging from his expression, finds it just as enjoyable as reported. (CP Photo.)

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

The great wrought iron gates guarding the entrance to Windsor opened into a straight tree-lined driveway almost broad enough to be called an avenue. Far down at the end of a red-and-yellow funnel formed by interlocking branches and autumn leaves I could see the house.

It was a very big house, long, low-lying, beautifully-proportioned. It looked solid and substantial, as if the builders—carefully placing brick upon brick—had intended it to endure for centuries. Centuries had not yet passed but the house gave the impression of beginning to grow old gracefully. Ivy had crept halfway to the roof. The shutters were pale blue, the front door with its huge antique knocker a shade in between white and cream.

The driveway ran in a circle before the door. Going around this I saw on my right an expanse of lawn which seemed to run, sloping upward slightly, to bluffs overlooking Long Island Sound. Under and around a green-and-white garden umbrella on the lawn was a group of people. I braked, glad that I had hired this smart blue convertible for the occasion.

There came a cry "hello, there, Jim," in a clear strong voice. A tall blonde girl detached herself from the crowd under the umbrella. She ran across the lawn. She could take long strides with those long, slim, tanned legs. The legs were highly visible, because she wore white shorts.

I noted upswept bronzy hair, good shoulders and, presently, wide gray eyes with a hint of the tawny in them. That was all, before she swooped upon me and threw both arms around my neck.

To my regret, she omitted a kiss. But she was satisfactorily close.

She said, into my ear, "Hi! But I hope you are Jim Orth, or I'm going to look darn silly."

I got myself together and reassured her. She let go of me, stepped back. Her nose was cute, with a splatter of freckles across its bridge. "All right, Jim. You know the routine. Remember— Bermuda and my name's sally. Sally Cravath."

"I've got it straight," I told her.

She took my hand; began leading me. "Good. Now come along and meet the people."

I went, wishing fervently that lovely warm greeting had not been a complete phony—just a gag to explain my presence at Windover, the magnificent home of Mr. Marston Cravath, stockbroker, socialite and sportsman.

Marston Cravath, Marney, as he was known to his intimates, arose as Sally brought me up. The movement dislodged a chocolate-brown dachshund, with a back like a shoeshine, which had been curled at his feet. The dachshund gave my ankles a brief sniff and walked off disdainfully.

I'd met Cravath off the record the day before, when he came to my cubbyhole office in the West Forties. Now no hint of recognition showed in his sea-blue eyes. He was, I thought, a fair actor. Likewise a fine figure of a man. Well over six feet and built like a light heavyweight. But he'd gone to fat a little, the way former athletes often do, and his strongly-chiseled face was a mite too florid. I'd already figured him for around 50.

"So you're Sally's Bermuda discovery," he said, smiling. "Well, we're glad to have you." Running to fat or no, he still had a grip like a beartrap.

"Only one of her discoveries, I'm afraid, sir," I said. "And I was in a bad way when she discovered me. On a lonely road, with a flat bike tire, and no pump. But she had a pump."

"Just a flagrant pickup, Uncle Marney," Sally laughed. "Well, now for the rest of these characters."

I met in quick succession Dolly Dumont, a fading redhead with slanty green eyes, and a languorous brunette whose name was Eve Wheeler. Then Jack Dumont, thick-set, mobile faced, visibly balding, and obviously belonging to the redhead. The last member of the party was Ames Warburton, a slight yellow-haired guy in his early 30s.

Sally couldn't have been more than 24. I found my eyes straying involuntarily to her left hand. It was bare of diamonds and platinum bands—and why I should have derived comfort from the observation I didn't know. I had a job to do.

"Well, that's that," Sally said. Her tone was just right, friendly, casual and as if we were old pals.

A little Filipino in a white jacket was circulating with a martini shaker. He brought me a drink as Sally sat me down in a chair beside the dark languid Wheeler woman.

"Watch yourself Jim," Sally said "Eve's a maneater."

Momentarily the Wheeler woman ignored both of us. She held out an empty glass to the Filipino who stood, shaker poised, a grin on his face. "While you're at it, Manila." Then to Sally, "Run away, small fry. I won't hurt Orth, much."

Sally disappointed me by running. She dropped onto the grass beside Ames Warburton's chair.

"Well, Orth," Eve Wheeler said as the conversation of the others became general again "what do you do with yourself?"

I shook my head. "Don't let it get around, but, well, I don't do anything."

She looked at me out of eyes almost completely closed and nodded. "I suspected as much from your advance press notices. Sally inferred, in a very nice way, that you're just a playboy."

Sally would have. That was part of the act.

"She slandered me," I said. "I am making up my mind about what to do. Only it seems to take a long time."

Eve tapped my wrist with a long scarlet-tipped fingernail. "My dear," she said, as one giving advice to the young and foolish, "if you're lucky enough to have unearned increment, just live on it and shut up."

At that point a young man dressed in sports shirt and slacks of matching blue appeared on the lawn.

"Well, here's Dave," Marston Cravath said. "He'll want a drink too, after all those letters I gave him. Pour the rest of that for him, Manila and go make some more."

"We call him Manila," Eve Wheeler woke up long enough to inform me "because his real name is longer than your arm and very unpronounceable."

Dave Sladen, Marston Cravath's secretary, was about my own age, 27, brown haired and stocky. He gave me a short, but deliberate, look before extending his hand. That seemed strange. I'd never laid eyes on the guy before.

Sladen collected his drink and went away with it. Cravath called, over the conversational hubbub, to Ames Warburton, "don't suppose that watch of yours has turned up yet, Ames?"

"Not a sign of it," Warburton replied.

"Ames only got here early this afternoon," my soporific information bureau volunteered." But the first thing he did was lose his watch. They've taken the place apart looking for it."

When it came time to dress for dinner the monkeyish Manila took me in tow. We got my bags from the convertible and I followed him upstairs to a large airy room overlooking the lawn we'd just vacated. Aside from the hallway door there were several others. Two of these concealed closets and one, ajar, showed a bathroom with light-blue tile. Still another led, I imagined, into a connecting room.

Manila hadn't been gone two minutes before a light tap sounded on this latter door. It opened and Marston Cravath stood there, beckoning me.

I found myself in a cozy little den, obviously Cravath's private sanctum. It was pine-paneled and crowded with book shelves. There was a wide fireplace, a sofa and a couple of deep leather-covered easy chairs.

From bookcase tops and tables cups, statuettes and medals other trophies threw bright silvery gleams. The walls were hung with plaques and pictures. I saw Marston Cravath at tiller of a clean-lined swift-looking sloop; pictures of Cravath on a polo pony, at golf, tennis, skiing. A little silver figurine mounted on a dark-wood base represented a bowler. Over the fireplace was a huge picture of a former Yale football team with Cravath in the centre of the group holding a ball.

He followed my gaze and smiled. "We're among my souvenirs, Orth. Just as well that the room next door happened to be vacant. Makes it easy for us to talk privately when we want to." The smile faded. "Let's get to business. First off, you did very well out there. I don't see how anyone could suspect that you're anything except a young idler Sally met in Bermuda."

My part called for a character with the appearance of wastrel and the brains of a woodchuck.

"Well," Cravath said "as I told you yesterday in your office, Sally and I talked this over. It made sense for us to find an investigator who could pass off as a guest here. Conrad Dillon recommended you. When you said you were familiar with Bermuda, this dodge suggested itself. Sally was down there last summer."

"Didn't Dillon ask why you needed a private detective?" I inquired. Conrad Dillon was assistant-district attorney of New York city and he and Cravath had a club in common.

"I intimated that it was a private matter, nothing for the police. That satisfied him."

"Good," I said. "Now have we time to review this business?"

"Plenty of time." He sat in one leather chair, motioned me toward the other. "These women take hours to dress. Well, as I told you, it began last Tuesday. I was sunning on the back terrace. I was almost asleep when the pot came crashing down. It had geraniums in it, one of two jardinieres that stood on the railing of a balcony over the terrace."

"How big are the jardinieres?" I asked.

Cravath grimaced, mouth tight. "Easily three feet high and a foot and a half in diameter. And remember, the thing was packed with dirt. My guess is that I just missed having my skull cracked like an eggshell."

"Who has the room off the balcony?"

"Nobdy," he said promptly. "It's the least attractive we've got and we never offer it to guests, unless there's a houseful. And since the room isn't used much, the balcony isn't either."

"So somebody could easily have tipped one off?"

"Absolutely. Of course, though, such a thing didn't enter my head at first. I merely concluded that the thing had toppled off by itself somehow. But the more I thought of it, the less sense that made. Those pots are heavy. And some pretty high winds we've had didn't budge them."

"You were sunning how?", I asked. "In a deck chair? Lying on the ground?"

"Flat on my back on a beach-roll. The pot landed about a foot from my head. Scared the heart out of me and"—his strong jaw jutted—"I don't scare very often."

"You cleaned up the mess yourself?"

"Yes. The jardiniere was smashed into a thousand pieces. I threw the whole works, geraniums, big hunks of dirt and all, into some shrubbery."

I lit a cigaret. "I think you were wise to keep quiet."

Cravath looked grim. "That's my own hunch. Well, then, on Thursday night, I went to Jamestown to see a friend of mine. Drove over alone in the station wagon."

He had given me a sketchy account of Thursday night's episode in my office but now I asked him to repeat it.

He did so explaining that the Windover garage was in a kind of hollow at some distance from the house. It was a four car garage with no living quarters above it. His chauffeur, a married man, had a cottage elsewhere on the premises.

A cement runway led down what he described as a rather sharp incline to the garage itself. Cravath had returned shortly after midnight and reached the top of this incline before he noticed that the door to the station wagon's berth was closed. In fact, so were the three other doors. He'd stopped short and jerked on the emergency brake.

Then he'd climbed out of the car, thinking that someone around the place had been careless and unobservant to shut the door when a glance inside would have disclosed that the station wagon was out.

So he had walked down the incline and started fumbling with the door. And something—he was not clear as to precisely what—caused him to go suddenly rigid.

In my view, Marney Cravath owed his life to the fact that he had been a great athlete and still had, doubtless, an athlete's lightning reactions.

In any case, he'd just managed to hurl himself out of the path of hundreds of pounds of metal and whatever goes into a big heavy station wagon. The station wagon had come roaring down the incline like the car of Juggernaut, smashed halfway through the garage door, torn off one fender completely, crumpled the other like paper and generally wrecked its whole front end.

And Marney Cravath believed, implicitiy, that the plan had been for him to be found mangled, bloody and dead pulp somewhere under the wreckage. Which was the reason why I, James Russell Orth, was a kind of spurious guest at Windover.

Well, it could have happened. The entire household knew Cravath had gone alone. He had not returned until, ostensibly, everybody had retired. Simple enough for someone to sneak out, close the garage door and lurk in the shadows. Almost as simple, too, to glide to the car as Cravath walked down the incline, reach in, release the brake. That might have been enough. But if not, with the car in the precarious position he described, a heave on the rear bumper would have done it. Anyone, man or woman, had strength enough for that.

"How did you explain the wrecked car the next day?"

He looked at me sharply. "I did not. I decided to let whover was behind this monkey business discover things for himself. I did route out Williamson, the chauffeur I told him that I'd forgotten to put the brake on and asked him to keep his mouth shut, because I didn't want anyone to know what a careless fool I'd been."

There was coffee and brandy after dinner in a living room fit to house the United Nations and then the men went off to discuss the securities business. Dave Sladen, being a secretary, appeared to be needed. He trailed along reluctantly, I thought.

This left me with three women, two of whom I deemed expendable. Dolly Dumont and Eve Wheeler had a running game of serious Russian Bank going. Sally and I watched for a few minutes and, jingled or no, Mrs. Dumont had a sharp eye for the cards. But presently Sally drew me away.

"Like to see over the place," she said, and life for me became beautiful.

We strolled out in mauve and gold twilight. I took a look at the garage.

"Well, now that you know all we know, Jim," Sally said, as we turned away, "what do you think?"

"I don't like it." There was no use kidding her.

She waited a moment, then burst out. "Oh, its simply incredible. Uncle Marney is the swellest guy that ever lived. He's always doing things for people, putting himself out to do them. He should not have an enemy in the world."

"He certainly looks like a swell guy to me," I said. "But the fact remains, somebody seems to be sniping at him with flowerpots and station wagons."

"I just can't understand it," Lovely even teeth dented her lower lip. "Why, these people are our best friends."

"Well, suppose it isn't one of these people? Someone from the outside?"

"Who else could sneak in here in broad daylight, past all the men that work on the place and six servants in the house, goupstairs, out on the balcony and throw a jardiniere at him?"

I had been silly, I guess. I said, "The only one who looks in the clear is this Warburton fellow. If he just arrived today."

"Aimes?" She laughed. Under palmier conditions I could imagine that laugh as a silvery tinkle. "Well, if I weren't so suspicious of everybody, I'd agree with you. Up to date, Ames has never been known to slap a mosquito."

"Look" I said, "I suppose we can rule the servants out? Chauffeur, gardener and so on?"

She tilted a firm beautifully rounded chin. "I rule nobody out. Although I don't believe it was the servants. They all adore Uncle Marney."

"Speaking of uncles," I said "you seem to have a couple of them. Don't you call Mr. Dumont 'Uncle Jack'."

"Yes, because I've known him all my life. But he isn't a relation."

Mr. Cravath is, of course?"

"Definitely. My father's only brother. A bachelor. My parents died when I was little. Uncle Marney adopted me."

I admired Uncle Marney's taste. but forebore to say so.

I was looking down a kind of green vista to the edge of the cliffs. Two rows of evergreens, spacel closely together, bordered a path about six feet wide. Here the ground, in contrast to its formation at the lawn just off the house, sloped down instead of up. At the end of it, some 200 feet away, were white posts, one at each end of the evergreen rows. These were part of a fence built along the cliff top. Strung between the posts, one above the other, were three loose hanging chains.

"This," Sally informed me, "is known in the family as the 'Peacock Path."

"So! I see no peacocks."

"Well, there were some once. Uncle Marney remembers that his grandfather had a couple. I suppose they wandered around here and that's how the path got its name."

The grass was clipped short, and smooth as a golf green. Beyond the protective chains there was still a good 10 feet of solid ground. But after that, nothing.

Sally pointed. "Any time it all gets too much for you, just stagger over that. It's a long drop onto solid rock."

"Not tonight, thanks," I said. "Look, Sally, has your uncle thought of notifying the police about all this?"

Her gray gold eyes gave me a troubled look. "Suppose we did call the police? The chances are that anyone they sent would look and act just like a bodyguard. And whoever's doing this would spot him in a second and simply suspend operations."

Well, that made certain sense. We turned away from the fence, because it was nearly dark now, and started back along the Peacock Path. And met, to my chagrin Eve Wheeler.

"I've been looking for you," she said. "Dolly walked out on me."

We went into the house and played canasta until the securities conference broke up. That happened around 11:30. There followed a drink and general conversation which took another hour. Then somebody yawned and the party ended.

Upstairs I got into a dressing-gown and lay down on the bed.

Possible motivation? Backgrounds of these people?(His own history, if I could get that without becoming too personal? These and a lot more.

If only . . . Ihad a sensation of every drop of my blood freezing suddenly. It was the most dreadful sound, human or inhuman, that I have ever heard.

Footsteps pounded in the hall. I yanked open the door. Relief swamped me like a warm wave.

Marney Cravath, dressing-gowned even as I, came racing along the passage. His face wasn't florid now. It was putty-colored.

"Did you hear that?"

I nodded dumbly. He looked at me a second, his face clouded with perplexity, then turned. "It sounded outside. Come on." I followed him outdoors.

He brought two flashlights which he had taken from the drawer of the hall table. He gave me one as we headed for the bushes and shrubbery that began just off the lawn. We might have done better to wait to see if anyone from the house was missing. I didn't want Cravath plunging around in the dark alone, so I trailed him.

Proposal Suggests The Queen Live in Commonwealth Countries for Specified Time

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 31 (CP) —A motion may be presented soon in the British House of Commons suggesting that the Queen take up residence in each of the Commonwealth countries for a specified period, it was learned today.

Thei dea still is in the discussion stage and many obstacles have to be overcome. One of the difficulties is finding a formula whereby such a petition could be brought before parliament, which has strict rules governing references to royalty.

Circulate Petition

Meanwhile, it is understood sponsors of the idea are circulating a petition for signature by members of parliament. It would read as follows:

"That a humble address be presented to Her Majesty praying that she may be pleased to task the advice of her ministers in this and other Commonwealth countries on the desirability of her residing in each country of the Commonwealth for certain periods."

Norman Dodds, Labor member for Dartford, Kent, is understood to have started parliamentary conversations on the subject after reiving letters from persons in Commonwealth countries. All expressed enthusiasm for thei dea of the sovereign living ountside her own country for certain periods.

Columnist Hannen Swaffer, writing this weekend in The People, a left-wing newspaper said that "Commonwealth history may be changed in a few days" by the proposal.

Little Encouragement

Court circles have given little encouragement to suggestions that the reigning king or queen should reside elsewhere, even for a limited time. It has been stressed that the sovereign is in the nature of things required to keep in daily touch with state papers.

"Obviously one can't send everything over to Canada," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said last October when it was suggested by some Canadian newspapers that Elizabeth, then a princess, should become governor-general of Canada.

Dodds is reported to feel that the growth of air travel tends to obviate such difficulties.

Ottawa—(CP)—The idea that the Queen should live in each of the Commonwealth countries for a specified period has supporters in high places in Canada, including some of the cabinet authoritative headquarters said today.

However, nobody here has ever done much about it beyond suggesting that it would be a good idea. It remains to be seen what will arise now that a member of the British Commons is trying to place a petition before parliament in Westminster to bring the step about.

There are a number of obstacles. One is the fact that Britain bears the financial burden of the royal family. Presumably if they moved to Canada for a time, Canada would shoulder their costs during that period.

Miners Turned Away After Work Stoppage

Timmins, March 31 (CP)—Workers at Preston East Dome Gold Mine were turned away today when they returned to the mine after a three-day "unauthorized" work stoppage.

Mine manager W. A. Hutchison said necessary inspection of underground equipment was under way. He could not say when operations would resume.

The stoppage began Tuesday when the miners—members of Local 4438, United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.)—objected to the discharge of Paul Proulx for sleeping on the job.

Between half and three-quarters of the 180-man shift turned up for work early today.

A union official said the Proulx case will be referred to arbitration. "The important thing to do now is to try and rectify a mistake made."

Squabble Over Money

Detroit, March 31 — (AP) — Screen comedian Billy de Wolfe was taken to police headquarters yesterday and booked for "investigation of disturbing the peace."

Police were called to a hamburger stand after De Wolfe got in an argument with a waitress over the value of the Canadian dollar.

De Wolfe tried to pay his check with Canadian money.

The waitress demanded two extra pennies as discount on the Canadian cash. De Wolfe objected. He contended United States and Canadian money now are equal in value.

The waitress said De Wolfe heaved a sugar container which hit her left hand and wrist. De Wolfe exhibited a slightly skinned nose.

RESIGNATION DIMS HOPE OF AVERTING STEEL STRIKE

Charles E. Wilson Quits Office of Director

Washington, March 31. (AP)—Charles E. Wilson's sudden resignation as mobilization director in protest against administration steel-price policies dimmed hopes today of averting a country-wide steel strike April 8.

The industry, resuming peace talks in New York with the United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.), found itself with no assurance of a price boost to offset a government-recommended 17 1-2-cents-an-hour wage increase.

The future of wage-price control itself clouded overnight.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (Dem. S.C.) broke off hearings of his senate banking committee on the extension of the defence production act, which expires June 30, "until the air has cleared". The future of controls, Maybank said, should not be deliberated in a "wave of hysteria and confusion, charges and countercharges". Some legislators have urged the scrapping of controls.

Maybank praised Wilson, former president of General Electric Company and executive vice-chairman of the war production board in the Second World War, as a "great American". The committee, he said, definitely will want to know who will be Wilson's successor.

Truman had no nomination ready. He designated his assistant, John R. Steelman, to direct the office of defence mobilization temporarily.

The President, in accepting Wilson's resignation yesterday said wage terms recommended by the wage stabilization board are "by no means unreasonable". He said he believes steel profits are "many times higher" than the proposed new wage costs.

Wilson's letter told the President Wilson could not "accept public responsibility for major stabilization actions which I cannot control."

President Voices Regret

The president voiced regret and paid tribute to Wilson's "vigor, competence and effectiveness" in his post.

Originally, Wilson favored neither wage nor price increases in steel. He told associates they would have the widest inflationary repercussions.

When the W. S. B. this month adopted the 17½-cent recommendation he protested it as "a serious threat" to economic stability. But he finally conceded that it must be the basis for negotiation between the industry and C. I. O.'s 650,000 steel unionists.

Convinced that no settlement could be reached unless "part of the cost" were offset by assurance of a steel-price ceiling boost, his letter disclosed, Wilson flew to Key West last weekend and obtained what he regarded as an "understanding" to that effect with Truman.

But last Friday, Wilson told the president, "you changed your mind."

This was the day that Truman talked at length with economic stabilizer Roger L. Putnam and price director Ellis Arnall, both known to oppose the boosts.

By that time, however, Wilson had indicated to the steel companies the government's willingness to adjust prices if necessary. The figure of a $5 ton increase has been mentioned unofficially. The "big-six" steel producers promptly invited the union into the New York negotiations today.

Now the price assurance is gone; Truman is on record as strongly supporting the wage board and doubting any need for price compensation.

Canadian-Built Jet Fighters Will Be Flown by RCAF This Year--Gordon

Toronto, March 31 (AP) —Canadian-built jet fighters will be flown this year by the RCAF, Crawford Gordon, Jr., president and general manager of Avro Canada, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian club, he said:

"Barring unforeseen difficulties, we will have one or two squadrons of CF-100 fighters in the hands of the RCAF this year and 1953 will see our production task well in hand."

He also said Orenda jet engines, designed and built particularly for the all-weather CF-100, have been chosen to power Sabre fighters. During a recent flight from Toronto to Montreal, an Orenda-powered Sabre flew at an average speed of 665 miles an hour.

A new plant with 400,000 square feet of floor space for production of Orenda and other jet engines was being equipped and staffed at nearby Malton. By the end of April all machine tools and equipment would be installed, except for scarce items.

"The Orenda has passed the official RCAF test with flying colors. Quantity production is commencing and will accelerate as soon as the new plant is completed."

Extinguish Plane Fire in Two Minutes

In two minutes R.C.A.F. firefighters extinguish the flames of an aircraft soaked in gasoline and lighted for the purpose of testing a new fire extinguishing compound. The compound, pressurized baking soda, is the best yet tested by the R.C.A.F. and is expected to save lives when seconds count in extricating airmen from their burning craft. — Central Press Canadian.

Line of Crises Marks Truman's Seven Years in White House

Washington, March 31 (AP) — Harry S. Truman's seven years as President of the United States have been described as "a virtually unbroken line of crises."

The line stretches from April 12, 1945—when he stepped up from the vice-presidency on the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt—to the present—when his plan to step down is being discussed around the world.

Dangling from this line were foreign policy crises like:

The launching of the United Nations at the end of the Second World War, two weeks after he took office.

The dawn of the atomic age—with the bombing of two Japanese cities in 1945 and the later decision to begin work on the hydrogen bomb.

The rise of communism and the ensuing cold war with Russia.

The war in Korea, beginning June 25, 1950.

Formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, marking the first time the U.S. struck a peacetime military alliance with European nations.

Establishment of the European recovery program—billions of dollars to put postwar Europe back on its feet.

Promulgation of the Truman doctrine of military and economic aid to countries fighting communism.

Launching the program of technical aid to backward countries.

The Berlin blockade of 1948-49, set up by the Russians and broken after 327 days by the airlift.

Ratification this year of the peace treaty with Japan and of related Pacific pacts.

The crises on the home front included:

The "great debate" of 1951, touched off by Truman's decision to send six divisions to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's NATO command, over how much military authority the president has.

Furore Over Recall

The furore in the spring of 1951 over the recall of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as U. N. Far East commander.

Merger of the armed forces.

A peacetime military draft, first in U. S. history, and a move toward universal military training.

Industrial unrest — government seizure of the railroads to head off strikes in 1946 and again in 1950 (still technically in effect) and court duels with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

Charges of communist infiltration of government agencies.

Congressional investigations and disclosures of corruption in federal bodies like the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Internal Revenue Bureau.

On Nov. 1, 1950, Truman escaped an assassination attempt. Two Puerto Ricans tried to gun their way into Blair House. One was killed, the other wounded. Three guards were shot down, one fatally.

Nearly 68 (on May 8 he will be), the former Missouri farm boy still expects to be active in affairs of the Democratic party. In his swan song to the White House he said emphatically:

"I like politics."

FOUR CHILDREN INJURED

Toronto, March 31 (CP) —Four children were slightly injured today when a boy inserted a detonator cap, used in dynamite blasting, in a toy cap gun and it exploded.

Douglas Weeden, 10, told police he found the caps in a trunk. He inserted one in his toy pistol and pulled the trigger. It exploded, shattering the gun and injuring the boy. Three others in a group of eight children standing nearby, were also injured.

Anti-French Mobs Riot in Tangier, Six are Killed

Tangiers, March 31 (AP)—Furious anti-French mobs ran riot through this North African international-zone city yesterday. At least six persons were killed. Hospitals treated 151 injured. Nine persons are so badly hurt doctors fear they will die.

The mobs, bursting from the native quarter, stoned European shops and cafes, smashed and burned automobiles, broke windows and looted. The occasion was the 40th anniversary of French rule over the neighboring protectorate of French Morocco, where rising Arab nationalism has been manifest in recent months.

The city was quiet today.

Tangier is a demilitarized zone, opposite Gibraltar, surrounded by Spanish Morocco. It has its own local Arab Government, representing the Sultan of Morocco but certain veto powers are held by a control committee of representatives of the big powers which created the territory.

New Yorker Gets Non-Runner In Irish Sweeps

Dublin, March 31 — (AP)—The first ticket out of the Irish Sweepstakes drum today went to Thomas Flaherty of New York. The sweeps are based on the Grand National Steeplechase to be run at Aintree, England, next Saturday.

Flaherty drew Tommy Traddles, a non-runner. Officials said he will collect £370, eight shillings.

The counterfoils of millions of tickets were mixed over the week end in huge revolving drums. Blindfolded colleens — pretty Irish hospital nurses — picked the lucky numbers from the drums.

Sweepstakes director John O'Sheehan announced the prize fund of $3,404,829 for this 74th drawing is the biggest in the 21-year history of the Irish sweeps.

The prizes are split into units of £100,000. Each unit consists of one first prize of £50,000; one second prize of £20,000 and a third prize of £10,000.

The remainder of the unit funds are split into smaller consolation and so-called residual prizes. After expenses of the sweeps are paid, huge revenues are used to build and maintain Irish hospitals.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 31 (CP)— Synopsis: Spring-like weather has been moving gradually toward Ontario for the past few days, and maximum temperatures in Northern Ohio reached 70 degrees on Sunday. This welcome change has already invaded southwestern counties — Windsor's temperature at midnight was 50 degrees.

There is still some snow on the ground in northern districts, and until this is melted maximum temperatures north of Muskoka will remain below 45 degrees. However southern Ontario will have a taste of spring today and Tuesday with afternoon temperatures ranging from 55 to 65 degrees along the lower lakes on Tuesday.

TONS OF WATER PUMPED IN CELLS TO OUST CONVICTS

Rioting Prisoners Break Windows, Plumbing

Trenton, N. J., March 31 (AP)—Tons of water were pumped into a wing of Trenton state prison today to flood out a group of 25 hardened convicts who have barricaded themselves in the cell block since early yesterday.

Involved in the riot were convicts segregated from other prisoners because they are habitual trouble-makers.

Prison officials said the rioters shouted complaints concerning food and improper medical attention for one of the inmates.

The rioting convicts broke windows, tore out plumbing and ripped mattresses and set them afire. Some of them broke out of their cells and wandered about the 3-tiered cell block.

Prison guards firing tear gas shells quelled the disturbance in the wing where food, water, heat and electricity were cut off.

About 25 filed out of the wing at noon. Another 25 stayed in the wing.

Other prison inmates, numbering about 1,250, were in different wings of the prison and took no part in the outbreak.

Air Force Plans Special Services For Protestants

Trenton—Air Vice Marshal C. R. Slemon, air officer commanding training command headquarters here, announced that training command stations would join with other RCAF commands in holding special religious services. Special Protestant preaching missions based on the theme "Victorious Living" will form the basis of a three-day spiritual enlightenment meetings which will be held at RCAF Station, Trenton and Number 6 Repair Depot in Trenton. The meetings will be held on the first three days in April at 11 o'clock in the 6 RD Recreation Hall, at 1 o'clock in the station Trenton sports arena and at 7:30 p.m. in the evening in the Breadner school auditorium. The evening services are being held for dependents of serving personnel.

The daytime services will be short and timed so as to allow all serving officers, airmen and airwomen to take part. Attendance of the meetings will be on a purely voluntary basis. Services being held at Trenton form only a part of the larger over-all plan for similar Protestant preaching missions which will be, or have already been, held at RCAF Stations across the Dominion. The missions are designed to bring to the attention of air force men and women and their families, the need for Christian principles in everyday living.

Speaker at each of the six missions being held in the Trenton area will be Group Captain R. M. Frayne, Protestant director of religious administration at air force headquarters, Ottawa.

Hellfire Death, Jellied Gas Bombs, Tamed to Useful Peacetime Work

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, March 31 AP) —The hellfire death of war—napalm or jellied gasoline bombs—is being tamed to useful peacetime work.

In war, napalm is one of the most feared and most useful weapons.

Napalm itself is a yellow powder, and is just a thickener of fluids. It turns gasoline into a jelly for use in bombs and flame-throwers.

In peace, some of napalm's present or promised jobs include:

A thickener for vinyl resin plastics. It forms putty like materoials that can be easily molded or worked, and then fused by heat no higher than a roasting oven to make resilient, non-breakable plastic products.

Disks, the size of a quarter, to start up the logs in your fireplace without paper or kindling.

Mixing in fuel oil to ignite huge coal furnaces and bring the coal fire to high temperature rapidly.

Flame-throwers to burn out vegetation on waterways, to kill weeds or start back fires to combat forest fires.

Napalm bombs are set off by detonators in the mouth of the tank of jellied gasoline. The stuff flies everywhere, sticks and burns. It burns far longer than liquid gasoline.

Communists in Korea call it the hell bomb. It fires tanks and trucks and towns, brings flaming death or suffocation to troops hiding in dugouts or in tunnels. The average napalm bomb covers an area 275 feet long and 80 feet wide with fire.

Psychologically it has tremendous impact, and panics many troops.

Napalm is a war baby, developed out of necessity in the Second World War and used then to burn out Japanese troops.

Rubber can be used to jell gasoline, but the Japanese cut off rubber supplies. Science looked for another way to make the gasoline jelly.

Napalm thickener is an aluminum soap of napthenic, oleic and coconut fatty acids.

Truman Convinces All But Die-Hards He is 'Draft-Proof'

President Says He Will Not Be Candidate in November

Washington, March 31 (AP) — President Truman convinced all but the most stubborn Truman diehards today that he is 'draft-proof' and sent them on a desperate hunt for a new Democratic standard-bearer.

Many seemed inclined to go along with his own apparent choice of Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—if Stevenson will — but three avowed presidential candidates already in the field claimed new support.

Saturday night, near the end of a "give-'em-hell" speech against the Republicans at a Democratic rally, the President departed from his prepared text to say:

"I shall not be a candidate for re-election. I have served my country long and, I think, efficiently and honestly.

"I shall not accept a renomination. I do not feel that it is my duty to spend another four years in the White House . . ."

When reporters asked if any development could bring him to reverse his decision, the President said, "none whatever."

At a Sunday reception, Truman urged 2,000 party workers to "get in there and pitch" for a November victory. He promised to work as enthusiastically for the party ticket "as if I were on it."

Applauded Wisdom

Most of the world's press bannerlined Truman's decision, but it had not yet been published in Moscow.

The former British prime minister, Clement Attlee, declined comment, but other European officials were less reticent. Maurice Schumann, French foreign affairs expert, applauded Truman's "wisdom for knowing when to quit." West German circles worried about future United States policy. The Danish foreign minister, Ole Bjoern Kraft, expressed hope it would be the same as that laid down by Truman.

The President, meanwhile, kept silent on his choice of a successor. Governor Stevenson seemed more receptive toward the nomination than formerly.

Few thought the president would not take an active interest in selection of a new standard bearer. He told the reception:

"I will be in there just the same as if I were the nominee because I am that kind of a Democrat. I'm not a fair-day Democrat."

Asked Direct Question

Stevenson was asked directly on N.B.C.'s "Meet The Press" television program: "Will you say that you will not accept the Democratic nomination?"

"I will not say that," Stevenson replied.

One immediate effect of Truman's action was to spur the campaigning of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who gave the President a stunning defeat in the New Hampshire primary, and the hopes of Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, candidate of the anti-Truman forces in the south.

At the same time, pro-Truman Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, campaigning for delegates for transfer to Truman openly became a candidate in his own right.

19 Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

A child mangled in the machinery of a cold storage plant and four Italian immigrants burned to death in a bunkhouse fire brought to 19 the toll of deaths in eastern Canada during the weekend.

FIREMEN ANSWER THREE ALARMS OVER WEEKEND

Firemen were called out on three alarms over the weekend, all for minor blazes with no damage reported.

Saturday firemen were called to a grass blaze, while Sunday they were called to an Everett street address for an oil burner and again to the Fish and Chip store on Front Street. The last call turned out to be a false alarm, it was reported.

MILK CAME DOWN ALL OVER PAVEMENT

Milk came down this morning—down, that is, all over the pavement.

As the vehicle was starting out for the morning delivery a truck owned by the Roblin Dairy was in collision with a transport at the corner of Coleman and Bridge Streets with result that cases of milk were scattered over the pavement.

Police said the milk truck was proceeding north, when the brakes on the transport failed to operate, when the red light came on.

CAR CRASHES INTO HYDRO POLE, PASSENGER HURT

Mr. J. G. Dusenbury, Carrying Place, suffered a cut forehead and injury to his nose and lip Saturday when the car in which he was riding crashed into a hydro pole on Bridge Street near the Highland Ave. intersection. Mr. Dusenburg was taken to hospital where his injuries were treated.

Mr. Dusenbury was riding with Arley Thompkins, also of Carrying Place, when the driver took his eyes off the road for a moment with result that his car crashed into the hydro pole.

PreparationsBeing Made to Repave West Bridge St.

Preparatory work leading to repaving of Bridge Street West to Highland Ave., is now underway by the city public works department with test holes being dug to check on storm sewers and telephone conduits.

City engineer Charles Mott reported today that it was the wish of council to have the repaving job completed before the tourist season sets in.

Council planned to pave Bridge Street two years ago but checks determined that a new base was needed before the paving was done and the work was delayed. It is now planned to call for tenders for placement of the new base and also for the pavement with expectation that the work be completed before the end of May.

POLICE BLOTTER

Both city and provincial police were active over the weekend rounding up inebriates who had imbibed a bit too freely on intoxicants. At least a half dozen were lodged in the police cells for drunkenness.

A Trenton woman, Mrs. Daniel Whitley, reported the theft of her purse, while she was visiting a local department store on Saturday. She had set her purse down to examine some goods and when she turned around it was missing. The purse contained $32.

Boys were active with BB guns in the West Moira Street district but the lads had disappeared by the time police were able to answer the complaint from a resident in the area.

A Coleman Street roomer complained of the loss of clothes from his rooming place.

Mustang Fighters, 34th Battery Blast Targets From Water In Reserve Units' Firing Display

A "shooting war" came to Cobourg on Sunday.

Orange flashes spewed from muzzles of guns of various calibre on a small "sector of front" facing Lake Ontario a mile west of the town.

Mustang fighter planes, machine-guns spouting lead, sped fiery rockets on their way at three small target ships anchored in the lake at varying distances from the shore.

The "heavies" hurled large calibre shells from three to four miles out in the lake. Mortars tossed parachuting flares high in the air. Machine guns stuttered and staccatoed bursts of fire at the targets.

5,000 Attend

And "Operation Mud" as it was jocularly termed by the participating troops attracted five thousand curious spectators from all parts of the district.

Actually it was a fire-power demonstration staged by reserve army artillery and infantry units of the district working in co-operation with aircraft from the Royal Canadian Air Force station at Trenton.

Purpose of Demonstration

Purpose of the demonstration was to give artillerymen, who had never fired unit weapons an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the operation. Secondly to encourage recruiting. Third to give gunners of various regiments the opportunity to see other types of guns in action.

Taking part in the demonstration were the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (SP) ALI, Belleville; the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Belleville and district; 33rd Medium Regiment, Cobourg; 4th Field Regiment RCA, Lindsay; 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, RCA, Peterborough; 60th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment, RCA, Brockville, and the Midland Regiment, of Port Hope.

The "troops" worked under almost active service conditions as far as the terrain was concerned. Heavy vehicles plowed deep furrowed ruts into the soft earth. Many were mired and had to be towed into position. The 33-ton "M-10" self propelled 17-pounder gun of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment was rushed into service and was stymied but once. The large 3.7 gun of the 50th H.A.A. regiment became hopelessly mired and did not take part in the demonstration.

Spectators wallowed, slid and skidded in the mucky mess, but even this did not deter their curiosity and appreciation of the shoot.

Had any prizes been awarded for accuracy and efficiency in destroying their targets they would have gone to the RCAF Mustangs and the 17-pounder (towed) gun detachment of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment.

Fine Shooting

This gun laid by Bombardier D. Seames ripped a flag off the western end of the target with its first round. The following five rounds and another demonstration round ripped into the target, all direct hits. The crew's fine effort drew applause from the crowd.

The M-10 crew also smashed shells in and around the target with a fine degree of accuracy.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment manned a six-pounder anti-tank gun under the command of Captain Ed. Louck, Frankford. Faulty ammunition spoiled the early aim of the gun crew before it finally found the target.

A detachment from the Hasty Pees Bancroft company sent parachuted flares zooming into a sullen sky.

The 4th Field Regiment demonstrated with single round and rapid fire the accuracy of the 25-pounder field gun. It hurled shells at ranges varying from 5,000 to 6,000 yards, black geysers of water shooting high in the air, when the shells exploded. A 5.5 gun howitzer fired by the 33rd Medium Regiment, Cobourg, also demonstrated its long-range ability.

The 60th Light Anti Aircraft Regiment of Brockville had hard luck with its shoot. It blasted single round and rapid fire at the targets but was unable to locate them with any degree of accuracy. The Midland Regiment of Port Hope fired bren gun bursts as well as operating a First World War veteran heavy machine gun of the Vickers type.

Aircraft Accuracy

The Mustang fighters gave a colorful efficient display. Zooming out of the eastern skies in close low-flying formation, the fighters "peeled off" into single combat units and with roaring dives sped straight for the target, machine guns spitting lead before they zoomed up and away. They ripped down time and again loosing rockets and bullets that splintered the floating "ships" with deadly accuracy.

Major D. "Toughy" Owen of Army Headquarters, Ottawa, was in charge of the shoot and directed operations from atop a public address system vehicle. Radar was set up and operated during the afternoon to warn any stray shipping that might wander into the danger area.

Also present were Major H. W. C. Stephens, Central Command, Oakville; Major H. W. C. Stethem, O. B. E., C. D., Major N. Featherstone, and Captain J. L. McMahon, all of Eastern Area, Kingston. Brigadier H. Knight, eastern area commander did not put in an appearance.

The 9th Anti Tank Regiment sent the 34th Battery under the command of Major Joe Black as its firing representative. The unit augmented by some other ranks personnel of the 32nd Battery paraded some sixty strong and moved to Cobourg in vehicular convoy.

It "dug" itself in the soft mucky earth and later dined off "Kokesh Stew," picnic style. On its return to Belleville at seven o'clock the battery personnel was given coffee and sandwiches in the armouries. The "troops" were loud in their praise of the shooting efficiency of the seventeen-pounder detachment. Composing the crew were, Troop Battery Sergeant Major, D. Dafoe, Sgt. K. Richards, Sgt. A. McKenna, Bombardiers D. Seams, N. Campbell, S. A. Scott and T. A. Descote.

Hasty Pees Qualify Drivers

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment paraded some 125 strong all ranks with companies from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Bancroft, Madoc, Frankford. The regiment rendezvoused at Trenton and proceeded by vehicular convoy to Cobourg. En route and during the shoot the regimental mechanical transport officer, Second Lieutenant G. Harding qualified some 46 drivers all ranks. This was done in conjunction with the four Sunday series of driving tests and training being conducted by the regiment.

The regiment under the command of Lieut.-Col. Max Porritt, MC, was the only unit to march to the firing positions. It was fed by the regimental quartermaster from field kitchens.

During the demonstration the large crowd was entertained by the fine drum and trumpet band

Obituary

MRS. BERTHA JANE WILSON
(Shannonville)

Mrs. Bertha Jane Wilson, Shannonville, died Sunday at her home following a six months illness. She was in her 87th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Farnsworth, Mrs. Wilson was born in Tyendinaga township and had lived in the district all her life. She was a member of the United Church. Her husband, John Wilson, predeceased her.

She is survived by one son Fred Wilson, Shannonville, and one brother Harry Farnsworth also of Shannonville.

EDGAR SAMUEL WAITE

In ill health for the past year Edgar Samuel Waite, 2nd concession of Sidney township, died Saturday in Oshawa at the home of his daughter Mrs. Ernest Leavens. He was in his 87th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Waite, he was born in Murray township but had lived in Sidney until a year ago when he went to live with his daughter in Oshawa. He was a retired farmer and was a member of the United Church.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Ernest (Ernestine) Leavens, Oshawa, and two sons, Gilbert Waite, Mount Carmel, and Gladson G. Waite of Belleville. A sister, Mrs. Bert Brintnell lives at Brighton, while a brother Reuben Waite lives in Murray township.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JAMES HENRY BATEMAN
(Marmora)

Marmora—A well-known resident of Madoc Township for many years and also a resident of Marmora Township for a while, James Henry Bateman, died about midnight on Saturday in Belleville General Hospital in his seventy-sixth year.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Major Bateman of Madoc Township and farmed all his life until retirement eleven years ago. At the time harvest excursions to the west were a regular annual affair, Mr. Bateman went on two or three occasions and for a short time homesteaded at Durham, Manitoba.

Of a friendly disposition, he was highly respected in both townships where he chose to make his home. When living in Marmora Township, he served for a term on the school board of Marmora S. S. 3. He was a member of the Methodist Church and later the United Church, attending the Union Church at Eldorado. He also was a member for many years of L. O. L. 517, Eldorado. His wife predeceased him ten years ago.

He is survived by three children, Thomas, Marmora; William, Madoc, and Mrs. H. Blakely Margaret, Marmora.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday, leaving the residence of his son, Thomas on Burstall Street, Marmora for service at Fox's United Church, Eldorado, at which the Rev. G. J. Crabbe, Eldorado, and the Rev. G. D. Young, Marmora, will officiate. a large flock of geese flew out of the west across their path. Suddenly the flock veered, swung into V formation and flew away in an opposite direction.

LOOKING FOR THIEVES

Thorold, March 31 — (CP) Police today were looking for thieves who took from 75 to 100 timbers from a Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway overhead bridge.

The timbers, worth $4.50 each, were stacked near the spot where repairs are being made to the bridge.

of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, Kingston.

While the Mustang fighter planes were swinging into attack position Burial will take place in Fox's Cemetery, Eldorado.

Benjamin Duvall, Hillcrest, 102 Years Old On Tuesday

Grizzled veteran of the North West Rebellion and the oldest man in the Belleville district, Benjamin Duvall of Hillcrest in Thurlow township will observe his 102nd birthday on Tuesday.

He is still hale and hearty, despite the fact that for the past 60 years he has gotten about with only one leg. He has good hearing and eyesight.

Born in the Camden East area northeast of Napanee, Mr. Duvall has smoked since he was eight years old. He is the only surviving member of a family of 18 children. He has been married twice and is the father of 18 children, nine girls and nine boys. Since the death of his last wife he has lived with his son John in Hillcrest. He came to Belleville from Galt.

He clearly remembers his first ride on a railway train shortly after the first line went through between Montreal and Toronto and recalls the North West Rebellion and the forced march through the woods from the head of the lakes to Winnipeg, then Fort Gary.

Euchre Favorite Pastime

Playing euchre is now his favorite pastime, while his pipes are his constant companions. He asserts that smoking has "never hurt me any".

The centenarian enjoys good health and polishes off a breakfast of bacon and eggs, toast and coffee each morning. And he is ready for his breakfast at seven o'clock.

A woods accident in the Orillia area 60 years ago cost him his left leg. An axe slipped and struck him in the knee. Gangrene set in and doctors were forced to amputate the leg at the knee.

Mr. Duvall has 51 grandchildren. When asked how many great grandchildren he had, the old man replied, "I don't know, I can't count 'em."

Wild Geese Do Not Take Back Seat From Military

Wild geese apparently take no back steps from the military when it comes to precision drills.

At the reserve army units' fire-power demonstration at Cobourg on Sunday, four RCAF Mustang fighters zoomed into position high above targets floating in Lake Ontario preparatory to loosing machine-gun fire and rockets.

As the planes "peeled-off" from formation, a flock of wild geese honked its way over the lake from a westerly direction.

The first plane dived to the attack, but the geese were unperturbed. The leader without fuss or the ruffle of a feather quietly swung his troop into V formation and swung away in an opposite direction.

High Honor Paid to Theatre Guild By Invitation to Present Play

Further honors have been bestowed on the prize-winning cast of the Belleville Theatre Guild.

The executive committee of the Dominion Drama Festival announced on Saturday that the Belleville Guild's production of "The Voice of the People" a one-act play written by Robertson Davies, was selected as one of two to be presented at Saint John, N.B., during the festival scheduled for the end of April.

The festival features final competition of three-act plays from all parts of Canada also one-act plays which were outstanding in the regional festivals, but on a non-competitive basis.

The Belleville entry falls in the latter category together with a French language play from Montreal. These are the only one-act plays invited to the festival and is the second time such plays have been so honored.

The invitation has been accepted by the cast providing suitable plans can be formulated for raising the necessary funds.

Guild members can take special pride in the achievement of this honor so soon after organization, particularly since the play's Canadian author Robertson Davies, Peterborough, was awarded the prize for the best Canadian play entered in the festival as a result of the efforts of the Guild cast.

The play was directed by Sid Rose and Ted Schwab playing the leading role of the cantankerous barber. Betty Barrie and Miriam Bishop play his long-suffering wife and daughter with Horace Ward-Waite playing the cynical electrician. Miss Beryl Linnen is the assistant director.

IN MEMORIAM

CLARE. — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother Annie May Dilling, who passed away March 31, 1949.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest;
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Some day we hope to meet her,
Some day we know not when
To clasp her hand in a better land,
Never to part again.

—Too dearly loved ever to be forgotten by her husband, sons Raymond, Floyd, Vivian and Herbert; daughter Freda; daughters-in-law Joie, Doris and Ivey, grandchildren Allen, Billie, Betty and Paul. M31

CLARE. — In loving memory of my dear friend, Mrs. Wm. Clare, who passed away March 31st, 1949.

There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.

—Lovingly remembered by Mrs. Conway. M31

DERMOTT. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Maud Dermott, who passed away three years ago March 31st, 1949.

We have lost but God has gained,
One of the best mothers the world contained.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Verna, Lyle, Lola and Edison and grandchildren. M31

DERMOTT. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Maud Dermott, who passed away three years ago March 31st, 1949.

O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Lovingly remembered by her husband, W. E. Dermott. M31

SHOENER. — In loving and honored memory of our only son and brother, W.O. Kenneth F. Shoener, R.C.A.F., who with his crew was killed in action over Germany March 31st, 1944.

Wide is the rolling ocean, heartbreakingly wide and deep,
It flows between us who loved him and where he lies asleep;
But the soul of a gallant airman can span the widest wave,
Only his body is resting in the shadow of a grave.
A grave is only an empty, though sacred, resting place,
Sod never could hold imprisoned a boy's young gallant grace;
A distant land is honored with the glory of his clay,
But his spirit is in Canada, his soul with God today.
A mother's and dad's feet tread, where a loved boy trod;
Heartbreak when one heart breaks, and so the weary world goes on.

—Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, sister Frances, Fred, Nancy and Kenny. M31

COOK. — In loving memory of my husband, Frederick Cook, who departed this life March 29th, 1950.

—Sadly missed by wife and family. M31

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 31.— (CP) — Prices held firmly to strong mid-session gains today in early afternoon stock market dealings.

Western Oils, Golds, Base Metals and Industrials opened higher as the weekend's rally carried into early dealings. Oils continued to lead while steady support spilled over into selected industrials and golds, principally those with oil interests.

A few lower-priced base metals and penny golds also attracted interest but most turnovers were moderate. East Malartic, however, was a standout as it jumped strongly in active trading. Volume for the first three hours was 2,937,000 shares.

Oil gains ranged from pennies to about $1. Pacific Petroleum, Canadian Atlantic, Calgary and Edmonton, Canadian Williston, General Petroleum, Federated Petroleum and Trans Empire ushed upward.

Refining oils led Industrials upward as Canadian Oil, Imperial Oil and International Petroleum posted advances ranging to about $1. Papers, Steels and Agricultures also drew firm support. Canadian Pacific bolstered a mixed Utilities section with a gain of $1.25.

Holloway Church Admits 53 To Membership

A congregation that taxed to capacity and was called by the minister the Holloway Street Church family, welcomed 53 new members into their church family, Sunday morning when the minister, Rev. Sidney E. Larman, preached on the subject "The Master's Commission to new Disciples" and the senior choir, under the direction of Clifford Templer, sang selection from "The Messiah" by Handel, with Mrs. Arthur Daniels and Mrs. Clifford Templer taking the solo parts.

Twenty-eight were received on profession of faith as follows: Barbara Laughlin, Doris Hill, Marilyn Bird, Arlie Burris, Verna Nayers, Audrey Purdy, Faye and Frances Wagar, Shirley Alyea, Vivian and Ruth Welbourn. Mr. and Mrs. John Preston, Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Shoebridge, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Pelkola, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Long, Mrs. Edward Conley, Ronald Poste, Ronald McBride, Irwin Knight, Douglas Thompson and Harry Hodgson.

Twenty five were received by certificate from other churches, as follows: Bernice Cole, Enid Martin, Jennie Moon, Mrs. Irwin Knight, Mrs. Harry Hodgson, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Purdy, Mrs. Roy Welbourn, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McLean, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wannamaker, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith, Neil Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Carman Lowther, Edward Conley, Franklin Jones, Mr. and Mrs. William Bateman, Mrs. Douglas Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert William Haggar. Talbot Ketcheson assisted the minister in extending the hand of fellowship to the new members.

The evening service was very impressive when the church was darkened during the sermon and a light was placed on Munkacey's picture "Christ before Pilate," during which a vocal quartet, with Rosslyn and Beth Robertson, Robert Barlow and E. C. Moynes, singing the Negro spiritual "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

Trenton Firemen Kept Busy By Trio of Weekend Fires

Trenton. (Special.) — Three fires that could have caused serious damage and a grass blaze on the mountain back of the gravel pit had the local firemen on their toes all weekend.

Gibb Aziz was burning some garbage behind his home in downtown Trenton on Saturday morning when a spark carried by the wind caught in the roof of a woodshed where the furnace oil storage tank is kept. His son, Howard, happened along and noticed the danger. By this time the tar paper roof had caught on fire and was smoking.

When the firemen arrived the flames had eaten into the joist in the ceiling and it was necessary to chop a hole in the roof to allow water from the hose to play on the smouldering wood.

A large crowd shopping in stores in the vicinity gathered around to watch the firemen. Little did they know about the chances they were taking, especially if the oil tank had blown up and showered seering liquid over the surrounding area.

Early Sunday morning, Jim Warner, who lives over the Boston Cafe, fell asleep in bed with a cigaret in his hand. The lighted cigaret dropped down on a newspaper and by the time firemen arrived the room was filled with smoke. There was no damage but the sight of smoke pouring from a window in the midtown section created excitement.

Firemen were at Ira Fetterly's Division Street residence in the nick of time to give attention to an overheated oil stove. The pipes were white hot as the carbon dioxide preparation was shot into the firepot and doused the flames.

MILK HORSE RUNS AWAY

A frightened delivery horse hitched to a partly loaded milk wagon ran out from the rear of the Riverside dairy on Saturday, dashing headlong through a busy intersection and coming to a stop in People's car lot across the road with the wagon wedged in between two cars.

Milk bottles flew in all directions as the wagon careened wildly over curbs and along unlevel ground. Driver Lorne Robbins and his helper chased after the runaway but were losing ground until the wagon caught.

Broken glass and spilled milk covered the inside of the wagon, which was damaged considerably in the crash with the cars. There was no traffic on the road or pedestrians nearby. Ivan Stewart, attempting to unhitch the horse was kicked and suffered a cut on his right leg.

Damage to both cars were estimated at $150, while the undercarriage of the milk wagon was broken and wrenched out of place.

Driver Lorne Robbins and a helper, Eatson Elzinga, were leading the horse across a freshly filled ditch when the animal reared and started to run [illegible] was thrown clear, but the Dutch immigrant held on until the frenzied horse reached the street and shook him off.

HURT IN CAR CRASH

Two R.R. 7 residents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Morris, needed medical attention and stitches to close cuts suffered on Saturday night when the car in which they were riding crashed into a parked car on north Sidney Street.

David Todd, of Trenton, had stopped his car on the road after it ran out of gas. The Morris machine, proceeding north in the same direction, collided with the standing car, knocking it 37 feet and it came to rest against a telephone pole in the ditch at the side of the road. Neither Todd nor his passenger, Spencer Patrick, could have been in the standing car since police reported it almost a total wreck.

At the hospital, Mr. Morris had three stitches put in his nose while a cut in his wife's head needed four stitches to close.

GOLFERS OPEN SEASON

Sunny skies and warmer temperatures brought first golfing enthusiasts out on the course here on Saturday. Among the early starters were, club president, Alex. Wilson and his wife; Johnny Owens, Clarence Niddery and F/L. Herberjson of the R.C.A.F. and a partner.

Batawa Child Injured by Car

Trenton — (Special) — Peter Cliff Phillips, 6½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cliff Phillips, of Batawa, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital today, suffering from serious injuries received in a motor accident.

Police said the child was struck on Dundas Street, Trenton, on Saturday, by a car driven by Gordon Lorne Whalen, of Kingston.

The exact nature of the child's injuries has not been determined.

Members Honor Tyler of Lodge

Members of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A. F. & A. M. staged a surprise party for Mr. Wm. J. Johnson, 4th concession Sidney township recently when on the occasion of his birthday they visited his home and presented him with pipe and tobacco. Many years ago Mr. Johnson acted as tyler for the Lodge.

Sixteen members of the lodge visited Mr. Johnson and enjoyed a social time which was concluded with serving of lunch. The following day W. Adams. took Mr Johnson to Belleville and through the new Masonic Temple. He greatly enjoyed and appreciated the outing as he is confined to his home through ill health.

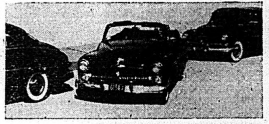
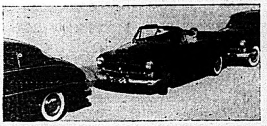
1. PULL UP EVEN with the car in front. Turn your steering wheel hard right, and back up slowly.



2. WHEN YOUR FRONT SEAT is even with the other car's rear seat, begin straightening your wheels. By the time the bumpers are even, your wheels should be straight. Then turn your steering wheel hard left.



3. BACK AND FRONT will then come close to the curb. Pull ahead, straighten wheels so that front and rear are within six inches of the curb.

Should some demon statistician take the trouble he would probably find out that automobiles travelling backwards cause more accidents per miles travelled than those going in the normal forward direction.

He would also likely find that most of these "backing" accidents are the result of faulty parking.

Though the consequences are seldom more serious than dented fenders or scratched finish, inability to park properly is the mark of an inept driver. Reversing the car into a limited parking space, without undue fuss or effort, presents no problem to the good driver. But a great many motorists try their own tempers and patience, as well as those of the people they delay, in their frustrated attempts to back twenty feet of car into twenty-five feet of space. Then, often they invite trouble by leaving their cars with front or rear, or both, projecting into the line of moving traffic.

On busy city streets it is particularly important that parking be done efficiently and with as little interference as possible to traffic. Drivers who have difficulty in backing into parking space should practise in uncongested areas.

No driver should consider himself or herself a capable operator until he has mastered the technique of reverse parking. Such ability will save his time, energy and temper and will also have a salutary effect on the dispositions of those in his vicinity. Parking know-how will save him repair bills and possible law suits with car owners who take a dismal view of the forceful attention their vehicles receive at his hands.

Pulling out of a parking space also requires knowledge and skill. Fenders are just as vulnerable to the car leaving as they are to the car entering the parking area. The first rule for both procedures and most important in the interests of safety is: "Signal your intention, then be sure the way is clear before you leave or enter the traffic stream."

To the real driver the ability to park properly is not a hit-and-miss proposition but a part of a safe, skilled motor vehicle operation. For easy parking follow the steps illustrated here.

CLAIM BACKING ACCIDENTS OVER HALF OF TRUCK TOTAL

Besides parking mishaps, backing causes over fifty per cent of trucking accidents, according to officials of some of the truck companies. Though results are usually of a minor nature, fatal accidents have been caused by backing vehicles, most of the victims being children.

Truckers trying to negotiate narrow lanes often cause damage to buildings, garbage pails and objects they can't avoid. Deliveries on dead-end streets are frequently hazardous when the driver finds it necessary to back several hundred feet past parked cars, abandoned toys and frolicking children.

No wonder, say truck company officials, that well over half of their damage claims are the results of backing accidents. Minor though each claim may be, the sum total is of major proportions.

IT JUST DOESN'T WORK

At the end of the war, the people of Great Britain elected a socialist government. One of the main planks in the platform of this socialist or Laborite government was to "nationalize" transportation and various other industries.

The British Laborites fulfilled their promise (or executed their threats, depending on your point of view). Among the industries that were nationalized was steel production. The Churchill-headed Conservative government now in power in Britain has promised to denationalize or unnationalize the steel industry in Britain, but has not yet got around to doing so.

The British are now learning how nationalization or public ownership works in the steel industry. During 1951, production dropped to 15,640,000 tons, which was 650,000 tons less than was produced during 1950. What makes this decline even more serious is the fact that the British, because of their rearmament program, need additional steel worse than they have since the end of the war.

Also during 1951, United States steel production reached a total of 93,870,000 tons — an eight per cent increase over the 1950 production. In Russia, where the steel industry, like everything else, is operated by the state, the 1951 production was 30,800,000 tons. Total 1951 production for the Communist bloc of countries was only 40,000,000 tons, or less than one half of that for the United States alone. (The article from which we are deriving our information does not state the 1950 production in either Russia or the Communist bloc.)

In the same connection, it will be recalled that, only a few weeks ago, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, while he was in the United States, asked the Americans to give Britain a quantity of steel, because British production was falling and not sufficient to meet requirements. His request was granted.

The steel industry is only a single example. The free-enterprising Americans seem able to produce more of nearly everything than they need, while at the same time giving away billions of dollars to other countries. But the countries where socialistic theories have been put into operation never seem to have enough of anything.

In view of the fact that every literate person should know, by this time, of the close connection between socialism and lower production, it seems strange that there are many people, even in a relatively advanced country like Canada, who will urge the "nationalization" or "socialization" of this, that, and the other industry. Only a week or two ago, a clamor was raised in Toronto to have the Consumer's Gas Company, a privately-owned concern, taken over by the city.

Surely, the sad experiences which the British have had as a result of nationalizing transportation, coal mining, steel making and other enterprises, should cause the people of Canada to understand fully the folly of such activities and steer away from them.

WHO WON THE WAR?

It is less than seven years since the end of the Second World War, but already it is becoming uncertain who were the real winners and who the real losers.

Because of the necessities of their defence program, Britain was able to increase her exports by only 14 per cent during 1951, as compared with the preceding year. During the same period, Germany's exports increased by 56 per cent, and those of Japan by 63 per cent. Thus far, Germany and Japan have no rearmament programs to pay for.

As supply is catching up with demand, the British are likely to feel this German and Japanese competition more severely as time goes on. Britain is particularly affected by German and Japanese exports, because now, as in pre-war days, the foreign markets of all three countries are, to a large degree, the same.

Some means should be found to make the Germans and the Japanese either help pay for or help provide protection from Russian aggression, but thus far no one has been able to evolve a suitable solution to the problem.

If things keep on going for a few more years as they are now, both the Germans and the Japanese will be right back where they were in 1939, while the British will be in the worst plight in which they have been in modern times.

SPRING HAS COME

Spring has come to British Columbia, according to motorists who passed along a heavily-travelled highway near Grank Forks, last Tuesday.

The motorists told police they witnessed a group of about twenty-five nude Doukhobors performing a spring dance in a field beside the highway.

Things must be getting back to normal. The Doukhobors of western Canada have not been staging their nude parades and dances for several years. At least, not publicly.

SOCIETY NOTE

Mr. and Mrs. Red Robin are back
From the south now the long winter ends.
And it now is their plan,
Just as soon as they can,
In their new home to welcome their friends.

Mrs. Robin looks well in her bodice of red.
Mr. Robin is trilling a tune.
It is pleasant to tell
That if all things go well
They're expecting an increase in June.

The Robins are noted as heralds of spring.
They arrive before snowdrop or fern.
They depart late in fall,
But their many friends all
Are happy to see them return.

OUR TOWN

A BARBER'S FABLE

There once was a young country boy named Marvin who desired earnestly to make his fortune in The Biy City.

One day he put his belongings in a paper bag and took the bus to The Metropolis where he enrolled in the Barber's College and soon thereafter was graduated, with special honors in Pompadour Trims.

Marvin was an honest-looking fellow with a fine pair of shoulders developed from forking manure and he had big white teeth. Like all large, honest youths he soon found employment and presently was known as Chair No. 10 in a prosperous tonsorial establishment.

Life in the barber shop was fine. Marvin quickly learned all there is to know about Politics and Baseball. When he was not busy at his chair, he spent happy hours leafing through the barber shop's magazines, all of which contained pictures of pretty young ladies.

One day, as it does to all large, honest youths from the country, Marvin began to think about acquiring one of the pretty young ladies for his very own and instantly he became ambitious. "I will never get a pretty young lady so long as I am just Chair No. 10," he mused and he began to frown very seriously indeed.

Presently, and with due reverence, Marvin made a pilgrimage to Chair No. One where the oldest, wisest and kindliest barber of them all was studying the day's Racing Form. Marvin told him his problem.

"Me," said the oldest and wisest barber, "Me, I like the barber's life because I am a great talker. But I can see that you are more ambitious. My boy," he said, "the big dough is in being a barber to women. Also, I never yet saw a pretty young lady who did not react very favorably to the big dough."

The oldest and wisest barber then spoke for 45 minutes without taking a breath and returned to his study of the Racing Form.

Marvin, himself, returned to Chair No. 10 and the very next day, following the instructions of the oldest and wisest barber, he enrolled in a Hair Stylists' School where he quickly graduated, with special honors in eyebrow plucking.

In no time at all Marvin opened his own salon which had pastel walls and copies of Harper's Bazaar on little tables. Marvin changed his name to Gaston, wore a small, black beret and a small, black moustache and spoke with a French accent he had picked up while tossing manure with an immigrant farm hand from Normandy.

Ladies in great numbers soon began flocking to Gaston's salon and these ladies, in turn, told other ladies about Gaston's cute little moustache and his fine big shoulders and soon Marvin was making money hand over fist.

Marvin very quickly realized that he would no longer talk about politics or baseball or, indeed, talk at all. The ladies did all the talking.

They talked about hormone pills, superfluous hair, creams, unguents, salves, lotions and potions.

They talked about other women and about each other in a manner scandalous to the ears of a country boy.

They talked about men as if they were examining a small, dead moth impaled on a pin.

Marvin smiled at them with his big white teeth and said "Mais, oui" in imitation French every ten minutes.

He pulled and sawed and hacked and twisted the hair of all sorts of ladies, young and old, seeing them in the most astonishing states of disrepair, devoid of eyelashes and eyebrows and, in a shocking number of cases, almost devoid of hair itself.

Sometimes he would watch the ladies studying themselves in his mirrors which were, of course, tinted pink. He marvelled at the cold and calculating eyes of his customers. It was as if he were seeing them bared before him, as night janitors see a theatre in the early dawn.

One day Marvin's shop was particularly busy. He had dyed three brunettes to blonde, two blondes to brunettes, and transformed the glory of a transient redhead into something in a daffodil shade.

On this day Marvin closed up his salon very early, took off his cute little beret, shaved off his cute little moustache and left the premises with a great air of resolution.

He marched directly to the barber shop and confronted his friend, the oldest and wisest barber of them all.

"Ah," said the old man, surveying Marvin's expensive raiments. "I see that you have made money hand over fist."

"Mais, oui," said Marvin, distractedly.

"And have you now a pretty young lady for your very own?" asked the oldest and wisest barber.

"I have not," replied Marvin, "and I do not care if I ever see a young lady or an old lady again."

"I thought as much," said the oldest and wisest barber, "and so I have kept your old chair for you, Marvin, knowing full well what would happen."

Whereupon the old barber talked for 45 minutes without taking a breath and finally handed Marvin a copy of the Racing Form. Marvin took the periodical to Chair No. 10 where, I am glad to say, he lived happily ever after.

FAITH THAT REALLY PAID OFF

George Muller—Prussian by birth, Englishman by adoption—stands out on the annals of Christian history as an unusual man of faith.

Although in his youth he was educated at the Unversity of Halle with the object of becoming a clergyman, he knew practically nothing about religion and appeared to have cared even less. By a series of circumstances which he afterwards regarded as entirely providential, he was brought in contact with a number of sincere and devout persons who imparted to him the firmness of their own religious convictions. In November, 1825, he was converted. He died 1898 in his ninety-third year.

Was Muller a successful man? Judged by the estate he left, he was not; for he had only $800 to will his heirs. But during his lifetime he had established five large orphanges, had distributed millions of copies of Scripture, and had visited many countries on The thing in which he is espec- evangelistic missions. ially remembered is the abiding faith he had in prayer. He took care of 18,000 orphans during his lifetime and received about seven and a half million dollars for his work. He knew nothing of budgets and campaigns. He prayed, and the money came in. The accounts of how it came in are almost beyond belief.

He asked and received.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TROUBLES

We are all inheritors of troubles, each of us to a greater or lesser extent. But it is the way we handle them that either sets us apart, or numbers us with the complainers.

The late Ed. Howe, the Kansas editor, said many wise and truthful things. Here is one of them: "As a man handles his troubles during the day, he goes to bed at night a General, Captain or Private." In other words, he ends his day as a leader or conqueror, or just as he was when the day started.

None of us accomplish anything carrying a load of troubles about with us. We all travel best with the least equipment and annoyance. We make little progress with the troubles that are our own—still less with the troubles of others. To the patient and courageous Life gives, with enthusiasm, the honorary degree of T.M. (Master of Troubles). That's a degree we all might well hope to receive! Thousands have earned it.

Troubles for man are like fleas to a dog, except that man worries over his troubles and often blames them upon some one else, hoping to get rid of them, but the dog just trots his way and pays little attention to his fleas. He knows they are a part of his life and leaves off worrying there! We might well emulate that lovable and kindly creature.

No matter what our troubles may be, no one else wants them. Nor do we invite the troubles of others. What other people do invite, however, are our love, sympathy and understanding. These are healing things and both our own troubles, and those of others, shrink and often disappear when they are substituted.

We were not put into this world just to be happy. We were put here to bring what happiness we can to others, to strive, to bear up courageously with all the troubles and problems that come to us, and uncomplainingly to face life and to equip ourselves with what honor we can attain. We may not be able to win prizes, but we can win respect. We can leave an example of sincere heroism behind. "We can" as Will Rogers once said, "be ahead ahead though we may have lost!"

GROWING PAINS, EH?

Sons aged 10 and 5 years complain of aching legs, especially in the night. The ten-year-old seems to be "outgrowing" it, his mama says but the trouble is getting worse in the five-year old. So she would like to know whether she can do anything to prevent similar trouble when her one-year-old reaches that stage of growth.

Notice how prominent the growth idea is in the mother's concept of the complaint.

You see, this mother belongs to the human race, particularly the American division of it.

Do "growing pains" occur in other parts of the world? Now that's another I didn't investigate in Tristan da Cunha, but from what I saw there and learned in talking with the inhabitants I'm confident they grow painlessly there.

For that matter children grow painlessly here. It is an easy out for parents or guardians to neglect proper treatment by attributing a child's complaint of ache or pain in the legs at night to "growing" but it is hardly excusable.

Not only uninformed parents but too often physicians dismiss such ache or pain as trivial, especially physicians who still follow nineteenth century principles. Sometimes, too, physicians regard such ache or pain as "rheumatic" and mumble in their beards about the child's tendency to develop rheumatic fever (acute articular rheumatism, acute infectious arthritis) eventually. On what evidence the old timers reach this conclusion is beyond my low comprehension.

It is my opinion that these pains in children and the painful cramps in the feet and legs which mature adults get at night are manifestations of tetany, and the nutrition authorities now generally agree that tetany is due to calcium and vitamin D deficiency.

The diet of most of us is more likely to be deficient in calcium than in any other element, for two reasons: First, they do not consume enough milk, cheese, eggs, peas, beans, nuts, peanuts and green leafy vegetables—these are the best food sources of calcium; second, they do not enjoy enough exposure of naked body to sunlight or diffuse daylight to the normal production of vitamin D in the body—vitamin D is essential for the utilization of calcium.

This applies particularly to growing children who are permitted to feed on cheat-food and to mature adults who for various reasons try to live on refined, "digestible" vitamin-poor and mineral-poor foods. I refrain from naming these reasons, for, after all, I don't want to make you poor old geezers mad, I just want to warn the younger ones before they have lost most of their teeth. The purpose of this column is to educate, not to dish out sympathy.

On written request (a clipping will not do) I'll send the pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains to any one who provides stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

New Indigestion

For the past three months indigestion is becoming more and more pronounced. Tried change in diet and stopped eating, but it is no relief . . . (W. van der A).

Answer—Don't fool around another day — consult a physician.

Rare Combination

My husband is diabetic, takes insulin, and has had bronchial asthma for years . . . (Mrs. P. L.)

Answer — That is such a rare combination of conditions, that I suspect the diagnosis of asthma is wront. Better leave the treatment, diet and other questions to the judgment of your husband's physician.

How to Tell Your Child

Daughter, nine, whom I love very much. I want to tell her the facts of life in the right way but don't know . . . (Mrs. O. W.)

Answer—Write the Child Study Assn. of America, 211 West 57th. St., New York 19, N.Y., for list of publications which help you to instruct the child in the right way.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Nothing can equal the ire and indignation of those thousands of Canadians across the country who have been promised telephones and haven't got them yet.

No ire and indignation vanishes so utterly as theirs when the telephones are installed. This particular characteristic of human nature is one of the most valuable assets of the Bell Telephone Company. It must be worth millions to them.

For weeks and months, the new home-owners in those astonishing suburbs that have sprung up around all the cities of Canada have been fuming and fretting over the delays in having their telephones connected. In some communities, there have been formed committees and associations of outraged young householders to consider what drastic steps might be taken against this great private corporation which monopolistically controls what is, of course, a public utility. A telephone they point out, is no longer a privilege. It is a right. To listen in on some of these after-supper meetings on suburban front steps or in picture-windowed bungalow living rooms, modern to the last detail save one — a telephone —you might form the opinion that the Bell Telephone Company will get short shrift from public opinion the next time they come begging for increased rates or any other consideration.

But before any of these bungalow rebellions can work its self up into what might be called a state of political action, presto, the telephones are installed and connected. And not even the snows of April vanish more magically than all the ire of months past. Not even the miracle of spring and the budding leaf and the greening earth is more fantastic than the childish delight of the householder who has got his telephone at last. Let bygones be bygones.

The Bell Telephone Company ought to write this phenomenon into its tangible assets at about a hundred million bucks.

Blocks Tone's Move

Los Angeles, March 31—(AP)—Barbara Payton swaggered into court yesterday, blocked Franchot Tone's move for divorce by default, and countered with a divorce suit of her own.

The blonde actress told reporters "I am anxious to get this divorce and get on with my career."

And, added her lawyer, Milton Golden:

"She's not interested in any Tom, Dick or Harry right now."

Tom could be Tom Neal, the former boy friend who beat up Tone last year.

The court set aside a default ruling which Tone had obtained after filing his suit last Nov. 19. In her cross-complaint Miss Payton charged Tone with cruelty and asked for reasonable support.

Destroyer Cayuga In Action Off Korean Coast

Seoul, March 31—(CP)—The Canadian destroyer Cayuga took part in an attack off the west coast of Korea Friday.

The Cayuga, participating in heavy attacks which hit red positions, started a large fire with an attack on a boat concentration.

Also taking part were marine pilots from the United States carrier Bairoko whose planes strafed red road and rail lines and gun positions from tree-top level.

The weekly air force summary released today, said the U. S. Fifth Air Force lost nine planes over North Korea in the week ended Friday. Two were lost in combat with MIG-15 jets.

There was a flurry of small red attacks across the 155-mile battlefront late Friday and early today.

A United Nations patrol came to close grips with the reds southeast of Pyongyang on the central front. The reds hurled about 50 hand grenades before the U. N. foot troops carried the battle right into the communist trenches. The allied soldiers withdrew after a half-hour fight.

An allied raiding party killed about 60 Chinese reds in capturing a hill position west of the Mundung Valley on the eastern front. After securing the hill, the allies withdrew.

A successful pot luck supper was held by St. John's Woman's Guild, at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Friday evening with about 200 in attendance.

Women's Activities

WESLEY W.A.

Mrs. Calnan opened her home to the Wesley W.A., for its March meeting with 13 members, two children and the Rev. A. C. McCallum, present. Mrs. Rutter opened the meeting with Mrs. Denyes being in charge of the program.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Genereaux from Psalm 90. This was followed by a reading given by Mrs. Denyes, "The Minister's Lament", and "Neighbors", by Mrs. Wood, also a solo by Mrs. Windover, "It is No Secret What God Can Do," all of which were greatly appreciated.

Birthday dues were paid by Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Wright. The collection amounted to $8.20.

A contest was won by Mrs. Wood, as well as prizes by Mrs. Mooney and Mrs Wright on a marked cup and serviette.

Mrs. Stewart tendered appreciative thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

A half hour of a social get-together was also enjoyed.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.-W.A.

The March meeting of Halloway W.M.S.-W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. E. Snider on Wednesday afternoon with president, Mrs. L. Wellman, as co-hostess, who presided.

In the business discussion it was decided to purchase two dozen each of dessertspoons and tablespoons. A committee was appointed to attend to this and also to purchase a gift for a member who has been ill.

In the W.M.S. meeting the study book chapter, "Our Fellow Canadians—the French Protestants", was capably presented by Mrs. G. Roth, assisted by Mrs. C. Townsend and Mrs. E. Emerson. Mrs. Don Rose sang the lovely solo "I Would Be True".

Nineteen answered the Scriptural roll call.

Guest Speakers

The groups were pleased to have as guests at this meeting, Miss E. Horton, Mrs. F. Wilson and Mrs. M. Denton, each of whom spoke briefly bringing messages of encouragement and inspiration. The speakers reminded all of the presbyterial meeting in Trenton on March 27. Mrs. K. McMullen, president, expressed appreciation for this visit and for the opportunity to meet with presbyterial officers.

Mrs. E. Emerson was appointed as delegate to Trenton.

Easter Pageant

Mrs. H. Giffin arranged for the practice for the cast of the Easter pageant, "Eyes of Faith" in which most of the W.M.S. members are taking part.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and their assistants after the meeting was closed by the Rev. H. Giffin.

WEDDINGS

BLAIND—PEMBERTON

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Port Hope, Ontario, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, March 22, at 10 a.m., when Mary Elizabeth Pemberton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pemberton, of Port Hope, became the bride of Barry John Blaind, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Blaind. The Reverend Father Gillogly officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her full-length bridal gown of ivory satin featuring a train and fitted bodice with long sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a seed-pearl encrusted headdress. She carried a bouquet in fan-shape of white lacelon and Bettertime roses and wore a pearl necklace.

Miss Agnes Blaind, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned in a full-length satin dress of iceberg blue with matching lace picture hat and gloves. She wore yellow gold jewellery, and carried a nosegay of pink sweetpeas, lily-of-the-valley and asparagus plumosa fern.

Mr. Gordon Blaind, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Raymond Yearwood and Mr. Gordon Pemberton, of Port Hope.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, wearing navy blue crepe, navy hat with pink flowers, and corsage of Wildegard pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in copper, colored silk faille, fashioned with lace redingote in lighter shade. She wore a matching hat with black accessories and corsage of tinted green carnations. The home was tastefully decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and white weddng bells.

Following the reception, the young couple left for points east, the bride travelling in yellow and grey nylon taffeta with corsage of red Bettertime roses, black accessories, and winter-white topcoat. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Campbellford, Fenelon Falls, Minden and Belleville.

Local Theatre Group Along With Montreal Will Present Plays But Will Not Compete

Toronto, March 31. (CP)—Nine Little-Theatre groups from six provinces will take part in the Dominion Drama Festival at Saint John, N.B., April 28 to May 3.

Seven of the groups were selected to compete in the 13th annual show by Pierre Lefevre, regional adjudicator. In a two-month tour of area competitions, he saw 47 full-length plays and 13 short plays.

Two of the groups—from Belleville, Ont., and Montreal—have been asked to put on plays but not to compete.

After the executive meeting which drew up the list of entrants in the festival, Mr. Lefevre said his tour convinced him that Canadian Theatre is "alive", although the choice of plays was not as varied as he would like.

The showing of Canadian-written plays—seven in all— was "very encouraging."

The only classical play he viewed in his tour was Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor". Its presentation by a Peterborough, Ont., group showed that Little-Theatre groups can do the classics and audiences enjoy them. Mr. Lefevre would have liked to have seen more classical plays.

Robertson Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner, was awarded the Dominion Drama Festival cash prize of $100 as author of the best play written by a Canadian and presented at a regional festival.

Mr. Davies' play, "Voice of the People" was presented by the Belleville group and will appear in the Dominion Festival, May 3. The other non-competing play will be "De L'Autre Cote du Mur" presented by La Jeune scene of Montreal the same night.

The Sir Barry Jackson challenge trophy was awarded to the St. Mary's (Ont.) Theatre for the best production of a full-length or short play written by a Canadian. The group presented "Sit Ye Doon" by William Digby, 20-year-old London, Ont., playwright.

Program at the Dominion Drama Festival will be:

Saint John Theatre Guild, "Hay Fever" by Noel Coward, April 28.

St. John's Players of Newfoundland, "Ladies in Retirement" by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham, April 19.

Halifax Theatre Arts Guild, "Second Threshold" by Philip Barry, matinee, April 30.

Regina Little Theatre, "Tomorrow the World" by James Gow and Arnaud Dusseau, evening, April 30.

Saturday Players of Ottawa Little Theatre, "The Enchanted" by Jean Giradoux, May 1.

The Actors Company, Toronto, "Golden Boy" by Clifford Odets, May 2.

St. Genesius Players Guild, Montreal, "Glass Menagerie", by Tennessee Williams, matinee, May 3.

No Surprise To Mrs. Truman

Washington, March 31. (AP)—The reason for Mrs. Harry S. Truman's cheerfulness of late is now out.

Apparently President Truman's "bombshell" that he is not a candidate for re-election was no surprise to her, however much it was to others.

He frequently refers to her as "the boss" and has always talked things over with her.

Bess Truman never has liked the glass-bowl existence that goes with being First Lady. Nor has she lived the formal large-scale entertaining.

She is friendly, approachable. She likes to visit with small groups. Her memory of people is excellent—her handshake firm.

She regards the presidency as a gruelling post—one of honor, but which takes a toll of health. She has been credited with opposing Truman running again.

Those in Washington who have been watching for a sign indicating what Truman planned became aware in recent weeks that Mrs. Truman seemed relaxed, happy.

Women's Institute

PHILLIPSTON—ZION W.I.

The March meeting of Phillipston-Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Cranston. Mrs. Earl Ray president, presided and in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Harold Beatty had charge of the minutes and correspondence.

Following the annual reports from the different departments, a discussion took place regarding the importing and exporting of cheese with the consensus of opinion that the farmers are worrying about the loss of the British market for cheese, but with depletion of dairy herds, the closing of cheese factories and the steadily rising home consumption of this mmodity, it is felt that possibly without the competition of imported cheese from other countries, this Canadian industry might still survive.

Mr. Clifford Ray gave a talk on the Latin-American trade with Canada.

Mrs. Harry Sills, district president, was a guest at the meeting and urged the members to avail themselves of all government services. "We are organized," said the speaker, "not as a money making group but as an educational one. Let us live up to the principle of a better way of life with a betterment of home and community from both a physical and social standpoint. Remember what we do for ourselves dies, but what we do for others, lives forever."

Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, Mrs. Percy Ray and Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson, as a nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers for the coming year: president, Mrs. Earl Ray; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Don Sills; 2nd vice- president, Mrs. Murney Simmons; secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Clifford Ray; assistant, Mrs. Delbert Rowe; district director, Mrs. Delbert Rowe; branch directors, Mrs. Arthur Ray, Mrs. Frank Benton, and Mrs. Gordon Foster; auditors, Mrs. R. Cranston, Mrs. D. McPherson; pianist, Mrs. Floyd Ray; assistant, Miss Mildred Ketcheson; song leader, Mrs. Gordon Foster; press secretary, Mrs. Earle Sayers; girls' club leader, Mrs. Percy Ray, assisted by Mrs. Clifford Ray; conveners, Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Floyd Ray; Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs. Ralph Sills; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson; Home Economics and Health, Mrs. Gordon Ray; Community Activities and Public Relations, Mrs. Harold Beatty; Resolutions, Mrs. Harry Ketcheson.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, assisted Mrs. Cranston in serving refreshments.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Operation Fowl

When you read the following excerpts from two letters that I received you will understand why the column is devoted solely to chicken today.

Dear Mary:— I have heard of and know so many young people that do not know how to dress a fowl — I even wash my chickens in warm water and soap and rinse well — one lady did not know about the lungs — she never removed them — another very important thing is to remove the gall from the liver — you heard of the bride that roasted the chicken as is — she thought she had bought it already stuffed! I do enjoy your letters. Mrs. E. M.

P.S.—What became of Don Ameche and Freddie Bartholomew?

Dear Mary: Could you some time when convenient give details on how to dissect a chicken for stewing. I can take off the legs and wings but can't manage to dissect the remainder in small pieces. It does not look too appetizing when put on the server when the pieces are too large — E. M.

First let's try to clear up the D. Ameche and F. Bartholomew mystery. I'm not a movie or radio fan. Could any of you enlighten me so I can pass the news on to Mrs. E. M.?

Preparation of Chicken (or Other Poultry) for Cooking.

In this day and age chicken from chicken shops are quick-frozen poultry come already cleaned and drawn. The butcher usually draws a chicken if you buy it from him. However if you buy a chicken on the market you must singe, draw and clean it at home, and a good cook has to know how.

Singeing

Do this first while the chicken is dry. Hold the bird over a flame, turning it quickly, and spreading each wing, until all parts have been exposed, so that hairs and down are burnt off.

Next remove any pinfeathers with tweezers or tip of sharp knife and forefingers.

Drawing

With sharp pointed knife cut around vent, then slit skin in line with tip of breastbone and almost up to it, large enough to admit hand. Insert hand and grasping entire abdominal contents loosen the connective tissue which attaches them to the abdominal wall all round and try to remove them all at once. Save the gizzard, a meaty organ surrounding a grain-filled sac (stomach). Discard the sac. Discard the kidneys which lay deep in a hollow in the backbone. Very carefully cut away the gall bladder which is embedded in the liver. Save the liver. Discard the lungs which lie deeply embedded in the ribs high up along the backbone. At the neck pull out the crop which lies at the base of the throat, and the windpipe, which was attached to the lungs. Discard them.

Push back the neck skin and cut neck off where it joins the body with a heavy knife. (The neck is cooked with the giblets.)

Carefully cut away an oil sac you will find just above tail at base. Discard.

Leg tendons require removal. Carefully cut skin around base of meat on drumstick. Snap the bone by laying the leg at this cut over edge of table and pressing downward. Pull the foot with a strong tug and foot and tendons will come away together.

Washing

The skin of market chickens is often dirty. Wash it with soap and water and scrubbing brush. Thoroughly wash inside of chicken. Dry chicken. It is now ready for stuffing, if it is to be roasted.

If chicken is to be cut up for frying or fricasseeing or baking: With a sharp knife first remove the legs, cutting each through the skin on the inner side of the thigh, next to the body. Press back the entire leg and facilitate cracking hip-joint by slitting tendons at joint with sharp knife. Cut through when joint breaks. Bend leg to make "knee" joint stand out sharply then slit the skin and tendons, then bend backwards to break joint. Cut through completely. Remove wings with same routine. Cut off tips and cook with giblets.

Where incision was made for drawing the bird, insert knife at side and cut through in line with small joints in ribs up to the wing joint. When done at both sides, snap back the breast section and separate it, by slitting connections at collar bone. With strong knife cut breast in half lengthwise, and, if large, once again crosswise. Cut back once crosswise and each piece in halves with very strong knife.

That's all for today, and while I hate the job of dressing a chicken I've made myself hungry and am going to have lunch. Watch for more chicken stuff later.

How to Sign Your Easter Cards—No Title Before Your Name

When you sign your Easter greeting cards you should sign your informal name. Never your name with a title — never your name with "Mrs." or "Mr." — never "Mr. and Mrs." — never "Miss."

If, as is customary, a wife is signing the Easter cards that she and her husband are sending, she, politely, signs her husband's name first: John and Joan; or, when further identification is necessary, John and Joan Allen. If the husband is signing the cards, he, politely, signs his wife's name first: Joan and John.

If a child's name is to be included in the signature, the father's name is written first: John and Joan, and Patricia and Tommy. Or, also correct, informal and very friendly too: The Allens—John and Joan, Patricia and Tommy.

A widow signs her cards Margaret, or Margaret Graham. Never should she sign her formal name to a greeting card: never Mrs. Peter Graham, and never Mrs. Margaret Graham.

A divorcee should sign her Easter greeting cards Dorothy or Dorothy Thompson or Dorothy Smith Thompson. Never her name preceeded by a title.

An unmarried girl or woman signs her cards Marie or Marie Browne. But never "Miss Marie Browne."

Easter Message to Serviceman via Easter Greeting to Wife.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the husband is away in service, should an Easter greeting card be addressed to both the husband and wife, or only to the wife. —N.L.

It's an excellent idea, I think, to address the greeting to both—shows you are "remembering" both. You can, of course, send one to each, if you know the serviceman's address, or, to explain your including both names on the envelope, write a note under the greeting. For example: "The next time you write to Joe, please tell him Gene and I are sending him every good wish and friendly greeting. We hope 'all's well' with both you two dear friends!" Make your message a heart-warming greeting for the wife to send on to her husband.

Fashion Flashes

SPRING BRIDES are voting in favor of lace, judging from the talk in the bridal departments of stores. A severe bodice with long tight sleeves is of fine, off-white, Chantilly-type lace; it extends into pointed inserts on the skirt, which is of double nylon tulle over white silk faille.

DEVELOPING as a trend to be watched is the shallow hat — shallow of crown, and with shallow backs for hair exposure. Good for the right type is a very shallow bicorne, which although very flat, does fit the head. It is done in pearly paillasson braid, and the brim is lined with black velvet. Black velvet cords tie under the chin.

IN THE PROCESS of change is the reefer coat. In its newest version it is especially smart and becoming. Navy novelty wool is used for a reefer with leg-o'-mutton sleeves; an indented waistline; rounded, pocketed hips; and pointed revers.

NEVER NICER is the verdict on full-skirted dresses of crisp cotton designed for the young teens crowd. Homespun cotton — striped in colors that range from gold to lavender to green — makes an especially nice dress. The full, pocketed skirt is worn over a separate crinoline belted in patent leather. Short sleeves and a surplice neckline caught with a gilt safety pin are other features.

The conference was opened at 0 by the Mayor of Cobourg in e United Church Sunday School ll and after the opening sing- ng and the demonstration by the b Pack, the meeting divided in- sectional conferences under ex- rt Scouters on the subjects of bbing, Scouting, Rovering and dministration work. Late in the ternoon a troop from the On- rio Training School put on an cellent exhibition of a Scout oop at work with particular em- hasis on the work of the Court Honour. At the end of the after- on, the Provincial Commission- , Mr. W. H. J. Tisdale eloquent- summed up the results of the nferences, and stressed Plan chievement for 1952 and 1953.

Mr. Tisdale complimented the d Belleville, Christ Church roop for retaining so many boys the troop who are attending igh school, and for their outdoor ctivities. Mr. Tisdale also com- ended Scoutmaster Willis Jack- n for the canoe trip planned for e 2nd Belleville Troop to Al- onquin Park this summer. Who s a canoe they will not be needing for part of the summer?

The banquet at the Presbyterian Church hall in the evening was a great success with about 200 attending. One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of Gilwell Beads to Joe Irish and his wife Pearl Irish of Stirling. Both Mr. and Mrs. Irish helped Belleville with the Cub Camp at Quin - Mo - Lac last summer and will be with us again this year. Mr. Little, head of the Ontario Training School gave an excellent talk which should be an inspiration to all interested in Scouting. Keep up the good work and do all that we can for "The Boy". Due to bad weather reports, the meeting broke up early and as far as we know, all cars arrived back in Belleville just before the sleet storm started.

A very good attendance at the L. A. Monthly Meeting last week at Christ Church Parish Hall in spite of the hockey game and Community Concert. Visitors included Mr. Andrews of the new 6th Belleville (Tabernacle United) Group Committee. Messrs. F. Benson, D. Raymond and J. Ritchie of the newly-formed 9th Belleville (Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association) Group Committee. The President, Archie Lewis, welcomed the two new groups to the Association and stated that nine groups had or would be registering in Belleville as of March 31st, and that there were now over 500 Cubs, Scouts, Rovers and Scout Leaders in the movement. Our guest speaker was Mr. Harold Parker, Director of Income Tax who spoke about the Community Chest, its purpose and its function.

Plan achievement awards for 1951 have all been presented now and were awarded to the following Packs and Troops: 1st Belleville Troop, 2nd Belleville Pack and Troop, 4th Belleville Troop and 8th Belleville Pack. Second Belleville Scout Troop was complimented by the commissioner at its recent Father and Son Banquet for being the only group in Belleville to win the pennant both for the Pack and the Troop. Get your plan achievement targets for 1952 into your commissioners without delay.

Bob Pearce of the 1st Belleville of the 4th Belleville, Kiwanis, for of the 4th Bellevill,e Kiwanis, former troop leaders have both been promoted to assistant Scoutmasters in their own groups. Both Bob and Clarence are also members of the 1st Belleville Rover crew.

The 3rd Belleville Cubs held a grand meeting Wednesday March 26th. It was quite a surprise to all Sixers when the Red Six won the honors for the month with 286 points lead by Billy Pennylegion. The Red are now the first to have their ribbon hung on the Totem Pole.

The Cubs were given their first instruction on the compass and also a game dealing with this instruction. There was a Sing Song and Camp Fire meeting after which Cubmaster Bill Sweet held a minute silence and closed with a prayer.

The 3rd Belleville Scouts are pleased to announce that in Honor Patrol the Rattlesnakes won with 20 points. You will be hearing from our Scouts more in the future, but right now we are newly formed and Scout Master Terry Flynn will have more news to report in further issues. Just obtained our Troop Flag from headquarters and it is a beauty. The boys are anxiously waiting for an outdoor parade to display. We regret to advise our previous Scoutmaster Terry Wheeler due to pressure of other duties is relinquishing his leadership to Terry Flynn. Thanks to T. W. for his efforts and glad to report also he will act as assistant whenever time permits on meeting dates.

The anti-tank gunners of the Royal Canadian Artillery are on their toes ... trained to split-second action in hard hitting, smooth working teams. These "fighting-fit" crews are on the alert .... and today Canada needs more men like these in the Reserve Army. Men who have what it takes to become trained gunners, mechanics, drivers, wireless operators, etc.. Join the 9th. Anti-Tank Regiment (Reserve Force) today and do your part to help make democracy safe.

THE 9th ANTI-TANK REGIMENT

(Self-Propelled) R.C.A. ARGYLL L.I.

Has Been Authorized to Recruit to Full Strength by 28th June '52. To Accomplish This the Regiment Requires

300

ADDITIONAL RECRUITS

VACANCIES EXIST IN THE FOLLOWING CATEGORIES:

- Drivers for Wheeled and Track Vehicles
- Wireless Operators
- Clerks (C.W.A.C. May Apply)
- Artificers
- Storemen
- Mechanics
- Gunners

The Regiment Will Move Into Petawawa Military Camp on June 28th For One Week of Intensive Training. It Is Essential that All Members of the Regiment Be Released from Their Regular Employment For This Period. The Unit Realizes that this Will Entail Some Sacrifices on the Part of the Employers, But Their Sincere Co-operation In This Regard Is Requested.

RECRUITS ARE REQUESTED TO APPLY TO THE 9th ANTI-TANK ORDERLY ROOM, ANY TUESDAY OR THURSDAY EVENING

CANADIAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE URGES MEN BE RELEASED FOR SUMMER TRAINING PROGRAM

"The Minister of National Defence, the Hon. Brooke Claxton, has invited the Chamber's support for his request that management make arrangements, wherever possible, so that their employees can participate in summer training of the reserve force.

"At a recent meeting of the Executive Council, the members looked with favor upon this request and decided to invite all members of the Chamber concerned to give it their sympathetic consideration. Moreover such action on the part of employers would be in line with the Chamber's policy on National Defence which was passed at the last Annual Meeting and which reads in part as follows: 'The Chamber urges its members to co-operate whole-heartedly in the recruiting and training of reserve forces to give support to plans for National defence'."

General Manager.

FIRE POWER DEMONSTRATION

Results of the outstanding training methods of the regiment, the adaptability of its personnel and the fine type of instruction being given was clearly exemplified in the regiment's showing at the fire-power demonstration given by reserve units of the district in conjunction with the Royal Canadian Air Force at Cobourg on Sunday.

Crews manning a towed seventeen-pounder and a self-propelled gun of the same calibre came out of the "shoot" with colors flying. The towed gun crew recorded six direct hits out of six rounds fired at a floating target 600 yards away.

The crews, members of the 34th. Battery member unit of the regiment received the well-deserved plaudits of not only the regimental officers but high-ranking officials from army and area headquarters.

The 34th. Battery represented the regiment at the demonstration and augmented by members of the 32nd. Battery paraded some sixty strong to the demonstration. It was training all the way with the "troops" proceeding by vehicular convoy to Cobourg and giving further evidence of fine instruction in movement of troops by convoy.

RELEASE OF PERSONNEL

Many employers of regimental personnel have been co-operating with the regiment with regard to allowing them to take time off to attend the annual summer training camp, a very important phase of training.

These firms have allowed their employees connected with the regiment to take time off for camp training and not reducing their holiday entitlement and paying the men the difference between their army pay and their average pay.

This has caused the individual no loss in pay by his having spent time in summer camp.

The commanding officer and his officers extend their sincere appreciation to these employers for such co-operation and hope that other employers will follow suit.

It is only by this co-operation that the regiment can expect to take a large representation to the summer camp and by so doing maintain the high status it now holds in reserve army units of the district.

Employers are respectfully requested to give this matter their fullest consideration. It will be greatly appreciated by both their employees and the regiment as well.

COLORFUL BACKGROUND

The 9th. Anti-Tank Regiment has a colorful background. It dates from the year 1862 when it was commanded by Lieut.-Col. A. Ponton. Then the 15th. Regiment, it sent a company to the Northwest Rebellion. Many distinguished soldiers of this city and district have commanded it and it has been re-designated several times.

Its most famous title perhaps is the Argyll Light Infantry from which stemmed a large number of officers and men who created colorful military careers and war service.

During the Second World War it underwent reconnaisance training along with infantry work. Under reorganisation since the end of hostilities it was converted into an anti-tank regiment, one of the few in the Canadian reserve army.

The regiment holds an enviable position in reserve army circles of the district. The commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. G. W. MacGregor, M.C., has gathered about him a staff of well-trained officers and other instructional personnel.

Several members of officer and other ranks personnel are veterans of World War II, who brought with them the invaluable experience gained in actual combat. This experience is contributing much to the high type of training and instruction being given to other members of the regiment.

Morale of the regiment is high. There is a fine spirit of co-operation pervading all ranks from the colonel to the drummer boy. This has been exemplified many times in outdoor schemes, summer camp training, intra-regimental sports and other phases of activity.

Leafs Drop Third Straight To Red Wings; Boston Hammers Canadiens 4-1

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WANTED — A MIRACLE!

Unlss the Conny Smythe-Hap Day duo can pull a miracle rabbit out of the hockey hat, the faltering Toronto Leafs won't be posing for any Stanley Cup champions photographs this season. The powerful Red Wings have clearly demonstrated in the series todate that their seasonal strength and form were not pan-flashes. Terry Sawchuk who is no "hog" although he shows a decided yen for making a fast puck, pulled up the curtain Saturday night and allowed the Leafs a couple of markers, the first of the series. The Leafs failed to give "Fabulous Fatty" Broda the proper protection and the speeding Wings slithered and sloughed six pucks past the rotund goalie. From here it looks like the Wings will take it in four straight — but — "yes niver can tell". Strange things happen in this game called hockey.

Meanwhile the Lynn Patrick's Beantowners roared back into the picture last night turning back the flying Montreal Habs by a 4-1 score thanks to the all-round effort of a laddybuck named Laycoe. The Bruins flashed the red light three times in as many minutes in the second chukker and put the contest in the bag. Boston hopes zoomed with the victory and the boys of the bean and the cod town have visions of series victory. Could be.

BARRIE OUT!

Weston's starry Dukes tucked away the junior "B" semi-finals round robin on Saturday night with a decisive 11-3 defeat of the Barrie Flyers. The Dukes won the "robin" with three straight victories with the Belleville Hawks second with two and one. The Hawks clash with the Dukes at Weston tomorrow night in the final game of the series which will have no bearing on the standing. Then the squads go at it for the right to meet the western Ontario finalists. Dates of the Weston-Hawks series will be settled following tomorrow night's game. In the meantime tickets for the series will go on sale at Cook's Cigar Store on Wednesday morning.

SIGN HER UP!

So you think the gals can't pitch softball?

Don't kid yourselves, bubs. There's a female hurler out Orrange, California way that can make the Justices, and others of the male ilk look like second-string hurlers on the Crooked Jaw squad.

She is Bertha Ragan, described as a "comely young mother with a fast ball that can splinter a barn door at 50 paces and an ambition to pitch 100 no-hit games". (Snicker at that Appel and Christie). She has only four to go.

This feminine softball Grover Cleveland Alexander begins her 13th year on the mound this spring when the colorful Orange Lionettes open the defence of their national championship.

The experts tell an amazing story of this Amazon of the pitching mound.

Last year Bertha hurled 143 consecutive scoreless innings bettering her own mark by 23. She achieved an earned run average that would make a Maglie or a Lopat go green with envy — a phenomenal 0.73.

Prior to the world championship tournament in Detroit last September, Bertha had a lifetime record of 204 shutouts. She chalked up number 205 in the quarter-finals, blanking Fresno with a three-hitter.

Her strikeouts in twelve years total 4,320 — an average of 360 per year or six per game. Those 96 no-hitters include three perfect games in which she faced only 21 batters.

The ruddy-faced farm girl somehow finds time to hold down a steady job with the city water department (No cracks about the pitcher going to the well). She keeps an eight-room house, washes, irons and cooks for her husband and eight-year-old daughter; attends dances and parties, and, of all things, paints ceramics. She darns her husband's socks in the dugout between innings.

Four times she has been named to the United States Amateur Softball Association all-star squad.

She says her work in the 1950 ASA tournament was the toughest ordeal she has ever faced. She chucked 28 innings one evening, losing the first game af a double-header with Phoenix 2-1 in 15 innings and winning the second 2-1.

Last year's final game went to 22 innings. Bertha worked the entire distance, fanned 22, scattered seven hits, walked only three and won, 2-1.

She entered organized ball in 1937 as a shortstop, and graduated to the mound the following season when the regular pitcher was killed in an anto wreck en route to the park.

Except for three war years, when her daughter, Janice was born, she hasn't missed a season. At 28 she shows no signs of slowing up, and plans to continue pitching three or four nights a week, 23 yeeks a year "as long as I've got my stuff".

The Lionettes are 14 glamorous gals who make up a civic-sponsored team which is the pride and joy of a drowsy, picturesque little community nestled in the heart of Southern California's citrus belt, 20 miles from Los Angeles.

The team is a money-maker and crowds of 6,000 are not uncommon. In fact, you could classify softball, not baseball, as the national pastime, and not be far wrong.

Bertha pitched against a mens' team once, at 16. Joe Louis was barnstorming the United States with an extemperaneous troupe known as the Brown Bombers. They promoted an exhibition game with a girls' team hastily recruited for the purpose. Nobody expected the girls to win. The Bombers used every trick in the bag, but Bertha set them down 9-8.

Bertha has turned down offers of $300 a week to go professional because she wants to stay home. "After all," she reasons, "my family comes first. I play strictly for fun, not for money."

Heads Badminton Team

Seattle, March 31 (AP) —Martin Mendez, of San Diego, Calif., the new national amateur badminton champion, heads the six-man team selected to carry United States' colors in the International Thomas Cup matches in Singapore in May. Mendez and runner-up Joe Alston of Fargo, N.D., were named to the team at the conclusion of the 12th annual amateur badminton championships Saturday night.

Others on the squad are Bob Williams of Buffalo, N.Y., Dick Mitchell and Carl Loveday, of San Diego and Wynn Rogers of Arcadia, California.

Bruins Score 3 in 3 Minutes To Whittle Montreal Lead; Toronto No Puzzle to Wings

Boston, March 31—(AP)—Hal Laycoe, 28-year-old defenceman, today figured he had just about evened the score with his former teammates—Montreal Canadiens. He has been irked since Canadiens traded him to Boston Bruins a year ago for rookie Russ Lowe.

Laycoe was Bruins' outstanding rearguardsman during the first two playoff games with Canadiens in Montreal, where the home forces won by lopsided margins.

Before taking the ice for the third game last night in Boston, Laycoe shouted his challenge:

"Let's see who will be the first to throw a bodycheck at Canadiens tonight. The one who does will have to beat me to it."

Thereupon Laycoe turned in a two-day performance that kept the 11,526 crowd roaring every time he came on the ice. He sparked Bruins to a 4-1 win by scoring the first tally and, 62 seconds later in the second session, setting up Boston's third marker for Eddie Sandford. The other Bruin goals were provided by Dave Creighton and Fleming Mackell.

Outstanding Performer

In between times Laycoe was Boston's outstanding defensive performer. Time and again he ruined wide-open Montreal scoring chances with spectacular defensive play. And goalie Sugar Jim Henry had to thank Laycoe, more than any other Bruin, for the shutout he had going until Floyd Curry provided the lone Montreal score with less than five minutes to play.

Coach Lynn Patrick rated Laycoe Boston's top third-game player. And rival Dick Irvin and Frank Selke, Canadien's general manager, agreed.

Selke also credited the Bruins' newly-discovered hustle for their first win in the best-of-seven series.

"The team that does the hustling always gets the breaks in hockey, and the Bruins were doing it last night," he said.

The now-saddened Irvin said: "The puck seemed to go in for the Bruins and stay out for the Canadiens."

Both of these Montreal officials now appear worried about the physical condition of their players. Canadiens have lost centres Johnny McCormack and Ken Mosdell, who suffered arm and leg fractures respectively. Gary (Duke) Edmundson, a Kitchener, Ont., amateur, was called up to plug the gap.

Irvin reported that high-scoring Boom-Boom Geoffrion has an injured left knee and may be out of the fourth game here Tuesday night. Dick Moore also has a knee injury that hampered through last night's contest.

The Bruins need another win to square the series at two-all, and all their players are in top physical condition.

Patrick and his players are confident that if they deadlock the series they will go on to assure themselves a place in the Stanley Cup finals.

(By JACK SULLIVAN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 31 (CP)—The critics have been saying for years that Toronto is the greatest money team in the National Hockey League. But the club's magic touch in chips-down competition appears to have deserted it—for this season, at least.

The Leafs, who have won the Stanley Cup six times since 1941-42 season, blew the big one 6-2 Saturday night to Detroit Red Wings and today even the most optimistic Leaf fan wouldn't wager a kopek on the club's chances of getting past the Wings for a final shot at the trophy donated by Lord Stanley 60 years ago.

Well-Beaten Team

It was the now-or-never game and the Leafs, behind two games in their best-of-seven cup semi-final series, just didn't have it. They were a well-beaten team and it would surprise any of the 14,403 fans on hand if the Wings don't sew up the series here tomorrow night.

The Leafs' playoff record over the last 10 years pointedly shows what people have been saying about them. They've placed first only once over the long October-March schedule grind during the decade and yet they've knocked higher-placed teams kicking in the big money series.

Their one league championship, in 1947-48, also brought them the cup.

Their outstanding cup victory was in 1942 when they dropped the first three to Detroit and then confounded the experts with four straight victories. But this year's Red Wing club with plenty of scoring punch in each line, is the prohibitive favorite to meet the winner of the Montreal-Boston semi-finals.

The Wings showed it in the 3-0 opener at Detroit last Tuesday, added to it in their 1-0 decision Thursday with captain Sid Abel on the sidelines and practically settled it Saturday with Red Kelly, starry, heads-up defenceman, out of action because of an injured arm. The Wings, N.H.L. champions with plenty to spare over the second-place Canadiens, rode to victory on a two-goals-a-period splurge Saturday.

The Production Line of Abel, Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay was on the ice when three were scored, the second line of Marty Pavelich, Glen Skov and Tony Leswick was around for another and the third trio of Johnny Wilson, Alex Delvecchio and Metro Prystal figured in the other two.

Wings Click

That's a good indication how this Tommy Ivan-coached crew clicks. Two defencemen — Leo Reise and Ben Wolt—picked up a goal each and goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk held the Leafs, who finished third in the league standing, to two goals in 180 minutes of play.

The Wings went on to their biggest scoring rampage at the expense of 37-year-old Turk Broda. The veteran was taken out of retiremnet for a 30-minute stint in the closing-out game of the league schedule and for full duty last Thursday at Detroit.

But he didn't make the difference in the Saturday affair. It was a case of too much Red Wing class.

Toronto's marksmen were Joe Klukay—a 40-footer that whipped under Sawchuk's arm in the first period—and Max Bentley.

Joe Malone Honored by Fans

Quebec, March 31 (CP) —An all-time hockey great returned to his hometown Sunday to receive the plaudits of his former teammates and Quebec fans for his nomination to the Hall of Fame in Kingston.

Joe Malone, the native of suburban Sillery who captured Quebec Bulldogs when they won the Stanley Cup in 1912 and 1913, was given a miniature of a plaque that will hang in the lobby of the Quebec Coliseum. The 62-year-old former hockey star unveiled the pdaque himself.

Malone's record of seven goals in one game here Jan. 31, 1920, against Toronto St. Pats still stands in National Hockey League books.

Providence Reds Scalp Mohawks In First Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds have drawn first blood in their best-of-five American Hockey League semi-final playoff with Cincinnati Mohawks.

The Reds dropped the Mohawks 3-1 Sunday night the winner of the series tangling with Pittsburgh Hornets for the league championship and Calder Cup.

Playing at Providence before a packed house of 5,859 the Reds who upset the defending champion Cleveland Barons in the first round took a 3-0 lead before allowing the Mohawks a tally at 8.15 in the second period. They notched two goals in the first period and their third early in the second.

Providence's high scoring line of Paul Gladu, Ray Powell and Barry Sullivan provided all the tallies. Sullivan scored first at 2:48 on a pass from defenceman Art Michaluk.

Sullivan passed to Gladu for a second tally at 18.04. His 25 foot shot from the boards on the right bounced off Powell and into the cage at 3:09 in the second period.

Buddy O'Connor deflected a 55-foot blast by defenceman Clare Martin for the Cincinnati goal.

The second game will be played at Providence Tuesday.

City Bowlers Win, Lose In Cent. League

Guay's Trenton bowlers threw a scare into the league-leading Belleville Recreations of the Central Ontario Bowling Loop on Saturday night, defeating the city keglers by a 5-3 count. In the other game Belleville Dromes bested their Trenton counterparts by a 7-0 score after a fine exhibition of timber toppling.

Guay's turned in a neat 3829 aggregate for their victory as against 3629 for the Recreations. Belleville Dromes racked up a 3681 with Trenton Dromes getting 3263.

Cec. Hardwick, Belleville Dromes was the top man rolling a triple of 880 including singles of 307 and 306. Furnia of Guay's had the high single 346.

Other good scores were T. Greenfield, 774 (319); L. Lennox, 734; L. Aziz, 656; B. Sager, 665; Saylor, 823; Ryan, 777; Kirkwood, 686; Joe Legault, 761; Milne, 655; Furnia, 842; Moore, 829 (312); Ormshaw, 738.

Today they specify Peerless Heavy Duty Motor Oil in all their taxis.

Here's proof..

Detergent MOTOR OIL
washes your motor while you drive

In the same way that detergent soaps will free dirt from clothes Peerless Heavy Duty Detergent Motor Oil will wash your motor while you drive. For proof, examine the clean, sludge-free, uncorroded pistons and cylinders of a car that's been using Peerless Heavy Duty Oil . . . and then compare them with the pock-marked and dirty pistons, rings and cylinder walls of a car using ordinary motor oil. For further proof, benefit from the trained experience of fleet owners, taxi companies, mechanics, bakeries, and salesmen who have found out for themselves that Peerless Heavy Duty Detergent Motor Oil saves them money by protecting engines, cutting down maintenance costs. The detergents in Peerless Heavy Duty Oil keep sludge, carbon, varnish and impurities in harmless suspension, never allow them to cake and cause trouble; these materials that are held in suspension are removed from the engine when the oil is changed. Today's high-compression motors need this kind of protection. Prove the value of Peerless Heavy Duty Detergent Motor Oil to your own satisfaction. Change to it now.

Eddie Sawyer Rates Enos Slaughter With Present-Day Baseball Greats

Miami, Fla., March 31 (AP) — When talking about the greatest active player in baseball today, manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies contends you can't stop with Ted Williams and Stan Musial.

The Philadelphia professor says he'd have to rate Enos Slaughter in his prime over either of these famous sluggers.

Slaughter, an outfield teammate of Musial, will be 36 next month and is in his 15th year with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Slaughter in his prime was a better ball player than Musial is today," said Sawyer. "And I agree with those who think Stan is the best in the game right now. But I've never seen a greater competitor, a fellow with more spirit, hustle and the desire to win than Enos.

"Slaughter's batting marks in the late 30s and early 40s may not have been as high as those that Musial compiled in the last half dozen years, but the competition was much rougher then. So were the pitchers.

Great Player

"I've always been a Slaughter fan," admitted Sawyer. "I've been in this game a long time but I've never seen Slaughter's equal in playing the game for everything that's in it. He's beaten me out of many a ball game but he's the kind that makes you take your hat off to him even though he's on the other side."

Sawyer's praise of Slaughter recalled the remarks made by lucky Harris only a short time ago.

"Slaughter may not be the greatest ball player of all time," the astute Washington manager said, "but he is the best exponent of desire to win the game has known. . . and I don't except Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig or any other star.

"I recall an incident the other day," said Harris. "We were playing the Cards. One of their fellows slapped a routine bouncer to second. He looked like an easy out. But the guy never gave up. He ran down the line as if his life depended on it. The second baseman had to hurry his throw and just did make the out.

" 'Hey, that kid is really hustling out there,' I thought. 'He reminds me of Slaughter.' As he raced back to the bench, I got a good look at his face. Yep, you guessed it. It was Slaughter!"

Ottawa Ousts Halifax St. Marys In Cup Series

Ottawa, March 31 (CP) —Eastview St. Charles, Ottawa and district junior champions, advanced into the Memorial Cup Eastern semi-finals Saturday night as they eliminated Halifax St. Mary's in the quarter-finals.

St. Charles defeated the Maritime junior champions 4-2 in a fast, hard-hitting contest to win the best-of-five series 3-1 in games with one tie.

They now meet Montreal Junior Canadiens in a best-of-three semi-final series. The opening game will be played here Wednesday night.

The game was the best of the series and for a time it looked as though St. Mary's might bounce off the ropes and force a sixth game.

The Martimers exploded for two goals in the opening stanza but Eastview evened the count in the second and added two more in the third.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Los Angeles, March 31 (AP) — The ball player carrying the heaviest load at the moment is little Davey Williams, the 24-year-old fielding gem from Dallas who will be New York Giants' regular second baseman this year.

Eddie Stanky's would be a tough spot for a kid to step into even if he were not succeeding such a gilt edged genius. To know that Polo Grounds fans are going to compare him to Stanky is just an added burden.

Manager Leo Durocher had not intended to give Davey the word until a few days before the National League season opened.

For some reason he changed his mind. Could be he decided it would be better for the youngster to take the bit at the outset of the Giants' long road trip against Cleveland, and work any nervousness out of his system before they start playing for keeps.

In any case, the move appears to have been a good one. Davey seems to be swinging with new-found confidence and to be bucked up generally since Leo told him.

The Giants paid Atlanta $65,000 for Williams at the end of the 1948 season. He played a full season at Minneapolis in 1950, hitting .280. Last year he got into 30 games as an understudy for Stanky, and did not commit an error in 85 chances. He is a spectacular fielder, but his hitting fell off to .268 against the big fellows. Durocher and his coaches have spent much effort trying to teach the kid to punch his shots to right field instead of swinging away.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The National Boxing Association Saturday in Washington put its okay on a Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles heavyweight title scrap. President Dave Rochon of Montreal told reporters the N.B.A.'s executive council advised that Walcott and Charles will sign their contract today in Philadelphia.

The council acted, he said, because there had been some question about whether Walcott had complied with the association rule requiring a champion to defend his title within six months of winning it.

Rochon said Walcott like a lot of fans, had been under the impression that a titleholder was required only to sign a contract for a title fight within six months.

Edmonton Mercurys wound up their European hockey invasion Saturday night in London with a 7-2 victory over Earl's Court Rangers of the English National League. It gave Canada's Olympic hockey champions 45 wins in 50 games during their four-month stay abroad. Mercs left by plane Sunday and are expected in Edmonton Tuesday.

Frank Bliss, President of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union, Sunday confirmed the signing of 27-year-old Bill Mackridges, a T formation quarterback from Philadelphia Eagl-s, for the 1952 season.

In Winnipeg Saturday night, King Carl Ridd scored almost a point a minute to lead Winnipeg Varisty Grads to a 68-61 victory over Vancouver Eilers in the first game of the best-of-five western Canada senior men's basketball final.

Hamilton's Zion Ramblers roared back after a slow start Saturday night in Hamilton to win the eastern Canada ladies' basketball title by defeating the starry Point St. Charles team from Montreal 77-56. Zion won the first game of the two-game series 46-40 Friday night.

Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles overpowered Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador 6-3, 6-2 Saturday night in Philadelphia to win the Inquirer Masters World professional tennis tournament and the $3,000 prize.

Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., turned in a near-perfect performance in Colorado Springs, Colo., Saturday night to win the United States senior women's figure-skating title. The 16-year-old beauty succeeds Sonya Klopfer of New York, who did not defend her title.

Jimmy Clark, 30-year-old professional from Laguna Beach, Calif., Sunday won the $2,000 top money in the $10,000 Azalea open golf tournament in Wilmington, N.C., with a last-round 68 for a total of 272 for 72 holes. His 16-under-par performance set a course record.

Lieut. Warren Druetzler of the United States army uncorked a terrific finish to dethrone four-time champion Don Gehrmann in the Banker's mile of the Chicago relays Saturday night. Druetzler's time 4:09.7. Gehrmann finished third behind Dewey Johnson of Drake University.

Patty Berg Sunday won the inaugural New Orleans women's open golf tournament despite an eight-over-par 82 that almost erased a 10-stroke lead. Patty had a 72-hole total of 299 to capture her 56th major tournament during a 12-year professional career.

Denton True (Cy) Young, who won more games than any pitcher in baseball history—511 in a 22-year career—celebrated his 85th birthday Saturday in Grover Hill.

A Cambridge University squash team Saturday in Toronto defeated a combined Canadian college squad five games to one in an exhibition. Dick Taffel of the University of Western Ontario was the only Canadian winner.

Toronto Tops Saturday won the southern Ontario ladies' intermediate B basketball title by defeating St. Catharines Merrimacs 43-37 in St. Catharines. The win gave Toronto the two-game, total-point series 98-76.

'Sugar' Robinson Seeks 3rd Crown Before Retiring

New York (AP) —His old lust for fighting has faded away with time but Sugar Ray Robinson wants to rack up one more record before he hangs up his gloves.

The middleweight king wants to join Bob Fitzsimmons and Henry Armstrong among the ultra-elite of triple champions. Unless present plans go awry, the Harlem Negro will go after his third crown against light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim in the Yankee Stadium late this June.

Robinson has two more middleweight title defences scheduled before then. April 16 he'll face Rocky Graziano in Chicago Stadium, and a month later he'll take on Paddy Young in Madison Square Garden.

Fitzsimmons was the first boxer to win three titles although he never held the three at one time as Armstrong did later. Fitz captured the middleweight, heavyweight and light heavyweight championships in that order.

Armstrong seized the featherweight title in 1937 and then swept the lightweight and welterweight championships in 1938. Because of Armstrong's monopoly of three of boxing's most active divisions, boxing commissions ruled a fighter couldn't hold more than one title at a time.

Robinson was forced to give up his welterweight title when he knocked the middleweight crown off Jake LaMotta's bulging brow. If he whips Maxim, Ray probably will retire from the ring. The Sugar man has more than a half-dozen business enterprises going to keep him warm.

Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri each held two genuine titles, the lightweight and welterweight diadems, and one synthetic championship—the junior welterweight. Junior titles are no longer recognized.

Stratford Takes Second Straight From Soo 4-3

Sault Ste. Marie, March 31 (CP) —Stratford Indians move to the familiar feel of home ice tonight for the third game of their best-of-seven eastern Canada Allan Cup series against Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The Indians take a one-game lead with them, having managed to stave off a late-game Greyhound rally here Saturday night for a 4-3 victory. The first game, played Friday night, ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

Indians took a 2-1 first period lead and lengthened it to 4-1 in the second. Sault Ste. Marie banged in two quick ones early in the final session, but Stratford was able to ward off the tying drive.

Mickey Roth, Billy Flick, Don Keinbuch and Bruce Burdett tallied the four Stratford goals while Johnny Offidani came through with two for the losers. Ronny garnered the other Greyhound marker.

Pembroke Kings Edge Jonquiere

Pembroke, Ont., March 31 (CP) —Pembroke Lumber Kings will be out to take the measure tonight of Jonquiere Aces after slipping by the northeastern Quebecers 3-2 in the first game of their eastern Allan Cup semi-final Saturday night.

After losing an early lead, Aces tied up the game 2-2 but succumbed to an ice-wise veteran and a tripping penalty with eight minutes to play.

Roy Giesebrecht, veteran centre who was honored by a shower of gifts from the 3,195 fans and his teammates between the first and second periods, sparked the victory. Giesebrecht's slow shot from near the blueline drifted into the net through a maze of legs.

His winning goal was the climax of a hectic ganging play that started about a minute earlier with a tripping penalty to Real Marcotte of Aces. Eddie Daoust in the Jonquiere net played brilliantly to rob Kings on five successive trys.

Biltmores Trim Teepees 8-6; Take 3-1 Lead

St. Catharines, March 31 (CP) — St. Catharines Teepees move into Guelph tonight for the fifth game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

For the Teeps, the clash will be a do-or-die effort. They trail the series 3-1, after their 8-6 Saturday loss to the Biltmores here.

Rightwinger Ron Murphy led the Guelph attack with four goals and the Bilts third straight win of the series. They dropped the opener to the Teepees and have come through in the next three.

The series survivor moves against South Porcupine Combines —the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions —in an Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final. The series will also determine the all-Ontario Junior A championship.

Guelph started slowly Saturday, trailing 2-1 at the end of the first period before drawing even in the middle session and going into the third tied 4-4. Outscoring the Teeps 4-2 in the final 20 minutes, the Bilts wrapped up their 8-6 win with a strong third-period drive.

With Murphy banging in four, defenceman Ron Stewart clicked for two and Ken Laufman and Dean Prentice added the other Guelph goals.

Hank Ciesla and Brian Cullen each tallied twice for the losers while Gerry Foley and Chuck Marshall scored the others.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When you monkey around with redoubles you must know there are two kinds. One redouble asks partner to take out. The other notifies partner to let it alone. How can you tell which is which?

he laws of bridge will not permit you to redouble your own or your partner's double. he only double you can redouble is that of an opponent. So, it is always a redouble of a bid by your side.

South opened with a bid of one spade when he held this hand:

♠Q J 9 4
♥K J 9
♦A K
♣J 10 8 6

West passed. North responded with a bid of one no-trump. East doubled. Such a double is for takeout. It asks west to bid something if south passes the double.

South, however, redoubled. Such a redouble tells north to leave it alone. It is a redouble that asserts with assurance that the one no-trump bid by north can be made by their side.

In a case like this the redouble is used in its generally accepted meaning. It is a way of saying to partner: "Regardless of what the opponents think they can do to us, we can make this bid."

How does north know this redouble is for its customary purpose? How does he know it is not a redouble that asks him to bid something? Even if he has not read a book on the subject, logic will tell him.

North has already bid. His no-trump reply admitted that he did not have a suit worth showing. So, partner would have no excuse to force him to bid again. Obviously he is requested not to bid again.

If north had passed instead of making a responding bid, such a redouble would have asked him to bid something. But not after he had made a bid of some kind on any previous round.

hus, if a partner has already bid it is logical that a redouble is not asking him to bid. It shows confidence in their own bid.

A wise player knows when to keep his mouth shut.

DEVELOP TREATMENT

Washington, March 31 (AP)—United States army medical officers have reported "considerable progress" in developing treatment for deep burns and other wounds that might result from an atomic attack. Severe 20-per-cent body burns, once considered near-fatal, now can be treated by family doctors, the officers told a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee considering budget requests.

Royal Palace To Go Modern, Many Changes

By MARIE McGOWAN

London, March 31 (Reuters) — There'll be some changes made when the queen moves into Buckingham Palace, the vast 614-room castle which still bears the stamp of her 84-year-old grandmother.

During the long years that Dowager Queen Mary, mother of the late king, lived there, Buckingham Palace remained a sombre place of gilded magnificence, dark crimson draperies and heavy Victorian furniture. The atmosphere survived after she moved out following the death of King George V in 1936.

Now that Queen Elizabeth, 25, and her handsome 30-year-old husband are getting ready to move soon from their modern apartments at Clarence House, the old castle is in for modernization.

An oil heating system is being installed in what is generally known as the "coldest house in Europe" and £6,000 is being spent to bring the electrical system up to date.

The royal family actually will occupy only a minor part of the building — their own suites and nurseries for little Prince Charles and Princess Anne. But the presence of youth is expected to brighten the whole court.

Queen Busy

The queen's taste in interior decorating will be carried out as far as possible, but many rooms in the palace are reserved for formal state functions and offices.

At present the queen is busy arranging details. Besides deciding what rooms she will need and what decorating she wants done, she also has to pick the staff she wants to take with her —more than 200 servants are needed to keep up the palace.

When Elizabeth and Philip move from Clarence House they will change places with the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret.

Actually, once she is set up in Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth may no longer be mistress of her own home: Not only will she be tied up for up to 12 hours a day with state affairs, but the palace is so large that those who live and work there ofter do not know what is going on under its roof.

The story goes that when Queen Mary first moved into the palace she got lost. Two hours later search parties were sent out to find her.

U.S. Destroyer Answers Yugoslavs' SOS

Clinging to their swamped racing shell in the choppy waters of the Adriatic Sea, young Yugoslav students await the arrival of a whaleboat sent to their rescue by the U.S. destroyer Steinaker. The collegians said they were presumed to be taking a practice row, but decided to go to Trieste, when their craft overturned in rough seas. They were taken ashore and turned over to civil authorities. — Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 31 (AP)—To you and me, a walk is simply a method of getting somewhere. To Valerie Bettis, a walk gives insight to a person's character.

Miss Bettis is an expert on how people move. She is a successful dancer and dance director of the Broadway stage and television. She has been here to direct the movements (in the dance numbers) of Rita Hayworth. Miss Bettis also has a role in the new Hayworth film.

While discussing people's walks, the dancer observed: "You can read a person's character by the way he walks. It is one of the few unconscious movements that people make, and for that reason, you can judge their real nature. A person may be the nervous type, or completely assured; he may be aristic or not too bright. It all shows in the walk."

Miss Bettis then enumerated the 10 most famous walks in Hollywood and what makes them unique:

1. Charlie Chaplin. "He's a slew-foot. His mincing, awkward duck-walk gives the perfect comic impression of an uncertain, shy little character."

2. Betty Hutton. "She's the athletic type—energetic, uninhibited and full of vitality. She bounces when she walks."

. Groucho Marx. "His sleuth-like prowl is another classic comedy walk. His ridiculous position makes him all the funnier."

4. Betty Grable. "Hers is a bouncy kind of sex, exhibited by a hip and shoulder wiggle. She is the glorified secretary type."

5. Marlene Dietrich. "This a sultry, exotic kind of sex. She slinks with a graceful, undulating movement."

6. Katharine Hepburn. "To me, she is the most graceful of all. She is athletic without being masculine. She glides unconsciously, her head floating over the rest of her body. She has the grace of a pony."

7. James Cagney. "He is typical of all short, wiry men. He is full of pent-up energy and has the drive of a bulldog."

8. Gary Cooper. "He lopes like a giraffe. The feet move first, and the body follows afterward."

9. Fred Astaire. "He is the epitome of a ballroom dancer. His style is meticulous, but not overdone."

10. Rosalind Russell. "She is the perfect clothes horse. She has the poise, sophistication and self-confidence that go with wearing clothes well."

FREAK STAMP

London — (CP) — A five-mark stamp issued in Germany in 1899 was sold for £150 at a recent Bond Street auction. The stamp was valuable because part of it was printed upside-down.

AT THE CAPITOL — Academy Award winner for best actor Humphrey Bogart appears in "Sirocco," with Lee J. Cobb, opening tonight for a three-day run. On the same program for its first Belleville showing, "My Forbidden Past," starring Robert Mitchum and Ava Gardner with Melvyn Douglas.

AT THE BELLE

M.G.M.'s "Quo Vadis" Sets New Mark for Screen Spectacle

Never in the history of motion pictures has a picture been brought to the screen with the breathtaking spectacle, scope, gigantic cast, color and pageantry as that presented in M. G. M.'s much heralded Technicolor production of "Quo Vadis," now showing at the Belle Theatre, with Robert Taylor, Deborah Kerr, Leo Genn and Peter Ustinov heading a cast of thousands.

Based on the celebrated novel by Henryk Sienkiewicz, filmed in the grandeur of historic Rome in a prodigious undertaking which required more than twelve years of preparation and actual filming, this thrilling drama of the birth of Christianity in a pagan world and the love of a Roman warrior for a beautiful Christian hostage is unfolded with glittering splendor and tremendous dramatic effect.

Here we have the corrupt and extravagent imperial court of the Emperor Nero brought to life in scenes of staggering immensity, with its spectacles of thousands of triumphant warriors, led by Marcus Vinicius, making a triumphant entry into Rome along the garlanded Appian way; the scenes of the populace saluting the vestal virgins as they pay homage to the 40-foot high statues of the pagan gods; bacchanal of Nero's ornate palace as the emperor holds a banquet in honor o fthe victorius Vinicius; the burning of Rome in spectacle scenes never before equalled on the screen as they depict the terrified populace screaming and trampling on each other in their frenzied attempt to flee the city; the racing chariots; the martyrdom of the Christians as they are torn apart by lions and burned on crosses; and the final gripping climax in which the hostage, Lygia, is saved from being killed by a ferocious bull when her giant bodyguard, Ursus, kills the beast in a blood-curdling show given by Nero in the huge circus Maximus.

Three love stories are revaled during the action of the story.

It will be a long time before the screen sees another such production as "Quo Vadis." It is an offering which raises the standards of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the entire motion picture industry to a new high.

Lou Breslow directed. Second feature stars Mark Stevens and Peggy Dow in "Reunion in Reno."

Two Men Killed

Omaha, March 31—(AP)—Two men were killed and three others injured — one severely — shortly before 1 a. m. EST today when a United States Air Force B-25 bomber crashed while attempting to land at Offutt air force base.

A command spokesman said the plane, based ot Offutt, was coming in for a landing at the end of a routine flight to Burbank, Calif. Apparently on engine was out.

The plane overshot the field, about three miles northwest of the base the spokesman said.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Rays on fair side but you will have to work, study, apply yourself well if you really expect returns. Many business, military, professional problems can be solved satisfactorily by genuine effort.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Rather generous vibrations for personal interests. May attempt the unusual if it might be helpful. New ideas and materials offer greater fields than ever.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—A really fertile, productive period for your specific talents and inventiveness. Don't start wrong by procrastinating, then rushing at tardy moments to get in all you planned.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Possibilities here, the tools at hand—the rest is up to you. Show initiative, unction and that keen foresight for which Cancer is known. Executive, employee: good chance to do good.

..July 24 to .August 22 (Leo)—

..July. 24 to .August 22 .Leo)—

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Be mindful of what you say and how you say it, things will be much easier to handle. Friendly aspects on whole; both business and personal affairs can gain. Work problems out calmly.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Energizing influences. Increase credits, output, add new laurels to your achievements. Smile and give quality rather than quantity for best all-round advancement.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Not all encouraging, but you can move forward by doing a little extra thinking, better planning. Personal affairs, family, heart interests fair better today and with good effort. (Scorpio)—Quiet planning; study, research, confidential work favored, but you must be realistic and build on sound principles. Do your best with implements at hand; be happy for what you have.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some disturbing situations probable. Exercise rightly your better qualities and you need not fear this or any day. Heart interests, family affairs rate care.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Fine period for a receptive mind, for work requiring keen analysis, memory. Spread good will ideas; try to understand both sides of a story. Extend a helping hand to less fortunate.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Doctors, nurses, chemists, professional work in general; executives, managers can make new headway. Be careful handling food, children, teaching, owrk with machinery, travel.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Step out for something new, if worth while. Try —improved ideas; encouraging period. Accentuate your natural abilities. Practical sense in all spending urged. Save as well as earn and spend

YOU BORN TODAY: are naturally a brain-worker. Have ability to create new methods for others to follow; will to carry through good intentions and creations. Fond of music, art, science, the beautiful in life. Often governed by impulse, may be quick to give way to temper outbursts, but also forget readily. Make able speaker, public official, salesman, actor, lawyer. Avoid jealousy, criticizing, but don't mind when you must take some. Education, religion give the makings to attain great heights. File#122-5-B1-22 Job#1926

Construction of a Steam Distribution System, R.C.E.M.E. AREA BARRIEFIELD, Ont.

Sealed tenders plainly marked as to content and addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 2:00 p.m. E.S.T. Tuesday April 15th, 1952, for the performance of the following work: the construction of a Steam Distribution System, to be located in the R.C.E.M.E. Area at Barriefield, Ontario.

Specifications, plans and tender documents for this project may be obtained by prime contract tenderers at the address shown below. A deposit of $100.00 in the form of a cheque made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited is required for each complete set of plans, specifications and documents. This deposit will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition within seven (7) days after tender award.

Each tender must be accompanied by a security deposit amounting to ten per cent (10%) of the tender price if such price is $500,000.00 or under and in addition five per cent (5%) of any excess of tender price over $500,000.00. The security deposit will be forfeited in the event the successful tenderer refuses to enter into the contract on the basis of his tender when called upon to do so. The security deposit of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned. A marked cheque on a Chartered Canadian bank and made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited or negotiable Dominion of Canada Bonds will be accepted as security deposit.

Plans, specifications and contract documents have been made available for the purpose of information to sub-contractors and material suppliers at the following location, Kingston Builders Exchange, 83 Clarence Street, Kingston, Ontario.

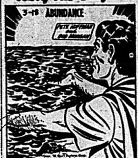
Why We Say--



3-18 ABUNDANCE
PETE HOFFMAN and BOB MORGAN

...Plenty of water

To the Romans the only thing that seemed to imply abundance or a vast quantity of something was the ocean. For this reason, they made the word abundance from "ab" (from) and "unda" which meant ocean.

Killer is Lured to Capture by Young Sweetheart

Melville Wilkie, one of Canada's 10 most-wanted criminals, was captured in Vancouver, when he dared a police trap four times in a desperate attempt to keep his freedom and the love of his 19-year-old common-law wife whom he met in Winnipeg in 1950. Wilkie, alias Andy McBeth, was known to police as Ontario's Mad Killer after he had murdered his wife and child 19 years ago at Owen Sound. He was committed to the Ontario Mental Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Penetanguishene, from which he escaped for the fifth time July 19, 1950. Shortly after his meeting with his young wife, who acted as bait for capture, they moved to Vancouver where he was arrested on a tipoff to police. — Central Press Canadian.

Gang Killing Of Two Youths Starts Roundup

San Francisco, March 31 (AP)—The gang killing of two youths in front of San Francisco's city hall touched off a sweeping police roundup today of young gangsters.

Two young men were killed and three wounded in gunplay in civic centre early Sunday morning. One of the wounded may die.

Robert A. Ranson, 19, was jailed as the gunman. Inspector Al Nelder said Ranson admitted shooting down five members of the rival Fillmore gang with a .45 calibre automatic.

The shooting was culmination of a long feud between the Fillmore and Portola gangs. But it was the first time a gun had been used.

None of the five shot was armed. Norman Bothelo, 20, and Andrew Ulibarri, 19, were killed. James Erickson, 21, shot in the abdomen was in critical condition. James Bennett, 21, and Thomas Hinman, 20, suffered flesh wounds.

THOMASBURG

LEG INJURIES

Thomasburg — Friends and neighbors will be pleased to hear of Garry Morton's improvement after having suffered an accident last Friday, while playing in the yard of his home. Passing a pile of logs the snow gave way dislodging a log which rolled down on him, pinning him to the ground. Garry had been ill and confined to the house for some time and this was the first day he had been allowed outside. The latest report is that he is progressing favorably.

The Junior Farmers dance in the I.O.O.F. Hall on March 19th. was fairly well attended.

Mrs. W. Yateman was a guest last week of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton, North Front St., Belleville.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Glancing back as we started our search, I could see torches winking like fireflies. I heard Sally's voice, calling to someone. And I felt a little guilty, even disloyal, for not having waited in the hall to make sure that that awful sound hadn't come from her. Well, anyhow, she was safe.

In the cornucopia of radiance from the torch I saw a tall elderly sharp-faced woman, talking earnestly to Cravath. She wore a bathrobe of some grayish material that made her look almost gaunt. And now she was grasping Cravath's arm, shaking it slightly.

Cravath stared at her, incredulously. "You're sure of this?"

The gaunt woman made an exasperated gesture. "Of course, I'm sure. I have eyes, Marston Cravath. Very good ones." She went back toward the house.

Cravath saw me and came running over.

"That was Mrs. Ring my housekeeper, Orth. If what she says is true, there's a bad business here. Come along!"

Without further explanation, he wheeled and struck off toward the bluffs. We went obliquely past the beginning of the Peacock Path and presently reached the top of them.

"This is how we get down to the beach," he said, over his shoulder. "Watch your step. It's tricky going."

The path, a sort of defile in the cliff side, was both precipitous and circuitous. At last, practically slithering on our haunches, we tumbled out onto a strip of beach.

The beach ended abruptly at a formation of smooth rock at the base of the cliffs. It sloped right to the water and gleamed damp and slippery looking under moisture tossed up by wind and wave.

The body lay face down in a hideous grotesque twisted crumple. Only the back of the head was the color of corn now. The yellow thatch that had been a kind of brave youthful pompadour was a grisly red mop. From under it leaked little crimson rivulets, seeping down the rocks toward the water.

I looked at all that remained of Ames Warburton.

The others, or some of them were coming down. Three lights twinkled high up on the cliffside.

I waited a moment, but then curiosity got the better of me. "Mr. Cravath," I said "do you care to tell me what it was that your housekeeper had to say?"

He looked at me steadily. "I've been considering that. On the whole, I'd rather you heard it from Mrs. Ring herself. So you can draw your own— er, conclusions. But"—suddenly he was talking to himself, rather than to me—"I still can't believe it. And yet, Ring isn't fanciful or hysterical."

I let it go at that. After all, he was my client.

A shout sounded. Jack Dumont, Dave Sladen and Sally were hurrying toward us across the beach. I ran to meet them.

"There's been an accident," I said. "A very bad one. You'd better stay here, Sally."

Dumont repeated almost woodenly" accident." But then he brushed past me, Sladen following. I caught Sally's arm.

She didn't try to wrench herself away. "Oh, Jim,is it . . .Ames?"

"Yes," I said. "How did you know?"

"Because he and Dolly were the only ones who didn't come downstairs. Uncle Jack says Dolly's sound asleep and didn't hear the commotion. So Dave ran back up and Ames wasn't in his room. His bed hadn't been slept in either. Jim, is Ames, is he. . ."

I nodded briefly.

A shiver shook her from head to toe. "How did it happen? Do you know?"

"I don't know anything. He appears to have over the cliff, that's all."

"But what on earth was he doing out in the Peacock Path at this time of night?"

"Search me," I said. "Is the Peacock Path above here?"

"Directly above."

She shivered again and I wanted to put my arm around her. I quashed the impulse, but flashed my torch on her ankles. They were bare and she wore ridiculous high-heeled mules.

"Sally," I said, "I want to look around a little. Will you please stay here?"

I expected an argument, but she was surprisingly docile. "All right, Jim. If you want me to."

I left her and joined the men. Dumont and Dave Sladen were walking around playing their lights on the rock. Suddenly Sladen gave a cry. "Hey! Here's a watch."

A watch, indeed, lay at Dave Sladden's feet. Or the remains of a watch, for it now was a battered mass of metal. Sladen stooped to pick it up, but I grabbed his shoulder.

"Better not touch anything." I said "before the police get here."

He shot me a who-are-you-to-give-orders look, but he straightened up without touching the watch.

Dumont said, snapping off his torch "that's Ames Warburton's watch, all right. I saw him fiddling with it in the office the other day."

It was then decided that Cravath and Dumont would remain with the body. Sladen, Sally and I were to go back to the house where Sladen would call the police. Cravath made these arrangements and I was in no position to interfere. Nonetheless, I would rather have stayed with Cravath.

The three of us negotiated that steep climb back to Windover and scarcely a word was said on the way. At the house, Sladen disappeared immediately to do his phoning and Sally went upstairs to inform Eve Wheeler of the tragedy.

The police came finally and I kept in the background. Marston Cravath and Dumont talked to them briefly in the living room and went with them while, I supposed, the officers examined the ground at the end of the Peacock Path and the medical examiner viewed the body on the rocks. As no one paid the slightest attention to me, I slipped up to my room, and waited. Cravath came around four o'clock.

With him was the gaunt woman who'd talked to him slightly like a Dutch aunt on the grounds. She didn't look so gaunt now, fully dressed in respectable and elderly black. But her eyes were sharp behind steel-rimmed specs.

For the second time I walked into Cravath's trophy-littered sanctum. The gaunt woman ensconced herself immediately upon a straightbacked chair. She put her feet together and assumed a no-nonsense expression which, I thought, practically came natural to her. Cravath said, without any attempt to explain, why I, the latest of the guests, should be with him in his holy-of-holies at such a time, "Mrs. Ring—Mr. Orth. Mrs. Ring has something to say, Orth."

I nodded to her, but interposed, "what's the police verdict, so far?"

Cravath gestured impatiently "Either accident or suicide, they don't know which. There'll be an inquest, however. But I'm certain" all at once though, despite his floridness and fullness of face, Marston Cravath looked haggard and old "that they'll bring in a verdict of accidental death."

He said it queerly, like a man whose lips were all set to whistle past a graveyard. And the Ring woman, prim on her uncomfortable chair, seemed to catch the queerness in his voice, even as I did myself. She muttered a kind of subdued, and respectable snort.

"Accident?" Her mouth curled. "I don't believe it."

Cravath smiled "Mrs. Ring is a woman of definite opinions. She's been here . . . how many years is it, Ring?"

"Forty-one," Mrs. Ring said. "And this isn't my opinion. I know what I saw." She paused, as if to let that weighty announcement sink in. "I'm a poor sleeper and last night I didn't sleep any better than I usually do. I woke up in the night. Don't ask me what time it was because I didn't look. Well, I got up and sat at the window. The moon kept popping in and out from behind the clouds. I was out when I saw the man climb the fence. It was Ames Warburton, of course, but I didn't recognize him then. He got onto that little strip of ground between the fence and the cliff. He took a step or two forward and bent down. Then, just as he was straightening up the—the thing pushed him over the cliff."

"Thing? What thing?"

The housekeeper shrugged. "How shouold I know? But whatever it was, it seemed to sort of carry Mr. Warburton in front of it. I saw him stagger and throw out his hands, as if he were trying to grab something and hold himself back. But there wasn't anything to grab. And he was too close to the edge. He just . . went over."

"Pushed?" I put in. "You're sure about that, Mrs. Ring?"

She regarded me bleakly through her specs. "I'm sure about nothing, young man. I'm only telling you how it seemed to me. But you are probably thinking that Mr. Warburton stumbled."

She was even sharper than she looked. I had been thinking something like that.

"Well, he didn't. I was too quick too—er, violent. I believe that something either pushed or struck him hard. And that," she compressed thin lips, "is everything I can tell you."

"I take it," I pursued, somewhat senselessly "that you didn't see this thing that struck him. I mean you couldn't give us an idea about what it was."

"I didn't see it or I would have told you what it was."

That settled me, temporarily. Cravath fumed. "Humph! What was the boy doing out there at that time of night?"

Mrs. Ring evidently considered this unworthy of reply.
